PROXY STATEMENT FOR EXTRAORDINARY GENERAL MEETING OF SHAREHOLDERS OF ARMADA ACQUISITION CORP. II (A CAYMAN ISLANDS EXEMPTED COMPANY)

AND

PROSPECTUS FOR UP TO 34,499,992 SHARES OF CLASS A COMMON STOCK AND 11,499,992 WARRANTS OF EVERNORTH HOLDINGS INC. (IN CONNECTION WITH THE TRANSACTIONS DESCRIBED HEREIN)

The board of directors of Armada Acquisition Corp. II, a Cayman Islands exempted company (the "SPAC"), has unanimously approved that certain Business Combination Agreement, dated as of October 19, 2025 (as may be amended, supplemented or otherwise modified from time to time, the "Business Combination Agreement"), by and among SPAC, Evernorth Holdings Inc., a Nevada corporation ("Pubco" or "Evernorth"), Evernorth Corporate Merger Sub Inc., a Delaware corporation and wholly owned subsidiary of Pubco ("SPAC Merger Sub"), Pathfinder Digital Assets LLC, a Delaware limited liability company (the "Company"), Evernorth Company Merger Sub LLC, a Delaware limited liability company and wholly owned subsidiary of Pubco ("Company Merger Sub") and Ripple Labs Inc., a Delaware corporation ("Ripple"), a copy of which is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex A.

On August 12, 2026, SPAC, Pubco, the Company, SPAC Merger Sub, Company Merger Sub and Ripple amended the Business Combination Agreement ("Amendment No. 1 to the Business Combination Agreement") for purposes of proposing certain changes to Pubco's amended and restated articles of incorporation, with such changes to be adopted by Pubco and to take effect upon the consummation of the transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement (the "Closing" and the date and time at which the Closing is actually held, the "Closing Date").

The Business Combination Agreement provides that, among other things, upon the Closing and upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein, (a) Company Merger Sub will merge with and into the Company, with the Company continuing as the surviving company (the "Company Merger"), with holders of Company units (each, a "Company Unit") receiving one share of Class A common stock, par value $0.001 per share, of Pubco ("Pubco Class A Common Stock") for each Company Unit, subject to certain reductions and other limitations imposed on the Contributor Related Parties, as set forth in the Business Combination Agreement, and (b) simultaneously with the Company Merger, SPAC Merger Sub will merge with and into SPAC Delaware, with SPAC Delaware continuing as the surviving entity (the "SPAC Merger" and, together with the Company Merger, the "Mergers" and, together with the other transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement and the other Ancillary Agreements, the "Transactions"), with (x) stockholders of SPAC Delaware receiving one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each SPAC Class A Share held by such shareholder, and (y) warrant holders of SPAC Delaware receiving one warrant to purchase one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each warrant to purchase one SPAC Class A Share held by such warrant holders. Upon consummation of the Mergers and the Transactions, Pubco will become a publicly traded company, in each case upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Business Combination Agreement and in accordance with applicable law. "SPAC Class A Shares" means, prior to the SPAC Domestication, the Class A ordinary shares, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC and after the SPAC Domestication, the shares of Class A common stock, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC Delaware.

Subject to obtaining the required shareholder approvals, at least one Business Day prior to the Closing Date, SPAC will transfer by way of continuation to and domesticate as a Delaware corporation (the "SPAC Domestication," and SPAC immediately following the SPAC Domestication and prior to the Closing, "SPAC Delaware"). In connection with the SPAC Domestication, (i) each then issued and outstanding Class A ordinary share, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC shall convert automatically into one share of Class A common stock, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC Delaware having the rights, powers and preferences, and the obligations, set forth in the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation; (ii) each then issued and outstanding Class B ordinary share, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC shall convert automatically into one share of Class B common stock, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC Delaware having the rights, powers and preferences, and the obligations, set forth in the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation; (iii) each then issued and outstanding SPAC Warrant shall convert automatically into a warrant to acquire one share of Class A common stock, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC Delaware on the same terms as the SPAC Warrant pursuant to the Warrant Agreement; and (iv) each then issued and outstanding SPAC Unit shall convert automatically into one unit of SPAC Delaware that entitles the holder to one share of Class A common stock, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC Delaware and one-half of one warrant to acquire one share of Class A common stock, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC Delaware.

At the SPAC Merger Effective Time, Pubco will issue to warrantholders of SPAC Delaware one warrant to purchase one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock (each, a "Pubco Warrant") for each warrant to purchase one SPAC Class A Share held by such warrantholders ("SPAC Public Warrants").

Pursuant to the Sponsor Support Agreement, as amended by Amendment No. 1 to the Sponsor Support Agreement (in each case, as defined herein), Arrington XRP Capital Fund, LP, a Delaware limited partnership (solely in its capacity as sponsor of SPAC, the "Sponsor"), also agreed to forfeit for no consideration, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor. The Sponsor will exchange its remaining SPAC Private Warrants for Pubco Warrants. The Pubco Warrants will have substantially the same terms as the SPAC Private Warrants. Additionally, on September 9, 2025, the representatives of the underwriters in the SPAC's initial public offering (the "SPAC IPO"), on behalf of all such underwriters, agreed to, in connection with the closing of the Transactions, reimburse a portion of the SPAC's bona fide documented fees and expenses incurred in connection with the SPAC IPO in an amount of $2,300,000, with such amount decreased by $0.10 for every SPAC Class A Share in respect of which a Public Shareholder exercises its redemption rights.

In connection with the Closing, Pubco may issue three classes of common stock with different voting and economic rights. The Pubco Class A Common Stock will be entitled to economic rights, including the right to receive distributions in proportion to the number of shares held, and will be listed for trading on Nasdaq or another national securities exchange. Each share of Pubco Class A Common Stock will be entitled to one vote per share. Each share of Class B common stock, par value $0.001 per share, of Pubco ("Pubco Class B Common Stock") will be entitled to one vote per share but will not have any economic rights and will not be listed for trading or transferable unless a corresponding number of units of the Company Surviving Subsidiary are transferred to the same person. However, no shares of Pubco Class B Common Stock are expected to be issued or outstanding immediately following the Closing. Shares of Class C common stock, par value $0.001 per share, of Pubco ("Pubco Class C Common Stock") will be entitled to economic rights, including the right to receive distributions in proportion to the number of shares held, but will have no voting rights except as required by the Nevada Revised Statutes and except with respect to certain amendments of the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter (as defined below) and will not be listed for trading or transferable, and will be convertible into Pubco Class A Common Stock at the election of the holder from time to time.

Immediately following the Closing, the Pubco Class A Common Stock will be held by the former SPAC Delaware stockholders, the Advance Funding Subscribers (as defined below), the Delayed Funding Subscribers (as defined below), the Contributor Related Party Entity (as defined below), Ripple and the Sponsor (as defined below), while the Pubco Class C Common Stock will be held only by the Sponsor, and no shares of Pubco Class B Common Stock will be issued or outstanding. The Company Units will be exchangeable for Pubco Class A Common Stock or the cash equivalent, at Pubco's election, on the terms and subject to the conditions of the Company A&R LLCA (as defined below).

Assuming the Closing SPAC Price is $10.00, the price per share of Pubco Class A Common Stock and the price per warrant of Pubco Warrants is $11.50. The value of the consideration that Public Shareholders will receive in connection with the Business Combination is $230,000,000, assuming the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00. Assuming no Redemptions by the Public Shareholders, immediately following the Closing, the Public Shareholders will hold 23,000,000 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the Advanced Funding Subscribers will hold 9,481,664 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the Delayed Funding Subscribers will hold 482,870 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the Contributor Related Party Entity will hold 1,327,146 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the Sponsor will hold 9,432,524 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Ripple will hold 3,365,416 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, in each case excluding the impact of Pubco Warrants. For more information about the value and number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants expected to be held by the Public Shareholders, the Advance Funding Subscribers, the Delayed Funding Subscribers, the Contributor Related Party Entity, the Sponsor and Ripple immediately following the Closing, see the sections entitled "Summary of the proxy statement/prospectus—Ownership of Pubco After the Transactions," "Questions and Answers About the Proposals—What equity stake will current Public Shareholders, the PIPE Investors, the Sponsor, Ripple, and their affiliates hold in Pubco immediately after the completion of the Transactions and the Private Placement Investments?" in this proxy statement/prospectus.

Material Financing Transactions

Contribution Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Ripple, Pubco and the Company entered into a contribution agreement (the "Contribution Agreement"), pursuant to which Ripple contributed to the Company 126,791,458 XRP tokens (the "Contributed XRP"), in a private placement (the "Initial Contribution"), in exchange for the Company issuing to Ripple Company Units (the "Contributor Subscribed Units"). On August 12, 2026, Ripple, Pubco and the Company entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Contribution Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Contributor Subscribed Units. The amendment subjects the initial unit calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-unit adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price.

For purposes of the Contribution Agreement:

- "Contributor Initial Subscribed Units" means the quotient of (i) the Contributor Units Subscription Price and (ii) $10.00, multiplied by a closing date adjustment factor equal to the lesser of (a) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (b) one;
- "Contributor Units Subscription Price" means such amount (in USD) equal to the product of (x) the Contributed XRP and (y) the Signing XRP Price; and
- "Contributor Adjustment Units" means, if the Closing XRP Price is greater than the Signing XRP Price, such number of Company Units equal to the product of (i) the number of Contributor Initial Subscribed Units issuable to Ripple and (ii) the difference between (a) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (b) one. If the Closing XRP Price is less than or equal to the Signing XRP Price, no Contributor Adjustment Units will be issued.

Prior to and effective upon closing, Pubco, Ripple and the Contributor Related Party Entity will enter into the Company A&R LLCA.

The Contribution Agreement may be terminated prior to the Closing as follows: (a) by the mutual written consent of the parties thereto and SPAC; or (b) automatically with no further action required by the parties thereto if the Business Combination Agreement is terminated in accordance with its terms.

Advance Funding Subscription Agreements

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into advance funding subscription agreements (collectively, the "Advance Funding Subscription Agreements") with certain institutional investors and individual accredited investors (the "Advance Funding Subscribers"), pursuant to which the Advance Funding Subscribers agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (the "Advance Funding Shares") for $214.05 million in cash and a contribution of 600,000 XRP tokens in a private placement (the "Advance Funding Subscription"), upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and each Advance Funding Subscriber entered into Amendment No. 1 to the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Advance Funding Shares. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial share calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-share adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. Under the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, as amended, each Advance Funding Subscriber will receive a number of Advance Funding Shares at the closing of the Advance Funding equal to the sum of (a) the Advance Funding Initial Subscribed Shares and (b) the Advance Funding Adjustment Shares, if any. For purposes of the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, as amended:

- "Advance Funding Initial Subscribed Shares" means the quotient of (i) the Advance Funding Subscription Price and (ii) $10.00, multiplied by the "Closing Date Adjustment Factor," which means the lesser of (a) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (b) one;
- "Advance Funding Subscription Price" means (a) if the Advance Funding Subscriber elected to subscribe for the Advance Funding Shares with cash, the amount of cash contributed as set forth on the signature page to its Advance Funding Subscription Agreement or (b) if the Advance Funding Subscriber elected to subscribe for the Advance Funding Shares with XRP, such amount (in USD) equal to the product of (x) the amount of XRP contributed as set forth on the signature page to its Advance Funding Subscription Agreement and (y) the Signing XRP Price;

  "Signing XRP Price" means the VWAP of XRP denominated in USD as quoted on the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" benchmark (with the reference ticker XRPUSD_NY) at 4:00 p.m. New York City time on the day immediately preceding the date on which the Business Combination Agreement is signed. The Signing XRP Price has been determined to be $2.36609;
- "Advance Funding Adjustment Shares" means, in respect of any Advance Funding Subscriber, whether such subscriber elected to subscribe with XRP or with cash that was subsequently used by Pubco and/or the Company to purchase XRP, if the Closing XRP Price is greater than the Signing XRP Price, such number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock equal to the product of (i) the number of Advance Funding Initial Subscribed Shares issuable to such Advance Funding Subscriber and (ii) the difference between (a) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (b) one. If the Closing XRP Price is less than or equal to the Signing XRP Price, no Advance Funding Adjustment Shares will be issued; and
- "Closing XRP Price" means the value of XRP denominated in USD as calculated using the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" benchmark (with the reference ticker XRPUSD_NY) by taking the arithmetic average of the quotes at 4:00 p.m. New York City time for each of the three days immediately preceding the Closing Date.

Capitalized terms used but not defined in this subsection shall have the meanings ascribed to such terms in the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements.

In addition to the changes reflected by Amendment No. 1 above, on August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and each of SBI Venture Fund 2023A Investment LPS, SBI Venture Fund 2023B Investment LPS, SBI PE Holdings Co., Ltd. and SBI Holdings USA, Inc. (collectively, the "SBI Stockholders"), each of which are entities controlled by SBI Holdings, Inc. ("SBI"), further amended the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreements (the "SBI Entity Amendments"). The purpose of each SBI Entity Amendment is to apply a 39.9% ownership limitation to the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable in respect of SBI's Advance Funding Subscription. At the Transaction Closing, Pubco will issue in respect of SBI's subscription (i) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would cause the Subscriber Group Ownership Percentage (as defined in the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreement, as amended) to equal 39.9% and (ii) the balance of the Subscribed Shares as shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock. This allocation will not change the aggregate number of Subscribed Shares, the aggregate Subscription Price or the Per Share Price, which will be identical for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock. The shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock will be convertible into shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock in accordance with the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter.

The closing of each Advance Funding Subscription is conditioned on the satisfaction or waiver by each such Advance Funding Subscriber of the additional condition that, on the date of each such agreement, no other Advance Funding Subscription Agreement (or other agreements or understandings (including side letters) entered into in connection therewith or in connection with the sale of the other Advance Funding Shares) shall have been amended, modified or waived in any manner that benefits any other Advance Funding Subscriber unless such Advance Funding Subscriber shall have been offered in writing the same benefits (other than terms particular to the legal or regulatory requirements of such other Advance Funding Subscriber or its affiliates or related persons).

Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into delayed funding subscription agreements (collectively, the "Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements") with certain institutional investors and individual accredited investors (the "Delayed Funding Subscribers"), pursuant to which the Delayed Funding Subscribers agreed to subscribe for and purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (the "Delayed Funding Shares") for $10.5 million in cash and a contribution of 200,000 XRP tokens, in a private placement (the "Delayed Funding Subscription"), upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. Delayed Funding Subscribers will receive a number of Delayed Funding Shares at the closing of the Delayed Funding equal to the quotient of (i) the Delayed Funding Subscription Price and (ii) $10.00.

For purposes of the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements, "Delayed Funding Subscription Price" means (a) if the Delayed Funding Subscriber elected to subscribe for the Delayed Funding Shares with cash, the amount of cash contributed as set forth on the signature page to its Delayed Funding Subscription Agreement or (b) if the Delayed Funding Subscriber elected to subscribe for the Delayed Funding Shares with XRP, such amount (in USD) equal to the product of (x) the amount of XRP contributed as set forth on the signature page to its Delayed Funding Subscription Agreement and (y) the Closing XRP Price.

The closing of each Delayed Funding Subscription is conditioned on, among other things, the satisfaction or waiver of all closing conditions to the consummation of the Business Combination; and the Delayed Funding Subscribers' consent to any amendments, modifications or waivers to the terms of the Business Combination Agreement that would reasonably be expected to materially and adversely affect the economic benefits to the Delayed Funding Subscribers.

Series C Subscription Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into a subscription agreement (the "Series C Subscription Agreement") with the Sponsor, pursuant to which the Sponsor agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock (together, the "Series C Subscribed Shares") for 211,319,096.061435 XRP tokens (the "Series C Subscription"), in a private investment in public equity transaction (a "PIPE"), upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and the Sponsor entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Series C Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Series C Subscribed Shares. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial share calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-share adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. The Sponsor will receive (i) a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would result in the Series C DQ Persons (as defined below) owning, immediately after the Transaction Closing and the other related transactions, a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would cause the Series C DQ

Persons to be the beneficial owners (as defined in Rule 13d-3 or 13d-5 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act"), or any successor statute or regulation) of capital stock of Pubco such that the Series C Attributed Ownership Percentage (as defined below) equals 19.9% and (ii) a number of shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock equal to the number of Series C Subscribed Shares minus the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issued to the Sponsor pursuant to clause (i). Under the Series C Subscription Agreement, as amended, the total Series C Subscribed Shares will equal the sum of (a) the Series C Initial Subscribed Shares and (b) the Series C Adjustment Shares, if any.

For purposes of the Series C Subscription Agreement:

- "Outstanding Voting Shares" means the aggregate number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class B Common Stock to be outstanding as of immediately following the Completion Date (as defined in the Series C Subscription Agreement);
- "RippleWorks" means RippleWorks Inc., a Delaware nonprofit nonstock corporation;
- "Series C Adjustment Shares" means, if the Closing XRP Price is greater than the Signing XRP Price, such number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock or Pubco Class C Common Stock equal to the product of (i) the number of Series C Initial Subscribed Shares issuable to the Series C DQ Persons and (ii) the difference between (a) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (b) one. If the Closing XRP Price is less than or equal to the Signing XRP Price, no Series C Adjustment Shares will be issued;
- "Series C Attributed Ownership Percentage" means the quotient of (x) the sum of (i) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, Pubco Class B Common Stock and Pubco Voting Preferred Stock (as defined in the Series C Subscription Agreement), if applicable, held by Sponsor, RippleWorks and the Series C DQ Persons and (ii) the Series C Indirect Ownership Amount and (y) the Outstanding Voting Shares;
- "Series C DQ Persons" means any holders of Pubco Stock, Pubco Preferred Stock or Company Units who are "disqualified persons" with respect to Sponsor or RippleWorks within the meaning of Section 4946 of the Code for purposes of the excess business holdings rules set forth in Code Section 4943;
- "Series C Indirect Ownership Amount" means, at any given time, the aggregate number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, Pubco Class B Common Stock and Pubco Voting Preferred Stock (without duplication) that Sponsor and any Series C DQ Person are deemed to indirectly own under the excess business holdings rules set forth in Code Section 4943 as a result of Sponsor's, RippleWorks' or any other Series C DQ Person's ownership of stock in a corporation, profits interest in a partnership, or beneficial interest in a trust, estate or unincorporated enterprise that, in each case, beneficially owns Pubco Class A Common Stock, and/or Pubco Class B Common Stock and/or Pubco Voting Preferred Stock;
- "Series C Initial Subscribed Shares" means the quotient of (i) the Series C Subscription Price and (ii) $10.00, multiplied by a closing date adjustment factor equal to the lesser of (a) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (b) one; and
- "Series C Subscription Price" means such amount (in USD) equal to the product of (x) the amount of XRP contributed as set forth on the signature page to its Series C Subscription Agreement and (y) the Signing XRP Price.

The closing of the Series C Subscription Agreement is conditioned on the satisfaction or waiver by the Sponsor of the additional condition that, on the date of such agreement, no other Series C Subscription Agreement (or other agreements or understandings (including side letters) entered into in connection therewith or in connection with the sale of the other Private Placement Equity Interests) shall have been amended, modified or waived in any manner that benefits any other Private Placement Investors with respect to the economic terms governing the purchase and sale of such other Private Placement Equity Interests unless the Sponsor shall have been offered in writing the same economic benefits; provided, however, that such condition shall not apply to

(i) any allocation of the Series C Subscribed Shares between Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock (including the ownership-limit mechanics and related calculations set forth in the Series C Subscription Agreement, so long as the aggregate Series C Subscription Price and the per share price thereof are identical, (ii) any differences between the rights of any shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock and the rights of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, (iii) any terms that are particular to the legal, regulatory, tax or policy requirements of any other Private Placement Investor or its affiliates or (iv) matters that do not impact the economic terms of the purchase and sale of the Series C Subscribed Shares.

Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into a subscription agreement (the "Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement") with Larsen Lam Children's Remainder Trust, an investor affiliated with Ripple (the "Contributor Related Party Entity"), pursuant to which the Contributor Related Party Entity agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (the "Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Shares"), and the Company agreed to issue and sell Company Units (the "Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Units" and, together with the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Shares, the "Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests") for an aggregate contribution of 50 million XRP tokens in a private placement (the "Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription"), upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and the Contributor Related Party Entity entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial equity-interest calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-equity-interest adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. The Contributor Related Party Entity will not receive a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would result in the Contributor Group Holders collectively owning, immediately after the Transaction Closing and the other related transactions, a number of shares that would cause the Contributor Group Ownership Percentage (as defined below) to exceed 9.9% and, to the extent the number of shares issued to the Contributor Group Holders is reduced as a result of the foregoing, the Contributor Related Party Entity will receive a number of Company Units equal to the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests minus the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Shares. Under the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, as amended, the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests will equal the sum of (a) the Contributor Related Party Entity Initial Subscribed Equity Interests and (b) the Contributor Related Party Entity Adjustment Equity Interests, if any.

For purposes of the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement:

- "Contributor Group Holders" means the Contributor, the Contributor Related Party Entity and any other holders of Pubco Common Stock, Pubco Preferred Stock or Company Units who are collectively deemed to form a "group" as defined in Section 13(d) of the Exchange Act;
- "Contributor Group Ownership Percentage" means the quotient of (x) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class B Common Stock beneficially held by Contributor Group Holders and (y) the Outstanding Voting Shares;
- "Contributor Related Party Entity Adjustment Equity Interests" means, if the Closing XRP Price is greater than the Signing XRP Price, such number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock or Company Units equal to the product of (i) the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Initial Subscribed Equity Interests issuable to the Contributor Related Party Entity and (ii) the difference between (a) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (b) one. If the Closing XRP Price is less than or equal to the Signing XRP Price, no Contributor Related Party Entity Adjustment Equity Interests will be issued;
- "Contributor Related Party Entity Initial Subscribed Equity Interests" means the quotient of (i) the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Price and (ii) $10.00, multiplied by a closing date adjustment factor equal to the lesser of (a) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (b) one; and

- "Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Price" means such amount (in USD) equal to the product of (i) the amount of XRP contributed as set forth on the signature page to the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement and (ii) the Signing XRP Price.

The closing of the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription is conditioned on the satisfaction or waiver by the Contributor Related Party Entity of the additional condition that, on the date of each such agreement, no other Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement (or other agreements or understandings (including side letters) entered into in connection therewith or in connection with the sale of the other Subscribed Equity Interests) shall have been amended, modified or waived in any manner that benefits any other Contributor Related Party Entity, if any, unless the Contributor Related Party Entity shall have been offered in writing the same benefits (other than terms particular to the legal or regulatory requirements of such other Contributor Related Party Entity, if any, or its affiliates or related persons).

No fractional shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, Pubco Class B Common Stock or Company Units will be issued in connection with the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements, the Series C Subscription Agreement and the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement (collectively, the "Subscription Agreements"). Any fractional shares of Pubco otherwise issuable will be rounded up to the nearest whole share, except that any fractional adjustment shares otherwise issuable pursuant to the amendments described above will be rounded down to the nearest whole share, and any fractional equity units otherwise issuable will be rounded down to the nearest whole equity unit.

Pursuant to the Subscription Agreements, Pubco has agreed to use commercially reasonable efforts to file a registration statement registering the resale of the shares purchased by the Subscribers pursuant to the Subscription Agreements (at Pubco's sole cost and expense) within 30 calendar days following the Closing Date and to use commercially reasonable efforts to have such registration statement declared effective as soon as practicable, and in any event no later than 75 calendar days after the Closing Date, subject to an extension in the event of SEC review.

The net cash proceeds from the closing of the Subscription Agreements, along with funds from the trust account of the SPAC, will be used for working capital, general corporate purposes and the purchase of XRP.

Each Subscription Agreement will terminate and be void and of no further force or effect upon the earliest to occur of (i) the termination of the Business Combination Agreement in accordance with its terms, (ii) the date that is twelve months from the date of the Subscription Agreement or (iii) the mutual written agreement of the parties thereto.

Pubco, the Company and SPAC may seek to raise additional funds through private placement transactions, including PIPE transactions, or other forms of capital raising. There can be no assurance as to whether, when or on what terms any such future financings may be conducted.

Tax Receivable Agreement

Concurrently with the Closing, Pubco, the Company and the TRA Parties will enter into a tax receivable agreement (the "Tax Receivable Agreement"), which will provide for, among other things, payment by Pubco to the TRA Parties of 85% of the U.S. federal, state and local income tax savings realized or deemed to be realized by Pubco as a result of the increases in tax basis and certain other tax benefits and the exchange of units of the Company Surviving Subsidiary for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (as more fully described in the Tax Receivable Agreement).

Consideration Received by the Sponsor and its Affiliates

The compensation to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates upon the consummation of the Business Combination (excluding any consideration from participation in the Private Placement Investments) is: up to (x) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, on an as converted basis, equal to the sum of (A) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares and (B) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares, and (y) the number of Pubco Warrants, on an as converted basis, equal to 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants less the Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants, each of which entitles the holder of such warrant to purchase one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock at a price of $11.50 per share as set forth in the Pubco Warrant Agreement. In addition to the exchanges described in the preceding sentence, the Sponsor agreed to, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit the interests it holds in SPAC that would otherwise remain after such exchanges, consisting of a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor.

The Sponsor purchased 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants from the Original Sponsor for an aggregate purchase price of $6,600,000. Assuming a trading price of $10.50 per Founder Share and $0.801 per SPAC Private Warrant (based upon the respective closing prices of the SPAC Class A Shares and the SPAC Public Warrants on Nasdaq on August 20, 2026, the most recent practicable date prior to the date of this proxy statement/prospectus), the 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants, in each case if unrestricted and freely tradable, would have an implied aggregate market value of $87.1 million.

In addition to the compensation to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates referred to above, RippleWorks made an investment in the Sponsor of $500,000 in cash and 211,319,096.061435 XRP tokens (the token portion of such investment, the "RippleWorks Token Investment" and together with the cash investment, the "RippleWorks Investment"), which is subject to the Sponsor's obligation to invest all of the RippleWorks Token Investment in shares of Pubco pursuant to the Series C Subscription Agreement. RippleWorks may withdraw the RippleWorks Investment if the Business Combination is not consummated. The Sponsor will receive a customary annual management fee in connection with its management of the RippleWorks Investment. RippleWorks is a limited partner in the Sponsor and, prior to the RippleWorks Investment held, and after the execution of the Business Combination Agreement holds, a majority of the limited partner interests in the Sponsor. Prior to the RippleWorks Investment, RippleWorks was entitled to only customary limited partner information and approval rights in the Sponsor. In connection with the RippleWorks Investment, the Sponsor and RippleWorks entered into a letter agreement dated October 17, 2025 pursuant to which Sponsor agreed to consult with RippleWorks on any decisions directly related to the disposition or voting of Pubco Stock purchased under the Series C Subscription Agreement and to vote such shares as directed by RippleWorks. Chris Larsen, co-founder and Executive Chairman of Ripple, is also a co-founder and member of the board of directors of RippleWorks.

Upon the completion of the Transactions and the consummation of the Private Placement Investments, and assuming, among other things, that neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, that no holder of SPAC Class A Shares sold as part of the SPAC Units in the SPAC IPO, whether purchased in the SPAC IPO or following the SPAC IPO in the open market (a "Public Shareholder," and such shares, "Public Shares") exercises redemption rights with respect to their Public Shares upon completion of the Transactions, that all Advance Funding Subscribers, Delayed Funding Subscribers, the Sponsor and the Contributor Related Party Entity (together, the "Private Placement Investors") fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, that Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, that the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, that the Closing XRP Price is $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026), that no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the incentive plan expected to be adopted by Pubco in connection with the Closing and neither Ripple nor the Sponsor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market, (i) the Public Shareholders, (ii) the Advance Funding Subscribers, (iii) the Delayed Funding Subscribers, (iv) the Contributor Related Party Entity, (v) the Sponsor and (vi) Ripple, in each case, will own approximately 48.5%, 20.0%, 1.0%, 2.8%, 19.9% and 7.1%, respectively, of the issued and outstanding shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock. These percentages exclude 11,654,992 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock underlying Pubco Warrants that may later be issued.

If any of the Public Shareholders exercise their redemption rights, the percentage of the issued and outstanding shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock held by the Public Shareholders will decrease and the percentages of issued and outstanding shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock held by the Advance Funding Subscribers, the Delayed Funding Subscribers, the Contributor Related Party Entity, the Sponsor and Ripple will each increase, subject to the 9.9% ownership cap on the Contributor Group's ownership of Pubco's total voting power, in the case of Ripple, in each case relative to the percentage held if none of the Public Shares are redeemed.

Non-redeeming shareholders will experience dilution from the issuance of Pubco Class A Common Stock upon the exchange of Founder Shares. Further, to the extent that the Sponsor (or any of its affiliates) exercises the Pubco Warrants described above to acquire shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the resulting issuances of Pubco Class A Common Stock may result in material dilution of the non-redeeming shareholders of the SPAC who become stockholders of Pubco. In addition, non-redeeming shareholders will experience dilution due to the issuance of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and securities exercisable for or convertible into shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock to others in the Business Combination and any related financing transactions. Further detail regarding the price paid and the compensation received and to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates and the dilution that may be caused thereby is provided in the sections of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Summary of the proxy statement/prospectus— Consideration Received by the Sponsor and its Affiliates."

This proxy statement/prospectus covers: (i) up to 34,499,992 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, which number is based on the assumptions set forth in the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Summary of the proxy statement/prospectus—Ownership of Pubco After the Transactions"; and (ii) up to 11,499,992 Pubco Warrants.

SPAC will hold the extraordinary general meeting ("Extraordinary General Meeting") to consider matters relating to the Transactions at 12:00 p.m. Eastern Time, on September 30, 2026. For the purposes of Cayman Islands law and the amended and restated memorandum and articles of association of SPAC (the "SPAC Charter"), the physical place of the meeting will be at 701 5th Ave #5100, Seattle, WA 98104. However, in order to facilitate access for SPAC's shareholders, the Extraordinary General Meeting will be held in virtual meeting format at https://www.cstproxy.com/armadaacqii/2026. There is no requirement to attend the Extraordinary General Meeting in person at the physical place of the meeting in order to vote, and SPAC encourages virtual participation. You or your proxyholder will be able to attend and vote at the Extraordinary General Meeting in-person or online by visiting https://www.cstproxy.com/armadaacqii/2026 and using a control number assigned by Continental Stock Transfer & Trust Company, SPAC's transfer agent. To register and receive access to the Extraordinary General Meeting, registered shareholders and beneficial owners (those holding SPAC shares through a stock brokerage account or by a bank or other holder of record) will need to follow the instructions applicable to them provided in this proxy statement/prospectus.

After careful consideration, the SPAC Board has unanimously approved the Business Combination Agreement, the Transactions and the other proposals described in this proxy statement/prospectus. The SPAC Board has also determined that it is advisable to consummate the Transactions and that the Transactions are in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders. In making its determination, the SPAC Board considered, among other things, the Fairness Opinion that was provided by Cohen & Company Securities, LLC (acting through its Cohen & Company Capital Markets division) ("CCM") for the information of, and directed to, the SPAC Board for its information and assistance in connection with the Business Combination. CCM is of the opinion that, as of October 19, 2025, the Exchange Ratio (as defined therein) is fair, from a financial point of view, to SPAC. The SPAC Board noted that CCM (i) is regularly engaged in valuing businesses and their securities and providing fairness opinions in connection with corporate transactions, and (ii) has experience with companies in sectors relevant to SPAC's business. The SPAC Board unanimously recommends that shareholders vote "FOR" each proposal described in this proxy statement/prospectus.

This proxy statement/prospectus provides shareholders of SPAC with detailed information about the Transactions and other matters to be considered at the Extraordinary General Meeting. We encourage you to read this entire document, including the Annexes and other documents referred to in this proxy statement/ prospectus, carefully and in their entirety. It also contains or references information about SPAC, Pubco and the Company and certain related matters. In particular, when you consider the recommendation regarding the proposals by the SPAC Board, you should keep in mind that the Sponsor and certain of SPAC's directors and officers have interests in the Transactions that may be different from, or in addition to, your interests as a shareholder. For instance, the Sponsor and certain of SPAC's officers and directors will benefit from the completion of an initial business combination and may be incentivized to complete an acquisition of a less favorable target company or on terms less favorable to shareholders rather than liquidating SPAC. See the section of this proxy statement/ prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions" for a further discussion of these considerations. For a discussion of the potential dilutive impact of redemptions on non-redeeming shareholders, see "Questions and Answers about the Proposals—Q: What happens if a substantial number of Public Shareholders vote in favor of the Business Combination Proposal and exercise their redemption rights". You should also carefully consider the risk factors described under the heading "Risk Factors" beginning on page 47 of this proxy statement/prospectus.

THESE SECURITIES HAVE NOT BEEN APPROVED OR DISAPPROVED BY THE SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION OR ANY STATE SECURITIES COMMISSION, NOR HAS THE SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION OR ANY STATE SECURITIES COMMISSION PASSED UPON THE ACCURACY OR ADEQUACY OF THIS PROXY STATEMENT/ PROSPECTUS. ANY REPRESENTATION TO THE CONTRARY IS A CRIMINAL OFFENSE.

This proxy statement/prospectus is dated August 27, 2026, and is first being mailed to SPAC shareholders on or about August 28, 2026.

ARMADA ACQUISITION CORP. II
A Cayman Islands Exempted Company
382 NE 191st St., Suite 602
Miami, FL 33179-3899

NOTICE OF EXTRAORDINARY GENERAL MEETING OF SHAREHOLDERS TO BE HELD ON September 30, 2026

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that an extraordinary general meeting (including any adjournments or postponements of the extraordinary general meeting, the "Extraordinary General Meeting") of Armada Acquisition Corp. II, a Cayman Islands exempted company ("SPAC"), will be held on September 30, 2026, at 12:00 p.m. Eastern Time, virtually at https://www.cstproxy.com/armadaacqii/2026. For the purposes of Cayman Islands law and the amended and restated memorandum and articles of association of SPAC (the "SPAC Charter"), the physical place of the meeting will be at 701 5th Ave #5100, Seattle, WA 98104. However, in order to facilitate access for SPAC's shareholders, the Extraordinary General Meeting will be held in virtual meeting format at https://www.cstproxy.com/armadaacqii/2026. There is no requirement to attend the Extraordinary General Meeting in person at the physical place of the meeting in order to vote, and SPAC encourages virtual participation. You or your proxyholder will be able to attend and vote at the Extraordinary General Meeting in-person or online by visiting https://www.cstproxy.com/armadaacqii/2026 and using a control number assigned by Continental Stock Transfer & Trust Company, SPAC's transfer agent. To register and receive access to the Extraordinary General Meeting, registered shareholders and beneficial owners (those holding SPAC shares through a stock brokerage account or by a bank or other holder of record) will need to follow the instructions applicable to them provided in this proxy statement/prospectus.

The Extraordinary General Meeting will be held for the following purposes:

Proposal No. 1—The Business Combination Proposal: To consider and vote upon a proposal to adopt and approve, by ordinary resolution, the Business Combination Agreement, dated as of October 19, 2025, attached to the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus as Annex A (as it may be further amended, supplemented or otherwise modified from time to time in accordance with its terms, the "Business Combination Agreement"), by and among SPAC, Evernorth Holdings Inc., a Nevada corporation ("Pubco"), Evernorth Corporate Merger Sub Inc., a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of Pubco ("SPAC Merger Sub"), Evernorth Company Merger Sub LLC, a Delaware limited liability company and a wholly owned subsidiary of Pubco ("Company Merger Sub"), Pathfinder Digital Assets LLC, a Delaware limited liability company (the "Company"), and Ripple Labs Inc., a Delaware corporation (the "Ripple"), pursuant to which, at the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement (the "Closing"), (a) Company Merger Sub will merge with and into the Company, with the Company continuing as the surviving company (the "Company Merger"), and with Ripple receiving one share of Class A common stock, par value $0.001 per share, of Pubco ("Pubco Class A Common Stock") for each unit of the Company (each, a "Company Unit") held by Ripple and exchanged subject to certain limitations on the initial holdings of Ripple and certain related entities included in the BCA, and (b) simultaneously with the Company Merger, SPAC Merger Sub will merge with and into SPAC, with SPAC continuing as the surviving entity (the "SPAC Merger" and, together with the Company Merger, the "Mergers" and, together with the other transactions contemplated by the BCA, the "Transactions"). We refer to this proposal as the "Business Combination Proposal."

Proposal No. 2—The Merger Proposal: To consider and vote upon a proposal to authorize and approve, by special resolution, the SPAC Merger. We refer to this proposal as the "Merger Proposal."

Proposal No. 3—The Domestication Proposal: To consider and vote upon a proposal to approve, by special resolution, a plan of domestication (as may be amended from time to time, the "Plan of Domestication") attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex B and a change in the corporate structure and domicile of SPAC, which will be accomplished by the transfer by way of continuation of SPAC from an exempted company incorporated in accordance with the laws of the Cayman Islands to a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware in accordance with the Plan of Domestication (the "SPAC Domestication"). The SPAC Domestication will be effected in accordance with the Plan of Domestication at least one Business Day prior to the Closing Date by (i) duly approving and adopting a Plan of Domestication, (ii) filing with the Secretary of State of the State of Delaware a certificate of domestication with respect to the SPAC Domestication, together with the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation (the "Proposed Certificate of Incorporation"), (iii) completing, making and procuring all filings required to be made with the Cayman Registrar in connection with the SPAC Domestication and (iv) obtaining a certificate of de-registration from the Cayman Registrar. Upon the effectiveness of the SPAC Domestication, SPAC will continue as a Delaware corporation under the corporate name Arrington Capital SPAC I Inc., and each then issued and outstanding security of SPAC will convert into issued and outstanding securities of SPAC Delaware, as described in more detail in the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus. We refer to this proposal as the "Domestication Proposal."

Proposal No. 4—The Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals: To consider and vote, on a non-binding, advisory basis, upon two separate proposals to approve, by ordinary resolution, certain material differences between the SPAC Charter and the proposed certificate of incorporation of SPAC (the "Proposed Certificate of Incorporation") and the proposed bylaws of SPAC (the "Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws" and together with the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation, the "Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents"), substantially in the form attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex H and Annex I respectively, presented separately in accordance with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") requirements, specifically:

- Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposal 4A—The Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents will require the SPAC Board acting pursuant to a resolution adopted by a majority of the directors then serving on the SPAC Board and the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the voting power of the outstanding voting securities of SPAC entitled to vote thereon, voting together as a single class, to amend, repeal or modify any provision of the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation, other than to Article I (Name), Article II (Registered Agent and Address), Article III (Nature of Business) and Sections 1 (authorized shares) and 2 (votes per share) of Article IV, which requires the affirmative vote of at least a majority of the voting power of the outstanding SPAC capital stock entitled to vote thereon, voting together as a single class, in addition to any requirements for such amendments under the DGCL. The Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents will also require the affirmative vote of at least a majority of the total voting power of the outstanding voting securities of SPAC, voting together as a single class, for the stockholders to adopt, amend, alter or repeal the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws, provided the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the total voting power of the outstanding voting securities of SPAC, voting together as a single class, will be required for SPAC stockholders to alter, amend or repeal, or adopt any bylaw inconsistent with, certain provisions of the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws. The SPAC Board shall also have the power to adopt, amend or repeal the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws.
- Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposal 4B — The Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents will adopt: (i) the Court of Chancery of Delaware as the exclusive forum for certain litigation; and (ii) the federal district courts of the United States as the exclusive forum for resolving actions arising under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended.

Proposal No. 5—The Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals: To consider and vote, on a non-binding, advisory basis, upon five separate proposals to approve, by ordinary resolution, certain material differences between the SPAC Charter and the proposed amended and restated articles of incorporation of Pubco (the "Amended and Restated Pubco Charter") and the proposed amended and restated bylaws of Pubco (the "Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws" and together with the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter, the "Proposed Organizational Documents"), substantially in the form attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex C and Annex D respectively, presented separately in accordance with the SEC requirements, specifically:

- Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5A — Under the Proposed Organizational Documents, Pubco will be authorized to issue 10,000,000,000 shares of capital stock consisting of (i) 7,400,000,000 shares of Class A common stock, 100,000,000 shares of Class B common stock, and 2,400,000,000 shares of Class C common stock, and (ii) 100,000,000 shares of Pubco Preferred Stock, each with a par value of $0.001 per share.

- Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5B — The Proposed Organizational Documents will permit the removal of a director only with the affirmative vote of the holders of at least the minimum percentage of the voting power of all outstanding shares of stock of Pubco entitled to vote generally in the election of directors, voting together as a single class, then permitted under the Nevada Revised Statutes for such vote (currently two-thirds of the voting power) but no less than a simple majority.
- Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5C — The Proposed Organizational Documents will require that any action taken by the stockholders of Pubco may only be taken at an annual or special meeting and may not be taken by written consent without a meeting.
- Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5D — The Proposed Organizational Documents will require that amendments to the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter will require the affirmative vote of a majority of the voting power of the outstanding shares of capital stock of Pubco, except: that, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, holders of common stock will not be entitled to vote on any amendment to the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter that relates solely to the terms of any outstanding preferred stock if the holders of such preferred stock are entitled to vote as a separate class thereon; that the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of the outstanding voting power of Pubco, voting together as a single class, will be required for the stockholders to amend or repeal the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws, or adopt new bylaws; and that the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter and the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws will permit the Pubco Board to adopt, amend or repeal the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws without the consent or vote of the stockholders of Pubco.
- Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5E — The Proposed Organizational Documents will adopt: (i) the Eighth Judicial District Court of Clark County, Nevada as the exclusive forum for certain litigation; and (ii) the federal district courts of the United States as the exclusive forum for resolving actions arising under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended.

Proposal No. 6—The Adjournment Proposal: To consider and vote upon a proposal to approve, by ordinary resolution, the adjournment of the Extraordinary General Meeting to a later date or dates, (i) if necessary to permit further solicitation and vote of proxies in the event that there are insufficient votes for the approval of one or more proposals at the Extraordinary General Meeting; (ii) if necessary to allow reasonable additional time for the filing or mailing of any supplemental or amended disclosure that SPAC has determined in good faith after consultation with outside legal counsel is required under applicable law and for such supplemental or amended disclosure to be disseminated and reviewed by its shareholders prior to the Extraordinary General Meeting; (iii) if necessary to engage with investors; or (iv) if necessary or desirable in the reasonable determination of SPAC. We refer to this proposal as the "Adjournment Proposal."

These items of business are described in the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus, which we encourage you to read carefully and in its entirety before voting.

Approval of each of the Business Combination Proposal, the Merger Proposal and Domestication Proposal is a condition to consummating the Transactions. We refer to such proposals, collectively, as the "Condition Precedent Proposals."

Only holders of record of Class A ordinary shares, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC and Class B ordinary shares, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC at the close of business on August 20, 2026 (the "Record Date") are entitled to notice of and to vote at and to have their votes counted at the Extraordinary General Meeting and any adjournment or postponement thereof.

The approval of the Domestication Proposal requires a special resolution under the Companies Act (as amended) of the Cayman Islands (the "Cayman Companies Act") and the SPAC Charter, being the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the Domestication Proposal at the Extraordinary General Meeting.

The approval of the SPAC Merger by shareholders is not required under the SPAC Charter or Cayman Islands law, as the SPAC Merger will occur after SPAC ceases to be a Cayman Islands company. However, because the SPAC Merger will be effected after the effectiveness of the SPAC Domestication, the SPAC Merger must be approved pursuant to the applicable provisions of the Delaware General Corporation Law (the "DGCL"). Pursuant to Section 388 of the DGCL, the SPAC Merger will be deemed authorized, adopted, and approved by SPAC Delaware and the board of directors and stockholders thereof, and shall not require any further action by such board of directors or stockholders if the SPAC Merger is approved pursuant to the Plan of Domestication in accordance with Cayman Islands law and the SPAC Charter. Consequently, the SPAC Board is asking SPAC shareholders to approve the SPAC Merger by special resolution, being the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the Merger Proposal and the Domestication Proposal at the Extraordinary General Meeting.

The approval of each of the Business Combination Proposal and the Adjournment Proposal requires an ordinary resolution under the SPAC Charter, being the affirmative vote of at least a simple majority of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the respective proposal at the Extraordinary General Meeting. SPAC shareholders are also being asked to approve, as an ordinary resolution on a non-binding advisory basis, each of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals and the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals. Although the SPAC Board is asking SPAC shareholders to approve each of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals and the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals on a non-binding advisory basis, regardless of the outcome of the non-binding advisory vote on each of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals and the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals, the Transactions will be completed if the Business Combination Proposal, the Merger Proposal and the Domestication Proposal are approved.

Pursuant to the Cayman Companies Act and the SPAC Charter, only the holders of the SPAC Class B Shares are entitled to vote on the Domestication Proposal. All holders of SPAC Common Shares are entitled to vote on the Merger Proposal, the Business Combination Proposal, the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals, the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals and the Adjournment Proposal.

The accompanying proxy statement/prospectus and proxy card are being provided to SPAC shareholders in connection with the solicitation of proxies to be voted at the Extraordinary General Meeting. Whether or not you plan to attend the Extraordinary General Meeting, all SPAC shareholders are urged to read the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus, including the Annexes and the documents referred to in the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus, carefully and in their entirety. You should also carefully consider the risk factors described under the heading "Risk Factors" beginning on page 47 of the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus.

After careful consideration, the board of directors of SPAC (the "SPAC Board") has unanimously approved the Transactions and unanimously recommends that shareholders vote "FOR" the adoption and approval of the Business Combination Proposal, and "FOR" all other proposals presented to SPAC shareholders in the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus. When you consider the recommendation of these proposals by the SPAC Board, you should keep in mind that the Sponsor and certain of SPAC's directors and officers have interests in the Transactions that may be different from, or in addition to, your interests as a shareholder. For instance, the Sponsor and certain of SPAC's officers and directors will benefit from the completion of a business combination and may be incentivized to complete an acquisition of a less favorable target company or on terms less favorable to shareholders rather than liquidating SPAC. See the section of the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions" for a further discussion of these considerations.

In connection with the Transactions, certain related agreements have been or will be entered into at or prior to the Closing, including, but not limited to, the Sponsor Support Agreement, the Lock-Up Agreements and the A&R Registration Rights Agreement (as each such term is defined in the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus). See "The Business Combination Proposal— Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions" and "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions" in the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus for more information.

Pursuant to the SPAC Charter, a Public Shareholder that is not the Sponsor, a Founder, Officer or Director (as each such term is defined in the SPAC Charter) may request that SPAC redeems all or a portion of such holder's Public Shares for cash if the Transactions are consummated. As a holder of Public Shares, you will be entitled to receive cash for any Public Shares to be redeemed only if you:

(i) (A) hold Public Shares; or (B) hold Public Shares through SPAC Units (as defined in the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus) and elect to separate your SPAC Units into the underlying Public Shares and SPAC Public Warrants (as defined in the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus) prior to exercising your redemption rights with respect to the Public Shares;

(ii) submit a written request to Continental Stock Transfer & Trust Company, SPAC's transfer agent (the "Transfer Agent"), including the legal name, phone number and address of the beneficial owner of the Public Shares for which redemption is requested, that SPAC redeems all or a portion of your Public Shares for cash; and

(iii) deliver your share certificates for Public Shares (if any) along with any other applicable redemption forms to the Transfer Agent, physically or electronically through The Depository Trust Company ("DTC").

Holders must complete the procedures for electing to have their Public Shares redeemed in the manner described above and in accordance with the SPAC Charter prior to 5:00 p.m., Eastern Time, on September 28, 2026 (two Business Days prior to the initially scheduled date of the Extraordinary General Meeting) or any later time and/or date specified by the SPAC Board in accordance with the SPAC Charter (the "Redemption Deadline") in order to properly exercise their redemption rights. If SPAC is not able to complete the Business Combination within the Combination Period, SPAC may seek to amend the provisions of the SPAC Charter to extend the time it has to complete a Business Combination, and SPAC will provide the Public Shareholders, other than the Sponsor, a Founder, Officer or Director (as each such term is defined in the SPAC Charter), with the opportunity to redeem their Public Shares upon the effectiveness of any such amendment at a per-share price, payable in cash, equal to the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account, including interest earned on the Trust Account (which interest shall be net of taxes payable), divided by the number of Public Shares then in issue, subject to applicable law.

Public Shareholders may elect to have their Public Shares redeemed, regardless of if or how they vote in respect of the Business Combination Proposal, and regardless of whether they hold Public Shares on the Record Date. If the Business Combination is not consummated, the Public Shares will be returned to the respective holder, broker or bank.

If the Transactions are consummated, and if a Public Shareholder properly exercises its redemption rights with respect to all or a portion of the Public Shares that it holds and timely delivers its share certificates (if any) and other redemption forms (as applicable) to the Transfer Agent, then at the SPAC Merger Effective Time, such Public Shares will automatically be canceled and cease to exist and will thereafter represent only the right to receive a per-share price, payable in cash, equal to the aggregate amount then on deposit in SPAC's trust account maintained by Continental Stock Transfer & Trust Company acting as trustee (the "Trust Account") calculated as of two Business Days prior to the consummation of the Business Combination, including interest earned on the Trust Account (which interest shall be net of taxes payable), divided by the number of then issued Public Shares (such redemption price being referred to herein as the "Redemption Price").

Prior to exercising redemption rights, Public Shareholders should verify the market price of the Public Shares, as they may receive higher proceeds from the sale of their Public Shares in the public market than from exercising their redemption rights if the market price per share is higher than the Redemption Price. SPAC cannot assure its shareholders that they will be able to sell their Public Shares in the open market, even if the market price per share is higher than the Redemption Price stated above, as there may not be sufficient liquidity in its securities when our shareholders wish to sell their Public Shares. For illustrative purposes, based on funds in the Trust Account of approximately $241.9 million as of August 20, 2026, the Record Date, the estimated per share redemption price would have been approximately $10.52, including additional interest earned on the funds held in the Trust Account and not previously released to SPAC.

Any request for redemption, once made by a Public Shareholder, may not be withdrawn following the Redemption Deadline, unless the SPAC Board determines (in its sole discretion) to permit such withdrawal of a redemption request (which it may do in whole or in part).

Any corrected or changed written exercise of redemption rights must be received by the Transfer Agent prior to the Redemption Deadline, and, following such deadline, with SPAC's consent, prior to the Extraordinary General Meeting. No request for redemption will be honored unless the Public Shareholder's shares have been delivered (either physically or electronically through DTC) to the Transfer Agent and in accordance with the SPAC Charter by 5:00 p.m., Eastern Time, on September 28, 2026 (two Business Days prior to the initially scheduled date of the Extraordinary General Meeting), or any later time and/or date specified by the SPAC Board in accordance with the SPAC Charter.

See the section of the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Extraordinary General Meeting of SPAC Shareholders—Redemption Rights" for a detailed description of the procedures to be followed if you wish to have your Public Shares redeemed.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, a Public Shareholder, together with any affiliate of such Public Shareholder or any other person with whom such Public Shareholder is acting in concert or as a "group" (as defined in Section 13(d)(3) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended), will be restricted from having its Public Shares redeemed with respect to more than an aggregate of 20% of the Public Shares. Accordingly, if a Public Shareholder, alone or acting in concert or as a group, seeks redemption of more than 20% of the Public Shares, then any such shares in excess of that 20% limit would not be redeemed for cash.

Pursuant to the Warrant Agreement, dated as of May 20, 2025 (the "Warrant Agreement"), by and between SPAC and Continental Stock Transfer & Trust Company, as warrant agent, each holder of SPAC Public Warrants has the right to purchase one SPAC Class A Share at $11.50 per share for each SPAC Public Warrant held by such holder in connection with the completion of SPAC's business combination (the "Warrant Call Right").

Assuming the Closing SPAC Price is $10.00, the price per share of Pubco Class A Common Stock and the price per warrant of Pubco Warrants is $11.50. The value of the consideration that Public Shareholders will receive in connection with the Business Combination is $230,000,000, assuming the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00. Assuming no Redemptions by the Public Shareholders, immediately following the Closing, the Public Shareholders will hold 23,000,000 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the Advanced Funding Subscribers will hold 9,481,664 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the Delayed Funding Subscribers will hold 482,870 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the Contributor Related Party Entity will hold 1,327,146 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the Sponsor will hold 9,432,524 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Ripple will hold 3,365,416 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, in each case excluding the impact of Pubco Warrants. For more information about the value and number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants expected to be held by the Public Shareholders, the Advance Funding Subscribers, the Delayed Funding Subscribers, the Contributor Related Party Entity, the Sponsor and Ripple immediately following the Closing, see the sections entitled "Summary of the proxy statement/prospectus—Ownership of Pubco After the Transactions," "Questions and Answers About the Proposals—What equity stake will current Public Shareholders, the PIPE Investors, the Sponsor, Ripple, and their affiliates hold in Pubco immediately after the completion of the Transactions and the Private Placement Investments?" in this proxy statement/prospectus.

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, the Sponsor entered into a Sponsor Support Agreement with SPAC and Pubco, dated as of October 19, 2025 (as may be amended, supplemented or otherwise modified from time to time, the "Sponsor Support Agreement"). Pursuant to the terms and conditions of the Sponsor Support Agreement, among other things, the Sponsor agreed to (i) deliver and forfeit to SPAC for cancellation and for no consideration (x) 120,000 SPAC Class A Shares, (y) 2,364,000 SPAC Class B Shares and (z) 60,000 Private Placement Warrants (such forfeited amounts equaling approximately 30% of the SPAC Common Shares held by Sponsor) and (ii) vote its shares in favor of the Business Combination Proposal and related proposals being presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting. The SPAC Class B Shares held by the Sponsor will be excluded from the pro rata calculation used to determine the per-share Redemption Price. As of the Record Date, the Sponsor owns approximately 26.2% of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares.

On August 12, 2026, SPAC, Pubco and Sponsor amended the Sponsor Support Agreement ("Amendment No. 1 to the Sponsor Support Agreement") for purposes of adjusting the number of SPAC Class A Shares, SPAC Class B Shares and Private Placement Warrants that will be forfeited by Sponsor at the Company Merger Effective Time. Specifically, Amendment No. 1 to the Sponsor Support Agreement provides that Sponsor will forfeit to SPAC for cancellation and for no consideration a number of shares equal to (a) all SPAC Class A Shares, SPAC Class B Shares and Private Placement Warrants that Sponsor holds multiplied by (b) a closing date adjustment factor equal to the lesser of (x) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (y) 0.7. (the "Adjustment Factor"). The number of SPAC Class A Shares forfeited pursuant to the immediately preceding sentence shall hereinafter be referred to as "Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares"; the number of SPAC Class B Shares forfeited pursuant to the immediately preceding sentence shall hereinafter be referred to as "Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares"; and the number of Private Placement Warrants forfeited pursuant to the immediately preceding sentence shall hereinafter be referred to as the "Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants".

The consummation of the Business Combination is conditioned upon the satisfaction or written waiver (where permissible) by the parties to the Business Combination Agreement of certain customary closing conditions. These conditions include, but are not limited to: (i) the approval by SPAC shareholders of the Condition Precedent Proposals; (ii) the expiration or termination of any applicable waiting period under the HSR Act and the consummation of the Transactions not being prohibited by applicable law; (iii) the effectiveness of a registration statement on Form S-4; (iv) the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and the Pubco Warrants having been approved for clearing through DTC and for listing on Nasdaq, the New York Stock Exchange or another national stock exchange, subject only to notice of issuance; and (v) the Advance Funding Subscribers and Delayed Funding Subscribers having contributed an amount of XRP at least equivalent to the amounts of XRP committed in the Advanced Funding (as defined in the Business Combination Agreement) and Delayed Funding, respectively. Additionally, at or prior to Closing, Pubco, SPAC and the warrant agent will enter into an Assignment, Assumption and Amendment Agreement to the Warrant Agreement in a form to be mutually agreed by Pubco, SPAC and the warrant agent thereunder (the "Warrant Assignment, Assumption and Amendment Agreement"). For more information, see "The Business Combination Proposal."

Your vote is very important. Whether or not you plan to attend the Extraordinary General Meeting, please submit your proxy as soon as possible by following the instructions in the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus and on the enclosed proxy card to make sure that your shares are represented and voted at the Extraordinary General Meeting. If you hold your shares in "street name" through a bank, broker or other nominee, you will need to follow the instructions provided to you by your bank, broker or other nominee to ensure that your shares are represented and voted at the Extraordinary General Meeting. The transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement will be consummated only if the Condition Precedent Proposals are approved at the Extraordinary General Meeting, and if the other conditions to closing are satisfied or waived. Each of the Condition Precedent Proposals is cross-conditioned on the approval of each other Condition Precedent Proposal. Each of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals and the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals are conditioned on the approval of each of the Condition Precedent Proposals. The Adjournment Proposal is not conditioned upon the approval of any other proposal set forth in the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus.

If you sign, date and return your proxy card without indicating how you wish to vote, your proxy will be voted "FOR" each of the proposals presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting. If you fail to return your proxy card or fail to instruct your bank, broker or other nominee how to vote, and do not attend the Extraordinary

General Meeting in person (including virtually), the effect will be, among other things, that your shares will not be counted for purposes of determining whether a quorum is present at the Extraordinary General Meeting and will not be voted. If you are a shareholder of record and you attend the Extraordinary General Meeting and wish to vote in person (including virtually), you may withdraw your proxy and vote in person (including virtually).

TO EXERCISE YOUR REDEMPTION RIGHTS, YOU MUST SUBMIT A WRITTEN REQUEST, INCLUDING THE LEGAL NAME, PHONE NUMBER AND ADDRESS OF THE BENEFICIAL OWNER OF THE SHARES FOR WHICH REDEMPTION IS REQUESTED, TO THE TRANSFER AGENT THAT YOUR PUBLIC SHARES BE REDEEMED FOR CASH. YOU MUST ALSO DELIVER YOUR PUBLIC SHARES TO THE TRANSFER AGENT, PHYSICALLY OR ELECTRONICALLY USING THE DEPOSITORY TRUST COMPANY'S DWAC (DEPOSIT WITHDRAWAL AT CUSTODIAN) SYSTEM IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PROCEDURES AND DEADLINES DESCRIBED IN THE ACCOMPANYING PROXY STATEMENT/PROSPECTUS. IF THE BUSINESS COMBINATION IS NOT CONSUMMATED, THEN THE PUBLIC SHARES WILL NOT BE CANCELED IN EXCHANGE FOR THE RIGHT TO RECEIVE CASH. IF YOU HOLD THE SHARES IN STREET NAME, TO EXERCISE YOUR REDEMPTION RIGHTS YOU MUST INSTRUCT THE ACCOUNT EXECUTIVE AT YOUR BANK OR BROKER TO WITHDRAW THE SHARES FROM YOUR ACCOUNT. SEE THE SECTION OF THE ACCOMPANYING PROXY STATEMENT/PROSPECTUS ENTITLED "EXTRAORDINARY GENERAL MEETING OF SPAC SHAREHOLDERS—REDEMPTION RIGHTS" FOR MORE SPECIFIC INSTRUCTIONS.

On behalf of the SPAC Board, I want to express our sincere appreciation for your support, and we look forward to the successful completion of the Transactions.

Sincerely,

Taryn Naidu
Chief Executive Officer

FINANCIAL STATEMENT PRESENTATION

Pubco

Pubco was incorporated in Nevada on August 29, 2025, for the purpose of effectuating the Transactions described herein. Pubco currently has not commenced material operations beyond initial formation activities and preparatory steps related to the Mergers and the Transactions and does not currently operate any businesses. Following the Transactions, Pubco will operate a business and the financial statements of Pubco included in this proxy statement/prospectus have been prepared in accordance with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles ("U.S. GAAP"). The unaudited pro forma combined financial information presented in this proxy statement/prospectus have been prepared in accordance with U.S. GAAP and denominated in U.S. dollars. The fiscal year end of Pubco is December 31.

As an emerging growth company, Pubco has elected to use the extended transition period for complying with new or revised accounting standards as permitted under Section 7(a)(2)(B) of the Securities Act. Accordingly, the financial statements of the Pubco included in this proxy statement/prospectus reflect the adoption of new accounting standards using private company (non PBE) effective dates.

SPAC

The financial statements of SPAC included in this proxy statement/prospectus have been prepared in accordance with U.S. GAAP. The fiscal year end of the SPAC is September 30.

The Company

The Company was formed in Delaware on July 18, 2025 as a Delaware limited liability company. The financial statements of the Company included in this proxy statement/prospectus have been prepared in accordance with U.S. GAAP. The fiscal year end of the Company is December 31.

This proxy statement/prospectus contains:

- the audited financial statements of SPAC as of September 30, 2025, and the unaudited financial statements of SPAC as of June 30, 2026, and for the three and nine months ended June 30, 2026, and for the three months ended June 30, 2025, and for the period from October 3, 2024 (inception) through June 30, 2025;
- the audited financial statements of Pubco as of December 31 and September 30, 2025, and for the period from August 29, 2025 (inception) to December 31, 2025, and the unaudited condensed financial statements of Pubco as of June 30, 2026, and for the six months ended June 30, 2026; and
- the audited financial statements of the Company as of December 31 and September 30, 2025, and for the period from July 18, 2025 (inception) to December 31, 2025, and the unaudited condensed financial statements of the Company as of June 30, 2026, and for the six months ended June 30, 2026.

Unless indicated otherwise, financial data presented in this proxy statement/prospectus has been taken from the audited and unaudited financial statements of SPAC, Pubco and the Company, as applicable, included in this proxy statement/prospectus.

In this proxy statement/prospectus, unless otherwise specified, all monetary amounts are in U.S. dollars, all references to "$," "USD," "dollar" and "U.S. dollar" each refer to the legal currency of the United States.

INDUSTRY AND MARKET DATA

In this proxy statement/prospectus, Pubco, the Company and SPAC rely on and refer to industry data, information and statistics regarding the markets in which Pubco competes from publicly available information, industry and general publications and research and studies conducted by third parties. Each of Pubco, the Company and SPAC has taken such care as it considers reasonable in the extraction and reproduction of information from such data from third-party sources.

Industry publications, research, studies and forecasts generally state that the information they contain has been obtained from sources believed to be reliable, but that the accuracy and completeness of such information is not guaranteed. The industry in which Pubco will operate is subject to a high degree of uncertainty and risk due to a variety of factors, including those described in the section titled "Risk Factors." Furthermore, such information and data cannot always be verified with complete certainty due to limits on the availability and reliability of data, the voluntary nature of the data gathering process and other limitations and uncertainties. Finally, while each of Pubco, the Company and SPAC believes its own internal estimates and research are reliable, and is not aware of any misstatements regarding such information and data presented in this proxy statement/prospectus, such research has not been verified by any independent source. Forecasts and other forward-looking information obtained from these sources are subject to the same qualifications and uncertainties as the other forward-looking statements in this proxy statement/prospectus. These forecasts and forward-looking information are subject to uncertainty and risk due to a variety of factors, including those described under the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Risk Factors." These and other factors could cause results to differ materially from those expressed in the forecasts or estimates from independent third parties and us.

Notwithstanding anything in this proxy statement/prospectus to the contrary, Pubco, the Company and SPAC are responsible for all disclosures in this proxy statement/prospectus.

TRADEMARKS, TRADE NAMES AND SERVICE MARKS

This proxy statement/prospectus contains references to trademarks, trade names and service marks belonging to other entities. Solely for convenience, trademarks, trade names and service marks referred to in this proxy statement/prospectus may appear without the ® or ™ symbols, but such references are not intended to indicate, in any way, that the applicable licensor will not assert, to the fullest extent under applicable law, its rights to these trademarks and trade names. We do not intend our use or display of other companies' trade names, trademarks or service marks to imply a relationship with, or endorsement or sponsorship of us by, any other companies.

Pubco, the Company, SPAC and their respective affiliates own or have rights to trademarks, trade names and service marks that they use in connection with the operation of their businesses. In addition, their names, logos and website names and addresses are their trademarks or service marks. Other trademarks, trade names and service marks appearing in this proxy statement/prospectus are the property of their respective owners. Solely for convenience, in some cases, the trademarks, trade names and service marks referred to in this proxy statement/prospectus may appear without the applicable ®, ™ and SM symbols, but they will assert, to the fullest extent under applicable law, their rights to these trademarks, trade names and service marks.

DEFINED TERMS

In this document the following terms, when capitalized, have the following meanings.

"$," "USD," "dollar" and "U.S. dollar" each refer to the legal currency of the United States.

"2024 SPAC Rules" means the rules and regulations for special purpose acquisition companies (SPACs) adopted by the SEC on January 24, 2024, and which became effective on July 1, 2024.

"25% Redemptions" means a scenario in which 25%, or 5,750,000, of the Public Shares are redeemed for cash from the Trust Account.

"50% Redemptions" means a scenario in which 50%, or 11,500,000, of the Public Shares are redeemed for cash from the Trust Account.

"75% Redemptions" means a scenario in which 75%, or 17,250,000, of the Public Shares are redeemed for cash from the Trust Account.

"100% Redemptions" or "Maximum Redemptions" means a scenario in which 100%, or 23,000,000, of the Public Shares are redeemed for cash from the Trust Account.

"A&R Registration Rights Agreement" means the Amended and Restated Registration Agreement to be executed at Closing by and among Pubco, SPAC, the Sponsor, and certain other securityholders thereto at the time of the SPAC IPO, in the form attached hereto as Annex E.

"Acquisition Proposal" means any inquiry, proposal or offer, or any indication of interest in making an offer or proposal, from any person or group at any time relating to an Alternative Transaction.

"Additional Permitted Financing" means the subscription or purchase by an investor after the date of the Business Combination Agreement of securities to be issued or guaranteed by Pubco, the Company or SPAC, as applicable (or of securities exercisable, convertible or exchangeable into securities to be issued or guaranteed by Pubco, the Company or SPAC, as applicable), including ordinary shares, preferred shares, convertible or exchangeable bonds or notes (secured or unsecured), promissory notes, warrants or other securities, in each case, as and to the extent consented to in writing by SPAC, Pubco and the Company (which consent may be withheld in the sole and absolute discretion of the party asked to provide consent).

"Adjournment Proposal" means a proposal to approve, by ordinary resolution, the adjournment of the Extraordinary General Meeting to a later date or dates, if necessary, (i) to permit further solicitation and vote of proxies in the event that there are insufficient votes for the approval of one or more proposals at the Extraordinary General Meeting; (ii) to allow reasonable additional time for the filing or mailing of any supplemental or amended disclosure that SPAC has determined in good faith after consultation with outside legal counsel is required under applicable law and for such supplemental or amended disclosure to be disseminated and reviewed by its shareholders prior to the Extraordinary General Meeting; (iii) to engage with investors; or (iv) or desirable in the reasonable determination of SPAC.

"Advance Funding Adjustment Shares" means, in respect of any Advance Funding Subscriber, whether such subscriber elected to subscribe with XRP or with cash that was subsequently used by Pubco and/or the Company to purchase XRP, if the Closing XRP Price is greater than the Signing XRP Price, such number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock equal to the product of (i) the number of Advance Funding Initial Subscribed Shares issuable to such Advance Funding Subscriber and (ii) the difference between (a) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (b) one. If the Closing XRP Price is less than or equal to the Signing XRP Price, no Advance Funding Adjustment Shares will be issued.

"Advance Funding Initial Subscribed Shares" means the quotient of (i) the Advance Funding Subscription Price and (ii) $10.00, multiplied by the "Closing Date Adjustment Factor," which means the lesser of (a) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (b) one.

"Advance Funding Shares" means the Pubco Class A Common Stock that the Advance Funding Subscribers agreed to purchase, by paying the subscription price within four business days of the date of the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date in a private placement upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements.

"Advance Funding Subscribers" means investors who agreed to purchase the Advance Funding Shares on the Closing Date upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements.

"Advance Funding Subscription" means the $214.05 million in cash and contribution of 600,000 XRP tokens in a private placement whereupon Advance Funding Subscribers will receive a number of the Advance Funding Shares on the Closing Date.

"Advance Funding Subscription Agreements" means the subscription agreements entered into by Pubco, the Company and SPAC with Advance Funding Subscribers on October 19, 2025 (as amended by Amendment No. 1 to the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements dated August 12, 2026), pursuant to which the Advance Funding Subscribers agreed to purchase, and the Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, the Advance Funding Shares upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein.

"Advance Funding Subscription Price" means (a) if the Advance Funding Subscriber elected to subscribe for the Advance Funding Shares with cash, the amount of cash contributed as set forth on the signature page to its Advance Funding Subscription Agreement or (b) if the Advance Funding Subscriber elected to subscribe for the Advance Funding Shares with XRP, such amount (in USD) equal to the product of (x) the amount of XRP contributed as set forth on the signature page to its Advance Funding Subscription Agreement and (y) the Signing XRP Price.

"Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals" means the five proposals to be considered at the Extraordinary General Meeting to approve, on a non-binding advisory basis and as required by applicable SEC guidance, certain material differences between the SPAC Charter and the Proposed Organizational Documents.

"Alternative Transaction" means (A) with respect to the Company, Pubco, Company Merger Sub, SPAC Merger Sub, Ripple and their respective affiliates, a transaction (other than the Transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement and any Ancillary Agreement) concerning the sale of all or substantially all of the business or assets of Pubco and its subsidiaries, taken as a whole, whether such transaction takes the form of a sale of the shares or other equity interests in Pubco or the Company, assets, merger, consolidation, issuance of debt securities, joint venture or partnership, or otherwise and (B) with respect to SPAC and its affiliates, a transaction (other than the Transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement) concerning a business combination of, by or involving SPAC.

"Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws" means the amended and restated bylaws of Pubco to be adopted in connection with Closing.

"Amended and Restated Pubco Charter" means the amended and restated articles of incorporation of Pubco to be adopted in connection with Closing.

"Ancillary Agreement" means each agreement, instrument or document attached to the Business Combination Agreement as an exhibit, and the other agreements, certificates and instruments executed or delivered by any of the Parties in connection with or pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement or the Transactions, including the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements, Series C Subscription Agreement, Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, Contribution Agreement, the Sponsor Support Agreement, the Lock-Up Agreements, the A&R Registration Rights Agreement, any agreements relating to or instruments governing any Additional Permitted Financing, the Pubco A&R Organizational Documents, the Warrant Assignment, Assumption and Amendment Agreement, and the Company A&R LLCA.

"Anniversary Release" means six months after the date of the Closing.

"ASU 2023-08" means the updated accounting standards issued by the Financial Accounting Standards Board to address accounting and disclosure of certain crypto assets.

"Available Transaction Cash" means an amount of cash equal to (a) the gross cash proceeds from the Advanced Funding (as defined in the Business Combination Agreement) and the Delayed Funding pursuant to the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements and the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements, respectively, plus (b) the aggregate amount of cash contained in the Trust Account immediately prior to the Closing (not giving effect to any Redemptions) less the Redemption Amount.

"Beneficial Ownership" has the meaning set forth in Section 13d-3 of the Exchange Act, and the terms "Beneficially Owning," "Beneficially Owned" or "Beneficial Owner" have correlative meanings.

"BGP hijacking" means border gateway protocol hijacking.

"Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve" means the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System of the United States (the "Federal Reserve").

"BSA" means the Bank Secrecy Act of 1970.

"Business Combination" means, collectively, the Mergers and the other transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement.

"Business Combination Agreement" means the Business Combination Agreement, dated as of October 19, 2025, by and among the Company, Ripple, Pubco, Company Merger Sub, SPAC Merger Sub and SPAC, a copy of which is attached hereto as Annex A (as amended by Amendment No. 1 to the Business Combination Agreement, dated August 12, 2026, a copy of which is attached hereto as Annex BB).

"Business Combination Proposal" means a proposal to approve the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions, as described in greater detail in the section entitled "The Business Combination Proposal."

"Business Day" means, as the context dictates:

(i) with respect to the terms and conditions of the Business Combination Agreement: any day other than a Saturday, Sunday or a legal holiday on which commercial banking institutions in New York, New York and the Cayman Islands are authorized to close for business;

(ii) with respect to the SPAC Charter: any day other than a Saturday, a Sunday or a legal holiday or a day on which banking institutions or trust companies are authorized or obligated by law to close in New York City;

(iii) with respect to the Company A&R LLCA: any day other than a Saturday, a Sunday, or a holiday on which national banking associations in the States of New York and Delaware are authorized or required by applicable Law to be closed;

(iv) with respect to the Private Placement Subscription Agreements: a day, other than a Saturday, Sunday or other day on which commercial banks in New York City (New York) are not open for a full business day for the general transaction of business; and

(v) with respect to the Warrant Agreement: any day other than a Saturday, Sunday or federal holiday, on which banks in New York City are generally open for normal business.

"Cash Fee" means a one-time cash fee equal to $9,200,000 payable by SPAC and its affiliates upon the Closing to the underwriters pursuant to the Underwriting Agreement in connection with the IPO.

"Cayman Companies Act" means the Companies Act (as amended) of the Cayman Islands.

"Cayman Registrar" means the Registrar of Companies of the Cayman Islands.

"CEA" means Commodities Exchange Act of 1936, as amended.

"CFTC" means the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

- Pubco's future financial condition and performance and the expected financial impacts of the Transactions; and
- the satisfaction of closing conditions to the Transactions.

These forward-looking statements are based on information available as of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus, and current expectations, forecasts and assumptions and involve a number of judgments, risks and uncertainties. Accordingly, forward-looking statements should not be relied upon as representing the views of SPAC, Pubco or the Company as of any subsequent date, and neither SPAC, the Company nor Pubco undertake any obligation to update forward-looking statements to reflect events or circumstances after the date they were made, whether as a result of new information, future events or otherwise, except as may be required under applicable securities laws.

You should not place undue reliance on these forward-looking statements in deciding how to grant your proxy or to instruct how your vote should be cast or how you should vote your shares on the Proposals. As a result of a number of known and unknown risks and uncertainties, the actual results or performance of Pubco may be materially different from those expressed or implied by these forward-looking statements. Some factors that could cause actual results to differ include:

- the risk that the Transactions may not be completed in a timely manner or at all, which may adversely affect the price of securities of SPAC or Pubco;
- the risk that the Transactions may not be completed by the end of the Combination Period;
- the failure by the parties to satisfy the conditions to the consummation of the Business Combination, including the approval of SPAC shareholders;
- failure to realize the anticipated benefits of the Transactions;
- the level of redemptions of the Public Shareholders which may reduce the public float of, reduce the liquidity of the trading market of, and/or maintain the quotation, listing or trading of the Public Shares or the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock;
- the failure of Pubco to obtain or maintain the listing of its securities on any securities exchange after the Closing;
- costs related to the Transactions and as a result of Pubco becoming a public company;
- changes in business, market, financial, political and regulatory conditions;
- risks relating to Pubco's anticipated operations and business, including the highly volatile nature of the price of XRP;
- the risk that Pubco's stock price will be highly correlated to the price of XRP and the price of XRP may decrease between the signing of the Business Combination Agreement and the Closing or at any time after the Closing;
- risks related to increased competition in the industries in which Pubco will operate;
- risks relating to significant legal, commercial, regulatory and technical uncertainty regarding XRP and the industries in which Pubco will operate;
- risks relating to the treatment of digital assets for U.S. and foreign tax purposes;
- risks that after the Closing, Pubco experiences difficulties managing its growth and expanding operations;
- challenges in implementing Pubco's business plan, due to operational challenges, significant competition and regulation;
- Pubco being considered to be a "shell company" by any securities exchange on which Pubco Class A Common Stock will be listed or by the SEC, which may impact Pubco's ability to list Pubco Class A Common Stock and restrict reliance on certain rules or forms in connection with the offering, sale or resale of securities;

- the outcome of any potential legal proceedings that may be instituted against Pubco, SPAC or others following the announcement of the Transactions; and
- other risks and uncertainties described in this proxy statement/prospectus, including those under the section entitled "Risk Factors."

While forward-looking statements reflect SPAC's, Pubco's and the Company's good faith beliefs, as applicable, they are not guarantees of future performance. Except as otherwise required by applicable law, SPAC, Pubco and the Company disclaim any obligation to publicly update or revise any forward-looking statement to reflect changes in underlying assumptions or factors, new information, data or methods, future events or other changes after the date of this proxy statement/prospectus. For a further discussion of these and other factors that could cause SPAC's, Pubco's and the Company's future results, performance or transactions to differ significantly from those expressed in any forward-looking statement, please see the section entitled "Risk Factors." You should not place undue reliance on any forward-looking statements, which are based only on information currently available to SPAC, Pubco and the Company.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT THE PROPOSALS

The questions and answers below highlight only selected information from this proxy statement/prospectus and only briefly address some commonly asked questions about the Extraordinary General Meeting and the Proposals. The following questions and answers do not include all the information that is important to SPAC shareholders. SPAC shareholders are urged to carefully read this entire proxy statement/prospectus, including the annexes and the other documents referred to herein, to fully understand the proposed Transactions and the voting procedures for the Extraordinary General Meeting.

Q: Why am I receiving this proxy statement/prospectus?

A: You are receiving this proxy statement/prospectus because you are a SPAC shareholder or holder of SPAC Public Warrants. As a SPAC shareholder you are entitled to vote at the Extraordinary General Meeting to approve the matters set forth herein. This document serves as:

- a notice of meeting and a proxy statement of SPAC to solicit proxies for the Extraordinary General Meeting to vote on the proposals set forth herein; and
- a prospectus of Pubco to offer Pubco Class A Common Stock to SPAC shareholders in connection with the Transactions.

SPAC shareholders are being asked to consider and vote upon, among other proposals, a proposal to approve and adopt the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions. SPAC, Pubco, the Company, the Merger Subs and Ripple have entered into the Business Combination Agreement, the terms of which are described in this proxy statement/prospectus. A copy of the Business Combination Agreement is attached hereto as Annex A. SPAC urges its shareholders to read the Business Combination Agreement in its entirety.

THE VOTE OF SPAC SHAREHOLDERS IS IMPORTANT. SPAC SHAREHOLDERS ARE URGED TO SUBMIT THEIR PROXIES AS SOON AS POSSIBLE AFTER CAREFULLY REVIEWING THIS PROXY STATEMENT/PROSPECTUS AND CAREFULLY CONSIDERING EACH OF THE PROPOSALS BEING PRESENTED AT THE EXTRAORDINARY GENERAL MEETING.

Q: What is being voted on at the Extraordinary General Meeting?

A: At the Extraordinary General Meeting, SPAC is asking its shareholders to consider and vote upon:

- The Business Combination Proposal—to adopt and approve, by ordinary resolution, the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions. See the section entitled "The Business Combination Proposal."
- The Merger Proposal—to authorize and approve, by special resolution, the SPAC Merger. See the section entitled "The Merger Proposal."
- The Domestication Proposal—to approve, by special resolution, the Plan of Domestication and a change in the corporate structure and domicile of SPAC by transfer by way of continuation of SPAC from an exempted company incorporated in accordance with the laws of the Cayman Islands to a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware. See the section entitled "The Domestication Proposal."
- The Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals—to consider and vote, on a non-binding, advisory basis, upon the following separate proposals to approve, by ordinary resolution, the material differences between the SPAC Charter and the Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents:
    - Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposal 4A — The Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents will require the SPAC Board acting pursuant to a resolution adopted by a majority of the directors

then serving on the SPAC Board and the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the voting power of the outstanding voting securities of SPAC entitled to vote thereon, voting together as a single class, to amend, repeal or modify any provision of the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation, other than to Article I (Name), Article II (Registered Agent and Address), Article III (Nature of Business) and Sections 1 (authorized shares) and 2 (votes per share) of Article IV, which requires the affirmative vote of at least a majority of the voting power of the outstanding SPAC capital stock entitled to vote thereon, voting together as a single class, in addition to any requirements for such amendments under the DGCL. The Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents will also require the affirmative vote of at least a majority of the total voting power of the outstanding voting securities of SPAC, voting together as a single class, for the stockholders to adopt, amend, alter or repeal the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws, provided the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the total voting power of the outstanding voting securities of SPAC, voting together as a single class, will be required for SPAC stockholders to alter, amend or repeal, or adopt any bylaw inconsistent with, certain provisions of the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws. The SPAC Board shall also have the power to adopt, amend or repeal the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws.

- Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposal 4B — The Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents will adopt: (i) the Court of Chancery of Delaware as the exclusive forum for certain litigation; and (ii) the federal district courts of the United States as the exclusive forum for resolving actions arising under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended.

- The Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals—to consider and vote, on a non-binding, advisory basis, upon the following separate proposals to approve, by ordinary resolution, the material differences between the SPAC Charter and the Proposed Organizational Documents:

  - Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5A — Under the Proposed Organizational Documents, Pubco will be authorized to issue 10,000,000,000 shares of capital stock consisting of (i) 7,400,000,000 shares of Class A common stock, 100,000,000 shares of Class B common stock, and 2,400,000,000 shares of Class C common stock, and (ii) 100,000,000 shares of Pubco Preferred Stock, each with a par value of $0.001 per share.

  - Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5B — The Proposed Organizational Documents will permit the removal of a director only with the affirmative vote of the holders of at least the minimum percentage of the voting power of all outstanding shares of stock of Pubco entitled to vote generally in the election of directors, voting together as a single class, then permitted under the Nevada Revised Statutes for such vote (currently two-thirds of the voting power) but no less than a simple majority.

  - Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5C — The Proposed Organizational Documents will require that any action taken by the stockholders of Pubco may only be taken at an annual or special meeting and may not be taken by written consent without a meeting.

  - Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5D — The Proposed Organizational Documents will require that amendments to the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter will require that the affirmative vote of the majority of the voting power of the outstanding shares of capital stock of Pubco, except: that, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, holders of common stock will not be entitled to vote on any amendment to the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter that relates solely to the terms of any outstanding preferred stock if the holders of such preferred stock are entitled to vote as a separate class thereon; that the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of the outstanding voting power of Pubco, voting together as a single class, will be required for the stockholders to amend or repeal the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws, or adopt new bylaws; and that the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter and the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws will permit the Pubco Board to adopt, amend or repeal the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws without the consent or vote of the stockholders of Pubco.

- Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5E — The Proposed Organizational Documents will adopt: (i) the Eighth Judicial District Court of Clark County, Nevada as the exclusive forum for certain litigation; and (ii) the federal district courts of the United States as the exclusive forum for resolving actions arising under the Securities Act.

See the section entitled "The Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals."

- The Adjournment Proposal—to approve, by ordinary resolution, the adjournment of the Extraordinary General Meeting to a later date or dates. See the section entitled "The Adjournment Proposal."

If SPAC shareholders do not approve each of the Condition Precedent Proposals, then we will not consummate the Transactions. See the sections of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal," "The Merger Proposal," and "The Domestication Proposal."

SPAC will hold the Extraordinary General Meeting to consider and vote upon these proposals. This proxy statement/prospectus contains important information about the Transactions and the other matters to be acted upon at the Extraordinary General Meeting. Shareholders of SPAC should read it carefully.

After careful consideration, the SPAC Board has unanimously determined that each of: (i) the Business Combination Proposal, (ii) the Merger Proposal, (iii) the Domestication Proposal, (iv) the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals, (v) the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals, and (vi) the Adjournment Proposal, if presented to the Extraordinary General Meeting, is in the best interests of SPAC. Accordingly, the SPAC Board unanimously recommends that you vote or give instruction to vote "FOR" each of those proposals.

The existence of financial and personal interests of one or more of SPAC's directors may result in a conflict of interest on the part of such director(s) between what such director may believe is in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders and what such director may believe is best for themselves in determining to recommend that shareholders vote for the proposals. Certain of SPAC's directors and officers have interests in the Transactions that may be different from, or in addition to, your interests as a shareholder. See the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions" for a further discussion of these considerations.

Q: What will happen to the SPAC Class A Shares in connection with the Closing?

A: Pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement, following the SPAC Domestication, at the SPAC Merger Effective Time (as defined below), each issued and outstanding SPAC Class A Share (including SPAC Class A Shares held as a result of the separation of a SPAC Unit, but excluding certain treasury and properly redeemed shares) shall be converted automatically into one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock, following which, all such SPAC Class A Shares shall cease to be outstanding and shall automatically be canceled and shall cease to exist.

Q: What equity stake will current Public Shareholders, the Private Placement Investors, the Sponsor, and Ripple hold in Pubco immediately after the completion of the Transactions?

A: The following tables illustrate varying ownership levels in Pubco immediately after completion of the Transactions based on varying levels of redemptions by the Public Shareholders and based on the assumptions noted. The tables and associated discussion all assume that (a) neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, (b) Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, (c) all Private Placement Investors fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, (d) the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, (e) no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the Incentive Plan, and (f) neither Ripple nor the Sponsor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market. Should one or more of the assumptions prove incorrect, actual ownership percentages may vary materially from those described in this proxy statement/prospectus as anticipated, believed, estimated, expected or intended.

The two tables below illustrate varying beneficial ownership levels in Pubco immediately upon the Closing, assuming no Redemptions by Public Shareholders, 25% Redemptions by Public Shareholders (5,750,000 Public Shares are redeemed), 50% Redemptions by Public Shareholders (11,500,000 Public Shares are redeemed), 75% Redemptions by Public Shareholders (17,250,000 Public Shares are redeemed) and 100% Redemptions by Public Shareholders (23,000,000 Public Shares are redeemed). In addition to the assumptions above, the two tables below assume a Closing XRP Price of $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026). The first table below excludes the impact of Pubco Warrants, and the second table includes the impact of Pubco Warrants.

The Maximum Redemption scenario has been presented solely for illustrative purposes and assumes the hypothetical redemption of all public shares. Notwithstanding this presentation, the SPAC is subject to a requirement in the Business Combination Agreement that it maintain net tangible assets of at least $5,000,001 immediately prior to or upon consummation of the Business Combination, in order to avoid application of the "penny stock" rules under Rule 3a51-1(g)(1) of the Exchange Act. Accordingly, the actual number of shares that may be redeemed in connection with the Business Combination is limited such that this minimum net tangible asset requirement is satisfied. To the extent that redemptions would cause net tangible assets to fall below $5,000,001, the Business Combination would not be consummated unless the SPAC obtains additional financing or enters into a backstop or similar arrangement, or unless such condition to closing is waived by all parties pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement. As such, this scenario should not be viewed as a representation of a permitted or achievable redemption level absent such actions.

Q: What conditions must be satisfied or waived to complete the Business Combination?

A: The obligations of SPAC, the Company, Pubco, the Merger Subs and Ripple to consummate (and cause to be consummated) the Transactions are subject to the satisfaction or waiver of the following conditions: (i) the approval by SPAC shareholders of the Condition Precedent Proposals; (ii) the expiration or termination of any applicable waiting period under the HSR Act; (iii) the consummation of the Transactions not being prohibited by applicable law; (iv) the effectiveness of a registration statement on Form S-4; (v) the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and the Pubco Warrants having been approved for listing on Nasdaq, the New York Stock Exchange or another national stock exchange; and (vi) the SPAC Tangible Net Assets equaling or exceeding $5,000,001 as of the Closing Date.

The obligations of the Company, Pubco, the Merger Subs and Ripple to consummate (and cause to be consummated) the Transactions are also subject to the satisfaction or waiver of the following conditions: (i) the representations and warranties of SPAC being true and correct as of the date of the Business Combination Agreement and as of the Closing Date, subject to the applicable materiality standards contained in the Business Combination Agreement; (ii) material compliance by SPAC with its applicable pre-closing covenants; (iii) there having been no occurrence of a Material Adverse Effect since the date of the Business Combination Agreement which is continuing with respect to SPAC; (iv) the Sponsor having performed in all material respects its obligations required under the Sponsor Support Agreement; (v) SPAC having completed the SPAC Domestication at least one Business Day prior to the Closing Date; (vi) (a) the Advance Funding Subscribers having contributed an amount of XRP at least equivalent to the amounts of XRP committed in the Advanced Funding and (b) the Delayed Funding Subscribers having contributed an amount of XRP at least equivalent to the amounts of XRP committed in the Delayed Funding; (vii) Available Transaction Cash as of the Closing Date equaling or exceeding the amount of cash committed by the Advance Funding Subscribers and the Delayed Funding Subscribers pursuant to the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements and the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements; and (viii) SPAC having delivered or caused to be delivered certain certificates and other Closing deliverables contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement.

The obligations of SPAC to consummate (or cause to be consummated) the Transactions are also subject to the satisfaction or waiver of the following conditions: (i) the representations and warranties of the Company, Pubco, the Merger Subs and Ripple being true and correct as of the date of the Business Combination Agreement and as of the Closing Date, subject to the applicable materiality standards contained in the Business Combination Agreement; (ii) material compliance by the Company, Pubco, the Merger Subs and Ripple with their respective pre-closing covenants; (iii) no occurrence of a Material Adverse Effect since the date of the Business Combination Agreement that is continuing with respect to Pubco or the Company; (iv) completion of the Contribution; and (v) each of Pubco (and, as applicable, the Merger Subs), the Company and Ripple having delivered or caused to be delivered certain certificates and other Closing deliverables contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement.

Q: Why is SPAC proposing the Transactions?

A: SPAC is a blank check company incorporated on October 3, 2024 as a Cayman Islands exempted company and incorporated for the purpose of effecting a merger, share exchange, asset acquisition, share purchase, reorganization or similar business combination with one or more businesses or entities.

SPAC has identified several criteria and guidelines it believes are important for evaluating acquisition opportunities. SPAC has sought to acquire companies that have or reflect some of the following: favorable sector and market dynamics including large unmet demand, which may drive organic growth with additional opportunities for add-on acquisitions, defensible or disruptive niche, differentiated technology, competitive advantages, a track record of profitability, public-ready teams with proven track records driving revenue and value creation for shareholders, and mid-cap initial enterprise value with readiness to grow. In addition, SPAC (a) must complete an initial business combination with one or more target businesses that together have a fair market value equal to at least 80% of the net assets held in the Trust Account (excluding the deferred underwriting commissions and taxes payable on the interest earned on the Trust Account) at the time of the execution of a definitive agreement for an initial business combination and (b) is not permitted to effect an initial business combination solely with another blank check company or a similar company with nominal operations. Based on its due diligence investigations of Pubco and the Company, their strong management teams, the industry in which they operate, and the information provided by Pubco and the Company in the course of negotiations, the SPAC Board believes that a business combination with Pubco is in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders and presents an opportunity to increase shareholder value. However, there is no assurance of this. See "The Business Combination Proposal—The SPAC Board's Reasons for Approval of the Transactions."

Although the SPAC Board believes that the Transactions present a unique business combination opportunity and is in the best interest of SPAC and its shareholders, the SPAC Board did consider certain potentially material negative factors in arriving at that conclusion. These factors are discussed in greater detail in the sections entitled "Summary of the Proxy Statement/Prospectus—The SPAC Board's Reasons for Approval of the Transactions" and "Risk Factors—Risks Related to the Transactions."

Q: What are the reasons for the structure and timing of the Business Combination Proposal and the Private Placement Investments?

A: SPAC is a blank check company incorporated on October 3, 2024 as a Cayman Islands exempted company and incorporated for the purpose of effecting a merger, share exchange, asset acquisition, share purchase, reorganization or similar business combination with one or more businesses or entities. Since the SPAC IPO, SPAC's activities have been limited to identifying and evaluating potential business combination opportunities, and SPAC has until the end of the Combination Period to consummate an initial Business Combination. SPAC's management and its advisors surveyed the landscape of potential acquisition opportunities for acquisition targets and engaged in discussions with six potential targets (not including Pubco). SPAC's management ultimately decided not to pursue such alternate targets and instead focused its efforts on Evernorth. On October 19, 2025, after detailed negotiations, the parties thereto executed the Business Combination Agreement. For more information, see "The Business Combination Proposal—Background of the Transactions."

The structure of the Business Combination Proposal involves, at the Closing and upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Business Combination Agreement, (a) Company Merger Sub merging with and into the Company, with the Company continuing as the surviving company (the "Company Merger"), with holders of Company Units receiving one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each Company Unit, subject to certain reductions and other limitations imposed on the Contributor Related Parties, as set forth in the Business Combination Agreement, and (b) simultaneously with the Company Merger, SPAC Merger Sub merging with and into SPAC Delaware, with SPAC Delaware continuing as the surviving entity, with (x) stockholders of SPAC Delaware receiving one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each SPAC Class A Share held by such shareholder, and (y) warrantholders of SPAC Delaware receiving one warrant to purchase one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each warrant to purchase one SPAC Class A Share held by such warrantholders. Upon consummation of the Mergers and the Transactions, Pubco will be a publicly traded digital asset treasury that will provide investors with regulated, liquid exposure to XRP and pursue strategies, including ecosystem participation and yield generation, intended to increase shareholder value over time. In public communications, Pubco is expected to be the largest public XRP treasury company and a first-of-its-kind institutional vehicle built to accelerate XRP adoption. The SPAC Board considered that this positioning would provide public investors direct exposure to the XRP ecosystem through a first-of-its-kind model, and that strategic alignment with ecosystem participants could present preferential opportunities, such as early participation in network initiatives and validator roles, which the SPAC Board believes may strengthen the combined company's market presence and long-term growth prospects. As described under "The Transactions" and "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC" in this proxy statement/prospectus, the Transactions are structured as an "Up-C," pursuant to which Pubco will be a publicly traded corporation and the Company will be treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes. In this structure, certain investors may satisfy their funding commitments with cash and/or XRP, with any XRP contributed in-kind to Pubco or the Company in exchange for equity interests. The SPAC Board believed that this structure may provide potential tax benefits and structuring efficiencies for certain investors and may offer a differentiated way to contribute XRP in-kind as compared to other potential XRP investment alternatives. The transaction structure also facilitated the Private Placement Investments and preserved the ability of investors to fund commitments in cash and/or XRP, including through advance funding and delayed funding mechanics, allowing for optimal funding commitment results.

Q: How many votes do I have at the Extraordinary General Meeting?

A: SPAC shareholders are entitled to one vote on each Proposal they are entitled to vote on at the Extraordinary General Meeting for each SPAC Common Share held of record as of the Record Date. Pursuant to the Cayman Companies Act and the SPAC Charter, only the holders of the SPAC Class B Shares are entitled to vote on the Domestication Proposal. All holders of SPAC Common Shares are entitled to vote on the Merger Proposal, the Business Combination Proposal, the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals, the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals and the Adjournment Proposal. As of the close of business on the Record Date for the Extraordinary General Meeting, there were 31,590,000 SPAC Common Shares issued and outstanding, of which 23,000,000 were issued and outstanding Public Shares.

Q: What vote is required to approve the proposals presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting?

A: To pass each of the Business Combination Proposal and the Adjournment Proposal requires an ordinary resolution, being the affirmative vote of at least a simple majority of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the respective proposal at the Extraordinary General Meeting. To pass the Merger Proposal and the Domestication Proposal requires a special resolution, being the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the respective Proposal at the Extraordinary General Meeting. SPAC shareholders are also being asked to approve, as an ordinary resolution on a non-binding advisory basis, each of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals and the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals. Although the SPAC Board is asking SPAC shareholders to approve each of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals and the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals on a non-binding advisory basis, regardless of the outcome of the non-binding advisory vote on each of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals and the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals, the Transactions will be completed if the Business Combination Proposal, the Merger Proposal and the Domestication Proposal are approved. Pursuant to the Cayman Companies Act and the SPAC Charter, only the holders of the SPAC Class B Shares are entitled to vote on the Domestication Proposal. All holders of SPAC Common Shares are entitled to vote on the Merger Proposal, the Business Combination Proposal, the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals, the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals and the Adjournment Proposal.

Q: Are the Proposals conditioned on one another?

A: Each of the Business Combination Proposal, the Merger Proposal and the Domestication Proposal are Condition Precedent Proposals and are cross-conditioned on the approval of the other. If SPAC shareholders do not approve each of the Condition Precedent Proposals, then we will not consummate the Transactions. See the sections of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal," "The Merger Proposal," and "The Domestication Proposal." Each of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals and the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals include non-binding advisory proposals and are conditioned on the approval of each of the Condition Precedent Proposals. The Adjournment Proposal is not conditioned upon the approval of any other proposal.

Q: What constitutes a quorum at the Extraordinary General Meeting?

A: A quorum of SPAC's shareholders is necessary to hold a valid meeting. The presence, in person or, in the case of a corporation or other non-natural person, by duly authorized representative (including virtually) or by proxy, of one or more shareholders holding at least one-third of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares constitutes a quorum at the Extraordinary General Meeting. Abstentions will be considered present for the purposes of establishing a quorum. The Sponsor owns 26.2% of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares as of the Record Date, which will count towards this quorum. As a result, as of the Record Date, in addition to the shares of the Sponsor, 2,250,000 SPAC Common Shares held by Public Shareholders would be required to be present at the Extraordinary General Meeting to achieve a quorum.

Q: How will the Sponsor and SPAC's directors and officers vote?

A: The Sponsor, the Original Sponsor and SPAC's former directors and officers have entered into letter agreements with SPAC, including the insider letter ("Insider Letter"), and the Sponsor has entered into the Sponsor Support Agreement with SPAC and Pubco, pursuant to which, among other things, they have agreed to vote all of their SPAC Common Shares in favor of any proposed business combination (except that it, he or she shall not vote any SPAC Class A Shares that it, he or she purchased after SPAC publicly announced its intention to engage in the Transactions for or against approving the Transactions). As of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus, the Sponsor owns approximately 26.2% of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares. See section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Risk Factors—The Sponsor and SPAC's directors and officers and their respective affiliates may elect to purchase Public Shares from Public Shareholders, which may influence the vote on the Transactions and reduce the public "float" of SPAC Class A Shares."

Q: What interests do the Sponsor, SPAC's directors and executive officers and their affiliates have in the Transactions?

A: When you consider the recommendation of the SPAC Board in favor of approval of the Business Combination Proposal and the other proposals, you should keep in mind that the Sponsor and certain of SPAC's directors and officers have interests in such proposals that are different from, or in addition to, those of SPAC's shareholders and holders of SPAC Public Warrants generally. In particular:

- The Sponsor purchased from the Original Sponsor 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants for an aggregate purchase price of $6,600,000. (the "SPAC Private Warrants" and, together with the SPAC Public Warrants, the "SPAC Warrants").
- SPAC's officers and directors have an indirect economic interest in such shares and warrants through their membership interest in the Sponsor. Assuming a trading price of $10.50 per Founder Share and $0.801 per SPAC Private Warrant (based upon the respective closing prices of the SPAC Class A Shares and the SPAC Public Warrants on Nasdaq on August 20, 2026, the most recent practicable date prior to the date of this proxy statement/prospectus), the 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants, in each case if unrestricted and freely tradable, would have an implied aggregate market value of $87.1 million. However, given the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that will be received in exchange for such Founder Shares or upon exercise of the Pubco Warrants will be subject to lockup restrictions, SPAC believes such shares have less value. Even if the trading price of the Public Shares were as low as approximately $1.1965 per share, the aggregate market value of the Founder Shares alone (without taking into account the value of the SPAC Private Warrants) would be approximately equal to the initial investment in SPAC by the Sponsor.
- In addition, the Sponsor agreed to, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor. After the Sponsor's remaining SPAC Class B Shares are automatically converted to SPAC Class A Shares immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time, the Sponsor's remaining SPAC Class A Shares will automatically convert into Pubco Class A Common Stock and its remaining SPAC Private Warrants into Pubco Warrants at the SPAC Merger Effective Time. Accordingly, following the Closing, Sponsor will hold no more than (x) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, on an as converted basis, equal to the sum of

(A) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares and (B) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares, and (y) the number of Pubco Warrants, on an as converted basis, equal to 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants less the Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants. As a result, if the Transactions are completed and the Sponsor forfeits the minimum number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, even if the trading price of the Pubco Class A Common Stock were as low as approximately $1.1965 per share, the aggregate market value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock received in exchange for the Founder Shares and not forfeited, alone (without taking into account the value of the SPAC Private Warrants), would be approximately equal to the initial investment in SPAC by the Sponsor. If the trading price is greater than approximately $1.1965, the Sponsor is likely to be able to make a substantial profit on its investment in SPAC at a time when the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants have lost significant value. On the other hand, if the Transactions are not approved and SPAC is unable to complete another business combination within 18 months from the consummation of the IPO or such later time as the holders of SPAC Common Shares may approve by special resolution in accordance with the SPAC Charter (the "Combination Period"), the 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants purchased by the Sponsor from the Original Sponsor for an aggregate purchase price of $6,600,000 will be worthless, and Sponsor will lose its entire investment in SPAC. Accordingly, the economic interests of the Sponsor diverge from the economic interests of holders of the Public Shares.

- As of the date hereof, the Sponsor is the record holder of 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants. J. Michael Arrington, a member of the SPAC Board, is the sole managing member of Arrington Capital Management, LLC, which is the general partner of the Sponsor. As of the date hereof, J. Michael Arrington is deemed to hold voting and dispositive control over the securities held directly by the Sponsor. J. Michael Arrington disclaims any beneficial ownership of the reported shares other than to the extent of any pecuniary interest he may have therein, directly or indirectly. Each of Mr. Arrington, Taryn Naidu, Chief Executive Officer of SPAC and member of the SPAC Board, Kyle Horton, Chief Financial Officer of SPAC, and Ronald Palmeri, a member of the SPAC Board, owns limited partner interests in the Sponsor and through them has an indirect interest in the Founder Shares, the SPAC Class A Shares and the SPAC Private Warrants and compensation the Sponsor receives in connection with the Transactions. In addition, the Sponsor is expected to transfer 10,000 SPAC Class B Shares to each of Richard Danis, Lindy Key, and Ronald Palmeri, each members of the SPAC Board, prior to the closing of the Business Combination
- In addition to the compensation to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates referred to above, RippleWorks made the RippleWorks Investment that is subject to the Sponsor's obligation to invest all of the RippleWorks Token Investment in shares of Pubco pursuant to the Series C Subscription Agreement. RippleWorks may withdraw the RippleWorks Investment if the Business Combination is not consummated. The Sponsor will receive a customary annual management fee in connection with its management of the RippleWorks Investment. RippleWorks is a limited partner in the Sponsor and, prior to the RippleWorks Investment held, and after the execution of the Business Combination Agreement holds, a majority of the limited partner interests in the Sponsor. Prior to the RippleWorks Investment, RippleWorks was entitled to only customary limited partner information and approval rights in the Sponsor. In connection with the RippleWorks Investment, the Sponsor and RippleWorks entered into a letter agreement dated October 17, 2025 pursuant to which Sponsor agreed to consult with RippleWorks on any decisions directly related to the disposition or voting of Pubco Stock purchased under the Series C Subscription Agreement and to vote such shares as directed by RippleWorks. Chris Larsen, co-founder and Executive Chairman of Ripple, is also a co-founder and member of the board of directors of RippleWorks.
- The Sponsor and SPAC's officers and directors have agreed to waive their rights to liquidating distributions from the Trust Account with respect to the SPAC Common Shares (other than Public Shares) held by them if SPAC fails to consummate an initial business combination within the Combination Period.

- The Sponsor and SPAC's officers and certain directors may lose their entire investment in SPAC if a business combination is not consummated within the Combination Period.
- The Sponsor has agreed that it will be liable to SPAC if and to the extent any claims by a third party for services rendered or products sold to SPAC, or a prospective target business with which SPAC has entered into a written letter of intent, confidentiality or other similar agreement or business combination agreement (except for SPAC's independent registered public accounting firm), reduce the amount of funds in the Trust Account to below (i) $10.05 per Public Share or (ii) such lesser amount per Public Share held in the Trust Account as of the date of the liquidation of the Trust Account due to reductions in the value of the trust assets, in each case, net of the amount of interest earned on the property in the Trust Account which may be withdrawn to pay taxes, provided that such liability will not apply to any claims by a third party who executed a waiver of any and all rights to seek access to the Trust Account nor will it apply to any claims under SPAC's indemnity of the underwriters of the SPAC IPO against certain liabilities, including liabilities under the Securities Act.
- SPAC's existing officers and directors will be eligible for continued indemnification and continued coverage under a tail directors' and officers' liability insurance policy for up to a six-year period from and after the Closing for events occurring prior to the Closing, which tail policy is to be paid for by Pubco at the Closing pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement. If the Transactions do not close, SPAC's officers and directors may not receive this tail insurance coverage.
- Pursuant to the A&R Registration Rights Agreement, the Sponsor will have customary registration rights, including demand and piggy-back rights, subject to cooperation and cut-back provisions with respect to the Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants held by it following the consummation of the Business Combination.
- The SPAC Charter provides that, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law: (i) none of the Sponsor or any individual serving as a director or an officer shall have any duty, except and to the extent expressly assumed by contract, to refrain from engaging directly or indirectly in the same or similar business activities or lines of business as SPAC; (ii) SPAC renounces any interest or expectancy in, or in being offered an opportunity to participate in, any potential transaction or matter which (a) may be a corporate opportunity for the Sponsor or any director or officer, on the one hand, and SPAC, on the other or (b) the presentation of which would breach an existing legal obligation of the Sponsor or any director or officer to any other entity; and (iii) except to the extent expressly assumed by contract, none of the Sponsor or any director or officer of sponsor will have any duty to communicate or offer any such corporate opportunity to SPAC and shall not be liable to SPAC or its shareholders for breach of any fiduciary duty as a shareholder, director or officer of sponsor solely by reason of the fact that such party pursues or acquires such corporate opportunity for itself, himself or herself, directs such corporate opportunity to another person, or does not communicate information regarding such corporate opportunity to SPAC. In the course of their other business activities, SPAC's officers and directors may have, or may become aware of, other investment and business opportunities which may be appropriate for presentation to SPAC as well as the other entities with which they are affiliated. SPAC's management has pre-existing fiduciary duties and contractual obligations and if there is a conflict of interest in determining to which entity a particular business combination opportunity should be presented, any pre-existing fiduciary obligation will be presented the business combination opportunity before SPAC is presented with it. SPAC does not believe that the pre-existing fiduciary duties or contractual obligations of its officers and directors materially impacted its search for an acquisition target.
- The Sponsor agreed that the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants received by it in connection with the SPAC Merger, and any shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon the exercise of Pubco Warrants, will be locked-up and subject to transfer restrictions, until the earlier of (i) the Anniversary Release and (ii) the date on which Pubco consummates a liquidation, merger, capital stock exchange, reorganization or other similar transaction that results in all Pubco stockholders having the right to exchange their shares of Pubco common stock for cash, securities or other property. The Lock-Up Agreements include customary exceptions to the transfer restrictions, including transfers to affiliates, family members, charitable organizations, and in connection with certain tax or estate planning transactions, provided that the transferee agrees to be bound by the same restrictions for the remainder of the lock-up period.

- On October 19, 2025, concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, the Sponsor entered into the Series C Subscription Agreement (as amended on August 12, 2026), as detailed in the section entitled "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—SPAC's Relationships and Related Party Transactions." As a result, if the Transactions are completed, the Sponsor will receive Pubco Class C Common Stock in exchange for its investment, which may increase in value following the completion of the Transactions. On the other hand, if the Transactions are not approved or, notwithstanding approval, are not completed, the Series C Subscription Agreement will terminate in accordance with its terms, the cash or contributed XRP will be returned in the manner prescribed by the applicable Series C Subscription Agreement, and the Sponsor will not receive Pubco Class A Common Stock or the potential upside benefits of ownership thereof.

Q: When will the Sponsor be entitled to transfer its shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock?

A: Concurrently with the Closing, the Sponsor will enter into a Lock-Up Agreement with Pubco, pursuant to which the Sponsor will agree that the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants received by it in connection with the SPAC Merger, and any shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon the exercise of Pubco Warrants, will be locked-up and subject to transfer restrictions, until the earlier of (i) the Anniversary Release; and (ii) the date on which Pubco consummates a liquidation, merger, capital stock exchange, reorganization or other similar transaction that results in all Pubco stockholders having the right to exchange their shares of Pubco common stock for cash, securities or other property. The Lock-Up Agreements include customary exceptions to the transfer restrictions, including transfers to affiliates, family members, charitable organizations, and in connection with certain tax or estate planning transactions, provided that the transferee agrees to be bound by the same restrictions for the remainder of the lock-up period.

Q: Did the SPAC Board obtain a fairness opinion (or any similar report or appraisal) in determining whether or not to proceed with the Transactions?

A: Yes. The SPAC Board received the Fairness Opinion, which concluded that, as of that date and subject to the assumptions, procedures, matters considered and limitations described therein, the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness Opinion) set forth in the Fairness Opinion is fair, from a financial point of view, to SPAC. The Fairness Opinion was provided for the use and benefit of the SPAC Board, does not constitute a recommendation to any shareholder as to how to vote or act, is described under "The Business Combination Proposal —Opinion of the SPAC Financial Advisor," and is attached as Annex F. For information about the standards used by the SPAC Board in evaluating the Transactions, see the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Background of the Transactions."

Q: What factors did the SPAC Board consider in connection with its decision to recommend voting in favor of the Transactions?

A: In evaluating the Transactions, the SPAC Board consulted with SPAC management and SPAC's financial, legal, and other professional advisors. The SPAC Board considered a range of factors, including, but not limited to, the factors discussed below, in reaching its unanimous resolution (i) that the Business Combination Agreement, the Ancillary Agreements to which SPAC is a party, and the Transactions are advisable and in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders and (ii) to recommend that the shareholders of SPAC adopt and approve the Business Combination Agreement, the Ancillary Agreements to which

SPAC is a party, and the Transactions. The SPAC Board viewed its decision as being based on all of the information available and the factors presented to and considered by it. In addition, individual directors may have given different weight to different factors. This explanation of the SPAC Board's reasons for the Business Combination and all other information presented in this section is forward-looking in nature and, therefore, should be read in light of the factors discussed under "Cautionary Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements."

Factors Supporting the Business Combination

- Size of the Potential Total Addressable Market. Pubco will provide investors with simple, liquid, and transparent exposure to XRP through a publicly listed vehicle. There is a significant and growing market for XRP as a productive, treasury reserve asset, with increasing institutional demand driven by XRP ETFs and corporate treasuries.
- Consistency with SPAC's Formation Purpose and Stated Criteria. SPAC was formed to pursue targets in the financial technology, software-as-a-service and artificial intelligence sectors. In evaluating the Business Combination, the SPAC Board considered that the Transactions are consistent with those published criteria and with SPAC's emphasis on partnering with such companies, including through a transaction structure and capital commitments designed to support Pubco's growth as a public company.
- Attractive Market Opportunity and Strategic Partnership. Pubco will be a publicly traded digital asset treasury that will provide investors with regulated, liquid exposure to XRP and pursue strategies, including ecosystem participation (such as projects that expand XRP's utility across payments, capital markets and tokenized assets, determined on a case-by-case basis) and yield generation, intended to increase shareholder value over time. In public communications, Pubco is expected to be the largest public XRP treasury company and a first-of-its-kind institutional vehicle built to accelerate XRP adoption. The SPAC Board considered that this positioning would provide public investors direct exposure to the XRP ecosystem through a first-of-its-kind model, and that strategic alignment with ecosystem participants could present preferential opportunities, such as early participation in network initiatives and validator roles, which the SPAC Board believes may strengthen the combined company's market presence and long-term growth prospects.
- Unique Opportunities for Growth. Unlike a passive ETF, Pubco seeks to grow shareholder value over time by participating in institutional lending, liquidity provisioning, and DeFi (decentralized finance) yield opportunities. In addition, XRP presents a compelling opportunity for investors as one of the few digital assets with a recognized regulatory framework in the United States and a proven use case in powering global payments.
- Roadmap for Long-Term Success. Pubco intends to build one of the largest institutional XRP treasuries in the world, and deploy resources towards advancing the XRP ecosystem, including through operating XRP validators to strengthen the resilience and decentralization of the XRP ledger, leveraging Ripple's RLUSD stablecoin as an on-ramp into XRP-based decentralized (enabling yield opportunities and broader adoption of XRP as collateral) and providing liquidity and participating in projects that expand XRP's real-world utility across payments, capital markets, and tokenized assets. This strategy ensures that Pubco is designed not only to accumulate XRP as a reserve asset but also to act as a long-term catalyst for the adoption and institutionalization of the XRP Ledger. These steps position Pubco for long-term success.
- NAV-Accretive Platform Architecture. The SPAC Board considered the market precedent of digital asset treasury vehicles that can trade at premiums to their net asset value ("NAV"). A premium-to-NAV trading profile could allow Pubco to raise capital above the underlying value of its digital assets, thereby making subsequent equity issuances accretive to existing shareholders. The SPAC Board believes that Pubco's structure and exposure to XRP positions it to achieve similar NAV-accretive dynamics, enhancing capital formation flexibility.

- Up-C Structure and In-Kind XRP Funding. The SPAC Board considered that, as described under "The Transactions" and "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC" in this proxy statement/prospectus, the Transactions are structured as an "Up-C," pursuant to which Pubco will be a publicly traded corporation and the Company will be treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes. In this structure, certain investors may satisfy their funding commitments with cash and/or XRP, with any XRP contributed in-kind to Pubco or the Company in exchange for equity interests. Investors that have purchased Company Units will be entitled to economic interests in the Company that are equivalent to the indirect economic interests that other shareholders will have in the Company via their ownership of shares of Pubco. However, any Company Units that are held without any corresponding shares of Class B Common Stock in Pubco will not entitle their holder to any voting rights in Pubco, and such holder will only be entitled to voting rights in Pubco to the extent any such Company Units have been converted to shares of Class A Common Stock in Pubco in accordance with the Company A&R LLCA. The SPAC Board believed that this structure may provide potential tax benefits and structuring efficiencies for certain investors and may offer a differentiated way to contribute XRP in-kind as compared to other potential XRP investment alternatives.
- Attractive Entry Valuation. The SPAC Board believes that Pubco provides an attractive entry valuation (calculated as a multiple to NAV) to XRP. The SPAC Board also considered that Pubco was able to secure over $1 billion of commitments from Private Placement Investors, from institutional, crypto-native, and strategic investors, to purchase common equity at $10.00 per share, in connection with the negotiation of the Business Combination Agreement.
- Redemption Option. The SPAC Board considered that SPAC's public shareholders will be able to exercise redemption rights with respect to their Public Shares in connection with the Business Combination, allowing those who do not wish to remain invested in Pubco to exit their investment.
- Pubco's Initial XRP Holdings. Pubco is expected to launch with corporate XRP holdings of at least 473,276,430 XRP at Closing, comprised of: (i) 600,000 XRP that the Advance Funding Subscribers have agreed to contribute to Pubco prior to Closing pursuant to the Advance Funding Subscription, (ii) 200,000 XRP that the Delayed Funding Subscribers have agreed to contribute to Pubco at Closing pursuant to the Delayed Funding Subscription, (iii) 211,319,096.061435 XRP that the Sponsor has agreed to contribute to Pubco prior to Closing pursuant to the Series C Subscription, (iv) 50,000,000 XRP that the Contributor Related Party Entity has agreed to contribute to Pubco prior to Closing pursuant to the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription, (v) 126,791,458 XRP that Ripple contributed to the Company concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement pursuant to the Contribution Agreement and (vi) 84,365,876.3625 XRP purchased using $214 million in aggregate cash proceeds from the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements at an average price of $2.53657058 per XRP.
- Negotiated Transaction and Terms of the Business Combination and Ancillary Agreements. The SPAC Board considered that the financial and other terms and conditions of the Business Combination Agreement and the Ancillary Agreements are reasonable. The SPAC Board also evaluated each party's representations, warranties, covenants, and agreements, as well as the conditions to each party's obligations and the commitment of each party to complete the Business Combination.
- Highly Experienced Management Team. Pubco will be led by Asheesh Birla as Chief Executive Officer, and he will also serve on the Board of Directors of Pubco. Asheesh Birla is a seasoned entrepreneur and expert in the blockchain and fintech industries, with over 20 years of experience in Silicon Valley. He spent nine years at Ripple, joining in 2013 shortly after the company launched, where he led the team bringing the first enterprise crypto product to market with hundreds of customers worldwide, and helped grow the company to over 1,000 employees. After leaving Ripple, Mr. Birla focused his time on investing in and advising early-stage tech companies, and sat on the board of Ripple. He also previously served on the board of Bitso, the largest LATAM crypto exchange, as well as MoneyGram and several other fintech startups. Mr. Birla also guest lectures on entrepreneurship and blockchain at Wharton, the Haas School of Business at Berkely, and the University of Michigan. Stuart Alderoty has served as the Chief Legal Officer at Ripple since 2019, and the President of the National Cryptocurrency Association since 2025, and will serve as a member of the Board upon completion of the Business Combination. Mr. Alderoty brings more than 40 years of legal experience to the role with particular expertise in financial services and regulatory affairs. He's been General Counsel and part of the executive leadership teams at CIT Group and HSBC North America Holdings. Mr. Alderoty was also Managing Counsel at American Express. As a member of Pubco's Board of Directors, Mr. Alderoty will exercise fiduciary duties of care and loyalty to Pubco and its shareholders, participate in board committees as assigned, and otherwise support the Chief Executive Officer. Mr. Alderoty will receive compensation solely in his capacity as a member of the Board of Directors, consistent with the compensation provided to other non-employee directors.

- Renowned Strategic Advisors. Pubco will be supported by non-executive strategic advisors Brad Garlinghouse and David Schwartz. Mr. Garlinghouse will provide strategic advisory services on an informal basis. His advisory role will focus on industry relationships, market positioning and strategic opportunities within the digital asset ecosystem. Mr. Garlinghouse will not receive any compensation from Pubco for these services, and there is no written agreement governing this arrangement. Mr. Schwartz, a Ripple director, will provide technical advisory services on an informal basis. His advisory role will focus on technical matters related to the XRP Ledger and blockchain technology considerations relevant to Pubco's treasury operations. Mr. Schwartz will not receive any compensation from Pubco for these services, and there is no written agreement governing this arrangement.
- Lock-up. Subject to certain limited and customary exceptions with respect to permitted transfers, certain Ripple affiliates, the Sponsor, and certain SPAC Insiders will be subject to a six-month lockup in respect of the Pubco Class A Common Stock (and any other securities convertible into or exercisable or exchangeable for Pubco Class A Common Stock) and/or Pubco Class C Common Stock issued to them as consideration in the Business Combination (and including shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and/or Pubco Class C Common Stock received in connection with the Private Placement Investments), which will provide important stability to Pubco.
- Due Diligence and Fairness Opinion. SPAC management and its advisors conducted a due diligence review of the Company and its businesses and operations, including a review of relevant documentation and discussions with the Company's management and the Company's financial and legal advisors. The SPAC's financial advisor, CCM, delivered an opinion that, as of the date rendered, the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness Opinion) is fair, from a financial point of view, to SPAC.
- Other Alternatives. The SPAC Board believes, after a thorough review of other business combination opportunities reasonably available to SPAC, that the proposed Business Combination represents the best potential business combination for SPAC and the most attractive opportunity for SPAC's management to accelerate its business plan based upon its evaluation and assessment of other potential business combination targets.

In connection with its evaluation of the Business Combination, the SPAC Board also considered a variety of risks and uncertainties and other potentially negative factors concerning the Business Combination, including the following:

- Benefits May Not Be Achieved. The risk that the potential benefits of the Business Combination may not be fully achieved or may not be achieved within the expected time frame.
- Minority Shareholder Position. The SPAC's shareholders will hold a minority economic interest in Pubco after the Closing, which will limit their ability to influence governance, strategic decisions, or changes in control.

- Redemption Risk. The potential that a significant number of SPAC shareholders elect to redeem their Public Shares prior to the consummation of the Business Combination and pursuant to the SPAC Charter, thereby reducing the amount of cash available to (i) SPAC and potentially resulting in an inability to consummate the Business Combination if the available cash in the Trust Account is less than $5,000,001, unless such condition to closing is waived by all parties pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement and (ii) Pubco following the consummation of the Business Combination, which could adversely affect Pubco or reduce the benefits of the Business Combination to SPAC's shareholders.
- Closing Conditions. The fact that completion of the Business Combination is conditioned on the satisfaction of certain closing conditions that are not within SPAC's control, such as the Advance Funding Subscribers and Delayed Funding Subscribers having contributed an amount of XRP at least equivalent to the amounts of XRP committed in the Advanced Funding and Delayed Funding, respectively, and the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants having been approved for clearing through DTC (subject to DTC's customary eligibility criteria) and approved for listing on Nasdaq, the New York Stock Exchange or another national exchange reasonably acceptable to Pubco, the SPAC and Ripple.
- No Operating History. The risks associated with the Company and Pubco being newly formed entities with no operating histories or track records.
- XRP and the Volatility of the Price of XRP. XRP is a highly volatile asset. The XRP market has been characterized by significant volatility and unexpected price movements, and has previously experienced significant declines. Such volatility will impact the overall value of the combined company and could cause volatility in the price of its stock. See the risk factors entitled "Our XRP acquisition strategy exposes us to various risks associated with XRP" and "XRP price volatility and sustained declines could cause losses and adversely affect our business, financial condition and ability to execute our strategy."
- Listing Risks. The challenges associated with preparing Pubco, a newly formed private company, for the applicable disclosure and requisite internal controls and listing requirements to which Pubco will be subject as a publicly traded company on a national stock exchange.
- Litigation. The possibility of litigation challenging the Business Combination or that an adverse judgment granting permanent injunctive relief could indefinitely enjoin consummation of the Business Combination.
- Fees and Expenses. The fees and expenses incurred by the parties in connection with completing the Business Combination.
- Management and Key Personnel Risk. The performance of Pubco depends on the services of Pubco's future management team and key personnel. Loss of key personnel could disrupt operations, execution of strategic plans, and overall governance.
- Limited Right of the SPAC Board to Change Its Recommendation. As part of the negotiation of the Business Combination Agreement, SPAC agreed that the SPAC Board would not be permitted to change its recommendation to SPAC shareholders that they vote in favor of the Proposals in certain circumstances, including as a result in the decrease in the price or trading volume of XRP, although the SPAC Board will be permitted to advise SPAC shareholders of their right to redeem their SPAC Class A Shares in such a situation. See the risk factor entitled "The Business Combination Agreement includes a requirement that the SPAC Board will not change its recommendation that SPAC Shareholders vote in favor of the SPAC Shareholder Approval Matters, except in limited situations."
- Cybersecurity and Operational Risks. Validator and network participation on the XRP Ledger, and Pubco's treasury, trading, and custody activities, is vulnerable to cybersecurity threats, unauthorized access, private key compromise, software defects, and third-party service outages. Such events could result in loss of assets, business interruption, and reputational harm.

- Market and Macroeconomic Risks. Volatility in digital asset markets, including the market for XRP, and broader economic, geopolitical, or market conditions, such as interest rate changes, inflation, recessionary pressures, or instability in global financial markets, may adversely affect digital asset prices, liquidity, capital raising, and Pubco's operating performance.
- Competition Risk. The digital asset market is highly competitive. Alternative layer-1 and layer-2 networks, payment and settlement protocols, centralized and decentralized platforms, investment funds, and other companies with digital asset treasuries may reduce demand for XRP or for Pubco's services, which could adversely affect growth prospects and results of operations. In addition, other XRP Digital Asset Treasuries could scale more quickly and become more valuable, potentially diverting users, capital, or developer attention.
- Regulatory and Legal Uncertainty. Digital asset markets are subject to evolving and uncertain regulation in multiple jurisdictions. XRP and Pubco's related activities, including holding, transferring, providing exposure to, or participating in the XRP ecosystem, could be subject to regulatory actions or restrictions by authorities, including the SEC and other U.S. and non-U.S. regulators. Changes in or interpretations of laws relating to securities, commodities, money transmission, sanctions, anti-money laundering ("AML"), consumer protection, or taxation could limit Pubco's ability to operate, access markets, or execute its strategy.
- Other Risks. Various other risks exist, including cybersecurity and operational, technological, regulatory, or financial risks associated with Pubco, XRP, and the broader digital asset ecosystem, as more fully described in the "Risk Factors" section elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus.

In addition to considering the factors described above, the SPAC Board also considered:

- Interests of Certain Persons. The Sponsor, and certain executive officers and directors of the SPAC, as individuals, may have interests in the Business Combination that are in addition to, and that may be different from and may conflict with, the interests of SPAC shareholders (see sections entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions"). The SPAC Board, including the independent directors on the SPAC Board, reviewed and considered these interests, including RippleWorks' limited partner interests in the Sponsor, the RippleWorks Investment and the customary annual management fee the Sponsor will receive in connection with its management of the RippleWorks Investment, during the negotiation of the Business Combination Agreement and in evaluating and unanimously approving, as members of the SPAC Board, the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions and did not view such interests to constitute a disqualifying event to proceed with the Transactions.
- Shareholder Flexibility. In connection with the Business Combination, SPAC's public shareholders have the option to: (i) become stockholders of Pubco following the consummation of the Business Combination; (ii) sell their Public Shares; or (iii) redeem their Public Shares for the Redemption Price pursuant to the terms of the SPAC Charter.
- Differing Returns. The Sponsor paid $2,600,000.00, or approximately $0.33 per share, for the Founder Shares, of which it currently holds 7,880,000. Based on the closing price of SPAC Class A Shares of $10.48 on October 17, 2025 (the business day before the SPAC Board approved the Business Combination), such Founder Shares, if unrestricted and freely tradable, would be valued at approximately $82,582,400.00. The Founder Shares will be worthless if a business combination is not consummated. The Sponsor and its affiliates can earn a positive rate of return on their investment even if Public Shareholders experience a negative return following the consummation of the Business Combination. In connection with the Business Combination, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, 2,364,000 Founder Shares held by the Sponsor will be forfeited pursuant to the Sponsor Support Agreement, and the remaining 5,516,000 Founder Shares will automatically convert into 5,516,000 SPAC Class A Shares in accordance with the SPAC's organizational documents. The Sponsor will not receive any such additional shares if the Closing is not consummated.

The foregoing discussion of the information and factors considered by the SPAC Board is not meant to be exhaustive but includes the material information and factors considered by the SPAC Board as well as any other factors that the SPAC Board deemed relevant. The SPAC Board's decision to approve the Transactions were based on factors existing as of the date of its approval on October 19, 2025.

The SPAC Board concluded that the potential benefits that it expected SPAC and its shareholders to achieve as a result of the Business Combination outweighed the potentially negative and other factors associated with the Business Combination. Accordingly, the SPAC Board unanimously determined that the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions were advisable and in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders.

For a more complete description of the SPAC Board's reasons for approving the Business Combination Agreement, the Ancillary Agreements and the transactions contemplated by those agreements, see the section entitled "Business Combination Proposal—The SPAC Board's Reasons for Approval of the Transactions" and "Risk Factors—Risks Related to the Transactions."

Q: What are the U.S. federal income tax consequences of the SPAC Domestication to me?

A: As discussed more fully under "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC" of this proxy statement/prospectus, SPAC intends for the SPAC Domestication to qualify as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a)(1)(F) of the Code (an "F Reorganization"). Assuming that the SPAC Domestication so qualifies, and subject to the "passive foreign investment company" ("PFIC") rules discussed below and under "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC—B. PFIC Considerations," U.S. Holders (as defined in "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC—II. U.S. Holders") will be subject to Section 367(b) of the Code in connection with the SPAC Domestication and, as a result:

- a U.S. Holder who beneficially owns (directly, indirectly or constructively) 10% or more of the total combined voting power of all classes of SPAC Common Shares entitled to vote or 10% or more of the total value of all classes of SPAC Common Shares (a "10% U.S. Shareholder") on the date of the SPAC Domestication generally will be required to include in income as a deemed dividend deemed paid by SPAC the "all earnings and profits amount" (as defined in the Treasury Regulations under Section 367(b) of the Code) attributable to the SPAC Common Shares held directly by such U.S. Holder;
- a U.S. Holder who, on the date of the SPAC Domestication, is not a 10% U.S. Shareholder and whose SPAC Common Shares have a fair market value of $50,000 or more on the date of the SPAC Domestication generally will recognize gain (but not loss) with respect to its SPAC Class A ordinary shares as if such U.S. Holder exchanged its SPAC Class A ordinary shares for SPAC Class A Shares of SPAC Delaware in a taxable transaction unless such U.S. Holder elects in accordance with applicable Treasury Regulations to include in income as a deemed dividend deemed paid by SPAC the "all earnings and profits" amount attributable to such U.S. Holder's SPAC Common Shares; and
- a U.S. Holder who, on the date of the SPAC Domestication, is not a 10% U.S. Shareholder and whose SPAC Common Shares have a fair market value of less than $50,000 on the date of the SPAC Domestication generally will not recognize any gain or loss or include any part of the "all earnings and profits amount" in income under Section 367(b) of the Code in connection with the SPAC Domestication.

SPAC does not expect to have significant cumulative earnings and profits, if any, on the date of the SPAC Domestication. However, the determination of earnings and profits is complex and may be impacted by numerous factors (including matters discussed in this proxy statement/prospectus). It is possible that the amount of SPAC's cumulative net earnings and profits could be positive through the date of the SPAC Domestication.

As discussed more fully under "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC—II. U.S. Holders—B. PFIC Considerations," SPAC believes that it is likely classified as a PFIC for U.S. federal income tax purposes. If SPAC were classified as a PFIC for U.S. federal income tax purposes, then notwithstanding the foregoing discussion of the U.S. federal income tax consequences of the SPAC Domestication, proposed Treasury Regulations under Section 1291(f) of the Code and certain other PFIC rules (which have retroactive proposed effective dates), if finalized in their current form, generally would require a U.S. Holder to recognize gain on the exchange of SPAC Securities of SPAC for SPAC Securities of SPAC Delaware pursuant to the SPAC Domestication. Any such gain would be taxable income with no corresponding receipt of cash in the SPAC Domestication. The tax on any such gain would be imposed at the rate applicable to ordinary income and an interest charge would apply based on a complex set of rules. The proposed Treasury Regulations provide coordinating rules with other sections of the Code, including Section 367(b), which affect the manner in which the rules under such other sections apply to transfers of PFIC stock. However, it is difficult to predict whether, in what form, and with what effective date, final Treasury Regulations under Section 1291(f) of the Code and such other PFIC rules may be adopted and how any such Treasury Regulations would apply. Importantly, however, U.S. Holders that make or have made certain elections discussed further under "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC—II. U.S. Holders—B. PFIC Considerations—4. QEF Election and Mark-to-Market Election" with respect to their SPAC Class A Shares are generally not subject to the same gain recognition rules under the currently proposed Treasury Regulations under Section 1291(f) of the Code. Under current law, no such elections may be made with respect to SPAC Public Warrants. For a more complete discussion of the potential application of the PFIC rules to U.S. Holders as a result of the SPAC Domestication, see "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC—II. U.S. Holders—B. PFIC Considerations."

Moreover, U.S. Holders of SPAC Class A Shares exercising redemption rights after the SPAC Domestication will be subject to the potential tax consequences of the SPAC Domestication.

The tax consequences of the SPAC Domestication are complex and will depend on a holder's particular circumstances. All holders of SPAC Class A Shares, SPAC Units and/or SPAC Public Warrants are urged to consult their tax advisor regarding the tax consequences to them of the SPAC Domestication, including the applicability and effect of U.S. federal, state, local and non-U.S. tax laws. For a more complete discussion of the U.S. federal income tax considerations of the SPAC Domestication, see "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC."

Q: What are the U.S. federal income tax consequences of the Business Combination to me?

A: Subject to the limitations and qualifications described in "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC—II. U.S. Holders—C. U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences of the SPAC Merger" below, the exchange of SPAC Securities for Pubco Securities pursuant to the SPAC Merger, taken together with the Company Merger and certain other Transactions as part of the Business Combination, is intended to be treated as an exchange in which no gain or loss is recognized under Section 351(a) of the Code (except to the extent required by Section 351(b) of the Code in respect of a holder of SPAC Securities receiving Pubco Warrants in the SPAC Merger). No ruling has been, or will be, sought from the IRS by SPAC or Pubco with respect to the SPAC Merger, and there can be no assurance that the IRS will not challenge the qualification of the SPAC Merger as an exchange subject to Section 351(a) of the Code or that a court would not sustain such a challenge. Qualification as an exchange under Section 351(a) of the Code is subject to a number of requirements. If any requirement for qualification as an exchange under Section 351(a) of the Code is not met, then a U.S. Holder of SPAC Securities would recognize gain or loss in an amount equal to the difference, if any, between the fair market value (as of the Closing) of the Pubco Securities (as defined below) received by such U.S. Holder in the SPAC Merger and such U.S. Holder's aggregate tax basis in the SPAC Securities surrendered in exchange therefor.

The tax consequences of the Business Combination are complex and will depend on a holder's particular circumstances and whether such holder exchanges solely SPAC Class A Shares or SPAC Public Warrants or a combination of the two. U.S. Holders of SPAC Securities are urged to consult their own tax advisors to determine the tax consequences of the Business Combination based on their particular circumstances.

Q: What happens if I sell my Public Shares before the Extraordinary General Meeting?

A: The Record Date for the Extraordinary General Meeting is earlier than the date of the Extraordinary General Meeting and earlier than the date that the Transactions are expected to be completed. If you transfer your Public Shares after the applicable Record Date, but before the Extraordinary General Meeting, unless you grant a proxy to the transferee, you will retain your right to vote at the Extraordinary General Meeting. However, the transferee, and not you, will have the right to have such Public Shares redeemed.

Q: What happens if SPAC shareholders vote against the Business Combination Proposal?

A: If you vote against the Business Combination Proposal but the Business Combination Proposal still receives the requisite shareholder approval, then assuming the approval of each of the Condition Precedent Proposals and the satisfaction or waiver of the other conditions to the Closing, the Transactions will be consummated in accordance with the terms of the Business Combination Agreement.

If you vote against the Business Combination Proposal, the Merger Proposal or (for the holders of SPAC Class B Shares only) the Domestication Proposal, and the Business Combination Proposal, the Merger Proposal or the Domestication Proposal does not receive the requisite vote at the Extraordinary General Meeting, then the Business Combination Proposal, the Merger Proposal or the Domestication Proposal, as applicable, will fail, and we will not consummate the Transactions. If the Business Combination is not approved and we do not consummate the Transactions, we may continue to try to complete a business combination with a different target business during the Combination Period, or obtain an extension of the Combination Period. If we fail to complete a business combination within the Combination Period, or fail to obtain an extension of the Combination Period, we will be required to liquidate the Trust Account by returning then-remaining funds in the Trust Account to the Public Shareholders in accordance with the SPAC Charter.

Q: Do I have redemption rights?

A: Yes. If you are a holder of Public Shares and are not the Sponsor, a Founder, Officer or Director (as each such term is defined in the SPAC Charter), you have the right to request that SPAC redeems all or a portion of your Public Shares for cash provided that you follow the procedures and deadlines described in the SPAC Charter and elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus. If you wish to exercise your redemption rights, please see the answer to the question: "How do I exercise my redemption rights?"

Notwithstanding the foregoing, a Public Shareholder, together with any affiliate of such Public Shareholder or any other person with whom such Public Shareholder is acting in concert or as a "group" (as defined in Section 13(d)(3) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended), will be restricted from having its Public Shares redeemed with respect to more than an aggregate of 20% of the Public Shares. Accordingly, if a Public Shareholder, alone or acting in concert or as a group, seeks redemption of more than 20% of the Public Shares, then any such shares in excess of that 20% limit would not be redeemed for cash.

The Sponsor and each director and officer of SPAC have agreed to waive their redemption rights in connection with the Closing with respect to any SPAC Common Shares held by them. None of the Sponsor, directors or officers received separate consideration for their waiver of redemption rights.

Q: Will how I vote affect my ability to exercise redemption rights?

A: No. Public Shareholders may elect to have their Public Shares redeemed, regardless of if or how they vote in respect of the Business Combination Proposal, and regardless of whether they hold Public Shares on the Record Date. If the Business Combination is not consummated, the Public Shares will be returned to the respective holder, broker or bank.

Q: How do I exercise my redemption rights?

A: Pursuant to the SPAC Charter, Public Shareholders other than the Sponsor, a Founder, Officer or Director (as each such term is defined in the SPAC Charter) may request that SPAC redeems all or a portion of such holder's Public Shares for cash if the Transactions are consummated. As a holder of Public Shares, you will be entitled to receive cash for any Public Shares to be redeemed only if you:

(i) (A) hold Public Shares; or (B) hold Public Shares through SPAC Units and elect to separate your SPAC Units into the underlying Public Shares and SPAC Public Warrants prior to exercising your redemption rights with respect to the Public Shares;

(ii) submit a written request to the Transfer Agent, including the legal name, phone number and address of the beneficial owner of the Public Shares for which redemption is requested, that SPAC redeems all or a portion of your Public Shares for cash; and

(iii) deliver your share certificates for Public Shares (if any) along with any other applicable redemption forms to the Transfer Agent, physically or electronically through the DTC.

Holders must complete the procedures for electing to have their Public Shares redeemed in the manner described above and in accordance with the SPAC Charter prior to 5:00 p.m., Eastern Time, on September 28, 2026 (two Business Days prior to the initially scheduled date of the Extraordinary General Meeting), or any later time and/or date specified by the SPAC Board in accordance with the SPAC Charter, in order to properly exercise their redemption rights. If SPAC is not able to complete the Business Combination within the Combination Period, SPAC may seek to amend the provisions of the SPAC Charter to extend the time it has to complete a Business Combination, and SPAC will provide the Public Shareholders, other than the Sponsor, a Founder, Officer or Director (as each such term is defined in the SPAC Charter), with the opportunity to redeem their Public Shares upon the effectiveness of any such amendment at a per-share price, payable in cash, equal to the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account, including interest earned on the Trust Account (which interest shall be net of taxes payable), divided by the number of Public Shares then in issue, subject to applicable law.

If the Mergers are consummated, and if a Public Shareholder properly exercises its redemption rights with respect to all or a portion of the Public Shares that it holds and timely delivers its share certificates (if any) and other redemption forms (as applicable) to the Transfer Agent, then at the SPAC Merger Effective Time, such Public Shares will automatically be canceled and cease to exist and will thereafter represent only the right to receive the Redemption Price. For illustrative purposes, based on funds in the Trust Account of approximately $241.9 million as of August 20, 2026, the Record Date, the estimated per share redemption price would have been approximately $10.52, including additional interest earned on the funds held in the Trust Account and not previously released to SPAC.

Prior to exercising redemption rights, Public Shareholders should verify the market price of the Public Shares, as they may receive higher proceeds from the sale of their Public Shares in the public market than from exercising their redemption rights if the market price per share is higher than the Redemption Price. SPAC cannot assure its shareholders that they will be able to sell their Public Shares in the open market, even if the market price per share is higher than the Redemption Price stated above, as there may not be sufficient liquidity in its securities when our shareholders wish to sell their Public Shares.

Any request for redemption, once made by a Public Shareholder, may not be withdrawn following the Redemption Deadline, unless the SPAC Board determines (in its sole discretion) to permit such withdrawal of a redemption request (which it may do in whole or in part).

Any corrected or changed written exercise of redemption rights must be received by the Transfer Agent prior to the Redemption Deadline, and, following such deadline, with SPAC's consent, prior to the Extraordinary General Meeting. No request for redemption will be honored unless the Public Shareholder's shares have been delivered (either physically or electronically through DTC) to the Transfer Agent and in accordance with the SPAC Charter by 5:00 p.m., Eastern Time, on September 28, 2026 (two Business Days prior to the initially scheduled date of the Extraordinary General Meeting), unless the SPAC Board extends this deadline in accordance with the SPAC Charter.

See the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Extraordinary General Meeting of SPAC Shareholders—Redemption Rights" for a detailed description of the procedures to be followed if you wish to have your Public Shares redeemed.

Q: What are the U.S. federal income tax consequences of exercising my redemption rights?

A: The U.S. federal income tax consequences of exercising your redemption rights with respect to your Public Shares depend on your particular facts and circumstances but will generally be a taxable transaction. The treatment of an exercise of redemption rights for U.S. federal income tax purposes depends on facts and circumstances particular to each holder of Public Shares and SPAC Public Warrants. Please see the section titled "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC" for a more detailed discussion. We urge you to consult your tax advisors regarding the particular tax consequences to you of exercising your redemption rights.

Q: What rights do I have as a holder of SPAC Public Warrants?

A: Pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement, SPAC, as an affiliate of the Sponsor, has agreed to assume the Sponsor's obligations under the Warrant Call Right.

Q: Do I have appraisal rights or dissenters' rights if I object to the Transactions?

A: Neither holders of SPAC Common Shares nor holders of SPAC Warrants have appraisal rights or dissenters' rights in respect of such securities with respect to the Transactions under the Cayman Companies Act or the DGCL. However, Public Shareholders are still entitled to exercise the redemption rights in respect of their Public Shares as detailed in this proxy statement/prospectus. See the section titled "The Merger Proposal—Appraisal Rights and Dissenters' Rights" for additional information.

Q: What happens to the funds deposited in the Trust Account after the consummation of the Business Combination?

A: As of the Record Date, there was approximately $241.9 million in the Trust Account. Upon consummation of the Business Combination, the funds in the Trust Account will be used to pay holders of the Public Shares who properly exercise redemption rights, to fund Pubco's or its subsidiaries' working capital, growth and general corporate purposes and to pay fees and expenses incurred in connection with the Transactions. For a discussion of the amount of cash expected to be in the Trust Account following the payment of estimated fees and expenses incurred in connection with the Transactions and in the event of no Redemptions by Public Shareholders, 25% Redemptions by Public Shareholders, 50% Redemptions by Public Shareholders, 75% Redemptions by Public Shareholders and 100% Redemptions, by Public Shareholders see the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Summary of the Proxy Statement/Prospectus—Sources and Use of Funds by Pubco for the Transactions".

Q: What happens if a substantial number of Public Shareholders vote in favor of the Business Combination Proposal and exercise their redemption rights?

A: Public Shareholders are not required to vote in favor of the Business Combination Proposal and Merger Proposal in order to exercise their redemption rights. Accordingly, the Transactions may be consummated even though the funds available from the Trust Account and the number of Public Shareholders are reduced as a result of redemptions by Public Shareholders.

In the event of significant redemptions, with fewer Public Shares and Public Shareholders, the trading market for Pubco Class A Common Stock may be less liquid than the market for SPAC Class A Shares was prior to the Transactions, and Pubco may not be able to meet the listing standards for Nasdaq or another national securities exchange. If the net proceeds of the Transactions and the Private Placement Investments are less than Pubco anticipates, including as a result of redemptions of Public Shares, Pubco may need to make adjustments to its business plans in light of available capital resources and Pubco may need to seek additional funds earlier than Pubco anticipates.

Dilution per share to Public Shareholders is determined by SPAC's NTBV per share, as adjusted, while excluding the Transactions, while giving effect to material probable or consummated transactions and other material effects on NTBV per share, from the Public Shareholders as set forth as follows under five redemption scenarios.

The following tables illustrate NTBV per share and the change in NTBV per share, as adjusted, following the Closing and giving effect to probable or consummated transactions that are material and other material effects on NTBV per share. These are presented in relation to the offering price per Public Share in the SPAC IPO as set forth as follows under the five redemption scenarios:

(1) NTBV is calculated as total assets minus total liabilities and SPAC Class A Shares subject to redemption as of June 30, 2026, as adjusted.

(2) NTBV is adjusted for (i) reclassification of unredeemed shares to permanent equity at different levels of redemptions to Public Shareholders at the $10.49 per share redemption price as of June 30, 2026 and (ii) transaction costs that have not been recorded on SPAC's financial statements as of June 30, 2026, which will have an impact on the calculation of NTBV upon the Closing.

(3) Dilution is calculated by subtracting the NTBV per share as of June 30, 2026, as adjusted, from the $10.00 SPAC IPO per share price for the Public Shares.

(4) Reflects the reduction of underwriting fee liability due to redemptions. Also includes the expense reimbursement from underwriters for up to $2,300,000, which such amount is decreased by $0.10 for every SPAC Common Share for which a SPAC public shareholder exercises its redemption right pursuant to the letter agreement SPAC entered into with CCM and Northland, as representatives of the underwriters from the IPO on September 9, 2025.

(5) Based on the assets held in the Trust Account as of June 30, 2026 of $241,164,305 and assuming a redemption price of $10.49 per share, which was the approximate per share redemption price as of June 30, 2026.

(6) Consists of SPAC Class B Shares held by Sponsor. Sponsor is expected to transfer 10,000 SPAC Class B Shares to each of Richard Danis, Lindy Key, and Ron Palmeri, each member of the SPAC Board, prior to the closing of the Business Combination.

(7) Pursuant to the Amendment No. 1 to the Sponsor Support Agreement, Sponsor agreed to forfeit for no consideration 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time.

The Business Combination Agreement is conditioned upon the SPAC Tangible Net Assets equaling or exceeding $5,000,001 as of the Closing Date. For more information, see "Risk Factors—Risks Related to Being a Public Company—Our common stock may trade at prices which diverge from the net asset value of our XRP holdings."

Q: What happens if the Business Combination is not consummated?

A: If SPAC does not complete the Business Combination for any reason, SPAC would search for another target business with which to complete an initial business combination. If SPAC does not complete an initial business combination within the Combination Period, SPAC will, in accordance with the SPAC Charter, (i) cease all operations except for the purpose of winding up, (ii) as promptly as reasonably possible but not more than 10 Business Days thereafter, subject to lawfully available funds, redeem the Public Shares, at a per-share price, payable in cash, equal to the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account, including interest earned on the funds held in the Trust Account (which interest shall be net of taxes payable and up to $100,000 of interest to pay dissolution expenses), divided by the number of then issued and outstanding Public Shares, which redemption will completely extinguish Public Shareholders' rights as shareholders (including the right to receive further liquidating distributions, if any), subject to applicable law, and (iii) as promptly as reasonably possible following such redemption, subject to the approval of SPAC's remaining shareholders and directors, liquidate and dissolve, subject in each case to SPAC's obligations under Cayman Islands law to provide for claims of creditors and subject to the other requirements of applicable law. There will be no liquidating distributions with respect to the SPAC Public Warrants, which will expire worthless in the event of SPAC's winding up.

Q: When do you expect the Transactions to be completed?

A: It is currently expected that the Transactions will be consummated in the second quarter of 2026. This date depends, among other things, on the approval of the proposals to be put to SPAC shareholders at the Extraordinary General Meeting and on the timely completion of required regulatory and stock exchange processes (including SEC review and clearance of the proxy statement/prospectus and any related filings). A lapse in U.S. federal appropriations or similar government shutdowns, including at the SEC, could suspend or significantly slow the acceptance, review and/or clearance of filings, the issuance of SEC comments or the declaration of effectiveness, which could delay the Transactions beyond the expected time frame.

In addition, the Extraordinary General Meeting could be adjourned if the Adjournment Proposal is adopted by SPAC's shareholders at the Extraordinary General Meeting and SPAC elects to adjourn the Extraordinary General Meeting to a later date or dates, if necessary or desirable. If the Adjournment Proposal is not approved, and a quorum is present, the SPAC Board will not have the ability to adjourn the Extraordinary General Meeting to a later date in order to solicit further votes or take other steps to cause the conditions to the Transactions to be satisfied, for example. Pursuant to the SPAC Charter, the SPAC Board will have the ability to postpone the Extraordinary General Meeting if, after notice for the Extraordinary General Meeting is given and before the Extraordinary General Meeting is held, in their absolute discretion, the SPAC Board considers that it is impractical or undesirable for any reason to hold the Extraordinary General Meeting at the place, the day and the hour specified in the notice for the Extraordinary General Meeting. In such event, the SPAC Board may postpone the Extraordinary General Meeting to another place, day and/or hour provided that notice of the place, the day and the hour of the postponed Extraordinary General Meeting is promptly given to all SPAC shareholders. No business shall be transacted at any postponed meeting other than the business specified in the notice for the Extraordinary General Meeting. For a description of the conditions for the completion of the Transactions, see "The Business Combination Proposal."

Q: When and where is the Extraordinary General Meeting?

A: The Extraordinary General Meeting will be held on September 30, 2026, at 12:00 p.m. Eastern Time, virtually at https://www.cstproxy.com/armadaacqii/2026. For the purposes of Cayman Islands law and the SPAC Charter, the physical place of the meeting will be at 701 5th Ave #5100, Seattle, WA 98104. There is no requirement to attend the Extraordinary General Meeting in person at the physical place of the meeting in order to vote, and SPAC encourages virtual participation. Shareholders will be afforded the same rights and opportunities to vote, ask questions and participate as they would at an in-person Extraordinary General Meeting. In particular, shareholders may submit questions in advance of the Extraordinary General Meeting by following the instructions and rules of conduct on the Extraordinary General Meeting website. You can participate in the Extraordinary General Meeting and vote via live webcast by visiting https://www.cstproxy.com/armadaacqii/2026.

Q: Can I attend the Extraordinary General Meeting in person at the physical place of the meeting?

A: Yes. For the purposes of Cayman Islands law and the SPAC Charter, the physical place of the meeting will be at 701 5th Ave #5100, Seattle, WA 98104. There is no requirement to attend the Extraordinary General Meeting in person at the physical place of the meeting in order to vote, and SPAC encourages virtual participation.

Q: What else do I need to do now?

A: We urge you to read this proxy statement/prospectus, including the Annexes and the documents referred to herein, carefully and in their entirety and to consider how the Transactions will affect you as a shareholder. Whether or not you plan to attend the Extraordinary General Meeting, please then submit your proxy as soon as possible in accordance with the instructions provided in this proxy statement/prospectus and on the enclosed proxy card to make sure that your shares are represented and voted at the Extraordinary General Meeting.

Q: How do I vote?

A: If you are a holder of record of SPAC Common Shares on the Record Date for the Extraordinary General Meeting, you may vote in person (including virtually) at the Extraordinary General Meeting or by submitting a proxy for the Extraordinary General Meeting, as described in further detail below. You may submit your proxy by completing, signing, dating and returning the enclosed proxy card in the accompanying pre-addressed postage-paid envelope. If you hold your shares in "street name," which means your shares are held of record by a broker, bank or nominee, you should contact your broker, bank or nominee to ensure that votes related to the shares you beneficially own are properly counted. In this regard, you must provide the broker, bank or nominee with instructions on how to vote your shares or, if you wish to attend the Extraordinary General Meeting and vote in person (including virtually), obtain a valid legal proxy from your broker, bank or nominee.

There are three ways to vote your SPAC Common Shares:

- By submitting your proxy card before the Extraordinary General Meeting. If you vote by proxy card, your "proxy," whose name is listed on the proxy card, will vote your shares as you instruct on the proxy card. You may submit your proxy card in any of the following ways:
  - Mail: SPAC shareholders of record may submit their proxy by properly completing, signing, dating and mailing their proxy card in the self-addressed, stamped envelope (if mailed in the United States) included with this proxy statement/prospectus. If you sign, date and return the proxy card without indicating how you wish to vote, your shares will be voted as recommended by the SPAC Board—"FOR" the Business Combination Proposal, "FOR" the Merger Proposal, (for holders of SPAC Class B Shares only) "FOR" the Domestication Proposal, "FOR" the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals, "FOR" the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals, and "FOR" the Adjournment Proposal, in each case, if presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting. Your proxy card must be received by SPAC not less than 48 hours before the scheduled time of the Extraordinary General Meeting or any adjournment thereof at which the person named in the proxy card proposes to vote. Proxy cards received after this time may not be counted.
  - Internet: SPAC shareholders of record may submit their proxy over the internet at https://www.cstproxy.com/armadaacqii/2026. Internet voting is available 24 hours a day and will be accessible until 11:59 p.m., on September 29, 2026. SPAC shareholders will be given an opportunity to confirm that their voting instructions have been properly recorded. SPAC shareholders who submit a proxy this way need not send in their proxy card.
- You can attend the Extraordinary General Meeting at the physical meeting location and vote in person. You will receive a ballot when you arrive. However, if your SPAC Common Shares are held in the name of your broker, bank or another nominee, you must get a valid legal proxy from the broker, bank or other nominee. That is the only way SPAC can be certain that the broker, bank or nominee has not already voted your shares.
- You can attend the Extraordinary General Meeting online and vote electronically. You may attend, vote and examine the list of shareholders entitled to vote at the Extraordinary General Meeting by visiting https://www.cstproxy.com/armadaacqii/2026 and entering the control number found on your proxy card.

Q: If my shares are held in "street name," will my broker, bank or nominee automatically vote my shares for me?

A: If your shares are held in "street name" in a stock brokerage account or by a broker, bank or other nominee, you must provide the record holder of your shares with instructions on how to vote your shares. Please follow the voting instructions provided by your broker, bank or other nominee. Please note that you may not vote shares held in "street name" by returning a proxy card directly to SPAC or by voting online at the Extraordinary General Meeting unless you provide a "legal proxy," which you must obtain from your broker, bank or other nominee.

Under the rules of Nasdaq, brokers who hold shares in "street name" for a beneficial owner of those shares typically have the authority to vote in their discretion on "routine" proposals when they have not received instructions from beneficial owners. However, brokers are not permitted to exercise their voting discretion with respect to the approval of matters that the Nasdaq determines to be "non-routine" without specific instructions from the beneficial owner. It is expected that all proposals to be voted on at the Extraordinary General Meeting are "non-routine" proposals and therefore, SPAC does not expect there to be any broker non-votes at the Extraordinary General Meeting.

If you hold your SPAC shares in "street name" and you do not instruct your broker, bank or other nominee on how to vote your shares, your broker, bank or other nominee will not vote your shares on any proposal at the Extraordinary General Meeting. Accordingly, your bank, broker, or other nominee can vote your shares at the Extraordinary General Meeting only if you provide instructions on how to vote. You should instruct your broker to vote your shares as soon as possible in accordance with directions you provide.

Abstentions will be considered present for the purposes of establishing a quorum but, as a matter of Cayman Islands law, will not constitute votes cast at the Extraordinary General Meeting and therefore will have no effect on the approval of each of the proposals as a matter of Cayman Islands law.

Q: May I change my vote after I have mailed my signed proxy card?

A: Yes. Shareholders may send a later-dated, signed proxy card to SPAC at SPAC's address set forth below so that it is received by SPAC no less than 48 hours prior to the vote at the Extraordinary General Meeting (which is scheduled to take place on September 30, 2026) or attend the Extraordinary General Meeting in person (including virtually) and vote. Shareholders also may revoke their proxy by sending a notice of revocation to SPAC, which must be received by SPAC no less than 48 hours prior to the vote at the Extraordinary General Meeting. However, if your shares are held in "street name" by your broker, bank or another nominee, you must contact your broker, bank or other nominee to change your voting instructions.

Q: What will happen if I abstain from voting or fail to vote at the Extraordinary General Meeting?

A: If a shareholder fails to return a proxy card and does not attend the Extraordinary General Meeting in person, then the shareholder's shares will not be counted for purposes of determining whether a quorum is present at the Extraordinary General Meeting. If a valid quorum is established, any such failure to vote will have no effect on the outcome of any other proposal in this proxy statement. Abstentions will be counted in connection with the determination of whether a valid quorum is established but will not constitute votes cast at the Extraordinary General Meeting and therefore will have no effect on the approval of any of the proposals as a matter of Cayman Islands law.

Q: What will happen if I sign and return my proxy card without indicating how I wish to vote?

A: If you sign, date and return your proxy card without indicating how you wish to vote, your proxy will be voted "FOR" each of the proposals presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting. If you fail to return your proxy card or fail to instruct your bank, broker or other nominee how to vote, and do not attend the Extraordinary General Meeting in person (including virtually), the effect will be, among other things, that your shares will not be counted for purposes of determining whether a quorum is present at the Extraordinary General Meeting and will not be voted. If you are a shareholder of record and you attend the Extraordinary General Meeting and wish to vote in person (including virtually), you may withdraw your proxy and vote in person (including virtually).

Q: What happens if I fail to take any action with respect to the Extraordinary General Meeting?

A: If you fail to take any action with respect to the Extraordinary General Meeting and the Transactions are approved by shareholders and the Transactions are consummated, you will become a stockholder and warrant holder of Pubco. If you fail to take any action with respect to the Extraordinary General Meeting and the Transactions are not approved, you will remain a shareholder and warrant holder of SPAC. However, if you fail to vote with respect to the Extraordinary General Meeting but the Transactions are consummated, you will nonetheless be able to elect to have your Public Shares redeemed in connection with the Mergers, so long as you take the required steps in accordance with the SPAC Charter to elect to have your Public Shares redeemed at least two Business Days prior to the initially scheduled date of the Extraordinary General Meeting, unless the SPAC Board extends this deadline in accordance with the SPAC Charter.

Q: What should I do if I receive more than one set of voting materials?

A: Shareholders may receive more than one set of voting materials, including multiple copies of this proxy statement/prospectus and multiple proxy cards or voting instruction cards. For example, if you hold your shares in more than one brokerage account, you will receive a separate voting instruction card for each brokerage account in which you hold shares. If you are a holder of record and your shares are registered in more than one name, you will receive more than one proxy card. Please complete, sign, date and return each proxy card and voting instruction card that you receive in order to cast a vote with respect to all of your SPAC Common Shares.

Q: Who will solicit and pay the cost of soliciting proxies?

A: SPAC will pay the cost of soliciting proxies for the Extraordinary General Meeting. SPAC has engaged Georgeson LLC to assist in the solicitation of proxies for the Extraordinary General Meeting. SPAC has agreed to pay Georgeson LLC a fee of $20,000, plus disbursements. SPAC will also reimburse banks, brokers and other custodians, nominees and fiduciaries representing beneficial owners of SPAC Class A Shares for their expenses in forwarding soliciting materials to beneficial owners of SPAC Class A Shares and in obtaining voting instructions from those owners. SPAC's directors and officers may also solicit proxies by telephone, by facsimile, by mail, on the Internet or in person. They will not be paid any additional amounts for soliciting proxies.

Q: Who can help answer my questions?

A: If you have questions about the Transactions or if you need additional copies of the proxy statement/prospectus or the enclosed proxy card, you should contact:

Email: armada@georgeson.com

You also may obtain additional information about SPAC from documents filed with the SEC by following the instructions in the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Where You Can Find More Information." If you are a holder of Public Shares and you intend to seek redemption, you will need to deliver the certificates for your Public Shares (if any) or SPAC Public Warrants (if any), as applicable, along with the redemption forms (either physically or electronically) to the Transfer Agent/Warrant Agent, at the address below prior to the Extraordinary General Meeting. Holders must complete the procedures for electing to have their Public Shares or SPAC Public Warrants redeemed in the manner described above and in accordance with the SPAC Charter or the Warrant Agreement, as applicable, prior to 5:00 p.m., Eastern Time, on September 28, 2026 (two Business Days prior to the initially scheduled date of the Extraordinary General Meeting), or any later time and/or date specified by the SPAC Board in accordance with the SPAC Charter in order to properly exercise their redemption rights. If you have questions regarding the certification of your position or delivery of your share or warrant certificates (if any) along with the redemption forms, please contact:

SUMMARY OF THE PROXY STATEMENT/PROSPECTUS

This summary highlights selected information from this proxy statement/prospectus and does not contain all the information that is important to you. You should carefully read this entire proxy statement/prospectus, including the Business Combination Agreement attached as Annex A to this proxy statement/prospectus as well as the other Annexes attached to the proxy statement/prospectus.

The Parties

SPAC

SPAC is a blank check company incorporated in the Cayman Islands as an exempted company on October 3, 2024. SPAC was incorporated for the purpose of effecting a merger, share exchange, asset acquisition, share purchase, reorganization or similar business combination with one or more businesses or entities. SPAC Class A Shares are currently listed on the Nasdaq Global Market under the symbol "XRPN."

On May 22, 2025, SPAC completed its IPO of 23,000,000 SPAC Units, each comprising one SPAC Class A Share and one-half of one SPAC Public Warrant, generating gross proceeds to SPAC of $230,000,000. Simultaneously with the closing of the SPAC IPO, SPAC completed the private placement of 710,000 SPAC Units, generating gross proceeds to SPAC of $7,100,000. Following the closing of the SPAC IPO, a total of $231,150,000 of the net proceeds (including the underwriter's deferred discount of up to $4,600,000) was placed in the Trust Account, composed of the net proceeds from the SPAC IPO and a portion of the proceeds from the private placement. As of August 20, 2026, the Trust Account balance was approximately $241.9 million.

Since the SPAC IPO, SPAC's activity has been limited to efforts toward locating and completing a suitable business combination. On August 12, 2025, SPAC entered into a Sponsor Securities Purchase Agreement (the "Purchase Agreement") with the Sponsor and Armada Sponsor II, LLC (the "Original Sponsor"), pursuant to which the Original Sponsor agreed to sell to the Sponsor, and the Sponsor agreed to purchase from the Original Sponsor, an aggregate of 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares, and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants for an aggregate purchase price of $6,600,000 (such transaction, the "New Sponsor Purchase") and the Sponsor received a limited, revocable license to the Armada Acquisition Corp. II branding for a period of time that expires not later than November 22, 2026 (unless the termination date of the Company is extended to a later date). On August 28, 2025, the New Sponsor Purchase was completed pursuant to the terms of the Purchase Agreement, and the Sponsor owns all of the equity interests of SPAC held by the Original Sponsor.

Following the closing of this transaction, the Sponsor owns all of the equity interests of SPAC held by the Original Sponsor, including 100% of the SPAC Class B Shares, and has the power to appoint all members of the SPAC Board.

The mailing address of SPAC's principal executive office is 382 NE 191st St., Suite 602, Miami, FL 33179-3899, and its telephone number is (212) 543-6886. In connection with the consummation of the Business Combination, SPAC Merger Sub will merge with and into SPAC. Upon completion of the SPAC Merger, SPAC will continue its existence as a wholly owned subsidiary of Pubco, and the separate existence of SPAC will cease.

Pubco

Pubco was incorporated under the laws of Nevada on August 29, 2025, solely for the purpose of effectuating the Transactions described herein. Upon incorporation, one share of common stock was issued to Ripple for nominal consideration. This share represents all shares in the capital of Pubco that are currently issued. Pubco currently owns no material assets and does not presently operate any business. Immediately following the Closing, Pubco will engage in the business of, through its ownership of the Company, holding a strategic treasury reserve comprising XRP and performing certain other activities within the XRP ecosystem.

Prior to the consummation of the Business Combination, the sole director of Pubco is Asheesh Birla and the sole shareholder of Pubco is Ripple. The mailing address of Pubco's registered office is c/o The Corporation Trust Company, 701 S Carson St., Ste 200, Carson City, Nevada 89701 and its telephone number is (888) 528-2677. Immediately prior to the consummation of the Business Combination, Pubco's mailing address will be 600 Battery St., San Francisco, California 94111.

Following the consummation of the Closing, the Pubco Class A Common Stock is expected to be listed on Nasdaq under the ticker symbol "XRPN."

SPAC Merger Sub

SPAC Merger Sub was incorporated as a Delaware corporation on October 15, 2025, solely for the purpose of effectuating the Transactions described herein. SPAC Merger Sub has no material assets and does not operate any business. Prior to the consummation of the Business Combination, the sole director of SPAC Merger Sub is Asheesh Birla, and the sole shareholder of SPAC Merger Sub is Pubco. In connection with the consummation of the Business Combination, SPAC Merger Sub will merge with and into SPAC, with SPAC continuing as the SPAC Surviving Subsidiary, and with SPAC shareholders receiving shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock in accordance with the Business Combination Agreement.

Company Merger Sub

Company Merger Sub was incorporated in Delaware on October 15, 2025, solely for the purpose of effectuating the Transactions. Company Merger Sub is a wholly owned subsidiary of Pubco. Company Merger Sub owns no material assets and does not operate any business. The address and telephone number for Company Merger Sub are the same as those for the Company.

The Company

The Company is a newly formed company that will be engaged in the business of holding a strategic treasury reserve comprising XRP and performing certain other activities within the XRP ecosystem. The Company was formed on July 18, 2025, as a Delaware limited liability company. The Company's sole material asset is XRP that was acquired in connection with the Transactions. As of the date hereof, the sole member of the Company is Ripple. In connection with the consummation of the Business Combination, Company Merger Sub will merge with and into the Company, with the Company continuing as the surviving company and with Ripple receiving shares of Pubco Stock, in each case in accordance with the Business Combination Agreement.

The registered office of the Company is c/o The Corporation Trust Company, Corporation Trust Center, 1209 Orange Street, City of Wilmington, County of New Castle, Delaware 19801 and its telephone number is (888) 528-2677.

The Transactions

The Business Combination Agreement

On October 19, 2025, SPAC, Pubco, the Company, the Merger Subs and Ripple entered into the Business Combination Agreement, pursuant to which, following the SPAC Domestication and upon Closing, (a) Company Merger Sub will merge with and into the Company, with the Company continuing as the surviving company, with holders of Company Units receiving one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each Company Unit, subject to certain reductions and other limitations imposed on the Contributor Related as set forth in the Business Combination Agreement, and (b) simultaneously with the Company Merger, SPAC Merger Sub will merge with and into SPAC Delaware, with SPAC Delaware continuing as the surviving entity, with (x) stockholders of SPAC Delaware receiving one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each SPAC Class A Share held by such stockholder and (y) warrantholders of SPAC Delaware receiving one warrant to purchase one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each warrant to purchase one SPAC Class A Share held by such warrantholders, in accordance with the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Business Combination Agreement. For more information about the Business Combination Agreement, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—The Business Combination Agreement." A copy of the Business Combination Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex A.

On August 12, 2026, SPAC, Pubco, the Company, SPAC Merger Sub, Company Merger Sub and Ripple entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Business Combination Agreement for purposes of proposing certain changes to Pubco's amended and restated articles of incorporation, with such changes to be adopted by Pubco and to take effect upon the Closing.

The Sponsor Support Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, SPAC entered into the Sponsor Support Agreement, pursuant to which, among other things, the Sponsor agreed to (a) vote its SPAC Common Shares in favor of the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions and each of the proposals to be approved by SPAC shareholders at the Extraordinary General Meeting, (b) vote its SPAC Common Shares against (i) any Acquisition Proposal or Alternative Transaction, (ii) any merger, consolidation, combination, sale of substantial assets, reorganization, recapitalization, dissolution, liquidation or winding up of or by SPAC (other than the Transactions), (iii) any change in the business of SPAC, and (iv) any proposal, action or agreement involving SPAC that would or would reasonably be expected to impede, frustrate, prevent or nullify the Business Combination Agreement or any Ancillary Agreement, (c) during the Interim Period, comply with the restrictions imposed by the Insider Letter, including the restrictions on redeeming SPAC Common Shares in connection with the Transactions and complying with the transfer restrictions with respect to its SPAC Common Shares and SPAC Private Warrants, (d) subject to and conditioned upon the Closing, waive any anti-dilution rights in connection with the Transactions that would otherwise result in the SPAC Class B Shares converting into SPAC Class A Shares on a greater than one-for-one basis, (e) subject to and conditioned upon the Closing, effective as of the Closing, waive and forever discharge all Claims (as defined below) against the SPAC, Pubco, the Company and each of their respective and each of its and their past and present directors, officers, employees, agents, predecessors, successors, assigns, Affiliates and Subsidiaries, provided that nothing releases, waives or discharges any claim for fraud or the specific categories of claims expressly preserved in the Sponsor Support Agreement (including claims under the Sponsor Support Agreement or any other Ancillary Agreement, rights to receive Pubco securities thereunder, and indemnification rights) and (f) immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit for no consideration 120,000 SPAC Class A Shares, 2,364,000 SPAC Class B Shares and 60,000 SPAC Private Warrants.

On August 12, 2026, SPAC, Pubco and Sponsor entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Sponsor Support Agreement for purposes of adjusting the number of SPAC Class A Shares, SPAC Class B Shares and Private Placement Warrants that will be forfeited by Sponsor at the Company Merger Effective Time. Specifically, Amendment No. 1 to the Sponsor Support Agreement provides that Sponsor will forfeit to SPAC for cancellation and for no consideration the Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares, the Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares and the Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants.

For the purposes of the preceding paragraph, "Claims" mean all past or present claims, demands, damages, debts, judgments, causes of action and liabilities of any nature whatsoever, whether or not known, suspected or claimed, arising directly or indirectly from any act, omission, event or transaction occurring (or any circumstances existing) at or prior to the Closing.

For more information about the Sponsor Support Agreement, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Other Transaction Agreements—Sponsor Support Agreement." A copy of the Sponsor Support Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex J.

Contribution Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Ripple, Pubco and the Company entered into the Contribution Agreement, pursuant to which Ripple contributed to the Company 126,791,458 XRP tokens in a private placement, in exchange for the Contributor Subscribed Units equal to the sum of (a) the Contributor Initial Subscribed Units and (b) the Contributor Adjustment Units, if any. For more information about the Contribution Agreement, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Other Transaction Agreements—Contribution Agreement." A copy of the Contribution Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex K.

On August 12, 2026, Ripple, Pubco and the Company entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Contribution Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Contributor Subscribed Units. The amendment subjects the initial unit calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-unit adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. A copy of Amendment No. 1 to the Contribution Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex W.

Advance Funding Subscription Agreements

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into Advance Funding Subscription Agreements with certain Advance Funding Subscribers, pursuant to which the Advance Funding Subscribers agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, the Advance Funding Shares for $214.05 million in cash and a contribution of 600,000 XRP tokens in a private placement, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and each Advance Funding Subscriber entered into Amendment No. 1 to the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Advance Funding Shares. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial share calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-share adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. Under the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, as amended, each Advance Funding Subscriber will receive a number of Advance Funding Shares at the closing of the Advance Funding equal to the sum of (a) the Advance Funding Initial Subscribed Shares and (b) the Advance Funding Adjustment Shares, if any. The closing of each Advance Funding Subscription is conditioned on the satisfaction or waiver by each such Advance Funding Subscriber of the additional condition that, on the date of each such agreement, no other Advance Funding Subscription Agreement (or other agreements or understandings (including side letters) entered into in connection therewith or in connection with the sale of the other Advance Funding Shares) shall have been amended, modified or waived in any manner that benefits any other Advance Funding Subscriber unless such Advance Funding Subscriber shall have been offered in writing the same benefits (other than terms particular to the legal or regulatory requirements of such other Advance Funding Subscriber or its affiliates or related persons).

In addition to the changes reflected by Amendment No. 1 above, on August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and each of the SBI Stockholders further amended the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreements. The purpose of each SBI Entity Amendment is to apply a 39.9% ownership limitation to the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable in respect of SBI's Advance Funding Subscription. At the Transaction

Closing, Pubco will issue in respect of SBI's subscription (i) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would cause the Subscriber Group Ownership Percentage (as defined in the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreement, as amended) to equal 39.9% and (ii) the balance of the Subscribed Shares as shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock. This allocation will not change the aggregate number of Subscribed Shares, the aggregate Subscription Price or the Per Share Price, which will be identical for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock. The shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock will be convertible into shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock in accordance with the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter.

Prior to the execution of the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, Pubco established the necessary custodial arrangements for both cash and XRP contributions, including entering into cash and digital asset custody agreements with third-party custodians and liquidity providers. Each Advance Funding Subscriber was required to fund its subscription amount either (i) in cash, by wire transfer of U.S. dollars to a segregated cash custody account maintained for the benefit of Pubco, or (ii) in XRP, by transfer to a designated digital wallet maintained with an independent XRP custodian. Following receipt of any cash Advance Funding Subscription proceeds, Pubco, on behalf of the Advance Funding Subscribers, instructed its cash custodian to transfer such proceeds (net of customary transaction and network fees) to its XRP custodian for use in purchasing XRP at then-prevailing market prices from one or more liquidity providers. In aggregate, the Company purchased 84,365,876.3625 XRP tokens with the cash proceeds from the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements. Such purchased XRP, together with any XRP originally contributed by the Private Placement Investors, are being held in escrow in an unencumbered digital custody wallet maintained in the name of Pubco but for the benefit of all such Private Placement Investors, pending completion of the Business Combination.

After giving effect to the Pubco Warrants, and assuming No Redemptions and, among other things, that neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, that all Private Placement Investors fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, that Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, that the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, that the Closing XRP Price is $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026), that no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the Incentive Plan, and neither Ripple nor the Sponsor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market, the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements are expected to result in dilution to Public Shareholders of approximately 0.8 percentage points with respect to their ownership of Pubco Class A Common Stock (35.9% as compared to 36.7% without giving effect to the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements), approximately 0.3 percentage points with respect to their ownership of total Pubco common stock 26.3% as compared to 26.6%), and approximately 0.1 percentage points with respect to their ownership of the total combined equity interests of Pubco and the Company on a fully diluted basis (14.1% as compared to 14.2%).

For more information about the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Advance Funding Subscription Agreements." Copies of the forms of Advance Funding Subscription Agreements are attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex M and Annex N. Copies of Amendments No. 1 to the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements are attached to this proxy statement/ prospectus as Annex X and Annex Y, respectively.

Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements with the Delayed Funding Subscribers, pursuant to which the Delayed Funding Subscribers agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, the Delayed Funding Shares for $10.5 million in cash and a contribution of 200,000 XRP tokens, in a private placement, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. Delayed Funding Subscribers will receive a number of Delayed Funding Shares at the closing of the Delayed Funding equal to the quotient of

(i) the Delayed Funding Subscription Price and (ii) $10.00. The closing of each Delayed Funding Subscription is conditioned on, among other things, the satisfaction or waiver of all closing conditions to the consummation of the Business Combination and; the Delayed Funding Subscribers' consent to any amendments, modifications or waivers to the terms of the Business Combination Agreement that would reasonably be expected to materially and adversely affect the economic benefits to the Delayed Funding Subscribers.

After giving effect to the Pubco Warrants, and assuming No Redemptions and, among other things, that neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, that all Private Placement Investors fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, that Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, that the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, that the Closing XRP Price is $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026), that no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the Incentive Plan, and neither Ripple nor the Sponsor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market, the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements are expected to result in dilution to Public Shareholders of approximately 0.4 percentage points with respect to their ownership of Pubco Class A Common Stock (35.9% as compared to 36.3% without giving effect to the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements), approximately 0.1 percentage points with respect to their ownership of total Pubco common stock (26.3% as compared to 26.4%), and approximately 0.1 percentage points with respect to their ownership of the total combined equity interests of Pubco and the Company on a fully diluted basis (14.1% as compared to 14.2%).

For more information about the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements." Copies of the forms of Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements are attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex O and Annex P.

Series C Subscription Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into the Series C Subscription Agreement with the Sponsor, pursuant to which the Sponsor agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, Series C Subscribed Shares for 211,319,096.061435 XRP tokens, in a PIPE, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and the Sponsor entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Series C Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Series C Subscribed Shares. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial share calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-share adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. The Sponsor will receive (i) a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would result in the Series C DQ Persons owning, immediately after the Transaction Closing and the other related transactions, a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would cause the Series C DQ Persons to be the beneficial owners (as defined in Rule 13d-3 or 13d-5 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act"), or any successor statute or regulation) of capital stock of Pubco such that the Series C Attributed Ownership Percentage (as defined below) equals 19.9% and (ii) a number of shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock equal to the number of Series C Subscribed Shares minus the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issued to the Sponsor pursuant to clause (i). Under the Series C Subscription Agreement, as amended, the total Series C Subscribed Shares will equal the sum of (a) the Series C Initial Subscribed Shares and (b) the Series C Adjustment Shares, if any.

The Sponsor was required to transfer its subscription amount in XRP to a digital wallet designated by Pubco and maintained with an independent XRP custodian. Prior to executing the Series C Subscription Agreement, Pubco put in place the necessary custodial arrangements for the Sponsor's XRP contribution, including entering into a digital asset custody agreement with a third-party custodian.

The closing of the Series C Subscription Agreement is conditioned on the satisfaction or waiver by Sponsor of the additional condition that, on the date of such agreement, no other Private Placement Subscription Agreement (or other agreements or understandings (including side letters) entered into in connection therewith or in connection with the sale of the other Private Placement Equity Interests) shall have been amended, modified or waived in any manner that benefits any other Private Placement Investors with respect to the economic terms governing the purchase and sale of such other Private Placement Equity Interests unless Sponsor shall have been offered in writing the same economic benefits; provided, however, that such condition shall not apply to (i) any allocation of the Series C Subscribed Shares between Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock (including the ownership-limit mechanics and related calculations set forth in the Series C Subscription Agreement, so long as the aggregate Series C Subscription Price and the per share price thereof are identical, (ii) any differences between the rights of any shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock and the rights of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, (iii) any terms that are particular to the legal, regulatory, tax or policy requirements of any other Private Placement Investor or its affiliates or (iv) matters that do not impact the economic terms of the purchase and sale of the Series C Subscribed Shares.

After giving effect to the Pubco Warrants, and assuming No Redemptions and, among other things, that neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, that all Private Placement Investors fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, that Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, that the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, that the Closing XRP Price is $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026), that no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the Incentive Plan, and neither Ripple nor the Sponsor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market, the Series C Subscription Agreement is expected to result in no dilution to Public Shareholders with respect to their ownership of Pubco Class A Common Stock , approximately 4.1 percentage points with respect to their ownership of total Pubco common stock (26.3% as compared to 30.4%), and approximately 1.1 percentage points with respect to their ownership of the total combined equity interests of Pubco and the Company on a fully diluted basis (14.1% as compared to 15.2%).

For more information about the Series C Subscription Agreement, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Series C Subscription Agreement." A copy of the Series C Subscription Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex L. A copy of Amendment No. 1 to the Series C Subscription Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex Z.

Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement with the Contributor Related Party Entity, pursuant to which the Contributor Related Party Entity purchased and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests for 50 million XRP tokens in a private placement, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and the Contributor Related Party Entity entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial equity-interest calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-equity-interest adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. The Contributor Related Party Entity will not receive a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would result in the Contributor Group Holders collectively owning, immediately after the Transaction Closing and the other related transactions, a number of shares that would cause the Contributor Group Ownership Percentage (as defined below) to exceed 9.9% and, to the extent the number of shares issued to the Contributor Group Holders is reduced as a result of the foregoing, the Contributor Related Party Entity will receive a number of Company Units equal to the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests minus the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Shares. Under the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, as amended, the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests will equal the sum of (a) the Contributor Related Party Entity Initial Subscribed Equity Interests and (b) the Contributor Related Party Entity Adjustment Equity Interests, if any. Prior to and effective upon closing, Pubco, Ripple and the Contributor Related Party Entity will enter into the Company A&R LLCA.

The Contributor Related Party Entity was required to transfer its subscription amount in XRP to a digital wallet designated by Pubco and maintained with an independent XRP custodian. Prior to executing the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, Pubco and the Company put in place the necessary custodial arrangements for the Contributor Related Party Entity's XRP contribution, including entering into a digital asset custody agreement with a third-party custodian.

For more information about the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement." A copy of the form of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex Q. A copy of Amendment No. 1 to the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex AA.

Pursuant to the Private Placement Subscription Agreements, Pubco has agreed to use commercially reasonable efforts to file a registration statement registering the resale of the shares purchase by the Subscribers pursuant to the Private Placement Subscription Agreements (at Pubco's sole cost and expense) within 30 calendar days following the Closing Date and to use commercially reasonable efforts to have such registration statement declared effective as soon as practicable, and in any event no later than 75 calendar days after the Closing Date, subject to an extension in the event of SEC review.

Each Private Placement Subscription Agreement will terminate and be void and of no further force or effect upon the earliest to occur of (i) the termination of the Business Combination Agreement in accordance with its terms, (ii) the date that is twelve months from the date of each such Private Placement Subscription Agreement or (iii) the mutual written agreement of the parties thereto.

After giving effect to the Pubco Warrants, and assuming No Redemptions and, among other things, that neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, that all Private Placement Investors fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, that Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, that the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, that the Closing XRP Price is $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026), that no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the Incentive Plan, and neither Ripple nor the Sponsor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market, the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement is expected to result in no dilution to Public Shareholders with respect to their ownership of Pubco Class A Common Stock or total Pubco common stock, but is expected to result in dilution of approximately 0.4 percentage points with respect to their ownership of the total combined equity interests of Pubco and the Company on a fully diluted basis (14.1% as compared to 14.5%).

Pubco, the Company and SPAC may seek to raise additional funds through private placement transactions, including "PIPE" transactions, or other forms of capital raising. There can be no assurance as to whether, when or on what terms any such future financings may be conducted.

Domestication

As a condition to Closing, the SPAC Board has unanimously approved a change of SPAC's jurisdiction of incorporation by de-registering as an exempted company in the Cayman Islands and continuing and domesticating as a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware. In accordance with the Plan of Domestication, to effect the SPAC Domestication, SPAC will file an application to de-register with the Cayman Registrar, together with the necessary accompanying documents, and file the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation and a certificate of corporate domestication with the Secretary of State of the State of Delaware, under which SPAC will be domesticated and continue as a Delaware corporation. In connection with the SPAC Domestication and prior to the Business Combination, SPAC will be renamed Arrington Capital SPAC I Inc.

In connection with the SPAC Domestication: (i) each then issued and outstanding Class A ordinary share, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC shall convert automatically into one share of Class A common stock, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC Delaware; (ii) each then issued and outstanding Class B ordinary share, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC shall convert automatically into one share of Class B common stock, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC Delaware; (iii) each then issued and outstanding SPAC Warrant shall convert automatically into a warrant to acquire one share of Class A common stock, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC Delaware on the same terms as the SPAC Warrant; and (iv) each then issued and outstanding SPAC Unit shall convert automatically into one unit of SPAC Delaware that entitles the holder to one share of Class A common stock, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC Delaware and one-half of one SPAC Warrant of SPAC Delaware.

The Domestication Proposal, if approved, will authorize a change of SPAC's jurisdiction of incorporation from the Cayman Islands to the State of Delaware. Accordingly, while SPAC is currently governed by the Cayman Companies Act, upon the SPAC Domestication, SPAC Delaware will be governed by the DGCL. SPAC encourages shareholders to carefully consult the information set out below under "—Comparison of Shareholder Rights under Applicable Corporate Law Before and After Domestication."

Lock-Up Agreements

Concurrently with the Closing, Ripple, the Contributor Related Party Entity, the Sponsor, the SPAC and certain Ripple Affiliate Investors (as defined in the Business Combination Agreement) will enter into lock-up agreements (the "Lock-Up Agreements") with Pubco, pursuant to which such parties will agree that shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants received by them in connection with the Transactions, and any shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon the exercise of Pubco Warrants or the conversion or exchange of Pubco Class C Common Stock or Company Units (the "Restricted Securities"), will be locked-up and subject to transfer restrictions, as described below, subject to certain exceptions. Excluding the impact of Pubco Warrants, 14,125,086 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (assuming no Redemptions by Public Shareholders), 11,684,203 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (assuming 25% Redemptions by Public Shareholders), 9,243,320 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (assuming 50% Redemptions by Public Shareholders), 6,802,437 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (assuming 75% Redemptions by Public Shareholders) or 1,665,676 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (assuming 100% Redemptions by Public Shareholders), in each case representing approximately 29.8% of the outstanding shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, will be subject to the lock-up and transfer restrictions described below, subject to certain exceptions. The Restricted Securities will be locked up until the earlier of (a) the Anniversary Release; and (b) the date on which Pubco consummates a liquidation, merger, capital stock exchange, reorganization or other similar transaction after the Closing which results in all of Pubco's stockholders having the right to exchange their shares of Pubco common stock for cash, securities or other property. The Lock-Up Agreements include customary exceptions to the transfer restrictions, including transfers to affiliates, family members, charitable organizations, and in connection with certain tax or estate planning transactions, provided that the transferee agrees to be bound by the same restrictions for the remainder of the lock-up period. For more information about the Lock-Up Agreements, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Other Transaction Agreements—Lock-Up Agreements." A copy of the form of Lock-Up Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex G.

Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement

Concurrently with the Closing, SPAC, Pubco, the Sponsor and certain securityholders listed therein will enter into the Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement ("A&R Registration Rights Agreement") that will amend and restate the registration rights agreement entered into by SPAC, the Sponsor and certain other securityholders thereto at the time of the SPAC IPO. For more information about the A&R Registration Rights Agreement, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Other Transaction Agreements—Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement." A copy of the form of A&R Registration Rights Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex E.

Pubco estimates that up to an aggregate of approximately 39,426,545 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, consisting of (i) 9,432,524 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding 15,120,318 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon conversion of Pubco Class C Common Stock, and 61,607 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon exercise of warrants, in each case held by Sponsor, (ii) 155,000 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon exercise of warrants held by certain SPAC shareholders, (iii) 3,365,416 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by Contributor, (iv) 1,327,146 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by the Contributor Related Party Entity, (v) 9,481,664 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by the Advance Funding Subscribers, and (vi) 482,870 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by the Delayed Funding Subscribers, will be subject to registration rights following the Transactions and the consummation of the Private Placement Investments, assuming, among other things, that neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, that no Public Shareholders exercise redemption rights with respect to their Public Shares upon completion of the Transactions, that all Private Placement Investors fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, that Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, that the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, that the Closing XRP Price is $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026), that no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the Incentive Plan, and neither Ripple nor any Private Placement Investor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market.

Tax Receivable Agreement

Concurrently with the Closing, Pubco, the Company and the TRA Parties will enter into a tax receivable agreement (the "Tax Receivable Agreement"), which will provide for, among other things, payment by Pubco to the TRA Parties of 85% of the U.S. federal, state and local income tax savings realized or deemed to be realized by Pubco as a result of the increases in tax basis and certain other tax benefits related to the exchange of units of the Company Surviving Subsidiary for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (as more fully described in the Tax Receivable Agreement). For more information about the Tax Receivable Agreement, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Other Transaction Agreements—Tax Receivable Agreement." A copy of the form of Tax Receivable Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex R.

Although the Tax Receivable Agreement will be entered into in connection with the consummation of the Business Combination, no liability has been recorded related to the Tax Receivable Agreement in the unaudited pro forma condensed combined balance sheet. As of the pro forma balance sheet date, no payment obligation under the Tax Receivable Agreement has been triggered, and the Business Combination, in and of itself, does not give rise to an obligation to make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement.

Payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement would arise upon the future realization of certain tax benefits in connection with or related to subsequent exchanges of units of the Company Surviving Subsidiary for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and upon certain other triggering events (as more fully described in the Tax Receivable Agreement). Management has determined that no such triggering events have occurred as of the pro forma balance sheet date and that any future payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement are not considered probable. Accordingly, no liability related to the Tax Receivable Agreement is reflected in the unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information.

Evernorth Holdings Inc. 2026 Omnibus Incentive Plan

Prior to the consummation of the Mergers, Pubco will approve and adopt the Incentive Plan, subject to approval by Pubco's stockholders prior to the Closing. For more information about the Incentive Plan, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Other Transaction Agreements—Evernorth Holdings Inc. 2026 Omnibus Incentive Plan." A copy of the Incentive Plan is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex S.

Evernorth Holdings Inc. 2026 Employee Stock Purchase Plan

Prior to the consummation of the Mergers, Pubco will approve and adopt the ESPP, subject to approval by Pubco's stockholders prior to the Closing. For more information about the ESPP, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Other Transaction Agreements—Evernorth Holdings Inc. 2026 Employee Stock Purchase Plan." A copy of the ESPP is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex T.

Merger Consideration

As consideration for the Company Merger:

(1) Ripple will be entitled to receive one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each Company Unit held by Ripple immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, subject to certain limitations imposed on the Contributor Group Holders; and

(2) All of the Company Merger Sub Units (as defined in the Business Combination Agreement) issued and outstanding immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time will be converted into a number of units of the Company Surviving Subsidiary equal to the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock immediately following the Company Merger Effective Time.

By virtue of the SPAC Merger:

(1) each issued and outstanding SPAC Class A Share (other than (x) treasury shares and (y) shares of holders of SPAC Class A Shares who have exercised their rights of redemption) will be automatically converted into one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock; and

(2) each issued and outstanding SPAC Class B Share (other than treasury shares) will be automatically converted into one SPAC Class A Share in accordance with the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation.

Ownership of Pubco After the Transactions

The following tables illustrate varying ownership levels in Pubco immediately after completion of the Transactions based on varying levels of redemptions by the Public Shareholders and based on the assumptions noted. The tables and associated discussion all assume that (a) neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, (b) Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, (c) all Private Placement Investors fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, (d) the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, (e) no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the Incentive Plan, and (f) neither Ripple nor the Sponsor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market. Should one or more of the assumptions prove incorrect, actual ownership percentages may vary materially from those described in this proxy statement/prospectus as anticipated, believed, estimated, expected or intended.

The two tables below illustrate varying beneficial ownership levels in Pubco immediately upon the Closing, assuming No Redemptions by Public Shareholders, 25% Redemptions by Public Shareholders (5,750,000 Public Shares are redeemed), 50% Redemptions by Public Shareholders (11,500,000 Public Shares are redeemed), 75% Redemptions by Public Shareholders (17,250,000 Public Shares are redeemed) and 100% Redemptions by Public Shareholders (23,000,000 Public Shares are redeemed). In addition to the assumptions above, the two tables below assume a Closing

XRP Price of $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026). The first table below excludes the impact of Pubco Warrants, and the second table includes the impact of Pubco Warrants.

75% Redemptions and Maximum Redemptions, respectively. Pursuant to that certain letter agreement dated October 17, 2025 by and between RippleWorks and the Sponsor, RippleWorks has the right to consult with the Sponsor regarding the disposition of shares of Pubco Stock purchased with the RippleWorks Investment and to direct the voting of such shares.

(3) Excludes 140,000 Pubco Warrants held by Sponsor.

Dilution

Dilution per share to Public Shareholders is determined by SPAC's NTBV per share, as adjusted, while excluding the Transactions, while giving effect to material probable or consummated transactions and other material effects on NTBV per share, from the Public Shareholders as set forth as follows under five redemption scenarios.

The following tables illustrate NTBV per share and the change in NTBV per share, as adjusted, following the Closing and giving effect to probable or consummated transactions that are material and other material effects on NTBV per share. These are presented in relation to the offering price per Public Share in the SPAC IPO as set forth as follows under the five redemption scenarios:

	Assuming No Redemptions	Assuming 25% Redemptions	Assuming 50% Redemptions	Assuming 75% Redemptions	Assuming Maximum Redemptions

(1) NTBV is calculated as total assets minus total liabilities and SPAC Class A Shares subject to redemption as of June 30, 2026, as adjusted.

(2) NTBV is adjusted for (i) reclassification of unredeemed shares to permanent equity at different levels of redemptions to Public Shareholders at the $10.49 per share redemption price as of June 30, 2026 and (ii) transaction costs that have not been recorded on SPAC's financial statements as of June 30, 2026, which will have an impact on the calculation of NTBV upon the Closing.

(3) Dilution is calculated by subtracting the NTBV per share as of June 30, 2026, as adjusted, from the $10.00 SPAC IPO per share price for the Public Shares.

(4) Reflects the reduction of underwriting fee liability due to redemptions. Also includes the expense reimbursement from underwriters for up to $2,300,000, which such amount is decreased by $0.10 for every SPAC Common Share for which a SPAC public shareholder exercises its redemption right pursuant to the letter agreement SPAC entered into with CCM and Northland, as representatives of the underwriters from the IPO on September 9, 2025.

(5) Based on the assets held in the Trust Account as of June 30, 2026 of $241,164,305 and assuming a redemption price of $10.49 per share, which was the approximate per share redemption price as of June 30, 2026.

(6) Consists of SPAC Class B Shares held by the Sponsor. The Sponsor is expected to transfer 10,000 SPAC Class B Shares to each of Richard Danis, Lindy Key, and Ron Palmeri, each members of the SPAC Board, prior to the closing of the Business Combination.

(7) Pursuant to the Amendment No. 1 to the Sponsor Support Agreement, the Sponsor agreed to forfeit for no consideration a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor.

SPAC issued SPAC Units in the SPAC IPO, each consisting of one Public Share and one-half of one SPAC Public Warrant, at $10.00 per share. After giving effect to the issuance of the SPAC Units in the SPAC IPO and the 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares issued to the Sponsor, there were 23,710,000 SPAC Common Shares issued and outstanding. In connection with the Transactions, assuming its consummation in accordance with the Business Combination Agreement, immediately after the Closing, Pubco is expected to have outstanding an additional 47,399,620 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock. These shares outstanding also assume, among other things, that neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, that no Public Shareholders exercise redemption rights with respect to their Public Shares upon completion of the Transactions, that all Private Placement Investors fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, that Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, that the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, that the Closing XRP Price is $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026), that no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the Incentive Plan, and neither Ripple nor the Sponsor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market. The tabular disclosure includes presentations of information at various illustrative redemption levels consistent with the "No Redemptions," "25% Redemptions," "50% Redemptions," "75% Redemptions" and "100% Redemptions" scenarios further described in the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Combined Financial Information."

For purposes of Item 1604(c)(1) of Regulation S-K, Pubco would have a total of 47,399,620 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding immediately after giving effect to the Transactions under the No

Redemptions scenario based on the assumptions set forth in the preceding paragraph and as further described above. Where there are no redemptions of Public Shares prior to the Closing, SPAC valuation is based on the $10.00 issuance price per Public Share in the SPAC IPO and is therefore calculated as: $10.00 (SPAC per share SPAC IPO price) multiplied by 31,590,000 shares, or $315,900,000. The following table illustrates the valuation at the $10.00 issuance price per share in the SPAC IPO for each redemption scenario:

	Assuming No Redemptions	Assuming 25% Redemptions	Assuming 50% Redemptions	Assuming 75% Redemptions	Assuming 100% Redemptions

The foregoing required disclosure is not a guarantee that the trading price of Pubco Class A Common Stock will not be below the offering price in the SPAC IPO, nor is the required disclosure a guarantee that Pubco will attain any of the levels of valuation presented.

The above discussion and table are based on 31,590,000 SPAC Common Shares outstanding on June 30, 2026.

The above discussion and table also exclude potential dilutive effects associated with instruments that are not automatically convertible and are expected to remain outstanding upon the consummation of the Transactions:

	No Redemptions	25% Redemptions	50% Redemptions	75% Redemptions	Maximum Redemptions
SPAC Public Warrants	11,499,992	11,499,992	11,499,992	11,499,992	11,499,992
SPAC Private Warrants (Sponsor)	61,607	61,607	61,607	61,607	61,607
SPAC Private Warrants (Others)	155,000	155,000	155,000	155,000	155,000
The Incentive Plan	—	—	—	—	—
Conversion of Working Capital Loan	—	—	—	—	—

The aforementioned equity issuances are not the only sources of potential dilution to the relative ownership percentage associated with shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock held by non-redeeming Public Shareholders after the Closing; any additional equity and equity-linked issuances by Pubco may result in additional dilution to Public Shareholders' percentage ownership in Pubco, potentially significantly, and may have other effects, as described above and as further described in the "Risk Factors" section of this proxy statement/prospectus.

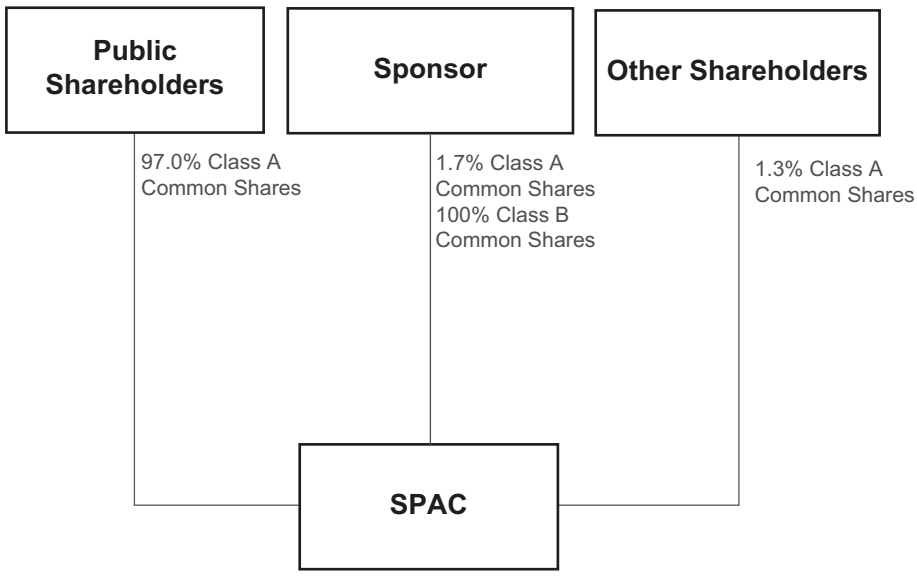
All of the relative percentages above are for illustrative purposes only and are based upon certain assumptions as described above. Should one or more of the assumptions prove incorrect, actual ownership percentages may vary materially from those described in this proxy statement/prospectus as anticipated, believed, estimated, expected or intended. See "Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Combined Financial Information."

Organizational Structure

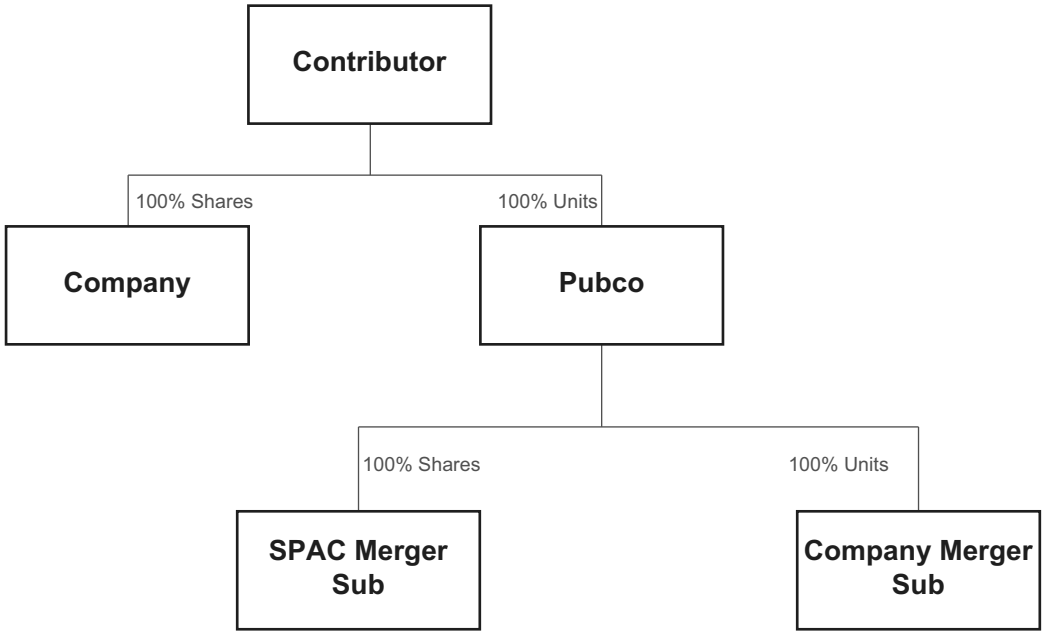
Prior to the Transactions

The following simplified diagrams illustrate the ownership structures of SPAC, Pubco and the Company before the consummation of the Business Combination:

SPAC

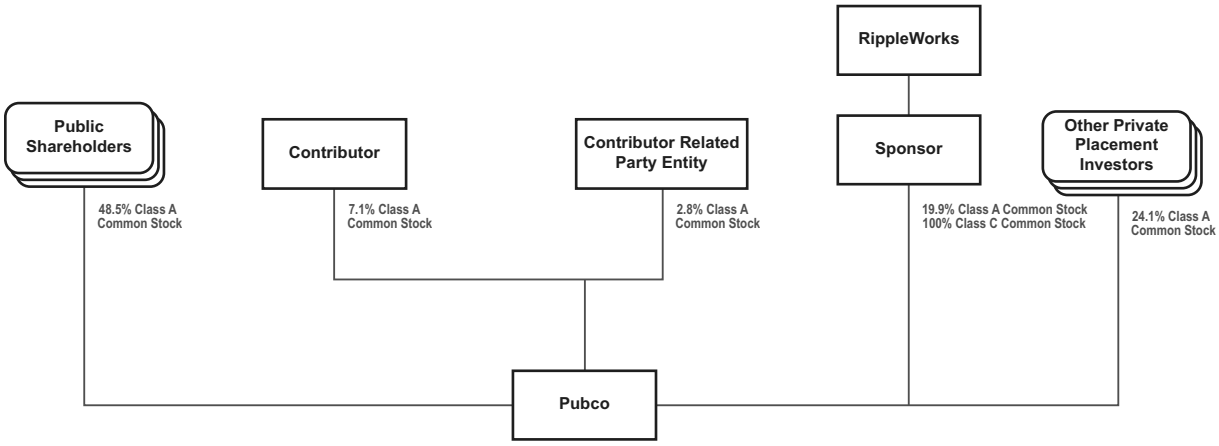


Pubco and the Company



Following the Transactions

The following simplified diagram illustrates the ownership structure of Pubco immediately following the consummation of the Business Combination, assuming no redemptions and including the impact of the Pubco Warrants:



Note: Each holder of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class B Common Stock is entitled to one vote for each share held of record as of the record date on all matters voted on by stockholders, including the election of directors. Holders of Pubco Class C Common Stock will not be entitled to vote on any matters voted on by stockholders, except as required by the NRS, on any amendment to the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter that would change the powers, preferences or rights of the holders of shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock in a manner that is disproportionately adverse to the Pubco Class C Common Stock as compared to the Pubco Class A Common Stock or the Pubco Class B Common Stock, and any change to the maximum ownership restriction applicable to the Pubco Class C Common Stock in the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter. For more information, see "Description of Pubco Securities—Pubco Stock—Voting Rights."

The following simplified diagram illustrates the ownership structure of the Company immediately following the consummation of the Business Combination, assuming no redemptions and including the impact of the Pubco Warrants:

Note: As the sole managing member of the Company, Pubco will control all of the Company's affairs and decision-making, and, through its officers and directors, Pubco will be responsible for the Company's operational and administrative decisions and the day-to-day management of its business. Under the Company A&R LLCA, the other members and other holders of Company Units hold units that provide economic rights but, except as expressly provided in the Company A&R LLCA, do not have the power or authority to vote on, approve or consent to any matter or action taken by the Company (notwithstanding any provision of the DLLCA). For more information, see "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Pubco's Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Company A&R LLCA."

For additional information on the assumptions underlying our assessment of post-Closing ownership and voting percentages, please refer to "Beneficial Ownership of Securities."

Board of Directors and Executive Officers of Pubco Following the Transactions

As of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus, the sole director of Pubco is Asheesh Birla. Following Closing, the current director of Pubco will remain on the Pubco Board as a director of Pubco and the Pubco Board will consist of five persons, with at least three of them qualifying as independent directors under applicable securities exchange rules.

The following individuals will be nominated for election to the Pubco Board immediately following Closing:

Name	Position
Asheesh Birla	Chief Executive Officer and Director
Stuart Alderoty	Director
Ted Janus	Director
Robert Kaiden	Director
Derar Islim	Director

Immediately following Closing, the executive officers of Pubco will be as follows:

Name	Position
Asheesh Birla	Chief Executive Officer
Matthew Frymier	Chief Financial Officer
Sagar Shah	Chief Business Officer
Jessica Jonas	Chief Legal Officer and Secretary
Megumi Nakamura	Chief Operating Officer

For more information, see the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Management of Pubco Following the Transactions."

Date, Time and Place of the Extraordinary General Meeting of SPAC shareholders

The Extraordinary General Meeting will be held on September 30, 2026, at 12:00 p.m. Eastern Time, at 701 5th Ave #5100, Seattle, WA 98104 and virtually via live webcast on the Internet at https://www.cstproxy.com/armadaacqii/2026, where you will be able to attend, vote your shares and submit questions during the Extraordinary General Meeting.

You or your proxyholder will be able to attend and vote at the Extraordinary General Meeting by visiting https://www.cstproxy.com/armadaacqii/2026 and using a control number assigned by Continental Stock Transfer & Trust Company. To register and receive access to the Extraordinary General Meeting, registered shareholders and beneficial owners (those holding shares through a stock brokerage account or by a bank or other holder of record) will need to follow the instructions applicable to them provided in this proxy statement/ prospectus. You will need the voter control number included on your proxy card in order to be able to vote your shares or submit questions during the Extraordinary General Meeting. If you do not have a voter control number, you will be able to listen to the Extraordinary General Meeting only and you will not be able to vote or submit questions during the Extraordinary General Meeting.

Voting Power; Record Date

SPAC shareholders will be entitled to vote or direct votes to be cast at the Extraordinary General Meeting if they owned SPAC Common Shares at the close of business on August 20, 2026, which is the Record Date for the Extraordinary General Meeting. SPAC shareholders are entitled to one vote on each Proposal they are entitled to vote on at the Extraordinary General Meeting for each SPAC Common Share held as of the Record Date. Pursuant to the Cayman Companies Act and the SPAC Charter, only the holders of the SPAC Class B Shares are entitled to vote on the Domestication Proposal. All holders of SPAC Common Shares are entitled to vote on the Merger Proposal, the Business Combination Proposal, the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals, the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals and the Adjournment Proposal. If you hold your shares in "street name," which means your shares are held of record by a broker, bank or nominee, you should contact your broker, bank or nominee to ensure that votes related to the shares you beneficially own are properly counted. In this regard, you must provide the broker, bank or nominee with instructions on how to vote your shares or, if you wish to attend the Extraordinary General Meeting and vote, obtain a "legal proxy" from your broker, bank or nominee.

As of the close of business on the Record Date, there were 31,590,000 SPAC Common Shares issued and outstanding, consisting of 23,710,000 SPAC Class A Shares (including 23,000,000 Public Shares) and 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares (all of which were held by the Sponsor).

Quorum and Vote of SPAC Shareholders

A quorum of SPAC's shareholders is necessary to hold a valid meeting. The presence, in person or, in the case of a corporation or other non-natural person, by duly authorized representative (including virtually) or by proxy, of one or more shareholders holding at least one-third of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares constitutes a quorum at the Extraordinary General Meeting.

The approval of each of the Business Combination Proposal and the Adjournment Proposal requires an ordinary resolution, being the affirmative vote of at least a simple majority of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the respective proposal at the Extraordinary General Meeting. The approval of each of the Merger Proposal and the Domestication Proposal requires a special resolution, being the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the respective Proposal at the Extraordinary General Meeting. SPAC shareholders are also being asked to approve, as an ordinary resolution on a non-binding advisory basis, each of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals and the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals. Although the SPAC Board is asking SPAC shareholders to approve each of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals and the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals on a non-binding advisory basis, regardless of the outcome of the non-binding advisory vote on each of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals and the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals, the Transactions will be completed if the Business Combination Proposal, the Merger Proposal and the Domestication Proposal are approved. Pursuant to the Cayman Companies Act and the SPAC Charter, only the holders of the SPAC Class B Shares are entitled to vote on the Domestication Proposal. All holders of SPAC Common Shares are entitled to vote on the Merger Proposal, the Business Combination Proposal, the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals, the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals and the Adjournment Proposal.

Redemption Rights

Pursuant to the SPAC Charter, a holder of Public Shares that is not the Sponsor, a Founder, Officer or Director (as each such term is defined in the SPAC Charter) may request that SPAC redeem all or a portion of such holder's Public Shares for cash if the Transactions are consummated. As a holder of Public Shares, you will be entitled to receive cash for any Public Shares to be redeemed only if you:

(i) (A) hold Public Shares; or (B) hold Public Shares through SPAC Units and elect to separate your SPAC Units into the underlying Public Shares and SPAC Public Warrants prior to exercising your redemption rights with respect to the Public Shares;

(ii) submit a written request to the Transfer Agent, including the legal name, phone number and address of the beneficial owner of the Public Shares for which redemption is requested, that SPAC redeems all or a portion of your Public Shares for cash; and

(iii) deliver your share certificates for Public Shares (if any) along with any other applicable redemption forms to the Transfer Agent, physically or electronically through DTC.

Holders must complete the procedures for electing to have their Public Shares redeemed in the manner described above and in accordance with the SPAC Charter prior to 5:00 p.m., Eastern Time, on September 28, 2026 (two Business Days prior to the initially scheduled date of the Extraordinary General Meeting), or any later time and/or date specified by the SPAC Board in accordance with the SPAC Charter, in order to properly exercise their redemption rights. If SPAC is not able to complete the Business Combination within the Combination Period, SPAC may seek to amend the provisions of the SPAC Charter to extend the time it has to complete a Business Combination, and SPAC will provide the Public Shareholders, other than the Sponsor, a Founder, Officer or Director (as each such term is defined in the SPAC Charter), with the opportunity to redeem their Public Shares upon the effectiveness of any such amendment at a per-share price, payable in cash, equal to the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account, including interest earned on the Trust Account (which interest shall be net of taxes payable), divided by the number of Public Shares then in issue, subject to applicable law.

Public Shareholders may elect to have their Public Shares redeemed, regardless of if or how they vote in respect of the Business Combination Proposal, and regardless of whether they hold Public Shares on the Record Date. If the Mergers are not consummated, the Public Shares will be returned to the respective holder, broker or bank. If the Mergers are consummated, and if a Public Shareholder properly exercises its redemption rights with respect to all or a portion of the Public Shares that it holds and timely delivers its share certificates (if any) and other redemption forms (as applicable) to the Transfer Agent, then at the SPAC Merger Effective Time, such Public Shares will automatically be canceled and cease to exist and will thereafter represent only the right to receive a per-share price, payable in cash, equal to the pro rata portion of the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account calculated in accordance with the SPAC Charter. For illustrative purposes, based on funds in the Trust Account of approximately $241.9 million as of August 20, 2026, the Record Date, the estimated per share redemption price would have been approximately $10.52, including additional interest earned on the funds held in the Trust Account and not previously released to SPAC. If a Public Shareholder exercises its redemption rights in full, then it will be electing to exchange its Public Shares for cash and will no longer own Public Shares.

Any request for redemption, once made by a Public Shareholder, may not be withdrawn following the Redemption Deadline, unless the SPAC Board determines (in its sole discretion) to permit such withdrawal of a redemption request (which it may do in whole or in part).

Any corrected or changed written exercise of redemption rights must be received by the Transfer Agent prior to the Redemption Deadline, and, following such deadline, with SPAC's consent, prior to the Extraordinary General Meeting. No request for redemption will be honored unless the Public Shareholder's shares have been delivered (either physically or electronically through DTC) to the Transfer Agent by the Redemption Deadline.

See the section of the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Extraordinary General Meeting of SPAC Shareholders—Redemption Rights" for a detailed description of the procedures to be followed if you wish to have your Public Shares redeemed. For a discussion of the potential dilutive impact of Redemptions on non-redeeming shareholders, see the section of the accompanying proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Questions and Answers about the Proposals—Q: What happens if a substantial number of Public Shareholders vote in favor of the Business Combination Proposal and exercise their redemption rights".

Notwithstanding the foregoing, a Public Shareholder, together with any affiliate of such Public Shareholder or any other person with whom such Public Shareholder is acting in concert or as a "group" (as defined in Section 13(d)(3) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended), will be restricted from having its Public Shares redeemed with respect to more than an aggregate of 20% of the Public Shares. Accordingly, if a Public Shareholder, alone or acting in concert or as a group, seeks redemption of more than 20% of the Public Shares, then any such shares in excess of that 20% limit would not be redeemed for cash.

The Sponsor and each director and officer of SPAC have agreed to waive their redemption rights in connection with the Closing with respect to any SPAC Common Shares held by them. As of the Record Date, the Sponsor owns approximately 26.2% of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares.

Appraisal Rights and Dissenters' Rights

Under section 238 of the Cayman Companies Act, shareholders of a Cayman Islands company ordinarily have dissenters' rights with respect to a statutory merger that occurs under that legislation. The Cayman Companies Act prescribes when shareholder dissenters' rights will be available and sets the limitations on such rights. Where such rights are available, shareholders are entitled to receive fair value for their shares. However, as the SPAC Merger will occur after the SPAC Domestication has been completed and pursuant to the DGCL, those provisions of the Cayman Companies Act will not apply. Accordingly, neither holders of SPAC Common Shares nor holders of SPAC Warrants have appraisal rights or dissenters' rights in respect of such securities with respect to the Transactions under the Cayman Companies Act. Additionally, as the SPAC Merger is being effected by SPAC Delaware and will be authorized pursuant to and in accordance with Section 388 of the DGCL, such holders will not have appraisal rights under the DGCL in respect of the SPAC Merger. Holders of record of Public Shares are still entitled to exercise the rights of redemption as detailed in this proxy statement/prospectus and the SPAC Board has determined that the redemption proceeds payable to holders of record of Public Shares who exercise such redemption rights represent the fair value of those shares. See the sections titled "The Domestication Proposal—Appraisal Rights and Dissenters' Rights" and "The Merger Proposal—Appraisal Rights and Dissenters' Rights" for additional information.

Proxy Solicitation

Proxies may be solicited by mail, telephone or in person. SPAC has engaged Georgeson LLC ("Georgeson") as the proxy solicitor to assist in the solicitation of proxies. SPAC's directors and officers may also solicit proxies by telephone, by facsimile, by mail, on the Internet or in person. SPAC will ask banks, brokers and other custodians, nominees and fiduciaries representing beneficial owners of SPAC Class A Shares to forward soliciting materials to beneficial owners of SPAC Class A Shares and to obtain voting instructions from those owners.

If a SPAC shareholder grants a proxy, it may still vote its shares itself if it revokes its proxy before the Extraordinary General Meeting. A SPAC shareholder may also change its vote by submitting a later-dated proxy as described in the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Extraordinary General Meeting of SPAC Shareholders—Revoking Your Proxy."

Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions

When you consider the recommendation of the SPAC Board in favor of approval of the Business Combination Proposal and the other proposals, you should keep in mind that the Sponsor and certain of SPAC's directors and officers have interests in such proposals that are different from, or in addition to, those of SPAC's shareholders and holders of SPAC Public Warrants generally. In particular:

- The Sponsor purchased from the Original Sponsor for an aggregate of $6,600,000, 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants. Certain of SPAC's officers and directors have an indirect economic interest in such shares and warrants through their membership interest in the Sponsor. Assuming a trading price of $10.50 per Founder Share and $0.801 per SPAC Private Warrant (based upon the respective closing prices of the SPAC Class A Shares and the SPAC Public Warrants on Nasdaq on August 20, 2026, the most recent practicable date prior to the date of this proxy statement/prospectus), the 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants, in each case if unrestricted and freely tradable, would have an implied aggregate market value of $87.1 million. However, given the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that will be received in exchange for such Founder Shares or upon exercise of the Pubco Warrants will be subject to lockup restrictions, SPAC believes such shares have less value. Even if the trading price of the Public Shares were as low as approximately $1.1965 per share, the aggregate market value of the Founder Shares alone (without taking into account the value of the SPAC Private Warrants) would be approximately equal to the initial investment in SPAC by the Sponsor.
- In addition, the Sponsor agreed to, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor. After the Sponsor's remaining SPAC Class B Shares are automatically converted to SPAC Class A Shares immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time, the Sponsor's remaining SPAC Class A Shares will automatically convert into Pubco Class A Common Stock and its remaining SPAC Private Warrants into Pubco Warrants at the SPAC Merger Effective Time. Accordingly, following the Closing, Sponsor will hold no more than (x) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, on an as converted basis, equal to the sum of (A) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares and (B) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares, and (y) the number of Pubco Warrants, on an as converted basis, equal to 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants less the Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants. As a result, if the Transactions are completed and the Sponsor forfeits the minimum number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, even if the trading price of the Pubco Class A Common Stock were as low as approximately $1.1965 per share, the aggregate market value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock received in exchange for the Founder Shares and not forfeited, alone (without taking into account the value of the SPAC Private Warrants), would be approximately equal to the initial investment in SPAC by the Sponsor. If the trading price is greater than approximately $1.1965, the Sponsor is likely to be able to make a substantial profit on its investment in SPAC at a time when the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants have lost significant value. On the other hand, if the Transactions are not approved and SPAC is unable to complete another business combination within 18 months from the consummation of the IPO or such later time as the holders of SPAC Common Shares may approve by special resolution in accordance with the SPAC Charter (the "Combination Period"), the 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants purchased by the Sponsor from the Original Sponsor for an aggregate purchase price of $6,600,000 will be worthless, and Sponsor will lose its entire investment in SPAC. Accordingly, the economic interests of the Sponsor diverge from the economic interests of holders of the Public Shares.
- As of the date hereof, the Sponsor is the record holder of 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares and 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants. J. Michael Arrington, a member of the SPAC Board, is the sole managing member of Arrington Capital Management, LLC, which is the general partner of the Sponsor. As of the date hereof, J. Michael Arrington is deemed to hold voting and dispositive control over the securities held directly by the Sponsor. J. Michael Arrington disclaims any beneficial ownership of the reported shares other than to the extent of any pecuniary interest he may have therein, directly or indirectly. Each of Mr. Arrington, Taryn Naidu, Chief Executive Officer of SPAC and member of the SPAC Board, Kyle Horton, Chief Financial Officer of SPAC, and Ronald Palmeri, a member of the SPAC Board, owns limited partner interests in the Sponsor and through them has an indirect interest in the Founder Shares, the SPAC Class A Shares and the SPAC Private Warrants and compensation the Sponsor receives in connection with the Transactions. In addition, the Sponsor is expected to transfer 10,000 SPAC Class B Shares to each of Richard Danis, Lindy Key, and Ronald Palmeri, each members of the SPAC Board, prior to the closing of the Business Combination.

- In addition to the compensation to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates referred to above, RippleWorks made the RippleWorks Investment that is subject to the Sponsor's obligation to invest all of the RippleWorks Token Investment in shares of Pubco pursuant to the Series C Subscription Agreement. RippleWorks may withdraw the RippleWorks Investment if the Business Combination is not consummated. The Sponsor will receive a customary annual management fee in connection with its management of the RippleWorks Investment. RippleWorks is a limited partner in the Sponsor and, prior to the RippleWorks Investment held, and after the execution of the Business Combination Agreement holds, a majority of the limited partner interests in the Sponsor. Prior to the RippleWorks Investment, RippleWorks was entitled to only customary limited partner information and approval rights in the Sponsor. In connection with the RippleWorks Investment, the Sponsor and RippleWorks entered into a letter agreement dated October 17, 2025 pursuant to which Sponsor agreed to consult with RippleWorks on any decisions directly related to the disposition or voting of Pubco Stock purchased under the Series C Subscription Agreement and to vote such shares as directed by RippleWorks. Chris Larsen, co-founder and Executive Chairman of Ripple, is also a co-founder and member of the board of directors of RippleWorks.
- The Sponsor and SPAC's directors and officers shall not redeem any of the SPAC Common Shares held by them pursuant to the SPAC Charter.
- The Sponsor and SPAC's officers and directors have agreed to waive their rights to liquidating distributions from the Trust Account with respect to the SPAC Common Shares (other than Public Shares) held by them if SPAC fails to consummate an initial business combination within the Combination Period.
- The Sponsor and SPAC's officers and certain directors may lose their entire investment in SPAC if a business combination is not consummated within the Combination Period.
- The Sponsor has agreed that it will be liable to SPAC if and to the extent any claims by a third party for services rendered or products sold to SPAC, or a prospective target business with which SPAC has entered into a written letter of intent, confidentiality or other similar agreement or business combination agreement (except for SPAC's independent registered public accounting firm), reduce the amount of funds in the Trust Account to below (i) $10.05 per Public Share or (ii) such lesser amount per Public Share held in the Trust Account as of the date of the liquidation of the Trust Account due to reductions in the value of the trust assets, in each case, net of the amount of interest earned on the property in the Trust Account which may be withdrawn to pay taxes, provided that such liability will not apply to any claims by a third party who executed a waiver of any and all rights to seek access to the Trust Account nor will it apply to any claims under SPAC's indemnity of the underwriters of the SPAC IPO against certain liabilities, including liabilities under the Securities Act.
- SPAC's existing officers and directors will be eligible for continued indemnification and continued coverage under a tail directors' and officers' liability insurance policy for up to a six-year period from and after the Closing for events occurring prior to the Closing, which tail policy is to be paid for by Pubco at the Closing pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement. If the Transactions do not close, SPAC's officers and directors may not receive this tail insurance coverage.

- Pursuant to the A&R Registration Rights Agreement, the Sponsor will have customary registration rights, including demand and piggy-back rights, subject to cooperation and cut-back provisions with respect to the Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants held by it following the consummation of the Business Combination.
- The SPAC Charter provides that, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law: (i) none of the Sponsor or any individual serving as a director or an officer shall have any duty, except and to the extent expressly assumed by contract, to refrain from engaging directly or indirectly in the same or similar business activities or lines of business as SPAC; and (ii) SPAC renounces any interest or expectancy in, or in being offered an opportunity to participate in, any potential transaction or matter which (a) may be a corporate opportunity for the Sponsor or any director or officer, on the one hand, and SPAC, on the other or (b) the presentation of which would breach an existing legal obligation of the Sponsor or any director or officer to any other entity; and (iii) except to the extent expressly assumed by contract, none of the Sponsor or any director or officer will have any duty to communicate or offer any such corporate opportunity to SPAC and shall not be liable to SPAC or its shareholders for breach of any fiduciary duty as a shareholder, director and/or officer solely by reason of the fact that such party pursues or acquires such corporate opportunity for itself, himself or herself, directs such corporate opportunity to another person, or does not communicate information regarding such corporate opportunity to SPAC. In the course of their other business activities, SPAC's officers and directors may have, or may become aware of, other investment and business opportunities which may be appropriate for presentation to SPAC as well as the other entities with which they are affiliated. SPAC's management has pre-existing fiduciary duties and contractual obligations and if there is a conflict of interest in determining to which entity a particular business combination opportunity should be presented, any pre-existing fiduciary obligation will be presented the business combination opportunity before SPAC is presented with it. SPAC does not believe that the pre-existing fiduciary duties or contractual obligations of its officers and directors materially impacted its search for an acquisition target.
- The Sponsor agreed that the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants received by it in connection with the SPAC Merger, and any shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon the exercise of Pubco Warrants, will be locked-up and subject to transfer restrictions, until the earlier of (i) the Anniversary Release and (ii) the date on which Pubco consummates a liquidation, merger, capital stock exchange, reorganization or other similar transaction that results in all Pubco stockholders having the right to exchange their shares of Pubco common stock for cash, securities or other property. The Lock-Up Agreements include customary exceptions to the transfer restrictions, including transfers to affiliates, family members, charitable organizations, and in connection with certain tax or estate planning transactions, provided that the transferee agrees to be bound by the same restrictions for the remainder of the lock-up period. Shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock received in connection with the Private Placement Investments will not be subject to the lock-up.
- On October 19, 2025, concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, the Sponsor entered into the Series C Subscription Agreement (as amended on August 12, 2026), as detailed in the section entitled "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—SPAC's Relationships and Related Party Transactions." As a result, if the Transactions are completed, the Sponsor will receive Pubco Class A Common Stock in exchange for its investments, which may increase in value following the completion of the Transactions. On the other hand, if the Transactions are not approved or, notwithstanding approval, are not completed, the Series C Subscription Agreement will terminate in accordance with its terms, the cash or contributed XRP will be returned in the manner prescribed by the Series C Subscription Agreement, and the Sponsor will not receive Pubco Class A Common Stock or the potential upside benefits of ownership thereof.

- The Sponsor is expected to transfer 10,000 SPAC Class B Shares to each of the independent members of the SPAC Board, Richard Danis, Lindy Key, and Ronald Palmeri, prior to the closing of the Business Combination.

Consideration Received by the Sponsor and its Affiliates

The compensation to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates upon the consummation of the Business Combination (excluding any consideration from participation in the Private Placement Investments) is: up to (x) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, on an as converted basis, equal to the sum of (A) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares and (B) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares, and (y) the number of Pubco Warrants, on an as converted basis, equal to 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants less the Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants, each of which entitles the holder of such warrant to purchase one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock at a price of $11.50 per share as set forth in the Pubco Warrant Agreement. In addition to the exchanges described in the preceding sentence, the Sponsor agreed to, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit the interests it holds in SPAC that would otherwise remain after such exchanges, consisting of a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor.

The Sponsor purchased 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants from the Original Sponsor for an aggregate purchase price of $6,600,000. Assuming a trading price of $10.50 per Founder Share and $0.801 per SPAC Private Warrant (based upon the respective closing prices of the SPAC Class A Shares and the SPAC Public Warrants on Nasdaq on August 20, 2026, the most recent practicable date prior to the date of this proxy statement/prospectus), the 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants, in each case if unrestricted and freely tradable, would have an implied aggregate market value of $87.1 million.

In addition to the compensation to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates referred to above, RippleWorks made the RippleWorks Investment that is subject to the Sponsor's obligation to invest all of the RippleWorks Token Investment in shares of Pubco pursuant to the Series C Subscription Agreement. RippleWorks may withdraw the RippleWorks Investment if the Business Combination is not consummated. The Sponsor will receive a customary annual management fee in connection with its management of the RippleWorks Investment. RippleWorks is a limited partner in the Sponsor and, prior to the RippleWorks Investment held, and after the execution of the Business Combination Agreement holds, a majority of the limited partner interests in the Sponsor. Prior to the RippleWorks Investment, RippleWorks was entitled to only customary limited partner information and approval rights in the Sponsor. In connection with the RippleWorks Investment, the Sponsor and RippleWorks entered into a letter agreement dated October 17, 2025 pursuant to which Sponsor agreed to consult with RippleWorks on any decisions directly related to the disposition or voting of Pubco Stock purchased under the Series C Subscription Agreement and to vote such shares as directed by RippleWorks. Chris Larsen, co-founder and Executive Chairman of Ripple, is also a co-founder and member of the board of directors of RippleWorks.

Set forth below is a summary of the price paid and the amount of compensation and securities received or to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates in connection with the Business Combination and related transactions:

	Price Paid	Securities to Be Received	Other Compensation
Sponsor	The Sponsor purchased from the Original Sponsor for an aggregate of $6,600,000, 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants. (1)(2)	The number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, on an as converted basis, equal to the sum of (A) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares and (B) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares. The number of Pubco Warrants, on an as converted basis, equal to 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants less the Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants.	The Sponsor will receive a customary annual management fee in connection with its management of the RippleWorks Investment following the Closing.

(1) The Sponsor agreed to, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit the interests it holds in SPAC that would otherwise remain after the Company Merger Effective Time, consisting of a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor. Assuming a trading price of $ per Founder Share and $ per SPAC Private Warrant (based upon the respective closing prices of the SPAC Class A Shares and the SPAC Public Warrants on Nasdaq on , 2025, the most recent practicable date prior to the date of this proxy statement/prospectus), the 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants, in each case if unrestricted and freely tradable, would have an implied aggregate market value of $ million.

(2) The number of securities to be received by the Sponsor does not reflect the expected transfers by the Sponsor of 10,000 SPAC Class B Shares to each of Richard Danis, Lindy Key, and Ronald Palmeri, each members of the SPAC Board, prior to the closing of the Business Combination. Taking such transfers into account, the Sponsor would receive 5,766,000 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock in exchange for Founder Shares in connection with the Business Combination and related transactions.

Non-redeeming shareholders will experience dilution from the issuance of Pubco Class A Common Stock upon the exchange of Founder Shares as presented in the table above. Further, to the extent that the Sponsor (or any of its affiliates) exercises the Pubco Warrants described above to acquire shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the resulting issuances of Pubco Class A Common Stock may result in material dilution of the non-redeeming shareholders of the SPAC who become stockholders of Pubco. In addition, non-redeeming shareholders will experience dilution due to the issuance of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and securities exercisable for or convertible into shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock to others in the Business Combination and any related financing transactions.

Further detail regarding the price paid and the compensation received and to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates and the dilution that may be caused thereby is provided in the sections of this proxy statement/ prospectus entitled "Prospectus Summary—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions," "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions," "Summary of the proxy statement/prospectus—Ownership of Pubco After the Transactions," "Summary of the proxy statement/prospectus—Dilution," "Questions and Answers About the Proposals—Q: What equity stake will current Public Shareholders, the PIPE Investors, the Sponsor, Ripple, and their affiliates hold in Pubco immediately after the completion of the Transactions and the Private Placement Investments?" and "Questions and Answers about the Proposals—Q: What happens if a substantial number of Public Shareholders vote in favor of the Business Combination Proposal and exercise their redemption rights."

Background of the Transactions

Since the SPAC IPO, SPAC's activities have been limited to identifying and evaluating potential business combination opportunities, and SPAC has until the end of the Combination Period to consummate an initial Business Combination. Leading up to this transaction, SPAC's management and its advisors surveyed the landscape of potential acquisition opportunities for acquisition targets and engaged in discussions with six potential targets (not including Pubco). SPAC's management ultimately decided not to pursue such alternate targets and instead focused its efforts on Evernorth. On October 19, 2025, after detailed negotiations, the parties thereto executed the Business Combination Agreement. For more information, see "The Business Combination Proposal—Background of the Transactions."

The SPAC Board's Reasons for Approval of the Transactions

In evaluating the Transactions, the SPAC Board consulted with SPAC management and SPAC's financial, legal, and other professional advisors. The SPAC Board considered a range of factors, including, but not limited to, the factors discussed below, in reaching its unanimous resolution (i) that the Business Combination Agreement, the Ancillary Agreements to which SPAC is a party, and the Transactions are advisable and in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders and (ii) to recommend that the shareholders of SPAC adopt and approve the Business Combination Agreement, the Ancillary Agreements to which SPAC is a party, and the Transactions. The SPAC Board viewed its decision as being based on all of the information available and the factors presented to and considered by it. In addition, individual directors may have given different weight to different factors. This explanation of the SPAC Board's reasons for the Business Combination and all other information presented in this section is forward-looking in nature and, therefore, should be read in light of the factors discussed under "Cautionary Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements."

Factors Supporting the Business Combination

- Size of the Potential Total Addressable Market. Pubco will provide investors with simple, liquid, and transparent exposure to XRP through a publicly listed vehicle. There is a significant and growing market for XRP as a productive, treasury reserve asset, with increasing institutional demand driven by XRP ETFs and corporate treasuries.
- Consistency with SPAC's Formation Purpose and Stated Criteria. SPAC was formed to pursue targets in the financial technology, software-as-a-service and artificial intelligence sectors. In evaluating the Business Combination, the SPAC Board considered that the Transactions are consistent with those published criteria and with SPAC's emphasis on partnering with such companies, including through a transaction structure and capital commitments designed to support Pubco's growth as a public company.
- Attractive Market Opportunity and Strategic Partnership. Pubco will be a publicly traded digital asset treasury that will provide investors with regulated, liquid exposure to XRP and pursue strategies, including ecosystem participation (such as projects that expand XRP's utility across payments, capital markets and tokenized assets, determined on a case-by-case basis) and yield generation, intended to increase shareholder value over time. In public communications, Pubco is expected to be the largest public XRP treasury company and a first-of-its-kind institutional vehicle built to accelerate XRP adoption. The SPAC Board considered that this positioning would provide public investors direct exposure to the XRP ecosystem through a first-of-its-kind model, and that strategic alignment with ecosystem participants could present preferential opportunities, such as early participation in network initiatives and validator roles, which the SPAC Board believes may strengthen the combined company's market presence and long-term growth prospects.

- Unique Opportunities for Growth. Unlike a passive ETF, Pubco seeks to grow shareholder value over time by participating in institutional lending, liquidity provisioning, and DeFi (decentralized finance) yield opportunities. In addition, XRP presents a compelling opportunity for investors as one of the few digital assets with a recognized regulatory framework in the United States and a proven use case in powering global payments.

- Roadmap for Long-Term Success. Pubco intends to build one of the largest institutional XRP treasuries in the world, and deploy resources towards advancing the XRP ecosystem, including through operating XRP validators to strengthen the resilience and decentralization of the XRP ledger, leveraging Ripple's RLUSD stablecoin as an on-ramp into XRP-based decentralized (enabling yield opportunities and broader adoption of XRP as collateral) and providing liquidity and participating in projects that expand XRP's real-world utility across payments, capital markets, and tokenized assets. This strategy ensures that Pubco is designed not only to accumulate XRP as a reserve asset but also to act as a long-term catalyst for the adoption and institutionalization of the XRP Ledger. These steps position Pubco for long-term success.

- NAV-Accretive Platform Architecture. The SPAC Board considered the market precedent of digital asset treasury vehicles that can trade at premiums to their net asset value ("NAV"). A premium-to-NAV trading profile could allow Pubco to raise capital above the underlying value of its digital assets, thereby making subsequent equity issuances accretive to existing shareholders. The SPAC Board believes that Pubco's structure and exposure to XRP positions it to achieve similar NAV-accretive dynamics, enhancing capital formation flexibility.

- Up-C Structure and In-Kind XRP Funding. The SPAC Board considered that, as described under "The Transactions" and "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC" in this proxy statement/prospectus, the Transactions are structured as an "Up-C," pursuant to which Pubco will be a publicly traded corporation and the Company will be treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes. In this structure, certain investors may satisfy their funding commitments with cash and/or XRP, with any XRP contributed in-kind to Pubco or the Company in exchange for equity interests. Investors that have purchased Company Units will be entitled to economic interests in the Company that are equivalent to the indirect economic interests that other shareholders will have in the Company via their ownership of shares of Pubco. However, any Company Units that are held without any corresponding shares of Class B Common Stock in Pubco will not entitle their holder to any voting rights in Pubco, and such holder will only be entitled to voting rights in Pubco to the extent any such Company Units have been converted to shares of Class A Common Stock in Pubco in accordance with the Company A&R LLCA. The SPAC Board believed that this structure may provide potential tax benefits and structuring efficiencies for certain investors and may offer a differentiated way to contribute XRP in-kind as compared to other potential XRP investment alternatives.

- Attractive Entry Valuation. The SPAC Board believes that Pubco provides an attractive entry valuation (calculated as a multiple to NAV) to XRP. The SPAC Board also considered that Pubco was able to secure over $1 billion of commitments from Private Placement Investors, from institutional, crypto-native, and strategic investors, to purchase common equity at $10.00 per share, in connection with the negotiation of the Business Combination Agreement.

- Redemption Option. The SPAC Board considered that SPAC's public shareholders will be able to exercise redemption rights with respect to their Public Shares in connection with the Business Combination, allowing those who do not wish to remain invested in Pubco to exit their investment.
- Pubco's Initial XRP Holdings. Pubco is expected to launch with corporate XRP holdings of at least 473,276,430 XRP at Closing, comprised of: (i) 600,000 XRP that the Advance Funding Subscribers have agreed to contribute to Pubco prior to Closing pursuant to the Advance Funding Subscription, (ii) 200,000 XRP that the Delayed Funding Subscribers have agreed to contribute to Pubco at Closing pursuant to the Delayed Funding Subscription, (iii) 211,319,096.061435 XRP that the Sponsor has agreed to contribute to Pubco prior to Closing pursuant to the Series C Subscription, (iv) 50,000,000 XRP that the Contributor Related Party Entity has agreed to contribute to Pubco prior to Closing pursuant to the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription, (v) 126,791,458 XRP that Ripple contributed to the Company concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement pursuant to the Contribution Agreement and (vi) 84,365,876.3625 XRP purchased using $214 million in aggregate cash proceeds from the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements at an average price of $2.53657058 per XRP.
- Negotiated Transaction and Terms of the Business Combination and Ancillary Agreements. The SPAC Board considered that the financial and other terms and conditions of the Business Combination Agreement and the Ancillary Agreements are reasonable. The SPAC Board also evaluated each party's representations, warranties, covenants, and agreements, as well as the conditions to each party's obligations and the commitment of each party to complete the Business Combination.
- Highly Experienced Management Team. Pubco will be led by Asheesh Birla as Chief Executive Officer, and he will also serve on the Board of Directors of Pubco. Asheesh Birla is a seasoned entrepreneur and expert in the blockchain and fintech industries, with over 20 years of experience in Silicon Valley. He spent nine years at Ripple, joining in 2013 shortly after the company launched, where he led the team bringing the first enterprise crypto product to market with hundreds of customers worldwide, and helped grow the company to over 1,000 employees. After leaving Ripple, Mr. Birla focused his time on investing in and advising early-stage tech companies, and sat on the board of Ripple. He also previously served on the board of Bitso, the largest LATAM crypto exchange, as well as MoneyGram and several other fintech startups. Mr. Birla also guest lectures on entrepreneurship and blockchain at Wharton, the Haas School of Business at Berkely, and the University of Michigan. Stuart Alderoty has served as the Chief Legal Officer at Ripple since 2019, and the President of the National Cryptocurrency Association since 2025, and will serve as a member of the Board upon completion of the Business Combination. Mr. Alderoty brings more than 40 years of legal experience to the role with particular expertise in financial services and regulatory affairs. He's been General Counsel and part of the executive leadership teams at CIT Group and HSBC North America Holdings. Mr. Alderoty was also Managing Counsel at American Express. As a member of Pubco's Board of Directors, Mr. Alderoty will exercise fiduciary duties of care and loyalty to Pubco and its shareholders, participate in board committees as assigned, and otherwise support the Chief Executive Officer. Mr. Alderoty will receive compensation solely in his capacity as a member of the Board of Directors, consistent with the compensation provided to other non-employee directors.
- Renowned Strategic Advisors. Pubco will be supported by non-executive strategic advisors Brad Garlinghouse and David Schwartz. Mr. Garlinghouse will provide strategic advisory services on an informal basis. His advisory role will focus on industry relationships, market positioning and strategic opportunities within the digital asset ecosystem. Mr. Garlinghouse will not receive any compensation from Pubco for these services, and there is no written agreement governing this arrangement.

Mr. Schwartz, a Ripple director, will provide technical advisory services on an informal basis. His advisory role will focus on technical matters related to the XRP Ledger and blockchain technology considerations relevant to Pubco's treasury operations. Mr. Schwartz will not receive any compensation from Pubco for these services, and there is no written agreement governing this arrangement.

- Lockup. Subject to certain limited and customary exceptions with respect to permitted transfers, certain Ripple affiliates, the Sponsor, and certain SPAC Insiders will be subject to a six-month lockup in respect of the Pubco Class A Common Stock (and any other securities convertible into or exercisable or exchangeable for Pubco Class A Common Stock) and/or Pubco Class C Common Stock issued to them as consideration in the Business Combination (and including shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and/or Pubco Class C Common Stock received in connection with the Private Placement Investments), which will provide important stability to Pubco.
- Due Diligence and Fairness Opinion. SPAC management and its advisors conducted a due diligence review of the Company and its businesses and operations, including a review of relevant documentation and discussions with the Company's management and the Company's financial and legal advisors. The SPAC's financial advisor, CCM, delivered an opinion that, as of the date rendered, the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness Opinion) is fair, from a financial point of view, to SPAC.
- Other Alternatives. The SPAC Board believes, after a thorough review of other business combination opportunities reasonably available to SPAC, that the proposed Business Combination represents the best potential business combination for SPAC and the most attractive opportunity for SPAC's management to accelerate its business plan based upon its evaluation and assessment of other potential business combination targets.

In connection with its evaluation of the Business Combination, the SPAC Board also considered a variety of risks and uncertainties and other potentially negative factors concerning the Business Combination, including the following:

- Benefits May Not Be Achieved. The risk that the potential benefits of the Business Combination may not be fully achieved or may not be achieved within the expected time frame.
- Minority Shareholder Position. The SPAC's shareholders will hold a minority economic interest in Pubco after the Closing, which will limit their ability to influence governance, strategic decisions, or changes in control.
- Redemption Risk. The potential that a significant number of SPAC shareholders elect to redeem their Public Shares prior to the consummation of the Business Combination and pursuant to the SPAC Charter, thereby reducing the amount of cash available to (i) SPAC and potentially resulting in an inability to consummate the Business Combination if the available cash in the Trust Account is less than $5,000,001, unless such condition to closing is waived by all parties pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement and (ii) Pubco following the consummation of the Business Combination, which could adversely affect Pubco or reduce the benefits of the Business Combination to SPAC's shareholders.
- Closing Conditions. The fact that completion of the Business Combination is conditioned on the satisfaction of certain closing conditions that are not within SPAC's control, such as the Advance Funding Subscribers and Delayed Funding Subscribers having contributed an amount of XRP at least equivalent to the amounts of XRP committed in the Advanced Funding and Delayed Funding, respectively, and the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants having been approved for clearing through DTC (subject to DTC's customary eligibility criteria) and approved for listing on Nasdaq, the New York Stock Exchange or another national exchange reasonably acceptable to Pubco, the SPAC and Ripple.

- No Operating History. The risks associated with the Company and Pubco being newly formed entities with no operating histories or track records.
- XRP and the Volatility of the Price of XRP. XRP is a highly volatile asset. The XRP market has been characterized by significant volatility and unexpected price movements, and has previously experienced significant declines. Such volatility will impact the overall value of the combined company and could cause volatility in the price of its stock. See the risk factors entitled "Our XRP acquisition strategy exposes us to various risks associated with XRP" and "XRP price volatility and sustained declines could cause losses and adversely affect our business, financial condition and ability to execute our strategy."
- Listing Risks. The challenges associated with preparing Pubco, a newly formed private company, for the applicable disclosure and requisite internal controls and listing requirements to which Pubco will be subject as a publicly traded company on a national stock exchange.
- Litigation. The possibility of litigation challenging the Business Combination or that an adverse judgment granting permanent injunctive relief could indefinitely enjoin consummation of the Business Combination.
- Fees and Expenses. The fees and expenses incurred by the parties in connection with completing the Business Combination.
- Management and Key Personnel Risk. The performance of Pubco depends on the services of Pubco's future management team and key personnel. Loss of key personnel could disrupt operations, execution of strategic plans, and overall governance.

  Limited Right of the SPAC Board to Change Its Recommendation. As part of the negotiation of the Business Combination Agreement, SPAC agreed that the SPAC Board would not be permitted to change its recommendation to SPAC shareholders that they vote in favor of the Proposals in certain circumstances, including as a result in the decrease in the price or trading volume of XRP, although the SPAC Board will be permitted to advise SPAC shareholders of their right to redeem their SPAC Class A Shares in such a situation. See the risk factor entitled "The Business Combination Agreement includes a requirement that the SPAC Board will not change its recommendation that SPAC Shareholders vote in favor of the SPAC Shareholder Approval Matters, except in limited situations."
- Cybersecurity and Operational Risks. Validator and network participation on the XRP Ledger, and Pubco's treasury, trading, and custody activities, is vulnerable to cybersecurity threats, unauthorized access, private key compromise, software defects, and third-party service outages. Such events could result in loss of assets, business interruption, and reputational harm.
- Market and Macroeconomic Risks. Volatility in digital asset markets, including the market for XRP, and broader economic, geopolitical, or market conditions, such as interest rate changes, inflation, recessionary pressures, or instability in global financial markets, may adversely affect digital asset prices, liquidity, capital raising, and Pubco's operating performance.
- Competition Risk. The digital asset market is highly competitive. Alternative layer-1 and layer-2 networks, payment and settlement protocols, centralized and decentralized platforms, investment funds, and other companies with digital asset treasuries may reduce demand for XRP or for Pubco's services, which could adversely affect growth prospects and results of operations. In addition, other XRP Digital Asset Treasuries could scale more quickly and become more valuable, potentially diverting users, capital, or developer attention.

- Regulatory and Legal Uncertainty. Digital asset markets are subject to evolving and uncertain regulation in multiple jurisdictions. XRP and Pubco's related activities, including holding, transferring, providing exposure to, or participating in the XRP ecosystem, could be subject to regulatory actions or restrictions by authorities, including the SEC and other U.S. and non-U.S. regulators. Changes in or interpretations of laws relating to securities, commodities, money transmission, sanctions, AML, consumer protection, or taxation could limit Pubco's ability to operate, access markets, or execute its strategy.
- Other Risks. Various other risks exist, including cybersecurity and operational, technological, regulatory, or financial risks associated with Pubco, XRP, and the broader digital asset ecosystem, as more fully described in the "Risk Factors" section elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus.

In addition to considering the factors described above, the SPAC Board also considered:

- Interests of Certain Persons. The Sponsor, and certain executive officers and directors of the SPAC, as individuals, may have interests in the Business Combination that are in addition to, and that may be different from and may conflict with, the interests of SPAC shareholders (see sections entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions"). The SPAC Board, including the independent directors on the SPAC Board, reviewed and considered these interests, including RippleWorks' limited partner interests in the Sponsor, the RippleWorks Investment and the customary annual management fee the Sponsor will receive in connection with its management of the RippleWorks Investment, during the negotiation of the Business Combination Agreement and in evaluating and unanimously approving, as members of the SPAC Board, the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions and did not view such interests to constitute a disqualifying event to proceed with the Transactions.
- Shareholder Flexibility. In connection with the Business Combination, SPAC's public shareholders have the option to: (i) become stockholders of Pubco following the consummation of the Business Combination; (ii) sell their Public Shares; or (iii) redeem their Public Shares for the Redemption Price pursuant to the terms of the SPAC Charter.
- Differing Returns. The Sponsor paid $2,600,000.00, or approximately $0.33 per share, for the Founder Shares, of which it currently holds 7,880,000. Based on the closing price of SPAC Class A Shares of $10.48 on October 17, 2025 (the business day before the SPAC Board approved the Business Combination), such Founder Shares, if unrestricted and freely tradable, would be valued at approximately $82,582,400.00. The Founder Shares will be worthless if a business combination is not consummated. The Sponsor and its affiliates can earn a positive rate of return on their investment even if Public Shareholders experience a negative return following the consummation of the Business Combination. In connection with the Business Combination, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, 2,364,000 Founder Shares held by the Sponsor will be forfeited pursuant to the Sponsor Support Agreement, and the remaining 5,516,000 Founder Shares will automatically convert into 5,516,000 SPAC Class A Shares in accordance with the SPAC's organizational documents. The Sponsor will not receive any such additional shares if the Closing is not consummated.

The foregoing discussion of the information and factors considered by the SPAC Board is not meant to be exhaustive but includes the material information and factors considered by the SPAC Board as well as any other factors that the SPAC Board deemed relevant. The SPAC Board's decision to approve the Transactions were based on factors existing as of the date of its approval on October 19, 2025.

The SPAC Board concluded that the potential benefits that it expected SPAC and its shareholders to achieve as a result of the Business Combination outweighed the potentially negative and other factors associated with the Business Combination. Accordingly, the SPAC Board unanimously determined that the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions were advisable and in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders.

Recommendation to SPAC Shareholders

The SPAC Board believes that the Business Combination Proposal and the other proposals to be presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting are in the best interest of SPAC and its shareholders and recommends that its shareholders vote "FOR" the Business Combination Proposal, "FOR" the Merger Proposal, "FOR" the Domestication Proposal, "FOR" the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals, "FOR" the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals, and "FOR" the Adjournment Proposal, in each case, if presented to the Extraordinary General Meeting.

The existence of financial and personal interests of one or more of SPAC's directors may result in a conflict of interest on the part of such director(s) between what such director may believe is in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders and what such director may believe is best for themselves in determining to recommend that shareholders vote for the proposals. Certain of SPAC's directors and officers have interests in the Transactions that may be different from, or in addition to, your interests as a Public Shareholder. See the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions" for a further discussion of these considerations.

Sources and Use of Funds by Pubco for the Transactions

The following table summarizes the anticipated sources and uses of funds by Pubco in the Transactions, in various redemptions scenarios. Such tables are for illustrative purposes only. Where actual amounts are not known or knowable, the figures below represent good faith estimates of such amounts.

The following table summarizes the sources and uses for funding the Transactions. The tables below reflect the "No Redemptions," "25% Redemptions," "50% Redemptions," "75% Redemptions" and "100% Redemptions" scenarios described in the section entitled "*Questions and Answers About the Proposals—Q. (2) SPAC cash in trust value as of June 30, 2026. Does not account for additional accrued interest on cash in trust, which would increase trust value per share at Closing.

U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC

For a summary description of U.S. federal income tax consequences of the Transactions, the exercise of redemption rights in respect of Public Shares and in respect of SPAC Public Warrants and the ownership and disposition of shares of Pubco Stock, see the section entitled "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC."

Anticipated Accounting Treatment

Company Merger

The Company Merger whereby Company Merger Sub (a subsidiary of Pubco) will merge with and into the Company, with the Company continuing as a surviving company as a subsidiary of Pubco, is anticipated to be accounted for as a transaction between entities under common control in accordance with U.S. GAAP. Under ASC 805-50, "Transactions Between Entities Under Common Control," transfers of net assets or exchanges of equity interests between entities under common control are accounted for in a manner similar to a pooling of interests. Accordingly, the assets and liabilities transferred as part of the Company Merger will be recognized by Pubco at their historical carrying amounts as reflected in the accounts of the Company immediately prior to the transaction. No new goodwill or step-up in basis will be recognized as a result of the Company Merger.

SPAC Merger

The SPAC Merger whereby SPAC Merger Sub (a subsidiary of Pubco) will merge with and into SPAC Delaware, with SPAC Delaware continuing as the surviving entity as a subsidiary of Pubco, will be accounted for as a recapitalization in accordance with U.S. GAAP where Pubco issues shares in exchange for the net assets of the SPAC. It was determined that the SPAC, Pubco and the Company were not considered to be businesses in accordance with U.S. GAAP and therefore, the SPAC Merger, which is a combination of assets from the various parties, is akin to a recapitalization and the ultimate equity structure will be that of Pubco as the successor entity to the Company Merger and the SPAC Merger. Under this method of accounting, SPAC will be treated as the "acquired" company for financial reporting purposes. Accordingly, for accounting purposes, the Transactions would be treated as Pubco issuing shares for the net assets of the SPAC, accompanied by the common control recapitalization above. The net assets of SPAC would be stated at fair value, with no goodwill recorded. As a result, any transaction costs incurred to effect the recapitalization represent costs related to issuing equity and raising capital that are recognized as a reduction to the total amount of equity raised rather than an expense recorded as incurred. Any activities prior to the Transactions will be those of Pubco and its common control entity, the Company, with Pubco as the reporting legal entity.

Emerging Growth Company

We are an "emerging growth company" as defined in Section 2(a) of the Securities Act, as modified by the Jumpstart Our Business Startups Act of 2012 (the "JOBS Act"), and may take advantage of certain exemptions from various reporting requirements that are applicable to other public companies that are not emerging growth companies including, but not limited to, not being required to comply with the auditor attestation requirements of Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, reduced disclosure obligations regarding executive compensation in its periodic reports and proxy statements, and exemptions from the requirements of holding a non-binding advisory vote on executive compensation and shareholder approval of any golden parachute payments not previously approved. Upon consummation of the Business Combination, Pubco will be an "emerging growth company" as defined in the JOBS Act. Pubco will remain an "emerging growth company" until the earliest to occur of (i) the last day of the fiscal year (a) following the fifth anniversary of the Closing, (b) in which Pubco has total annual gross revenue of at least $1.235 billion or (c) in which Pubco is deemed to be a large accelerated filer, which means the market value of shares of Pubco Stock held by non-affiliates exceeds $700 million as of the last business day of Pubco's prior second fiscal quarter, and (ii) the date on which Pubco issued more than $1.0 billion in non-convertible debt during the prior three-year period. Pubco intends to take advantage of exemptions from various reporting requirements that are applicable to most other public companies that are classified as "emerging growth companies," including, but not limited to, an exemption from the provisions of Section 404(b) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act requiring that Pubco's independent registered public accounting firm provide an attestation report on the effectiveness of its internal control over financial reporting and reduced disclosure obligations regarding executive compensation. Further, section 102(b)(1) of the JOBS Act exempts emerging growth companies from being required to comply with new or revised financial accounting standards until private companies (that is, those that have not had a Securities Act registration statement declared effective or do not have a class of securities registered under the Exchange Act) are required to comply with the new or revised financial accounting standards. The JOBS Act provides that a company can elect to opt out of the extended transition period and comply with the requirements that apply to non-emerging growth companies but any such election to opt out is irrevocable. Pubco has elected not to opt out of such extended transition period, which means that when a standard is issued or revised and it has different application dates for public or private companies, Pubco, as an emerging growth company, can adopt the new or revised standard at the time private companies adopt the new or revised standard. This may make comparison of Pubco's financial statements with certain other public companies difficult or impossible because of the potential differences in accounting standards used. See "Risk Factors—Risks Related to Being a Public Company—Pubco will be an "emerging growth company," and it cannot be certain if the reduced SEC reporting requirements applicable to emerging growth companies will make shares of Pubco Stock less attractive to investors, which could have a material and adverse effect on Pubco, including its growth prospects."

Regulatory Matters

The Transactions and the transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement are not subject to any additional federal or state regulatory requirement or approval, except for (i) filings with the Registrar of Companies of the Cayman Islands (the "Cayman Registrar") and the Secretary of State of the State of Delaware (the "Delaware Secretary of State") necessary to effectuate the SPAC Domestication, which will be filed on behalf of SPAC with the Cayman Registrar and the Delaware Secretary of State upon the approval of the Condition Precedent Proposals and in accordance with the Business Combination Agreement; (ii) filings with the Delaware Secretary of State necessary to effectuate the Company Merger and SPAC Merger, which will be filed on behalf of the Company and SPAC Delaware with the Delaware Secretary of State upon the approval of the Business Combination Proposal and satisfaction of all other conditions not waived by the applicable parties under the Business Combination Agreement.

Conditions to the Closing of the Transactions

Under the Business Combination Agreement, the obligations of the parties to consummate (or cause to be consummated) the Transactions are subject to a number of conditions, which may be waived in writing (where permissible), including:

Mutual Conditions to Obligations of All Parties

- approval by the SPAC shareholders of the Condition Precedent Proposals (the "Required Shareholder Approval");
- any required waiting periods (including any extension thereof) applicable to the consummation of the Mergers under the HSR Act shall have terminated or expired;
- the consummation of the Transactions not being prohibited by applicable law;
- the effectiveness of the Registration Statement;
- the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants having been approved for clearing through DTC (subject to DTC's customary eligibility criteria) and approved for listing on Nasdaq, the New York Stock Exchange or another national securities exchange; and
- SPAC having net tangible assets equal to or exceeding $5,000,001 as of the Closing Date.

Conditions to Obligations of the Company, Pubco, the Merger Subs and Ripple

- the representations and warranties of SPAC being true and correct, subject to the applicable materiality standards contained in the Business Combination Agreement;
- material compliance by SPAC and each SPAC Subsidiary with its applicable pre-closing covenants;
- there having been no occurrence of a Material Adverse Effect (as defined below) with respect to SPAC since the date of the Business Combination Agreement which is continuing and uncured;

- the Sponsor having performed in all material respects its obligations required under the Sponsor Support Agreement;
- SPAC having completed the SPAC Domestication at least one Business Day prior to the Closing Date;
- the Advance Funding Subscribers and Delayed Funding Subscribers having contributed an amount of XRP at least equivalent to the amounts of XRP committed in the Advance Funding and Delayed Funding, respectively; and
- the Available Transaction Cash as of the Closing Date is equal to or exceeds the amount of cash committed by the Advance Funding Subscribers and Delayed Funding Subscribers pursuant to the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements and the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements, respectively.

Conditions to Obligations of SPAC

- the representations and warranties of the Company, Pubco, the Merger Subs and Ripple being true and correct, subject to the applicable materiality standards contained in the Business Combination Agreement;
- material compliance by the Company, Pubco, the Merger Subs and Ripple with their respective pre-closing covenants;
- no occurrence of a Material Adverse Effect with respect to the Company or Pubco; and
- completion of the Contribution.

Each of the conditions to the Closing under the Business Combination Agreement may be waived by the parties other than the approval by SPAC shareholders of the Condition Precedent Proposals.

None of SPAC, Pubco, the Company, SPAC Merger Sub, Company Merger Sub or Ripple currently expects to waive any immaterial or material condition to the consummation of the Business Combination. If SPAC determines to waive any material condition to the consummation of the Business Combination and such waiver renders the disclosure in this proxy statement/prospectus materially misleading, or requires under applicable law the approval of Public shareholders, proxies will be resolicited from the Public shareholders.

The Business Combination Agreement contains customary representations and warranties of the parties, which will not survive the Closing. Many of the representations and warranties are qualified by materiality or Material Adverse Effect. “Material Adverse Effect” as used in the Business Combination Agreement means with respect to any specified person, any fact, event, occurrence, change or effect that has had, or would reasonably be expected to have, individually or in the aggregate, a material adverse effect on (i) the business, assets, liabilities, results of operations, or condition (financial or otherwise) of such person and its subsidiaries, taken as a whole, or (ii) the ability of such person or any of its subsidiaries to consummate the Transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement or the Ancillary Agreements to which it is a party or bound or to perform its obligations under the Business Combination Agreement or the Ancillary Agreements. Certain of the representations are subject to specified exceptions and qualifications contained in the Business Combination Agreement or in information provided pursuant to certain disclosure schedules to the Business Combination Agreement.

The following changes or effects (by themselves or when aggregated with others) are not considered a Material Adverse Effect:

- General changes in financial or securities markets (including interest rates) or general economic or political conditions in the country or region where the party or its subsidiaries do business.

- Changes, conditions, or effects that generally affect the industries or markets in which the party or its subsidiaries principally operate.
- Changes in the price or trading volume of XRP.
- Any proposal, enactment, or change in interpretation of, or any other change in, applicable laws, GAAP, or other applicable accounting principles.
- Conditions caused by acts of God, natural disasters, terrorism (including cyber terrorism), war (whether or not declared and including cyber warfare), cyber attacks, escalation of hostilities, geopolitical conditions, local, national or international political conditions or an epidemic or pandemic, or the effects of governmental actions in response to them.
- The taking of any action required by the terms of the Business Combination Agreement or any Ancillary Agreement.
- Any failure by the party and its subsidiaries to meet internal or published budgets, projections, forecasts, or predictions of financial performance for any period.

The exceptions in the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, and seventh bullet points above will be taken into account in determining whether a Material Adverse Effect has occurred to the extent that such event has a disproportionate and adverse effect on the party or its subsidiaries compared to other similarly situated participants in the same industries.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, with respect to SPAC, the amount of the redemption or the failure to obtain the Required Shareholder Approval shall not in and of itself be deemed to be a Material Adverse Effect on or with respect to SPAC (provided that the underlying causes of any such redemption or failure to obtain the Required Shareholder Approval may be considered in determining whether a Material Adverse Effect has occurred or would reasonably be expected to occur to the extent not excluded by another exception herein.

No Solicitation

During the period from the date of the Business Combination Agreement until the earlier of (a) the Closing or (b) the termination of the Business Combination Agreement in accordance with its terms (the "Interim Period"), the parties agreed not to solicit, intentionally encourage or engage in discussions regarding any Acquisition Proposal outside the transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement. The parties also agreed not to provide non-public information or enter into any agreements related to such proposals. If any party receives an Acquisition Proposal, such party is expected to promptly notify the other parties and keep them informed of any developments.

Representations and Warranties

The Business Combination Agreement contains customary representations and warranties of the Parties, which will not survive the Closing. Many of the representations and warranties are qualified by materiality or Material Adverse Effect.

SPAC made representations relating to, among other things, SPAC's organization, good standing and qualification to do business, SPAC's corporate authority, governmental and regulatory consents necessary in connection with the Transactions, absence of conflicts and certain changes, SPAC's capitalization, proper filings with the SEC, no litigation, compliance with applicable laws, permits, taxes and returns, employees and employee benefit plans, properties, material contracts, transactions with affiliates, finders and brokers, certain business practices, insurance, Trust Account.

Pubco and the Merger Subs each made representations relating to, among other things, organization, good standing, qualification to do business, corporate authority, governmental and regulatory consents necessary in connection with the Transactions, absence of conflicts and certain changes, capitalization, finders and brokers, ownership of Pubco Stock and Pubco and Merger Subs' activities.

The Company made representations relating to, among other things, organization, good standing and qualification to do business, the Company's corporate authority, governmental and regulatory consents necessary in connection with the Transactions, capitalization, absence of certain conflicts and changes, title to assets, employee benefit plans, certain business practices, the Company's activities and finders and brokers.

Ripple made representations relating to, among other things, organization, good standing, corporate authority, governmental and regulatory consents necessary in connection with the Transactions, absence of conflicts, no litigation, investment representations and finders and brokers.

Covenants

The Business Combination Agreement contains covenants, including, among others, providing for (i) the Company, Pubco and the Merger Subs to not to take certain corporate actions without the prior written consent of SPAC during the period between signing and the Closing, (ii) SPAC to conduct its business in the ordinary course consistent with past practice and refrain from specified actions without the prior written consent of Ripple, (iii) the parties not to solicit or engage in discussions regarding any Acquisition Proposal, (iv) Pubco and SPAC, with the assistance of the Company, to prepare and file the Registration Statement as soon as practicable following the Company's completion of its audited financial statements, and (v) SPAC and Pubco to take all reasonable and necessary actions to satisfy the requirements of the SPAC Charter, the Securities Act, the Exchange Act and other applicable laws in connection with the Registration Statement and the Extraordinary General Meeting. See the section entitled "The Transactions—Covenants" for more information.

Termination Rights

The Business Combination Agreement contains certain termination rights, including, among others and subject to certain conditions and limitations, the following: (i) upon the mutual written consent of SPAC and Pubco, (ii) by either SPAC or Pubco, if any of the conditions to Closing set forth in the Business Combination Agreement have not been satisfied or waived by the one-year anniversary of the Business Combination Agreement, such date being October 19, 2026 (the "Outside Date"); provided that this right is not available to a party if its breach or violation of the Business Combination Agreement was the primary cause of, or directly resulted in, the failure of the Closing to occur by the Outside Date, (iii) by either SPAC or Pubco if a governmental authority issues a final, non-appealable order permanently restraining, enjoining or otherwise prohibiting the Transactions, provided that this right is not available to a party if its failure to comply with the Business Combination Agreement substantially caused such order, (iv) by Pubco if SPAC, or by SPAC if Pubco, the Company, the Merger Subs or Ripple, has materially breached the Business Combination Agreement or if any representation or warranty of SPAC given in the Business Combination Agreement has become materially untrue or materially inaccurate and such breach gives rise to a failure of a Closing condition and cannot or has not been cured within the earlier of (a) 30 days after written notice from the non-breaching party and (b) five business days prior to the Outside Date, (v) by Pubco if, prior to SPAC obtaining the SPAC Shareholder Approval, the SPAC board has made a Modification in Recommendation, and Pubco promptly delivers a written notice to SPAC within 30 days of such occurrence; and (vi) by SPAC or Pubco, if the Extraordinary General Meeting is held and has concluded, SPAC shareholders have duly voted, and the SPAC Shareholder Approval was not obtained, provided that SPAC may not terminate if the Sponsor (or any of its Permitted Transferees) is in material uncured breach of certain obligations under the Sponsor Support Agreement.

None of the Parties to the Business Combination Agreement is required to pay a termination fee or reimburse any other party for its expenses as a result of a termination of the Business Combination Agreement. However, each party will remain liable for willful breaches of the Business Combination Agreement or for fraud claims prior to termination. Notwithstanding the foregoing, each of the Company and SPAC will also equally bear all fees, costs and expenses incurred by any party or any of its affiliates in connection with the filing of the Registration Statement with the SEC and submitting a listing application for Pubco Class A Common Stock to Nasdaq. Each of the Company and SPAC will also pay its respective 50% of such expenses when they arise.

Summary of Risk Factors

In evaluating the proposals to be presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting, SPAC shareholders should carefully read this proxy statement/prospectus and especially consider the factors discussed in the section entitled "Risk Factors." These risks are summarized below.

Summary of Risks Related to the Business and Strategy of Pubco

- Neither Pubco nor the Company has any operating history or has produced any revenues, which make it difficult to evaluate Pubco's business, future prospects and ability to achieve or maintain profitability in any given period.
- Pubco may not be able to successfully execute its business strategies.
- Pubco's operating results, revenues and expenses may significantly fluctuate, including due to the highly volatile nature of XRP, which could have an adverse effect on the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock.
- Our XRP acquisition strategy exposes us to various risks associated with XRP.
- Many digital assets were only introduced within the past decade, and the medium-to-long-term value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock is subject to a number of factors relating to the capabilities and development of blockchain technologies and to the fundamental investment characteristics of digital assets.
- Recent developments in the digital asset economy have led to extreme volatility and disruption in digital asset markets, a loss of confidence in participants of the digital asset ecosystem, significant negative publicity surrounding digital assets broadly and market-wide declines in liquidity.
- Pubco will operate in a highly competitive environment and will compete against companies and other entities with similar strategies, including companies with significant XRP holdings and ETFs and ETPs for XRP and other digital assets, and Pubco's business, operating results and financial condition may be adversely affected if Pubco is unable to compete effectively.

Summary of Risks Related to XRP and the XRP Ledger

- XRP is a component of a new and rapidly evolving industry, and the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock depends on the acceptance of XRP.
- A decline in the adoption of XRP or the XRP Ledger could negatively impact our business and results of operations.
- Competition from other digital assets, payment systems and private blockchains could negatively affect demand for XRP and adversely impact an investment in the Pubco Class A Common Stock.
- The launch of central bank digital currencies could reduce demand for XRP and adversely affect the value of our XRP holdings.

- The fixed supply of XRP may negatively impact the operation of the XRP Ledger.
- Speculative or momentum-driven trading in XRP may cause extreme volatility and losses for investors.
- The significant holdings of XRP by Ripple and other early stakeholders could have an adverse effect on the market price of XRP.

Summary of Risks Related to Being a Public Company

- The market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock may be volatile and decline materially as a result of volatility in XRP or the digital asset markets generally, or for other reasons. You should be aware that you may lose some or all of your investment.
- Because Pubco will be a holding company whose principal asset is its equity interests in the Company, Pubco will be dependent upon distributions from the Company to pay taxes and other expenses.
- Pubco's ability to timely raise capital in the future may be limited, or may be unavailable on acceptable terms, if at all. Pubco's failure to raise capital when needed could harm its business, operating results and financial condition.

Summary of Risks Related to Governmental Regulation

- Pubco is subject to laws, regulations and executive orders regarding economic and trade sanctions and anti-bribery that could impair our ability to compete in international markets or subject us to criminal or civil liability if we violate them.
- XRP and other digital assets are novel assets, which will expose Pubco to significant legal, commercial and regulatory uncertainty, which could materially adversely affect Pubco's financial position, operations and prospects.

Summary of Risks Related to the Transactions

- The market price of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock after the Transactions will be affected by factors different from those currently affecting the market price of SPAC Class A Shares.
- The consummation of the Business Combination is subject to a number of conditions and if those conditions are not satisfied or waived, the Business Combination Agreement may be terminated in accordance with its terms and the Transactions may not be completed.
- The Business Combination Agreement contains provisions that limit SPAC from seeking an alternative business combination. If the Transactions are not completed, those restrictions may make it harder for SPAC to complete an alternate business combination before the end of the Combination Period.
- Neither SPAC nor the SPAC shareholders will have the protection of any indemnification, escrow, price adjustment or other provisions that allow for a post-closing adjustment to be made to the total consideration for the Mergers in the event that any of the representations and warranties in the Business Combination Agreement made by Pubco or the Company or any other party thereto ultimately proves to be inaccurate or incorrect.

Summary of Risks Related to Ownership of Pubco Stock Following the Transactions

- Immediately after the Closing, a relatively small number of shareholders are expected to control a significant portion of Pubco's voting power, and may be in a position to control or otherwise significantly influence actions that require shareholder approval and may make decisions that are adverse to other shareholders.

- Securities of companies formed through mergers with SPACs such as Pubco may experience a material decline in price relative to the share price of the SPACs prior to such merger.
- Currently, there is no public market for the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock. Public Shareholders cannot be sure about whether the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock will develop an active trading market or whether Pubco is able to maintain the listing of Pubco Class A Common Stock in the future even if Pubco is successful in listing Pubco Class A Common Stock on Nasdaq or any other national securities exchange, which could limit investors' ability to make transactions in shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and subject Pubco to additional trading restrictions.

Summary of Risks Related to Our Organizational Structure and the Pubco Class A Common Stock

- In certain circumstances, the Company will be required to make distributions to us and the other holders of Company Units, and the tax distributions that the Company will be required to make may be substantial.
- Because key holders of Pubco Stock are subject to voting ownership caps, other holders' relative voting power will be enhanced and may produce governance outcomes that are not aligned with their economic ownership.
- We will be required to pay the TRA Parties and any other persons that become parties to the Tax Receivable Agreement for certain tax benefits we may receive, and the amounts we may pay could be substantial.
- We will not be reimbursed for any payments made under the Tax Receivable Agreement in the event that any tax benefits are subsequently disallowed.
- In certain cases, payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement may be accelerated and/or significantly exceed the actual benefits, if any, we realize in respect of the tax attributes subject to the Tax Receivable Agreement.

Summary of Risks Related to Taxation

- The SPAC Domestication and/or the SPAC Merger may result in adverse tax consequences for holders of SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants.
- The 1% excise tax (discussed below) could adversely affect our business and our ability to make distributions.
- The tax treatment of digital currency is uncertain.

SPAC SUMMARY FINANCIAL INFORMATION

The following table sets forth selected historical financial information derived from (i) SPAC's unaudited condensed financial statements as of June 30, 2026, for the three and nine months ended June 30, 2026, and for the three months ended June 30, 2025, and for the period from October 3, 2024 (inception) through June 30, 2025 and (ii) SPAC's audited financial statements as of September 30, 2025, included elsewhere in this proxy statement. SELECTED UNAUDITED PRO FORMA CONDENSED COMBINED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

The unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial statements do not necessarily reflect what the combined company's financial condition or results of operations would have been had the Transactions occurred on the dates indicated. The unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial statements also may not be useful in predicting the future financial condition and results of operations of the combined company. The actual financial position and results of operations may differ significantly from the pro forma amounts reflected herein due to a variety of factors. The unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial statements are presented for illustrative purposes only. Please refer to "Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Combined Financial Information" for more information.

The historical financial statements of each of the Pubco and the Company have been prepared in accordance with U.S. GAAP. The historical financial statements of SPAC have been prepared in accordance with U.S. GAAP. The unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information reflects U.S. GAAP, the basis of accounting used by the Company.

The unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information has been prepared using the assumptions below with respect to the potential redemption of Public Shares into cash:

- Assuming No Redemptions: This presentation assumes that no Public Shareholders exercise redemption rights with respect to their Public Shares upon consummation of the Business Combination.
- Assuming Maximum Redemptions: This presentation assumes that Public Shareholders holding 23,000,000 Public Shares exercise their redemption rights for $241.2 million in the aggregate upon consummation of the Business Combination at a redemption price of approximately $10.49 per share as of June 30, 2026. The Maximum Redemptions scenario reflects the maximum number of Public Shares that can be redeemed and includes all adjustments contained in the No Redemptions scenario and presents additional adjustments to reflect the effect of the Maximum Redemptions scenario.

Both scenarios assume, among other things, that (a) neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, (b) Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, (c) all Private Placement Investors fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, (d) the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, (e) no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the Incentive Plan, and (f) neither Ripple nor the Sponsor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market. In addition to the assumptions above, the table below assumes a Closing XRP Price as reported by Coinbase, our principal market, of $1.04 (which was the closing price for XRP reported by Coinbase as of June 30, 2026).

RISK FACTORS

The following risk factors may have a material adverse effect on the business, financial condition and results of operations of Pubco, the Company and SPAC following the completion of the Transactions. These risk factors are not exhaustive and investors are encouraged to perform their own investigation with respect to the business, prospects, financial condition and operating results of Pubco's business, prospects, financial condition and operating results following the completion of the Transactions. You should carefully consider the following risk factors in addition to the other information included or incorporated by reference in this proxy statement/ prospectus, including matters addressed in the section entitled "Cautionary Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements," before deciding how to vote your shares of SPAC Common Shares. Please see the section entitled "Where You Can Find More Information" in this proxy statement/prospectus. Pubco, the Company and SPAC may face additional risks and uncertainties that are not presently known to them or that they currently deem immaterial, which may also impair Pubco's business, prospects, financial condition or operating results. The following discussion should be read in conjunction with the consolidated financial statements of Pubco and the Company and the financial statements of SPAC and notes thereto included elsewhere in this proxy statement/ prospectus.

Throughout this section, unless otherwise indicated or the context otherwise requires, references to "Pubco," "we," "us," "our," and other similar terms refer to Pubco and its consolidated subsidiaries, including the Company, after giving effect to the Transactions.

Risks Related to the Business and Strategy of Pubco

Neither Pubco nor the Company has any operating history or has produced any revenues, which make it difficult to evaluate Pubco's business, future prospects and ability to achieve or maintain profitability in any given period.

Neither Pubco nor the Company has any operating history. As a result, the volatile nature of the price of XRP, which will constitute a substantial part of our assets, makes it difficult to evaluate our future prospects. The Company's lack of operating history will also make it difficult to accurately forecast the future results of operations, which is subject to a number of uncertainties, including Pubco's ability to grow its XRP per share (i.e., the amount of XRP attributable to Pubco per fully diluted share) and its yield per token (i.e., the incremental XRP generated by our yield-generating strategies per token deployed over a given period). See "The Company's Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations—Key Performance Indicators" for more information on our key performance indicators, or our KPIs.

Pubco's ability to generate cash flow initially will largely be dependent on its ability to raise capital to acquire additional XRP, to secure participation and contribution from XRP holders through in-kind investments, to access and acquire XRP not held in digital asset trading platforms and to carry out activities aimed at catalyzing the fusion between XRP and traditional capital markets. Pubco's business strategy may not be realized as quickly as hoped, or even at all. Further, even if we achieve growth, in future periods, that growth could slow or decline for a number of reasons, including, but not limited to, XRP volatility, increased competition, digital assets that compete with and may result in a decline in utilization of XRP or replace XRP, our inability to develop, improve or effectively scale XRP acquisition or to access and acquire XRP not held in digital asset trading platforms, government regulation or Pubco's failure, for any reason, to continue to take advantage of growth opportunities.

XRP market opportunity estimates and growth forecasts are subject to significant uncertainty and are based on assumptions and estimates that may not prove to be accurate. There is no assurance that any estimates driving XRP acquisition strategies will accurately reflect any particular level of revenue or growth prospects for Pubco.

We will encounter risks and difficulties as described in this section. If we do not manage these risks successfully, our business may be adversely impacted. If Pubco's assumptions regarding these risks and uncertainties and its future growth are incorrect or change adversely, or if Pubco does not address these risks successfully, Pubco's operating and financial results could differ materially from its expectations, and its business could suffer. If our revenue growth rate, when we are at a revenue generation stage, were to decline significantly or become negative, it could adversely affect our operating results and financial condition. If we are not able to achieve or maintain positive cash flow from operations, or if the price of XRP declines significantly, our business may be adversely impacted and we may require additional financing, which may not be available on favorable terms or at all, may restrict the distribution of dividends or other payments to shareholders, or may be dilutive to our shareholders.

Pubco may not be able to successfully execute its business strategies.

A significant part of Pubco's strategy is XRP acquisition. However, our XRP acquisition strategy is susceptible to various risks associated with XRP, including the following, which could adversely affect our XRP acquisition strategy.

- we may experience fluctuations in our results due to XRP price volatility and liquidity;
- we may compete with others to acquire XRP, and as competition increases, decreased availability or increased prices for acquisition could result;
- we may experience difficulty in anticipating the timing and availability of XRP acquisition;
- we may not be able to secure participation and contribution from XRP holders or otherwise access and acquire XRP not held in digital asset trading platforms;
- we may not be able to obtain further financing, on favorable terms or at all, to finance any of our potential XRP acquisitions; and
- we may not be able to generate the cash necessary to execute our XRP acquisition strategy.

Moreover, the risks of engaging in an XRP acquisition strategy are relatively novel and have created, and could continue to create, complications due to the lack of experience that third parties have with companies engaging in such a strategy, such as increased costs of director and officer liability insurance or the potential inability to obtain such coverage on acceptable terms in the future. The novelty of acquiring XRP as a primary business model and XRP as an asset may increase the risk of employee or service provider misconduct or error, which may adversely impact the business of Pubco. Employee or service provider misconduct or error could subject us to legal liability, financial losses and regulatory sanctions and could seriously harm our reputation and negatively affect our business. Such misconduct could include engaging in improper or unauthorized transactions or activities, failing to supervise other employees or service providers, improperly using confidential information, as well as improper trading activity. Employee or service provider errors could expose us to the risk of material losses even if the errors are detected.

Moreover, the risk of employee or service provider error or misconduct may be even greater for novel XRP products and services which we may offer in the future. It is not always possible to deter misconduct, and the precautions we take to prevent and detect this activity may not be effective in all cases. If we were found to have not met our regulatory oversight and compliance and other obligations, we could be subject to regulatory sanctions, financial penalties, restrictions on our activities for failure to properly identify, monitor and respond to potentially problematic activity and seriously damage our reputation. Our employees, or any contractors and agents we may contract with, could also commit errors that subject us to financial claims for negligence, as well as regulatory actions, or result in financial liability. Further, allegations by regulatory or criminal authorities of improper trading activities could affect our brand and reputation.

Pubco's operating results, revenues and expenses may significantly fluctuate, including due to the highly volatile nature of XRP, which could have an adverse effect on the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Our operating results will be dependent on the broader digital asset and XRP economy. Due to the rapidly evolving nature of digital assets and the volatile price of XRP, which has experienced and continues to experience significant volatility, we expect that our operating results will fluctuate significantly from quarter to quarter in accordance with market sentiments and movements in the broader XRP economy. Digital asset prices, including XRP, have experienced significant and sudden changes, including for example rising prices throughout 2021 followed by steep drawdowns in the fourth quarter of 2021, and throughout 2022, and digital asset prices have continued to fluctuate through 2023, 2024 and to date in 2025. Extreme volatility in the future, including further declines in the trading prices of XRP, could have a material adverse effect on the value of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class A Common Stock could lose all or substantially all of its value. Furthermore, negative perception, a lack of stability and standardized regulation in the digital asset economy may reduce confidence in the digital asset economy and may result in greater volatility in the price of XRP and other digital assets, including a depreciation in value. See "—XRP price volatility and sustained declines could cause losses and adversely affect our business, financial condition and ability to execute our strategy."

We expect that our operating results will continue to fluctuate significantly as a result of a variety of factors, many of which are unpredictable and in certain instances are outside of our control, including:

- fluctuations in the price of XRP, of which we will have significant holdings, and in which we expect we will continue to make significant purchases and announcements about our transactions in XRP;
- regulatory, commercial and technical developments related to XRP or the XRP blockchain;
- investor perception of Pubco, including as compared to investment vehicles that are designed to track the price of XRP, such as spot XRP ETPs;
- changes in the legislative or regulatory environment or actions by U.S. or non-U.S. governments or regulators, including fines, orders or consent decrees;
- regulatory changes or scrutiny that impact our ability to offer certain products or services;
- pricing for or temporary suspensions of products and services we expect to offer in the future in accordance with our strategy;
- investments we may make in the development of products and services, and sales and marketing;
- market conditions of, and overall sentiment towards, XRP, including negative publicity, media or social media coverage, or sentiment due to events in or relating to, or perception of, XRP or the broader digital assets industry, for example: (i) public perception that digital assets can be used as a vehicle to circumvent sanctions, including sanctions imposed on Russia or certain regions related to the ongoing conflict between Russia and Ukraine, or to fund criminal or terrorist activities, such as the purported use of digital assets by Hamas to fund its terrorist attack against Israel in October 2023; (ii) previous, pending or expected civil, criminal, regulatory enforcement or other high profile actions against major participants in the digital assets ecosystem, including the SEC's dismissed enforcement actions against Coinbase, Inc., Payward Inc. and Payward Ventures Inc. (together known as "Kraken"), and Binance Holdings Ltd., BAM Trading Services and BAM Management US Holdings, Inc.; and (iii) additional filings for bankruptcy protection or bankruptcy proceedings of major digital asset industry participants, such as the bankruptcy proceeding of FTX Trading Ltd. and its affiliates.
- investment and trading activities, such as (i) trading activities of highly active retail and institutional users, speculators, validators and investors; (ii) actual or expected significant dispositions of XRP by large holders, including the expected liquidation of digital assets associated with entities that have filed for bankruptcy protection, such as FTX Trading Ltd., which in late 2023 and early 2024 sold several billion dollars' worth of digital assets, including Bitcoin, and the transfer and sale of Bitcoin associated with significant hacks, seizures or forfeitures, such as the transfers of Bitcoin to (a) creditors of the hacked digital asset trading platform Mt. Gox which began in July 2024, (b) claimants following restitution proceedings allocating $9 billion of recovered Bitcoin related to a 2016 hack of the Bitfinex digital asset trading platform, (c) the German government following the seizure of about 50,000 Bitcoin in January 2024 from the operator of the website Movie2k.to, or (d) the government of the United Kingdom after £5 billion worth of Bitcoin seizures from criminal defendants, (e) the United States government after the Southern District of New York seized 51,680 Bitcoin in late 2021 and early 2022 from a defendant convicted of wire fraud or (f) the U.S. Department of Justice which in January 2025 gained approval from the Northern District Court of California to liquidate 69,370 Bitcoin seized from the Silk Road marketplace; and (iii) actual or perceived manipulation of the spot or derivative markets for XRP or spot XRP ETPs;

- macroeconomic conditions, including interest rates, inflation and central banking policies;
- regulatory, legislative, enforcement and judicial actions that adversely affect the price, ownership, transferability, trading volumes, legality or public perception of XRP, or that adversely affect the operations of or otherwise prevent digital asset custodians, trading venues, lending platforms or other digital assets industry participants from operating in a manner that allows them to continue to deliver services to the digital assets industry;
- the development and introduction of existing and new products and services by our competitors;
- competition from other digital assets that exhibit better speed, security, scalability or energy efficiency, that feature other more favored characteristics, that are backed by governments, including the U.S. government, or reserves of fiat currencies, or that represent ownership or security interests in physical assets;
- a decrease in the price of other digital assets, including stablecoins, or the crash or unavailability of stablecoins that are used as a medium of exchange for XRP purchase and sale transactions, such as the temporary or total loss of value of certain stablecoins in recent years, including to the extent the decrease in the price of such other digital assets or the unavailability of such stablecoins may cause a decrease in the price of XRP or adversely affect investor confidence in digital assets generally;
- disruptions, failures, unavailability or interruptions in service of trading venues for digital assets, such as, for example, the announcement by the digital asset trading platform FTX Trading Ltd. that it would freeze withdrawals and transfers from its accounts and subsequent filing for bankruptcy protection and the SEC enforcement action brought against Binance Holdings Ltd., BAM Trading Services Inc. and BAM Management US Holdings, Inc., which initially sought to freeze all of its assets during the pendency of the enforcement action and has since resulted in the U.S. platform discontinuing all fiat deposits and withdrawals in the U.S.;
- the development and introduction of new products and services by us;
- our ability to control costs, including our operating expenses incurred to grow and expand our operations and to remain competitive;
- system failure, outages or interruptions, including with respect to our XRP custodian and our platforms, including those due to third-party actions;
- our lack of control over decentralized or third-party networks, distributed ledgers or third-party infrastructure (including the XRP Ledger and any related protocols), which may experience downtime, cyberattacks, critical failures, coding errors, bugs, corrupted data, network congestion, outages, breaches or other similar failures or losses;
- breaches of security or privacy;
- transaction congestion or throughput limitations on the XRP Ledger, or increases in network fees designed to deter spam or malicious activity;

- developments in mathematics or technology, including in artificial intelligence, digital computing, algebraic geometry and quantum computing or new applications of current knowledge in these fields, that could comprise the cryptography underlying the XRP Ledger and other distributed networks on which we rely;
- legal, commercial and regulatory uncertainty regarding XRP and other digital assets due to their novelty (see "—• XRP and other digital assets are novel assets, which will expose Pubco to significant legal, commercial and regulatory uncertainty, which could materially adversely affect Pubco's financial position, operations and prospects");
- changes in national and international economic and political conditions, including, without limitation, federal government policies, trade tariffs and trade disputes, the adverse impacts attributable to the current conflict between Russia and Ukraine and the economic sanctions adopted in response to the conflict and the broadening of the Israel-Hamas conflict, and the ongoing conflicts in Israel, the Gaza Strip, Syria and Lebanon, to other countries in the Middle East;
- our ability to establish and maintain any future partnerships, collaborations, joint ventures or strategic alliances with third parties; and
- our ability to attract and retain talent.

As a result of these factors, it is difficult for us to forecast growth trends accurately and our business and future prospects are difficult to evaluate, particularly in the short term.

Further, we cannot predict what further action may be taken with respect to tariffs or trade relations between the U.S. and other governments. Any such changes could fundamentally alter the competitive and regulatory landscape in which we operate, and political tensions as a result of trade policies could reduce trade volume, investment, technological exchange and other economic activities between major international economies, resulting in a material adverse effect on global economic conditions and the stability of global financial markets, all of which could potentially having a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition and results of operation.

In addition, the stock market and the markets for both XRP-influenced and technology companies have experienced extreme price and volume fluctuations that have often been unrelated or disproportionate to the operating performance of companies in those markets. In particular, future trading prices in Pubco Class A Common Stock may reflect market dynamics that are not connected to valuation methods commonly associated with operating companies in similar industries or with companies engaged predominantly in passive investments in XRP or other commodities, such as ETFs. Equity market capitalizations of other such companies are often in excess of stockholders' equity calculated in accordance with U.S. GAAP, and in excess of valuations that might traditionally be expected based on their operating performances, cash flows and net assets. Investors may therefore be unable to assess the value of the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock or evaluate the risks of an investment in us using traditional or commonly used enterprise valuation methods. We cannot predict how these dynamics may evolve over time, or whether or how long they may last. These market and industry factors may significantly harm the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock, regardless of our actual operating performance.

Our XRP acquisition strategy exposes us to various risks associated with XRP.

XRP is a highly volatile asset. Based on price data from Coinbase, XRP traded below $0.50 per XRP and above $3.60 per XRP over the 12 months ending on the Signing Date based on intraday pricing. The trading price of XRP also fluctuated significantly during 2024—monthly data show lows around $0.42 in July and highs around $2.73 in December. As of the Signing Date, XRP closed around $2.39 per XRP, up approximately 29,888% in U.S. dollar terms since August 7, 2015 (when XRP was about $0.008). The XRP price was $1.0384 as of June 30, 2026. Volatility may continue in the future and historical trends could reverse dramatically. See "—Pubco's operating results, revenues and expenses may significantly fluctuate, including due to the highly volatile nature of XRP, which could have an adverse effect on the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock."

Our XRP holdings may significantly impact our financial results and in turn may impact the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock. If we continue to increase our overall holdings of XRP relative to the other parts of our business in the future, our XRP holdings will have an even greater impact on our financial results and the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock. We intend to purchase additional XRP and increase our overall holdings of XRP in the future. The concentration of our XRP holdings limits the risk mitigation that we could take advantage of by purchasing a more diversified portfolio of treasury assets, and the absence of diversification enhances the risks inherent in our XRP acquisition strategy. See "—Pubco's operating results, revenues and expenses may significantly fluctuate, including due to the highly volatile nature of XRP, which could have an adverse effect on the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock." See also "—XRP price volatility and sustained declines could cause losses and adversely affect our business, financial condition and ability to execute our strategy."

In addition, our XRP acquisition strategy has not been tested by us to date. While certain issuers have operating histories that involve a digital asset acquisition strategy that may be comparable to the XRP acquisition strategy Pubco intends to execute, these have not been tested over an extended period of time or under different market conditions. We will continuously examine the risks and rewards of our XRP acquisition strategy. For example, some investors and other market participants may disagree with our XRP acquisition strategy or actions we undertake to implement it. If XRP prices were to decrease or our XRP acquisition strategy otherwise proves unsuccessful, our financial condition, results of operations and the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock may be materially adversely impacted. See also "—Our ability to meet our financial obligations depend in part on the market value and perception of XRP, which may fluctuate significantly."

Moreover, our XRP acquisition strategy will expose us to the risk of non-performance by counterparties, whether contractual or otherwise. Risk of non-performance includes the inability or refusal of a counterparty to perform for any reason, including because of a deterioration in the counterparty's financial condition and liquidity. Custodians, or other counterparties might fail to perform in accordance with the terms of future agreements with them, which could result in a loss of XRP, a loss of the opportunity to generate funds, or other losses. Although we expect to implement various measures that are designed to mitigate our counterparty risks, including by storing XRP in custody accounts at custodians that service institutions, applicable insolvency law is not fully developed with respect to the holding of digital assets in custodial accounts. While all of our custodians are expected to be subject to regulatory regimes intended to protect customers in the event of a custodial bankruptcy, receivership or similar insolvency proceeding, no assurance can be provided that our custodially held XRP will not become part of the custodian's insolvency estate if one or more of our custodians enters bankruptcy, receivership or similar insolvency proceedings. If our custodially held XRP were nevertheless considered to be the property of our custodians' estates in the event that any such custodians were to enter bankruptcy, receivership or similar insolvency proceedings, we could be treated as a general unsecured creditor of such custodians, inhibiting our ability to exercise ownership rights with respect to such XRP and this may ultimately result in the loss of the value related to some or all of such XRP. Even if we are able to prevent our XRP from being considered the property of a custodian's bankruptcy estate as part of an insolvency proceeding, it is possible that we would still be delayed or may otherwise experience difficulty in accessing our XRP held by the affected custodian during the pendency of the insolvency proceedings. Any such outcome could have a material adverse effect on our financial condition and the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Our primary counterparty risk with respect to our XRP is expected to be custodian performance obligations under the custody arrangements we will enter into. Additionally, if we pursue any strategies to create income streams or otherwise generate funds using our XRP holdings, we would become subject to additional counterparty risks. Any significant non-performance by counterparties, including in particular the custodians with which we custody substantially all of our XRP, could have a material adverse effect on our business, prospects, financial condition and operating results. See "The Company will face risks relating to the custody of its XRP, including the loss or destruction of private keys required to access our XRP and cyberattacks or other data loss relating to our XRP. If the Company or its third-party service providers experience a security breach or cyberattack and unauthorized parties obtain access to the Company's XRP, or if the Company's private keys are lost or destroyed, or other similar circumstances or events occur, including the ability to reverse engineer private keys, The Company may lose some or all of its XRP and the Company's financial condition and results of operations could be materially adversely affected."

The broader digital assets industry is subject to counterparty risks, which could adversely impact the adoption rate, price and use of XRP. For example, a series of high-profile bankruptcies, closures, liquidations, regulatory enforcement actions and other events relating to companies operating in the digital asset industry, including the filings for bankruptcy protection by Three Arrows Capital, Celsius Network, Voyager Digital, BlockFi Lending, Core Scientific, FTX Trading, Alameda Research and Genesis Global Capital, the closure or liquidation of certain financial institutions that provided lending and other services to the digital assets industry, including Silicon Valley Bank, Signature Bank and Silvergate Bank, the potential of SEC enforcement actions, the placement of Prime Trust, LLC into receivership following a cease-and-desist order issued by Nevada's Department of Business and Industry, and the filing and subsequent settlements of lawsuits by the New York Attorney General against Galaxy Digital Holdings, Genesis Global Capital, Genesis' parent company Digital Currency Group, Inc., and former partner Gemini Trust Company, had highlighted the counterparty risks applicable to owning and transacting in digital assets. Bankruptcies, closures, liquidations and other events may impact our access to XRP and could negatively impact the adoption rate and use of XRP. Additional bankruptcies, closures, liquidations, regulatory enforcement actions or other events involving participants in the digital assets industry in the future may further negatively impact the adoption rate, price and use of XRP, limit the availability to us of financing collateralized by XRP or create or expose additional counterparty risks.

Many digital assets, including XRP, were only introduced relatively recently, and the medium-to-long-term value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock is subject to a number of factors relating to the capabilities and development of blockchain technologies and to the fundamental investment characteristics of digital assets.

Many digital assets, including XRP, were only introduced relatively recently, and the medium-to-long-term value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock is subject to a number of factors relating to the capabilities and development of blockchain technologies, such as the recentness of their development; their dependence on the internet and other technologies; their dependence on the role played by users, developers and validators; and the potential for malicious activity. For example, the realization of one or more of the following risks could materially adversely affect the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock:

- Digital asset networks, including networks and networks utilizing the XRP Ledger, and the software used to operate them are in the early stages of development. In particular, XRP and the XRP Ledger were only first launched in 2012. Given the recentness of the development of digital asset networks, digital assets may not function as intended and parties may be unwilling to use digital assets, which would dampen the growth, if any, of digital asset networks. Because XRP is a digital asset, the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock is subject to a number of factors relating to the fundamental investment characteristics of digital assets, including the fact that digital assets are bearer instruments and loss, theft, compromise, or destruction of the associated private keys could result in permanent loss of the asset.
- Digital asset networks are dependent upon the internet. A disruption of the internet or a digital asset network, such as the XRP Ledger, would affect the ability to transfer digital assets, including XRP, and, consequently, a disruption may impact their value.
- The acceptance of software patches or upgrades by a significant, but not overwhelming, percentage of the users and validators in a digital asset network, such as the XRP Ledger, could theoretically result in a "fork" in such network's blockchain, including the XRP Ledger, resulting in the operation of multiple separate networks.

- Governance of the XRP Ledger is by voluntary consensus. As a result, there may be a lack of consensus or clarity on the governance of the XRP Ledger, which may stymie the XRP Ledger's utility and ability to grow and face challenges. In particular, it may be difficult to find solutions or marshal sufficient effort to overcome any future problems on the XRP Ledger, especially long-term problems.
- Unlike many other blockchain networks, validators on the XRP Ledger are not directly compensated for their participation in the consensus process. Running a validator on the XRP Ledger is generally considered a voluntary contribution to the health and decentralization of the network. Participants run validators for reasons other than direct financial gain, such as supporting the network's decentralization, ensuring its security, or for reputational benefits within the XRP community. However, because there is no financial incentive for entities or individuals to maintain validators, there is no guarantee that such entities or individuals will continue to run validators. To the extent that a significant number of entities or individuals stop running validators, there would be serious negative consequences to the XRP Ledger's functionality, security and overall existence.
- Many digital asset networks, including the XRP Ledger, face significant scaling challenges and are being upgraded with various features designed to increase the speed of digital asset transactions and the number of transactions that can be processed in a given period (known as "throughput"). These attempts to increase the volume of transactions may not be effective, and such upgrades may fail, resulting in potentially irreparable damage to the XRP Ledger and the price of XRP.
- In the past, flaws in the source code for digital assets have been exposed and exploited, including flaws that disabled some functionality for users, exposed users' personal information and/or resulted in the theft of users' digital assets. The cryptography underlying the XRP Ledger could prove to be flawed or ineffective, or developments in mathematics and/or technology, including advances in digital computing, algebraic geometry and quantum computing, could result in such cryptography becoming ineffective. In any of these circumstances, a malicious actor may be able to compromise the security of the XRP Ledger or take Pubco's XRP, which would adversely affect the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock. Moreover, functionality of the XRP Ledger may be negatively affected such that it is no longer attractive to users, thereby dampening demand for XRP. Even if another digital asset other than XRP were affected by similar circumstances, any reduction in confidence in the source code or cryptography underlying digital assets generally could negatively affect the demand for digital assets and therefore adversely affect the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock

Moreover, because digital assets, including XRP, have been in existence for a relatively short period of time and are continuing to develop, there may be additional risks in the future that are impossible to predict as of the date of this prospectus. The broader digital assets industry, including the technology associated with digital assets, the rate of adoption and development of and use cases for, digital assets, market perception of digital assets and the legal, regulatory, and accounting treatment of digital assets are constantly developing and changing, and there may be additional risks in the future that are not possible to predict. See "—XRP and other digital assets are novel assets, which will expose Pubco to significant legal, commercial and regulatory uncertainty, which could materially adversely affect Pubco's financial position, operations and prospects."

Recent developments in the digital asset economy have led to extreme volatility and disruption in digital asset markets, a loss of confidence in participants of the digital asset ecosystem, significant negative publicity surrounding digital assets broadly and market-wide declines in liquidity.

Beginning in the fourth quarter of 2021, and continuing throughout 2022 and 2023, digital asset prices fell precipitously. This has led to volatility and disruption in the digital asset markets and financial difficulties for several prominent industry participants, including digital asset trading platforms, hedge funds and lending platforms. For example, in the first half of 2022, digital asset lenders Celsius Network LLC and Voyager Digital Ltd. and digital asset hedge fund Three Arrows Capital each declared bankruptcy, and the stablecoin TerraUSD collapsed. These events caused a loss of confidence in participants in the digital asset ecosystem, negative publicity surrounding digital assets more broadly, and market-wide declines in digital asset trading prices and liquidity.

Thereafter, in November 2022, FTX, the third largest digital asset trading platform by volume at the time, halted customer withdrawals amid rumors of the company's liquidity issues and likely insolvency. Shortly thereafter, FTX's CEO resigned and FTX and numerous affiliates of FTX filed for bankruptcy. The U.S. Department of Justice subsequently brought criminal charges, including charges of fraud, violations of federal securities laws, money laundering, and campaign finance offenses, against FTX's former CEO and others. Subsequently, in November 2023, FTX's CEO was found guilty by a federal jury on all seven criminal counts against him, including fraud and conspiracy to commit wire fraud, conspiracy to commit securities fraud, conspiracy to commit commodities fraud, and conspiracy to commit money laundering. FTX is also under investigation by the SEC, the Justice Department, and the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, as well as by various regulatory authorities in the Bahamas, Europe and other jurisdictions. In response to these events, the digital asset markets have experienced extreme price volatility and declines in liquidity, and regulatory and enforcement scrutiny has increased, including from the DOJ, the SEC, the CFTC, the White House and Congress. Following FTX's bankruptcy filing, several other entities in the digital asset industry filed for bankruptcy, such as BlockFi Inc. and Genesis Global Capital, LLC. Additionally, in November 2023, the DOJ, CFTC and U.S. Department of the Treasury settled charges against Binance for violations of U.S. AML and sanctions laws, among other alleged violations. The SEC also brought charges against Genesis Global Capital, LLC and Gemini Trust Company, LLC on January 12, 2023, for their alleged unregistered offer and sale of securities to retail investors.

The collapse of TerraUSD and the bankruptcy filings of FTX, Celsius, Voyager and BlockFi have resulted in calls for heightened scrutiny and regulation of the digital asset industry, with a specific focus on digital asset trading platforms, and custodians. Federal and state legislatures and regulatory agencies are expected to introduce and enact new laws and regulations to regulate digital asset intermediaries, such as digital asset trading platforms and custodians. The U.S. regulatory regime— Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve, the U.S. Congress and certain U.S. agencies (e.g., the SEC, the CFTC, the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network ("FinCEN"), the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the Federal Bureau of Investigation) as well as the White House—have issued reports and releases concerning digital assets, including XRP and digital asset markets. However, the extent and content of any forthcoming laws and regulations are not yet ascertainable with certainty and may not be ascertainable in the near future. It is possible that new laws and increased regulation and regulatory scrutiny may require Pubco to comply with certain regulatory regimes or devote increased time and attention to regulatory matters, which could result in new costs for Pubco. New laws, regulations and regulatory actions could significantly restrict or eliminate the market for, or uses of, digital assets including XRP, which could have a negative effect on the price of XRP, which in turn would have a negative effect on the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock. These events are continuing to develop at a rapid pace and it is not possible to predict at this time all of the risks that they may pose to Pubco or to the digital asset industry as a whole.

In addition, recent macroeconomic and political developments, including tariff-related and broader trade-policy uncertainty associated with President Donald Trump's administration, have contributed to "risk-off" market conditions and increased volatility across financial markets, including digital asset markets, which has adversely affected the price of XRP. For example, XRP traded at approximately $2.85 in early September 2025 and was approximately $1.64 as of February 2, 2026 (and traded as low as approximately $1.58 on January 30, 2026), reflecting a material decline and significant volatility over that period. Continued uncertainty regarding tariffs, trade relations, geopolitical developments and other political events could further reduce market liquidity and investor risk appetite, and could cause additional declines in the price of XRP. In the short term, lower XRP pricing may result in decreased investor interest in the Company's common stock, lower trading volumes, difficulty raising additional capital on favorable terms and challenges in borrowing against XRP holdings. Therefore, any sustained decline in the price of XRP could adversely affect our ability to execute our short- and long-term business plans (including by making it more difficult for us to raise capital on acceptable terms, pursue strategic opportunities or monetize XRP holdings without realizing losses), and could adversely affect the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Continued disruption and instability in the digital asset markets as these events develop, including further declines in the trading prices and liquidity of XRP, could have a material adverse effect on the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock, and the Pubco Class A Common Stock could lose all or substantially all of their value.

Pubco will operate in a highly competitive environment and will compete against companies and other entities with similar strategies, including companies with significant holdings of XRP and/or other digital assets and ETFs and ETPs for XRP and other digital assets, and Pubco's business, operating results and financial condition may be adversely affected if Pubco is unable to compete effectively.

The digital assets industry is highly innovative, rapidly evolving and characterized by healthy competition, experimentation, changing customer needs, frequent introductions of new products and services, and subject to uncertain and evolving industry and regulatory requirements. We expect competition to further intensify in the future. We compete against a number of companies operating both within the United States and abroad, and both those that focus on traditional financial services and those that focus on XRP-based services. Our main competition falls into the following categories:

- traditional financial firms that have entered the XRP market in recent years and offer overlapping features targeted at our future customers;
- financial technology providers that do not focus on XRP and may attempt to position themselves as a safer alternative to our future products and services;
- companies with significant holdings of XRP and/or other digital assets;
- companies focused on the XRP market, some of whom choose to operate outside of local rules and regulations or in jurisdictions with less stringent local rules and regulations and are potentially able to more quickly adapt to trends and to develop new XRP-based products and services due to a different standard of regulatory scrutiny;
- newly launched or recently formed "digital asset treasury strategy" businesses (including publicly traded companies and SPAC vehicles) that raise capital and seek to acquire and hold XRP and/or other digital assets as a core part of their strategy; and
- the emergence or growth of digital assets other than XRP may have a material adverse effect on our financial condition and the numerous alternative digital assets and many entities, including consortiums and financial institutions, which are researching and investing resources into private or permissioned blockchain platforms or digital assets that use proof-of-work mining like the Bitcoin network or utilize a "proof-of-stake" mechanism similar to Ethereum.

In particular, in recent periods, a growing number of companies and investment vehicles have adopted or announced "digital asset treasury strategy" business models under which they raise capital in the public markets and use proceeds to acquire and hold significant positions in particular digital assets, including VivoPower International PLC and Webus International Limited. The recent launch of, and increased investor interest in, such digital asset treasury strategy businesses—whether focused on XRP or other digital assets—may increase competition for investor capital and market attention and could adversely affect us. These competitors may be viewed by investors as more attractive vehicles for obtaining exposure to XRP (or digital assets generally), may have different fee structures, leverage profiles or liquidity characteristics, and may be able to raise capital on terms more favorable than we can. Moreover, new entrants with greater financial resources or different strategic approaches could impact the Company's market position and ability to execute its strategy. As a result, we may face increased difficulty raising capital, acquiring XRP on attractive terms or maintaining investor demand for Pubco Class A Common Stock. Further, to the extent any of these treasury strategy businesses accumulate, hold or dispose of significant amounts of XRP, their activities could contribute to XRP price volatility and liquidity dislocations, which could, in turn, adversely affect the value of our XRP holdings and the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

If we are unable to compete successfully, or if competing successfully requires us to take costly actions in response to the actions of our competitors, our business, operating results and financial condition could be adversely affected.

Moreover, the range of options to gain exposure to XRP may expand in the future. If investors choose to gain such exposure through ETPs, companies with significant XRP holdings or other similar strategies, rather than shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, Pubco's business, operating results and financial condition may be adversely affected. Investors may view Pubco Class A Common Stock as an alternative to an investment in an ETP, and choose to purchase shares of a spot XRP ETP instead of Pubco Class A Common Stock. They may do so for a variety of reasons, including if they believe that ETPs offer a "pure play" exposure to XRP that is generally not subject to federal income tax at the entity level as we may be, or the other risks that may affect other parts of our business. Additionally, unlike spot XRP ETPs:

- we do not seek for our shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock to passively track the value of the underlying XRP we hold before payment of expenses and liabilities;
- we do not benefit from various exemptions and relief under the Exchange Act, including Regulation M, and other securities laws, which enable ETPs to continuously align the value of their shares to the price of the underlying assets they hold through share creation and redemption;
- we are a Nevada corporation rather than a statutory trust, and do not operate pursuant to a trust agreement that would require us to pursue one or more stated investment objectives; and
- we are not required to provide daily transparency as to our XRP holdings or our daily net asset value. Furthermore, recommendations by broker-dealers to buy, hold or sell complex products and non-traditional ETPs, or an investment strategy involving such products, may be subject to additional or heightened scrutiny that would not be applicable to broker-dealers making recommendations with respect to Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Based on how we are viewed in the market relative to ETPs, and other vehicles which offer economic exposure to XRP, such as XRP futures ETFs, leveraged XRP futures ETFs and similar vehicles offered on international exchanges, any premium or discount in Pubco Class A Common Stock relative to the value of our XRP holdings may increase or decrease in different market conditions. As a result of the foregoing factors, availability of spot ETPs for XRP and other digital assets could have a material adverse effect on the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

If the Company or its third-party service providers experience a security breach or cyberattack and unauthorized parties obtain access to the Company's XRP, or if the Company's private XRP keys are lost or destroyed, or other similar circumstances or events occur, including the ability to reverse engineer private keys, the Company may lose some or all of its XRP and the Company's financial condition and results of operations could be materially adversely affected.

We will hold our XRP with a regulated custodian that has duties to safeguard our private keys. Generally, custodial services contracts do not restrict the ability to reallocate XRP among custodians. However, all of the XRP that we will own will initially be held in custody accounts at BitGo Bank & Trust, National Association (f/k/a BitGo Trust Company, Inc.) ("BitGo"), a digital asset custodian servicing institution. In light of the significant amount of XRP we will hold, we may seek to engage additional custodians to achieve a greater degree of diversification in the custody of our XRP as the extent of potential risk of loss is dependent, in part, on the degree of diversification. If there is a decrease in the availability of digital asset custodians that we believe can safely custody our XRP, for example, due to regulatory developments or enforcement actions that cause custodians to discontinue or limit their services in the United States, we may need to enter into agreements that are less favorable or take other measures to custody our XRP, and our ability to seek a greater degree of diversification in the use of custodial services could be materially adversely affected.

Insurance to cover losses of our future XRP holdings, if any, will be shared among all of BitGo's clients and as such will likely only cover a small fraction of the value of the entirety of the XRP holdings, and there can be no guarantee that such insurance may be obtained or maintained as part of the custodial services we will have or that such coverage will cover losses with respect to our XRP. Moreover, our use of custodians exposes us to the risk that the XRP our custodians will hold on our behalf could be subject to insolvency proceedings and we could be treated as a general unsecured creditor of the custodian, inhibiting our ability to exercise ownership rights with respect to such XRP. Any loss associated with such insolvency proceedings is unlikely to be covered by any insurance coverage we will maintain related to our XRP.

XRP is controllable only by the possessor of both the unique public key and private key(s) relating to the local or online digital wallet in which the XRP is held. While the XRP Ledger requires the public address associated with a wallet to be visible once that wallet initiates a transaction, private keys must be safeguarded and kept private in order to prevent a third party from accessing the XRP held in such wallet. To the extent the private key(s) for a digital wallet are lost, destroyed or otherwise compromised and no backup of the private key(s) is accessible, neither we nor our custodians will be able to access the XRP held in the related digital wallet. Furthermore, we cannot provide assurance that our digital wallets, nor the digital wallets of our custodians held on our behalf, will not be compromised as a result of a cyberattack. The XRP Ledger, and blockchain networks more broadly, have been and may in the future be subject to cyberattacks, network disruptions or other malicious activities that could result in loss or theft of XRP or other digital assets.

Security breaches and cyberattacks are of particular concern with respect to our XRP. XRP and other blockchain-based digital assets and the entities that provide services to participants in the XRP ecosystem have been, and may in the future be, subject to security breaches, cyberattacks or other malicious activities. For example, in October 2021 it was reported that hackers exploited a flaw in the account recovery process and stole from the accounts of at least 6,000 customers of Coinbase , although the flaw was subsequently fixed and Coinbase reimbursed affected customers. Similarly, in November 2022, hackers exploited weaknesses in the security architecture of the FTX Trading Ltd. digital asset trading platform and reportedly stole over $400 million in digital assets from customers. In 2024, hackers stole an estimated total of $2.2 billion in digital assets from digital asset platforms. In February 2025, $1.5 billion of digital assets was stolen from a single digital asset trading platform, Bybit, operated by Bybit Fintech Limited. A successful security breach or cyberattack could result in:

- a partial or total loss of our XRP in a manner that may not be covered by insurance or the liability provisions of the custody agreements with the custodians who hold our XRP;
- harm to our reputation and brand;
- improper disclosure of data and violations of applicable data privacy and other laws; or
- significant regulatory scrutiny, investigations, fines, penalties and other legal, regulatory, contractual and financial exposure.

Further, any actual or perceived data security breach or cybersecurity attack directed at other companies with digital assets or companies that operate digital asset networks, regardless of whether we are directly impacted, could lead to a general loss of confidence in the broader XRP blockchain ecosystem or in the use of the XRP Ledger to conduct financial transactions, which could negatively impact us.

Attacks upon systems across a variety of industries, including industries related to XRP, are increasing in frequency, persistence and sophistication, and, in many cases, are being conducted by sophisticated, well-funded and organized groups and individuals, including state actors. The techniques used to obtain unauthorized, improper or illegal access to systems and information (including personal data and digital assets), disable or degrade services, or sabotage systems are constantly evolving, may be difficult to detect quickly, and often are not recognized or detected until after they have been launched against a target. These attacks may occur on our systems or those of our third-party service providers or partners. We may experience breaches of our security measures due to human error, malfeasance, insider threats, system errors or vulnerabilities or other irregularities. In particular, unauthorized parties may attempt to gain access to our systems and facilities, as well as those of our partners and third-party service providers, through various means, such as hacking, social engineering, phishing and fraud. Threats can come from a variety of sources, including criminal hackers, hacktivists, state-sponsored intrusions, industrial espionage and insiders. In addition, certain types of attacks could harm us even if our systems are left undisturbed. For example, certain threats are designed to remain dormant or undetectable, sometimes for extended periods of time or until launched against a target and we may not be able to implement adequate preventative measures. The risk of cyberattacks could also be increased by cyberwarfare in connection with the ongoing Russia-Ukraine and Israel-Hamas conflicts, or other future conflicts, including potential proliferation of malware into systems unrelated to such conflicts. Any future breach of our operations or those of others in the XRP industry, including third-party services on which we rely, could materially and adversely affect our business, results of operations and financial condition.

The price of XRP may be affected due to stablecoins (including Tether and USDC), the activities of stablecoin issuers and their regulatory treatment.

While Pubco does not intend to invest in stablecoins, it may nonetheless be exposed to risks that stablecoins pose for the XRP market and other digital asset markets. Stablecoins are digital assets designed to have a stable value over time as compared to typically volatile digital assets, and are typically marketed as being pegged to a fiat currency, such as the U.S. dollar, at a certain value. Although the prices of stablecoins are intended to be stable, their market value may fluctuate. This volatility has in the past apparently impacted the price of XRP. Stablecoins are a relatively new phenomenon and it is impossible to know all of the risks that they could pose to participants in the XRP market. In addition, some have argued that some stablecoins, particularly Tether, are improperly issued without sufficient backing in a way that, when the stablecoin is used to pay for XRP, could cause artificial rather than genuine demand for XRP, artificially inflating the price of XRP, and also argue that those associated with certain stablecoins may be involved in laundering money. On February 17, 2021, the New York Attorney General entered into an agreement with Tether's operators, requiring them to cease any further trading activity with New York persons and pay $18.5 million in penalties for false and misleading statements made regarding the assets backing Tether. On October 15, 2021, the CFTC announced a settlement with Tether's operators in which they agreed to pay $42.5 million in fines to settle charges that, among others, Tether's claims that it maintained sufficient U.S. dollar reserves to back every Tether stablecoin in circulation with the "equivalent amount of corresponding fiat currency" held by Tether were untrue.

USDC is a reserve-backed stablecoin issued by Circle Internet Financial that is commonly used as a method of payment in digital asset markets, including the XRP market. While USDC is designed to maintain a stable value at US $1.00 at all times, on March 10, 2023, the value of USDC fell below US $1.00 for multiple days after Circle Internet Financial disclosed that US$3.3 billion of the USDC reserves were held at Silicon Valley Bank, which had entered FDIC receivership earlier that day. Stablecoins are reliant on the U.S. banking system and U.S. treasuries, and the failure of either to function normally could impede the function of stablecoins, and therefore could adversely affect the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Given the foundational role that stablecoins play in global digital asset markets, their fundamental liquidity can have a dramatic impact on the broader digital asset market, including the market for XRP. Because a large portion of the digital asset market still depends on stablecoins such as Tether and USDC, there is a risk that a disorderly de-pegging or a run on Tether or USDC could lead to dramatic market volatility in digital assets more broadly. Volatility in stablecoins, operational issues with stablecoins (for example, technical issues that prevent settlement), concerns about the sufficiency of any reserves that support stablecoins or potential manipulative activity when unbacked stablecoins are used to pay for other digital assets (including XRP), or regulatory concerns about stablecoin issuers or intermediaries, such as digital asset trading platforms, that support stablecoins, could impact individuals' willingness to trade on trading venues that rely on stablecoins, reduce liquidity in the XRP market, and affect the price of XRP, and in turn impact an investment in the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Our ability to meet our financial obligations depend in part on the market value and perception of XRP, which may fluctuate significantly.

As part of our XRP strategy, we may incur indebtedness and other fixed charges. On November 6, 2025, Pubco entered into the Evernorth Facility Agreement and the Company entered into the Company Facility Agreement (each as defined below), each of which were subsequently amended on February 11, 2026, under which we may borrow up to an aggregate of $8.0 million. See "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—The Company's Relationships and Related Party Transactions." If our businesses do not generate cash flow in future periods sufficient to satisfy our financial obligations, including our debt and other financial obligations, we intend to fund our obligations using cash flow generated by equity or debt financings. Our ability to obtain equity or debt financing may in turn depend on, among other factors, the value of our XRP holdings, investor sentiment and the general public perception of XRP, our strategy and our value proposition. Accordingly, a significant decline in the market value of our XRP holdings or a negative shift in these other factors may create liquidity and credit risks, as such a decline or such shifts may adversely impact our ability to secure sufficient equity or debt financing to satisfy our financial obligations, including our debt and other financial obligations.

These risks could materialize at times when XRP is trading below its carrying value on our most recent balance sheet or below our cost basis. As XRP will constitute a substantial part of our balance sheet, if we are unable to generate revenue from our anticipated XRP-related activities and services or secure equity or debt financing in a timely manner, on favorable terms, or at all, we may be required to sell XRP to satisfy these obligations. Any such sale of XRP may have a material adverse effect on our operating results and financial condition, and could impair our ability to secure additional equity or debt financing in the future. Our inability to secure additional equity or debt financing in a timely manner, on favorable terms or at all, or to sell our XRP in amounts and at prices sufficient to satisfy our financial obligations, including our debt service obligations, could cause us to default under such obligations. Any default on our indebtedness may have a material adverse effect on our financial condition.

XRP price volatility and sustained declines could cause losses and adversely affect our business, financial condition and ability to execute our strategy.

The XRP market has been characterized by significant volatility and unexpected price movements, and has previously experienced significant declines. XRP may become more volatile and less liquid in a very short period of time. As previously discussed in this section, a series of recent high-profile bankruptcies, closures, liquidations, regulatory enforcement actions and other events relating to companies operating in the digital asset industry have highlighted the counterparty risks applicable to owning and transacting in digital assets. See "—Recent developments in the digital asset economy have led to extreme volatility and disruption in digital asset markets, a loss of confidence in participants of the digital asset ecosystem, significant negative publicity surrounding digital assets broadly and market-wide declines in liquidity."

These bankruptcies, closures, liquidations and other events have created significant volatility in the markets for digital assets generally. Additional bankruptcies, closures, liquidations, regulatory enforcement actions or other events involving participants in the digital assets industry in the future could result in market prices being subject to erratic and abrupt market movement, which could harm our business. Centralized trading platforms allow users to deposit their digital assets to platforms that serve as intermediaries for buyers and sellers whereas decentralized trading platforms allow users to make peer-to-peer digital asset trades while maintaining control of their private keys. When some digital asset trading platforms are viewed as higher risk, that price differential can widen as traders attempt to exploit these differences. Volatility in the price of XRP, as well as the lack of a standard price, could lead consumers to see XRP as an unsafe asset. In addition, if we were to attempt to monetize the XRP we hold on our balance sheet, such price volatility could lead to trading losses, impacting our financial position.

For example, based on the price data from U.S. digital asset trading platform market Coinbase, on January 1, 2024, the price of XRP was approximately $0.63. By November 30, 2024, the price of XRP had increased over threefold to approximately $1.95. The upward trend continued into 2025, with XRP reaching approximately $2.19 on March 1, 2025, and climbing to an intramonth high of $3.67 in July 2025. The price then declined to approximately $1.62 as of February 2, 2026 (and traded as low as approximately $1.50 on January 31, 2026). Overall, between early 2024 and January 2026, the closing price of XRP fluctuated from lows near $0.40 to highs exceeding $3.50, reflecting sharp price swings and significant volatility. Such volatility affects the overall value of our XRP holdings and, in turn, could cause volatility in the market price of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Because our strategy contemplates holding significant amounts of XRP and may depend on our ability to access capital markets to fund operations, pursue strategic initiatives and opportunistically acquire additional XRP (or make other investments), continued weakness in XRP's price could reduce the value of our assets, increase the volatility of our financial results, and make it more difficult or more expensive for us to raise additional capital on acceptable terms (or at all), including due to reduced investor demand for our securities or increased dilution at lower valuation levels. In addition, sustained XRP price declines could cause our stock to trade at a significant discount to the value of our XRP holdings, limit our strategic flexibility, and require us to delay, scale back or abandon elements of our long-term business plan (including potential acquisitions, product development and other growth initiatives), any of which could adversely affect our business, financial condition and results of operations and the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

The trading volume of XRP typically increases during periods of extreme volatility. For example, based on the price and dollar value volume data from U.S. digital asset trading platform market Coinbase, during November 2024, when the price of XRP rose sharply from approximately $0.51 on October 31, 2024 to approximately $1.95 by November 30, 2024, monthly trading volume surged from approximately $25.9 million in October 2024 to more than $343.6 million in November 2024. Similarly, during periods of heightened trading activity in 2025, monthly average daily volume exceeded $543 million in January 2025 and remained near or above $200 million through May, coinciding with XRP's price climbing from approximately $2.33 at the start of the year to intramonth highs of $3.67 in July 2025. Such spikes in trading volume often accompany sharp price movements and can place extreme pressure on trading platforms and related infrastructure, occasionally resulting in temporary disruptions or outages. Outages can lead to increased service expense, reputational damage, regulatory inquiries or actions and other adverse effects, any of which could harm our business.

Pubco's XRP holdings will be less liquid than its cash and cash equivalents and may not be able to serve as a source of liquidity for Pubco.

A substantial part of Pubco's assets will be XRP. Historically, the XRP markets have been characterized by significant volatility in price, limited liquidity and trading volumes compared to sovereign currencies markets, relative anonymity, a developing regulatory landscape, potential susceptibility to market abuse and manipulation, compliance and internal control failures at digital asset trading platforms and various other risks inherent in its entirely electronic, virtual form and decentralized network. During times of market instability, we may not be able to sell our XRP at favorable prices or at all. For example, a number of digital assets trading venues temporarily halted deposits and withdrawals in 2022, although notably, others such as Coinbase , have, to date, not done so. As a result, our XRP holdings may not be able to serve as a source of liquidity for us to the same extent as cash and cash equivalents.

Further, XRP held by custodians, including our custodians, does not enjoy the same protections as are available to cash or securities deposited with or transacted by institutions subject to regulation by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or the Securities Investor Protection Corporation. Additionally, we may be unable to enter into term loans, bonds or other capital raising transactions collateralized by our unencumbered XRP or otherwise generate funds using our XRP holdings, including in particular during times of market instability or when the price of XRP has declined significantly. If we are unable to sell our XRP, enter into additional capital raising transactions using unencumbered XRP as collateral, or otherwise generate funds using our XRP holdings, or if we are forced to sell our XRP at a significant loss, in order to meet our debt obligations, if any, or our working capital requirements, our business and financial condition could be negatively impacted.

In the ordinary course of business managing its XRP holding as an XRP treasury company, Pubco may purchase XRP through spot markets which may be exposed to fraud and market manipulation, including through front running and wash trading, which may adversely affect the value of the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

In the ordinary course of business managing its XRP holding as an XRP treasury company, Pubco may purchase XRP through spot markets. Over the past several years, some digital asset trading platforms and spot markets have been closed or faced issues due to fraud and manipulative activity, business failure or security breaches. In many of these instances, the customers of such digital asset trading platforms and spot markets were not compensated or made whole for the partial or complete losses of their account balances in such digital asset trading platforms. In particular, the blockchain infrastructure could be used by certain market participants to exploit arbitrage opportunities through schemes such as front-running, spoofing, pump-and-dump and fraud across different systems, platforms or geographic locations. As a result of reduced oversight, these schemes may be more prevalent in digital asset markets than in the general market for financial products.

The SEC has identified possible sources of fraud and manipulation in the digital asset markets generally, including, among others (1) "wash trading"; (2) persons with a dominant position in a digital asset manipulating the digital asset's pricing; (3) hacking of the digital asset's network and trading platforms; (4) malicious control of the digital asset network; (5) trading based on material, non-public information (for example, plans of market participants to significantly increase or decrease their holdings in the digital assets, new sources of demand for the digital asset, etc.) or based on the dissemination of false and misleading information; (6) manipulative activity involving purported "stablecoins"; and (7) fraud and manipulation at digital asset trading platforms. The effect of potential market manipulation, front-running, wash-trading and other fraudulent or manipulative trading practices may inflate the volumes actually present in the digital asset markets and/or cause distortions in price, which could adversely affect Pubco or cause losses to its shareholders.

For instance, in 2022, there were reports claiming that more than half of Bitcoin trading volume on digital asset trading platforms was fake. Such reports alleged that certain overseas digital asset trading platforms have displayed suspicious trading activity suggestive of a variety of manipulative or fraudulent practices. Other academics and market observers have put forth evidence to support claims that manipulative trading activity has occurred on certain Bitcoin trading platforms. For example, in a 2017 paper titled "Price Manipulation in the Bitcoin Ecosystem" sponsored by the Interdisciplinary Cyber Research Center at Tel Aviv University, a group of researchers used publicly available trading data, as well as leaked transaction data from a 2014 Mt. Gox security breach, to identify and analyze the impact of "suspicious trading activity" on Mt. Gox between February and November 2013, which, according to the authors, caused the price of Bitcoin to increase from around $150 to more than $1,000 over a two-month period. In August 2017, it was reported that a trader or group of traders nicknamed "Spoofy" was placing large orders on Bitfinex without actually executing them, presumably in order to influence other investors into buying or selling by creating a false appearance that greater demand existed in the market. In December 2017, an anonymous blogger (publishing under the pseudonym Bitfinex'd) cited publicly available trading data to support his or her claim that a trading bot nicknamed "Picasso" was pursuing a paint-the-tape-style manipulation strategy by buying and selling Bitcoin and Bitcoin cash between affiliated accounts in order to create the appearance of substantial trading activity and thereby influence the price of such assets.

The potential consequences of a spot market's failure or failure to prevent market manipulation could adversely affect the value of the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock. Any market abuse, and a loss of investor confidence in XRP, may adversely impact pricing trends in XRP markets broadly, as well as an investment in shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock. For more information, see "Risks Related to XRP and the XRP Ledger—The price of XRP on available spot markets may be exposed to wash trading" and "—The price of XRP on available spot markets may be exposed to front-running."

Pubco may be exposed to sanctions and illicit finance risks, which could subject Pubco to criminal and civil liabilities and impact the value of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock in the event of a compliance failure.

Although transaction details of peer-to-peer transactions are recorded on the XRP Ledger, a buyer or seller of digital assets on a peer-to-peer basis directly on the XRP Ledger may never know to whom the public key belongs or the true identity of the party with whom it is transacting. Public key addresses are randomized sequences of alphanumeric characters that, standing alone, do not provide sufficient information to identify users. In addition, certain technologies may obscure the origin or chain of custody of digital assets. The opaque nature of the market poses asset verification challenges for market participants, regulators and auditors and gives rise to an increased risk of manipulation and fraud, including the potential for Ponzi schemes, bucket shops and pump-and-dump schemes. Digital assets have in the past been used to facilitate illicit activities. If a digital asset were used to facilitate illicit activities, businesses that facilitate transactions in such digital assets could be at increased risk of potential criminal or civil liability or lawsuits, or of having banking or other services cut off, and such digital asset could be removed from digital asset platforms. Any of the aforementioned occurrences could adversely affect the price of the relevant digital asset, the attractiveness of the respective blockchain network and an investment in the Pubco Class A Common Stock. If Pubco were to transact with a sanctioned entity or otherwise violate sanctions laws, Pubco would also be at risk of potential criminal or civil lawsuits or liability.

Pubco aims to take measures with the objective of reducing illicit financing risks in connection with our activities. However, illicit financing risks are present in the digital asset markets, including markets for XRP. There can be no assurance that the measures employed by Pubco will prove successful in reducing illicit financing risks, and Pubco will be subject to the complex illicit financing risks and vulnerabilities present in the digital asset markets. If such risks eventuate, Pubco could face civil or criminal liability, fines, penalties or other punishments, be subject to investigation, have our assets frozen, lose access to banking services or services provided by other service providers or suffer disruptions to their operations, any of which could negatively affect Pubco's ability to operate or cause losses in value of the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

At Closing, Pubco will maintain policies and procedures that are designed to ensure that Pubco does not violate applicable sanctions laws and regulations and to mitigate illicit finance risk. Pubco is not subject to the requirements of the Bank Secrecy Act of 1970 ("BSA") and therefore is not legally required to adopt an AML compliance program under U.S. law; however, Pubco is voluntarily implementing AML and know-your-customer ("KYC") controls to mitigate illicit finance risk exposure and prevent its business activities from being used for money laundering, terrorist financing or sanctions evasion. The Company has established the foundational elements of its AML compliance and sanctions framework, including the adoption of a policy architecture and governance structure, although prior to Closing, certain components will remain subject to ongoing implementation as the Company prepares to commence full-scale operations. Pubco's compliance framework will be informed by its risk profile and will utilize blockchain analytics tools and other risk-based measures to assess wallet characteristics, transactional behavior, and exposure to sanctioned persons or jurisdictions, illicit activity, and typologies associated with money laundering, terrorist financing or sanctions evasion. Pubco's compliance framework will also include, among other things, sanctions screening against OFAC and other relevant sanctions lists. Sanctions screening will be conducted prior to engaging with counterparties and periodically thereafter, based on risk.

There is no guarantee that such procedures will always be effective. If third parties that the Company and/or Pubco transact with or through have inadequate policies, procedures and controls for complying with applicable sanctions laws or Pubco's diligence is ineffective, violations of such laws could result, which could result in regulatory liability for Pubco under such laws, including governmental fines, penalties, and other punishments, as well as potential liability to or cessation of services by BitGo. Any of the foregoing could impact the value of Pubco Class A Common Stock or negatively affect Pubco's ability to operate.

Pubco's compliance and risk management methods, including with respect to any lending or hypothecation of Pubco's XRP, might not be effective and may result in outcomes that could adversely affect Pubco's reputation, operating results and financial condition.

Our ability to comply with applicable complex and evolving laws, regulations and rules is largely dependent on the establishment, maintenance and scaling of our compliance, internal audit and reporting systems, as well as our ability to attract and retain qualified compliance and other risk management personnel. We cannot assure you that our policies and procedures will always be effective or that we have been and will always be successful in monitoring or evaluating the risks to which we are or may be exposed in all market environments or against all types of risks, including unidentified or unanticipated risks. Our risk management policies and procedures are expected to rely on a combination of technical and human controls and supervision that are subject to error and failure. Some of our methods for managing risk are discretionary by nature and are based on internally developed controls and observed historical market behavior, and also involve reliance on standard industry practices. Accordingly, in the future, we may identify gaps in such policies and procedures or existing gaps may become higher risk, and may require significant resources and management attention. Our risk management policies and procedures also may not adequately prevent losses due to technical errors if our testing and quality control practices are not effective in preventing failures. In addition, we may elect to adjust our risk management policies and procedures to allow for an increase in risk tolerance, which could expose us to the risk of greater losses.

Any potential regulators who may have jurisdiction over us, including in the future, may periodically review our compliance program, including our policies and procedures, and with applicable law. We may from time to time receive examination reports citing violations of applicable law and inadequacies in existing compliance programs requiring us to enhance certain practices with respect to our practices or compliance program, including due diligence, training, monitoring, reporting and recordkeeping. If we fail to comply with these, or do not adequately remediate certain findings, regulators and financial institution partners could take a variety of actions that could impair our ability to conduct our business, including, but not limited to, delaying, denying, withdrawing or conditioning approval of certain products and services. In addition, regulators have broad enforcement powers to censure, fine, issue cease and desist orders, that may prohibit us from engaging in some of our business activities, or revoke any licenses we may obtain in the future. We face significant intervention by regulatory authorities, including extensive auditing and surveillance activities, and will continue to face the risk of significant intervention by regulatory authorities and potential future financial institution partners in the future. In the case of noncompliance or alleged noncompliance, we could be subject to investigations and proceedings that may result in substantial penalties or civil lawsuits, including by customers, for damages, which can be a significant loss to us or our financial institution partner(s). Any of these outcomes would adversely affect our reputation and brand and our business, operating results and financial condition. Some of these outcomes could adversely affect our ability to conduct our business.

In the future, we may engage in other XRP-related activities and services that are subject to regulation. This could include XRP-related debt and equity structured products and XRP-related lending or hypothecation activities. We have not previously engaged in these business lines and we may be unable to implement our business plan, including, without limitation, due to operational challenges, significant competition and regulation. We could also incur indebtedness or enter into other financial instruments in the future that may be collateralized by our XRP holdings or pursue other strategies to create income streams or otherwise generate funds using our XRP holdings. These offerings are expected to be highly regulated, any failure to obtain or maintain necessary money transmission, banking services and/or virtual currency business activity registrations and licenses, or comply with any applicable laws, rules and regulations could adversely affect our ability to offer these services. See "—XRP's status as a 'security' in any relevant jurisdiction, as well as the status of XRP-related products and services in general, is subject to a high degree of uncertainty, and if Pubco is unable to properly characterize such product or service offering, Pubco may be subject to regulatory scrutiny, inquiries, investigations, fines and other penalties, which may adversely affect Pubco's business, operating results and financial condition." Regulators and payment processors have historically taken actions relating to access to banking services. Heightened scrutiny by regulators could be detrimental to our long-term strategy and failure to comply with regulators during and after our engagement in such activities could damage our brand, reputation, business, operating results and financial condition.

Further, Pubco has not previously engaged in such XRP-related products or services, and may be unable to implement a business strategy to successfully deliver these additional services. We cannot guarantee our success to deliver these services. However, if we fail to keep pace with rapid industry changes to provide new and innovative products and services, and are unable to offer such financial services to generate revenue, this could adversely impact our business, operating results and financial condition. The further development and acceptance of blockchain networks and other digital asset related financial services, which represent a new and rapidly changing industry, are subject to a variety of factors that are difficult to predict and evaluate. Conversely, the slowing or stopping of the development or acceptance of digital asset systems may also adversely affect our ability to implement this business strategy.

Even if we are able to expand our future operations, we cannot guarantee that we will convince future customers to use these products or services. If our future customers decrease their level of engagement with our products, services and platform, our business, operating results and financial condition may be significantly harmed.

Pubco will not directly or indirectly participate in any staking program, and accordingly holders of Pubco Class A Common Stock will not receive any staking rewards or other income.

The XRP Ledger does not use proof-of-stake validation. Accordingly, neither Pubco, nor any other person associated with Pubco, will, directly or indirectly, engage in action where any portion of Pubco's XRP becomes subject to proof-of-stake validation on the XRP Ledger that would cause it to earn additional XRP or generate rewards or other income. Although we intend to engage in certain other activities with a portion of its XRP holdings which could generate yield or income on such assets, there can be no guarantee that we will be successful in doing so. Accordingly, Pubco may underperform other pooled investment vehicles holding digital assets that exist on proof-of-stake networks and as such can participate in staking their treasury assets on that asset's underlying blockchain network. Investors who seek to participate in staking rewards should consider other investment options.

Our limited insurance protection exposes us and our shareholders to the risk of loss of our XRP for which no person is liable.

We do not expect to maintain insurance coverage for our XRP holdings, which will be held in custody by our custodians. Our future custodians may maintain a certain insurance coverage of such types and amounts as they assert to be commercially reasonable for their custodial services provided under our custody agreements with them, including certain commercial crime insurance of limited aggregate principal amount which covers losses stemming from fraud, security breach, hack and asset theft. However, such insurance coverage may be insufficient to protect us against all losses of our XRP holdings held in custody with our custodians, whether or not stemming from security breaches, cyberattacks or other types of unlawful activity. Therefore, a loss may be suffered with respect to our XRP that is not covered by insurance and for which no person is liable in damages, which could adversely affect our operations and, consequently, an investment in us.

The accounting treatment of our XRP holdings is likely to have significant accounting impacts, including volatility of our results. If financial accounting standards undergo significant changes, our operating results could fluctuate.

In December 2023, the FASB issued ASU 2023-08, effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2024. ASU 2023-08 would require us to measure in-scope crypto assets at fair value in our statement of financial position, and to recognize gains and losses from changes in the fair value of our in-scope crypto assets in net income each reporting period. ASU 2023-08 would also require us to provide certain interim and annual disclosures with respect to our in-scope crypto assets. Prior to the closing of the Transactions, we are out of scope of ASU 2023-08. Upon consummation of the Transactions, the Company and Pubco will be related parties to Ripple Labs, Inc. and will no longer be wholly owned subsidiaries of, or consolidated by, Ripple Labs. As a result of the change in ownership structure, management reassessed the applicability of ASU 2023-08 and determined that the Company's and Pubco's XRP holdings do not meet the scoping criteria of ASC 350-60-15-1f. Accordingly, the XRP holdings continue to be accounted for as indefinite-lived intangible assets under ASC 350-30, measured at historical cost less accumulated impairment. For US GAAP purposes, the Company's and Pubco's XRP holdings remain subject to the cost-less-impairment model upon consummation of the Transactions.

Additionally, on March 31, 2022, the staff of the SEC issued Staff Accounting Bulletin ("SAB") No. 121 ("SAB 121"), which represented a significant change regarding how a company safeguarding crypto assets held for its platform users reports such crypto assets on its balance sheet and required retrospective application as of January 1, 2022. In January 2025, the staff of the SEC issued SAB No. 122, which rescinds the previously issued interpretive guidance included within SAB 121.

The broader digital assets industry, including the technology associated with digital assets, the rate of adoption and development of and use cases for, digital assets, market perception of digital assets and the legal, regulatory and accounting treatment of digital assets are constantly developing and changing, and there may be additional risks in the future that are not possible to predict. Uncertainties in or changes to regulatory or financial accounting standards could result in the need to change our accounting methods and may retroactively affect previously reported results and impair our ability to provide timely and accurate financial information, which could adversely affect our financial statements, result in a loss of investor confidence, and our business, operating results and financial condition.

Concerns about the environmental impacts of blockchain technology and rapidly evolving digital asset regulations could adversely affect usage and perceptions of our business.

Although the XRP Ledger does not rely on proof-of-work mining, public perception often associates all blockchain-based systems with high energy usage and adverse environmental effects. Increasing governmental, regulatory and media scrutiny of the environmental footprint of blockchain networks could lead to new or expanded regulations, restrictions, or taxes on digital asset activities, including those that do not rely on mining. Such measures could reduce adoption or use of XRP, negatively affect liquidity and trading volumes, and adversely impact the value of our XRP holdings.

We are unable to influence or predict future regulatory actions taken by federal, state, local or foreign governments, and may have little or no ability to respond to rapidly evolving or inconsistent regulatory positions. Regulatory environments across jurisdictions are highly fragmented and frequently contradictory, creating uncertainty and the potential for overlapping or conflicting compliance obligations. Extreme or adverse regulatory actions could restrict or prohibit the use, transfer, or custody of XRP, or require structural changes to the XRP Ledger or its ecosystem. Any such developments could materially and adversely affect the XRP market and, consequently, the value of our XRP holdings, financial condition and results of operations.

Negative publicity concerning the environmental or regulatory impact of blockchain technologies could also reduce confidence in the digital asset market more broadly, which could have a materially adverse effect on the XRP ecosystem and on our business and financial condition and on the market price of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Risks Related to XRP and the XRP Ledger

XRP is a component of a new and rapidly evolving industry, and the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock depends on the acceptance of XRP.

The first digital asset, bitcoin, was launched in 2009. The XRP Ledger launched in 2012. Along with bitcoin, XRP was one of the first cryptographic digital assets to gain global adoption and critical mass. In general, digital asset networks, including the XRP Ledger and other cryptographic and algorithmic protocols governing the issuance of digital assets, represent a new and rapidly evolving industry that is subject to a variety of factors that are difficult to evaluate. Moreover, XRP has a relatively limited history of existence and operations compared to traditional commodities. There is a limited established performance record for the price of XRP and, in turn, a limited basis for evaluating an investment in XRP. Although past performance is not necessarily indicative of future result, if XRP had a more established history, such history might (or might not) provide investors with more information on which to evaluate an investment in Pubco

For instance, XRP is designed to be used to settle transactions between financial institutions and enterprises on the XRP Ledger and is not commonly accepted as a means of payment by retail and commercial outlets, and use of XRP by consumers to pay such retail and commercial outlets remains limited. Banks and other established financial institutions may refuse to process funds for XRP transactions; refuse to process wire transfers to or from digital asset trading platforms, XRP-related companies or service providers; or refuse to maintain accounts for persons or entities transacting in XRP. As a result, the price of XRP may be influenced to a significant extent by speculators, thus contributing to price volatility that makes retailers less likely to accept XRP in the future.

Moreover, banks may not provide banking services, or may cut off banking services, to businesses that provide digital asset-related services or that accept digital assets as payment, which could dampen liquidity in the market and damage the public perception of digital assets generally or any one digital asset in particular, such as XRP, and their or its utility as a payment system, which could decrease the price of digital assets generally or individually. Further, the lack of availability of banking services could prevent Pubco from being able to complete creations and redemptions of Baskets, the timely liquidation of XRP and withdrawal of assets from our XRP custodian even if Pubco determined that such liquidation was appropriate or suitable, or otherwise disrupt Pubco's operations.

Certain privacy-preserving features have been or are expected to be introduced to digital asset networks. For example, some prominent contributors to other blockchain networks have proposed the concept of "privacy pools," zero-knowledge proofs, and other privacy-preserving features. If any such features are introduced to the XRP Ledger, any digital asset trading platforms or businesses that facilitate transactions in XRP may be at an increased risk of criminal or civil lawsuits, or of having banking services cut off if there is a concern that these features interfere with the performance of anti-money laundering duties and economic sanctions checks or facilitate illicit financing or crime.

Finally, users, protocol and application developers and validators may otherwise switch to or adopt certain digital assets at the expense of their engagement with other digital asset networks, which may negatively impact those networks, including the XRP Ledger.

A decline in the adoption of XRP or the XRP Ledger could negatively impact our business and results of operations.

A lack of expansion in usage of XRP and the XRP Ledger could adversely affect an investment in the Pubco Class A Common Stock. The further development and acceptance of the XRP Ledger, which is part of a new and rapidly changing industry, is subject to a variety of factors that are difficult to evaluate. The slowing, stopping or reversing of the development or acceptance or usage of the XRP Ledger may adversely affect the price of XRP and therefore an investment in the Pubco Class A Common Stock. The further adoption of XRP will require growth of the XRP Ledger. Adoption of XRP will also require an accommodating regulatory environment.

The use of digital assets such as XRP to, among other things, buy and sell goods or services or facilitate cross-border payments is part of a new and rapidly evolving industry that employs digital assets based upon computer-generated mathematical and/or cryptographic protocols. The XRP Ledger is a prominent, but not unique, part of this industry. The growth of this industry is subject to a high degree of uncertainty, as new assets and technological innovations continue to develop and evolve.

Today, there is limited use of XRP in the retail, commercial, or payments spaces, and, on a relative basis, speculators make up a significant portion of users. Certain merchants and major retail and commercial businesses have only recently begun accepting XRP and the XRP Ledger as a means of payment for goods and services. This pattern may contribute to outsized price volatility, which in turn can make XRP less attractive to merchants and commercial parties as a means of payment. A lack of expansion by XRP into retail and commercial markets or a contraction of such use may result in a reduction in the price of XRP, which could adversely affect an investment in Pubco.

In addition, there is no assurance that XRP will maintain or increase its value over the long term. The price of XRP is subject to risks related to its usage. Even if growth in XRP Ledger adoption occurs in the near or medium term, there is no assurance that XRP usage will continue to grow over the long term, and growth in XRP Ledger adoption may not have the corresponding effect of increasing the price of XRP. A contraction in use of XRP may result in increased volatility or a reduction in the price of XRP, which would adversely impact the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Competition from other digital assets, payment systems and private blockchains could negatively affect demand for XRP and adversely impact an investment in the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Many consortia and financial institutions that are potential XRP users are researching and investing resources into private or permissioned blockchain platforms that could compete with XRP to facilitate cross-currency transactions. Such initiatives, which include J.P. Morgan's Kinexys and Consensys' Quorum, offer financial payment networks and have partnered with many financial institutions. However, unlike the XRP Ledger, which is an open-source, permissionless network that uses XRP as its native digital asset, these platforms do not necessarily require a native digital currency like XRP. In evaluating competing distributed ledger technologies, financial institutions may prefer permissioned blockchains without digital currencies over the XRP Ledger and XRP in the future. If financial institutions choose to use permissioned blockchains without digital currencies, demand for the XRP Ledger and XRP could decrease, which could adversely affect the market price of XRP, which would, in turn, adversely affect an investment in the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

In addition, XRP and the XRP Ledger face significant competition from other digital assets and blockchain networks designed for payments and settlement, as well as from existing financial networks and payment systems such as SWIFT, ACH, remittance networks, credit-card networks and cash. These alternative technologies and systems may offer advantages in terms of scale, regulatory status or integration with existing financial infrastructure. There is no guarantee that XRP will achieve or maintain significant adoption as a means of cross-border payment, store of value, or medium of exchange, and any failure to do so could adversely affect the price of XRP and the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

The launch of central bank digital currencies could reduce demand for XRP and adversely affect the value of our XRP holdings.

Central banks in various countries have introduced or are developing digital forms of legal tender ("CBDCs"). For example, China's CBDC project, known as Digital Currency Electronic Payment, has reportedly been tested in a live pilot program in multiple cities in China, and central banks representing at least 130 countries have announced or published retail or wholesale CBDC work ranging from research to pilot projects. Whether or not they incorporate blockchain or similar technology, CBDCs, by virtue of being legal tender in their respective jurisdictions, could have significant competitive advantages over privately issued digital assets such as XRP. The introduction or expansion of CBDCs could reduce the demand for XRP as a medium of exchange or store of value, limit its utility in payment and settlement systems, and adversely affect its market price.

Central banks and other governmental entities have also announced cooperative initiatives and consortia with private sector entities, with the goal of leveraging blockchain and other technology to reduce friction in cross-border and interbank payments and settlement, and commercial banks and other financial institutions have also recently announced a number of initiatives of their own to incorporate new technologies, including blockchain and similar technologies, into their payments and settlement activities, which could compete with, or reduce the demand for, XRP. Any of these developments could materially and adversely affect the demand for XRP, its market value, and, consequently, the value of our XRP holdings, business, financial condition, results of operations and prospects.

Speculative or momentum-driven trading in XRP may cause extreme volatility and losses for investors.

The market price of XRP is not based on any underlying claim or backed by any physical asset. Its value depends in part on expectations that XRP will continue to be usable in future transactions and on continued investor interest. Because the market value of XRP is closely tied to such expectations rather than intrinsic value, its price is subject to significant volatility and may exhibit characteristics of momentum pricing.

Momentum pricing occurs when investors' expectations of future price appreciation drive demand and further increases in market price, leading to speculative cycles that may be disconnected from fundamental utility or adoption. These dynamics, commonly observed in growth assets and other speculative instruments, can inflate prices and amplify market swings. As investor sentiment changes, XRP may experience rapid and substantial fluctuations in value, which could adversely affect the market price of XRP and, in turn, the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock. Some market observers have predicted that the value of many digital assets will ultimately fall sharply or even become worthless. XRP has not existed long enough for market participants to assess these predictions with confidence. However, if such forecasts prove even partially correct, investors in the Pubco Class A Common Stock could experience substantial or total losses.

In addition, the market for XRP is highly sensitive to public perception, media attention and statements made by prominent individuals or organizations. Because XRP and other digital assets trade in markets that are still developing and highly speculative, public statements by government officials, regulators, political figures, market commentators, technology entrepreneurs or social media influencers can cause extreme price volatility, regardless of the accuracy or substance of those statements. Even informal remarks (such as posts on social media platforms, interviews, podcasts or other public communications) can trigger significant short-term fluctuations in XRP's price and trading volume. Given the high-profile nature of the digital asset industry and of Ripple and its related ecosystem, XRP has been particularly affected by commentary and announcements from regulators, enforcement agencies, legislators, journalists, industry participants and well-known public personalities. Statements or rumors concerning regulatory actions, enforcement proceedings, technological developments, perceived security vulnerabilities, or market integrity (whether or not substantiated) may rapidly alter investor sentiment towards XRP. These factors could materially and adversely affect the market price of XRP and, consequently, the value of our XRP holdings, our business, financial condition, results of operations and prospects.

The significant holdings of XRP by Ripple and other early stakeholders could have an adverse effect on the market price of XRP.

Unlike other digital assets such as bitcoin or ether, XRP is not and was not mined gradually over time. Instead, all 100 billion XRP tokens were created at the time of the XRP Ledger's launch in 2012. Unlike blockchains that utilize "proof-of-work" or "proof-of-stake" where miners or stakers are often rewarded with newly minted coins or tokens, XRP validators are not incentivized by block rewards since there is no new issuance of XRP. A small amount of XRP is burned with every transaction to prevent spam on the network. While the amount of XRP burned per transaction is minuscule, over time, the total supply of XRP will slowly decrease. This could lead to a deflationary environment where the decreasing supply drives up the price of XRP, making it less practical as a medium of exchange. Additionally, as the total supply of XRP slowly shrinks due to burning, liquidity could become an issue in the distant future, potentially making it harder for businesses and users to access sufficient XRP for their transactions or for the Trust to operate.

In 2017, to address concerns about the large portion of XRP held by Ripple Labs, the company introduced an escrow mechanism to lock up a significant portion of its XRP holdings. Under this mechanism, Ripple Labs placed 55 billion XRP (55% of the total initial supply) into a series of time-locked escrow accounts. The escrow releases 1 billion XRP per month over 55 months. This process adds a level of predictability and transparency about how much XRP can enter the market each month. If Ripple Labs does not sell all of the 1 billion XRP released in a given month to fund its operations or otherwise utilize it, the remaining amount is placed back into escrow for future release. The purpose of this escrow system is to avoid large amounts of XRP becoming available at once, which could potentially disrupt XRP's price or market dynamics. As a result, Ripple holds a large portion of the XRP supply. Despite escrow mechanisms that gradually release XRP into the market, Ripple still retains control over a significant portion of XRP, which can impact market dynamics if large amounts are sold. The concentration of XRP in the hands of Ripple and early stakeholders could affect the market's confidence in XRP as a decentralized asset. In addition, Ripple's interests may differ from yours as a holder of Pubco Class A Common Stock, which could exacerbate any risks or impacts of XRP being perceived as a centralized asset.

In addition, once all of the escrowed XRP is released into the market, the fixed supply of XRP could begin to impact the price of XRP. If Ripple does not release the appropriate amount of XRP into the market at any given time, or if Ripple has already released all of its XRP into the market, the fixed supply of XRP could also contribute to price volatility, especially if demand fluctuates significantly. Since the supply of XRP is fixed in the long run, any significant surge in demand can result in large price spikes. For example, during periods of high market activity or speculation, the price of XRP could rapidly increase due to the inability to expand supply to match demand. This volatility could make XRP less predictable for businesses that rely on it for payments. Digital assets with a flexible supply, such as stablecoins, can adjust to maintain a stable value. XRP, however, could experience price swings that make it less attractive for everyday transactions or long-term financial planning.

The fixed supply of XRP may also not scale well with rapidly expanding use cases. As more businesses, financial institutions and payment providers adopt XRP for cross-border transactions and other use cases, there is a risk that the fixed supply may not meet the growing demand, leading to supply shortages and further price volatility. In the case of massive adoption, the scarcity of XRP could raise its value too much, making it less appealing for day-to-day transactions or use as a liquidity bridge in cross-border payments, as businesses might prefer a more stable and widely available currency.

Blockchains utilizing consensus-based algorithms, such as the XRP Ledger, are a relatively recent innovation, and have not been subject to as widespread use or adoption over as long of a period of time as traditional proof-of-work blockchains.

Certain digital assets, such as bitcoin, use a "proof-of-work" consensus algorithm. The genesis block on the Bitcoin blockchain was mined in 2009, and Bitcoin's blockchain has been in operation since then. The XRP Ledger uses a different consensus-based algorithm. Such consensus mechanisms and their associated digital assets (such as XRP) have not been tested at scale over as long of a period or been subject to as widespread use or adoption as, for example, bitcoin's proof-of-work consensus mechanism. This could lead to these blockchains, and their associated digital assets, having undetected vulnerabilities, structural design flaws, suboptimal incentive structures for validators, technical disruptions, or a wide variety of other problems, any of which could cause these blockchains not to function as intended, could lead to outright failure to function entirely causing a total outage or disruption of network activity, or could cause the blockchains to suffer other operational problems or reputational damage, leading to a loss of users or adoption or a loss in value of the associated digital assets, including our assets. Over the long term, there can be no assurance that the consensus-based public ledger on which Pubco's assets rely will achieve widespread scale or adoption or perform successfully; any failure to do so could negatively impact the value of Pubco's assets.

Any name changes or associated rebranding initiative with respect to XRP may not be favorably received by the digital asset community, which could negatively impact its market price and the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

From time to time, digital assets may undergo name changes and associated rebranding initiatives. For example, Bitcoin Cash may sometimes be referred to as Bitcoin ABC in an effort to differentiate itself from any Bitcoin Cash hard forks, such as Bitcoin Satoshi's Vision, and in the third quarter of 2018, the team behind ZEN rebranded and changed the name of ZenCash to "Horizen." Pubco is not aware of any current or planned name change or rebranding initiative relating to XRP. However, Pubco would have no ability to control or influence any such change if undertaken by those involved in the XRP ecosystem. Pubco cannot predict the impact of any name change and any associated rebranding initiative on XRP. After a name change and an associated rebranding initiative, a digital asset may not be able to achieve or maintain brand-name recognition or status that is comparable to the recognition or status previously enjoyed by such digital asset. The failure of any name changes and any associated rebranding initiative by a digital asset may result in such digital asset not realizing some or all of the anticipated benefits contemplated by the name change and associated rebranding initiative, and could negatively impact the price of XRP and the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

The loss or misappropriation of a private key required to access XRP may be irreversible. The XRP Custodian's loss of access to a private key associated with Pubco's XRP could adversely affect an investment in the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Transfers of XRP among users are accomplished via XRP transactions (i.e., sending XRP from one user to another). The creation of an XRP transaction requires the use of a unique numerical code known as a "private key." In the absence of the correct private key corresponding to a holder's particular XRP, the XRP is inaccessible. If the XRP custodian's internal procedures and controls are inadequate to safeguard Pubco's XRP holdings, and Pubco's private key(s) is(are) lost, misappropriated or otherwise compromised and no backup of the private key(s) is(are) accessible, Pubco will be unable to access its XRP, which could adversely affect an investment in the Pubco Class A Common Stock. In addition, if Pubco's private key(s) is(are) misappropriated and Pubco's XRP holdings are stolen, Pubco could lose some or all of its XRP holdings, which could adversely impact an investment in the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Changes in the governance of a digital asset network may not receive sufficient support from users and validators, which may negatively affect that digital asset network's ability to grow and respond to challenges.

The XRP Ledger operates on an open-source, decentralized basis and is governed through a voluntary consensus process among validators and node operators. Because participation and development are voluntary, the roles of core developers and validators are not centrally coordinated, and it may be difficult to achieve or maintain broad agreement on future network changes. If proposed amendments fail to gain sufficient support, or if adopted amendments introduce technical or security issues, the performance or perception of the XRP Ledger could be adversely affected. A loss of community consensus or validator participation could reduce the functionality or reliability of the XRP Ledger and, in turn, negatively affect the value of XRP and the market price of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Moreover, the XRP Ledger has no central decision-making body or clear manner in which participants can come to an agreement other than through overwhelming consensus. The lack of clarity on governance may adversely affect XRP's utility and ability to grow and face challenges, both of which may require solutions and directed effort to overcome problems, especially long-term problems. To the extent lack of clarity in corporate governance of the XRP Ledger leads to ineffective decision making that slows development and growth, the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock may be adversely affected.

The foregoing notwithstanding, amendments to the XRP Ledger protocol are typically proposed by core developers contributing to the open-source codebase and are adopted only if supported by a supermajority of validators. Core developers' roles evolve over time, largely based on self-determined participation. If a significant majority of users and validators adopt amendments to a decentralized network based on the proposals of such core developers, such network will be subject to new protocols that may adversely affect the value of the relevant digital asset. As a result of the foregoing, it may be difficult to find solutions or marshal sufficient effort to overcome any future problems, especially long-term problems, on digital asset networks.

Disruptions or unanticipated difficulties affecting the XRP Ledger could negatively impact the value of XRP and Pubco's operations or delay purchases or sales of XRP by Pubco.

The XRP Ledger is a decentralized, open-source, permissionless ledger that records and processes all transactions in XRP. If the XRP Ledger were disrupted or encountered operational or security issues, Pubco could be unable to deposit or withdraw XRP from its custodians or otherwise transact in XRP. Such disruptions could result from, among other things, extreme price volatility, insolvency or failure of custodians or other participants, security breaches, technical failures or forks in the network, or outages affecting the servers or validators supporting the XRP Ledger. In addition, although Pubco does not mine XRP, the operation of validator nodes and other infrastructure supporting the XRP Ledger depends on continuous electricity supply and internet connectivity. Power shortages or network outages could impair the ability of validators to operate and temporarily disrupt the processing of XRP transactions. Any such disruption could adversely affect the functionality of the XRP Ledger, the price of XRP, and the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Moreover, the throughput of the XRP Ledger is limited relative to centralized payment systems. If transaction volume were to increase substantially, the XRP Ledger could experience congestion, resulting in delays in the confirmation or recording of transactions. Moreover, unforeseen system failures, disruptions in operations, or poor connectivity may also result in delays in the recording of transactions on the XRP Ledger. Any delay in the XRP Ledger could affect Pubco's ability to buy or sell XRP at an advantageous price resulting in decreased confidence in the XRP Ledger. Over time, recurring or severe delays in confirming transactions could also reduce the attractiveness of the XRP Ledger as a means of payment or settlement, which could negatively affect the price of XRP and, in turn, the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Potential amendments to the XRP Ledger's protocols and software could, if accepted and authorized by the XRP Ledger community, adversely affect an investment in Pubco.

Development and maintenance of the source code for the XRP Ledger is largely driven by a community of developers and contributors. Ripple is influential, for example, as it employs a team of engineers and developers who contribute significantly to the core codebase of the XRP Ledger. The XRP Ledger Foundation is also influential as it relates to the development and governance of the XRP Ledger. The XRP Ledger Foundation is an independent organization established to support the development and adoption of the XRP Ledger. While Ripple Labs remains a key contributor, the XRP Ledger Foundation aims to ensure that the ledger remains open and decentralized, promoting transparency and inclusivity in its governance and development. Being an open-source project, the XRP Ledger also has contributions from independent developers and other entities interested in its success. These community contributors can propose changes, submit pull requests, and report issues on the XRP Ledger's GitHub repository.

Any of these parties can propose amendments to the XRP Ledger's source code that, if accepted by validators and users, could alter the protocols and software of the XRP Ledger and the properties of XRP. These alterations would occur through software upgrades and could potentially include changes to the irreversibility of transactions and limitations on the issuance of new XRP or changes to the XRP supply, which could undermine the appeal and market price of XRP. Alternatively, software upgrades and other changes to the protocols of the XRP Ledger could fail to work as intended or could introduce bugs, coding defects or flaws, or security risks, or they could otherwise adversely affect the speed, security, usability or value of the XRP Ledger or XRP. As a result, the XRP Ledger could be subject to changes to its protocols and software in the future that may adversely affect an investment in Pubco.

A disruption of the internet may affect XRP Ledger operations, which may adversely affect the XRP industry and an investment in Pubco.

The XRP Ledger relies on the internet. A significant disruption of internet connectivity could disrupt the XRP Ledger's functionality until such disruption is resolved. A disruption in the internet could adversely affect an investment in Pubco or the ability of Pubco to operate. In particular, some variants of digital assets have experienced a number of denial-of-service attacks, which have led to temporary delays in block creation and digital asset transfers.

Digital assets are also susceptible to border gateway protocol hijacking ("BGP hijacking"). Such an attack can be a very effective way for an attacker to intercept traffic en route to a legitimate destination. BGP hijacking impacts the way different nodes and validators are connected to one another to isolate portions of them from the remainder of the network, which could lead to a risk of the network allowing double-spending and other security issues. If BGP hijacking occurs on the XRP Ledger, participants may lose faith in the security of XRP, which could affect XRP's value and consequently the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock. Any internet failures or internet connectivity-related attacks that impact the ability to transfer XRP could have a material adverse effect on the price of XRP and the value of an investment in the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

A temporary or permanent "fork" of the XRP Ledger could adversely affect the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

A fork in the XRP Ledger could adversely affect the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock or the ability of Pubco to operate. A hard fork could also adversely affect the price of XRP at the time of announcement or adoption, or subsequently. For example, the announcement of a hard fork could lead to increased demand for the pre-fork digital asset, in anticipation that ownership of the pre-fork digital asset would entitle holders to a new digital asset following the fork. The increased demand for the pre-fork digital asset may cause the price of the digital asset to rise. After the hard fork, it is possible the aggregate price of the two versions of the digital asset running in parallel would be less than the price of the digital asset immediately prior to the fork. If the hard fork caused operational problems for either post-fork network or blockchain, the digital assets associated with the affected network could lose some or all of their value. Any of these events could therefore adversely impact the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Forks may also occur as a network community's response to a significant security breach. For example, in July 2016, Ethereum "forked" into Ethereum and a new digital asset, Ethereum Classic, as a result of the Ethereum community's response to a significant security breach. In June 2016, an anonymous hacker exploited a smart contract running on the Ethereum blockchain to syphon approximately $60 million of ether held by The DAO, a distributed autonomous organization, into a segregated account. In response to the hack, most participants in the Ethereum community elected to adopt a "fork" that effectively reversed the hack. However, a minority of users continued to develop the original blockchain, referred to as "Ethereum Classic," with the digital asset on that blockchain now referred to as "ETC." ETC now trades on several digital asset trading platforms. A fork may also occur as a result of an unintentional or unanticipated software flaw in the various versions of otherwise compatible software that users run. Such a fork could lead to users and validators abandoning the digital asset and associated network with the flawed software. It is possible, however, that a substantial number of users and validators could adopt an incompatible version of the digital asset while resisting community-led efforts to merge the two chains. This could result in a permanent fork, as in the case of Ethereum and Ethereum Classic.

Furthermore, a hard fork can lead to new security concerns. For example, when the Ethereum and Ethereum Classic networks split in July 2016, replay attacks, in which transactions from one network were rebroadcast to nefarious effect on the other network, plagued Ethereum trading platforms through at least October 2016. An Ethereum trading platform announced in July 2016 that it had lost 40,000 Ethereum Classic, worth about $100,000 at that time, as a result of replay attacks. Similar replay attack concerns occurred in connection with the Bitcoin Cash and Bitcoin Satoshi's Vision networks split in November 2018. Another possible result of a hard fork is an inherent decrease in the level of security due to a fracturing of the network. After a hard fork, it may become easier for an individual validator or validating pool's power to exceed 50% of the validating power of a digital asset network that retained or attracted less validating power, making it more susceptible to attack.

Protocols may also be cloned. Unlike a fork, which modifies an existing blockchain and results in two competing networks, each with the same genesis block, a "clone" is a copy of a protocol's codebase but results in an entirely new blockchain and new genesis block. Tokens are created solely from the new "clone" network and, in contrast to forks, holders of tokens of the existing network that was cloned do not receive any tokens of the new network. A "clone" results in a competing network that has characteristics substantially similar to the network it was based on, subject to any changes as determined by the developer(s) that initiated the clone. A clone may also adversely affect the price of XRP at the time of announcement or adoption or subsequently. For example, on November 6, 2016, Rhett Creighton, a Zcash developer, cloned the Zcash Network to launch Zclassic, a substantially identical version of the Zcash Network that eliminated the Founders' Reward. Following the date the first Zclassic block was mined, the price of ZEC fell from $504.57 on November 5, 2016 to $236.01 on November 7, 2016 in the midst of a broader sell-off of ZEC beginning immediately after the Zcash Network launch on October 28, 2016.

Shareholders may not receive the benefits of any "forks" or "airdrops."

In addition to forks, a digital asset may become subject to a similar occurrence known as an "airdrop." In an airdrop, the promoters of a new digital asset announce to holders of another digital asset that such holders will be entitled to claim a certain amount of the new digital asset for free, based on the fact that they hold such other digital asset. For example, in March 2017 the promoters of Stellar Lumens announced that anyone that owned bitcoin as of June 26, 2017, could claim, until August 27, 2017, a certain amount of Stellar Lumens.

Airdrops could create operational, security, legal or regulatory, or other risks for Pubco.

Such airdrops are not uncommon on the XRP Ledger. Airdrops may be conducted by sending a token to the holders of set amounts of XRP or to particular public addresses on the XRP Ledger. Airdrops may involve a user being entitled to claim tokens on a decentralized application, second-layer network or entirely separate digital asset network. A user entitled to receive airdrops may be required to take little or significant actions in order to receive such airdropped tokens. Shareholders may not receive the benefits of any forks; Pubco may not choose, or be able, to participate in an airdrop; and the timing of receiving any benefits from a fork, airdrop or similar event is uncertain.

Pubco does not currently intend to distribute to its shareholders any digital assets that may be created, received or made available as a result of any fork, airdrop or similar occurrence. Any such digital assets, if received or claimable by Pubco, would be retained by Pubco and used, disposed of or abandoned in accordance with its business judgment and applicable law. See "Information on the Company—Overview of XRP and the XRP Ledger—Forks and Aidrops." As a result, shareholders should not expect to receive any direct economic benefit from any fork, airdrop or similar event, and the occurrence of such events could have tax, accounting, operational or other consequences for Pubco without a corresponding benefit to shareholders.

If a malicious actor obtains control of more than 80% of the validating nodes on the XRP Ledger, or otherwise obtains control over the XRP Ledger through its influence over trusted validators or otherwise, such actor could manipulate the XRP Ledger, which could adversely affect the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock or the ability of Pubco to operate.

All networked systems are vulnerable to various kinds of attacks. As with any computer network, the XRP Ledger contains certain vulnerabilities. The XRP Ledger relies on a decentralized network of validator nodes that agree on the order and validity of transactions. These nodes form the backbone of the consensus process. Each validator node maintains a Unique Node List, which is a list of other validators it trusts. For a malicious actor to take over, they would need to control a significant portion of the validators on the majority of these UNLs. To successfully alter the ledger, the malicious actor would likely need to control more than 80% of the validator nodes or the voting power on the most widely used UNLs. If the malicious actor cannot control the validator nodes directly, they might attempt to compromise the validators that are already trusted by the network (i.e., those on the commonly used UNLs). This could involve hacking, bribery, deception or coercion.

Compared to other digital asset networks such as the Bitcoin network and Ethereum network, the XRP Ledger relies on a relatively small number of validators, and each validator maintains a UNL that is an even smaller subset of the validators. While this helps maintain a fast and efficient network, it could expose the XRP Ledger to additional vulnerabilities. For example, a malicious actor could attempt a "Sybil" attack whereby it would attempt to gain the trust of existing validators using a large number of fake identities. Such an attack would be difficult to execute because human intervention would be required for the malicious validators to become trusted, but the risk is made greater by the small number of validators included on each validator's UNL.

A malicious actor could also conduct an "eclipse attack." In an eclipse attack, a malicious actor could isolate parts of the network so that the malicious actor's nodes can influence the consensus in isolated sections of the network, eventually leading to a split or takeover. Any successful attack or material disruption to the XRP Ledger could compromise the integrity, functionality, or perceived reliability of the network, resulting in loss of confidence among users and market participants, impairment of Pubco's ability to safeguard or transact in its XRP holdings, and a material adverse effect on Pubco's business, financial condition, and results of operations.

The digital asset trading platforms on which XRP trades are relatively new and largely unregulated or may not be complying with existing regulations.

Digital asset markets, including spot markets for XRP, are growing rapidly. The digital asset trading platforms through which XRP and other digital assets trade are new and largely unregulated or may not be complying with existing regulations. These markets are local, national and international and include a broadening range of digital assets and participants. Significant trading may occur on systems and platforms with minimum predictability. Spot markets may impose daily, weekly, monthly or customer-specific transaction or withdrawal limits or suspend withdrawals entirely, rendering the exchange of XRP for fiat currency difficult or impossible. Participation in spot markets requires users to take on credit risk by transferring XRP from a personal account to a third party's account.

Digital asset trading platforms are not generally subject to, or may not comply with, regulation in a manner similar to other regulated trading platforms, such as national securities exchanges or designated contract markets. Many digital asset trading platforms are unlicensed, are unregulated, operate without extensive supervision by governmental authorities, and do not provide the public with significant information regarding their ownership structure, management team, corporate practices, cybersecurity, and regulatory compliance. In particular, those located outside the United States may be subject to significantly less stringent regulatory and compliance requirements in their local jurisdictions. Digital asset trading platforms may be out of compliance with existing regulations.

As a result, trading activity on or reported by these digital asset trading platforms is generally significantly less regulated than trading in regulated U.S. securities and commodities markets and may reflect behavior that would be prohibited in regulated U.S. trading venues. Furthermore, many digital asset trading platforms lack certain safeguards put in place by more traditional exchanges to enhance the stability of trading on the platform and prevent flash crashes, such as limit-down circuit breakers. As a result, the prices of digital assets such as XRP on digital asset trading platforms may be subject to larger and/or more frequent sudden declines than assets traded on more traditional exchanges. Tools to detect and deter fraudulent or manipulative trading activities (such as market manipulation, front-running of trades, and wash-trading) may not be available to or employed by digital asset trading platforms or may not exist at all. Consequently, the marketplace may lose confidence in, or may experience problems relating to, these venues.

Moreover, due to the unregulated nature and lack of transparency surrounding the operations of many XRP trading venues, XRP trading venues may experience greater fraud, security failures, or regulatory or operational problems than trading venues for more established asset classes, which may result in a loss of confidence in XRP trading venues and adversely affect the value of Pubco's XRP holdings. In addition, if prominent XRP trading venues that handle significant trading volumes were to experience fraud, security failures, regulatory action, or prolonged suspension of XRP trading, confidence in the XRP ecosystem could decline materially. The SEC has also brought enforcement actions against digital asset market participants alleging that they artificially increased trading volumes in certain digital assets through "wash trading," or repeated buying and selling of the same assets to manipulate prices. Any actual or perceived false trading in the XRP market, and any other fraudulent or manipulative acts and practices, could adversely affect the value of XRP.

No digital asset trading platform on which XRP trades is immune from these risks. The closure or temporary shutdown of digital asset trading platforms due to fraud, business failure, hackers or malware, or government-mandated regulation may reduce confidence in the XRP Ledger and can slow down the mass adoption of XRP. For example, following the 2022 bankruptcies of major digital asset platforms and counterparties, including Celsius Network, Voyager Digital, Three Arrows Capital, FTX Trading Ltd., and BlockFi, market prices of digital assets such as Bitcoin and XRP declined significantly. Further, digital asset trading platform failures or the failure of any other major component of the overall XRP ecosystem can have an adverse effect on XRP markets and the price of XRP, and could therefore have a negative impact on the performance of Pubco.

Negative perception, a lack of stability in the digital asset trading platforms, manipulation of XRP trading platforms by customers and/or the closure or temporary shutdown of such trading platforms due to fraud, business failure, hackers or malware, or government-mandated regulation may reduce confidence in XRP generally and result in greater volatility in the market price of XRP and the Pubco Class A Common Stock. Furthermore, the closure or temporary shutdown of an XRP trading platform may impact Pubco's ability to determine the value of its XRP holdings. Finally, any significant enforcement action, fraud event, or operational disruption affecting a major XRP trading venue could materially and adversely affect the market price of XRP and, in turn, the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Digital asset trading platforms may be exposed to wash trading.

Digital asset trading platforms on which XRP trades may be susceptible to wash trading. Wash trading occurs when offsetting trades are entered into for other than bona fide reasons, such as the desire to inflate reported trading volumes. Wash trading may be motivated by non-economic reasons, such as a desire for increased visibility on popular websites that monitor markets for digital assets so as to improve their attractiveness to investors who look for maximum liquidity, or it may be motivated by the ability to attract listing fees from token issuers who seek the most liquid and high-volume digital asset trading platforms on which to list their coins. Results of wash trading may include unexpected obstacles to trade and erroneous investment decisions based on false information.

In the United States, there have been allegations of wash trading even on regulated trading venues. Any actual or perceived false trading in the digital asset trading venue market, and any other fraudulent or manipulative acts and practices, could adversely affect the price of XRP and/or negatively affect the market perception of XRP. To the extent that wash trading either occurs or appears to occur on trading platforms on which XRP trades, investors may develop negative perceptions about XRP and the digital assets industry more broadly, which could adversely impact the price XRP and, therefore, the price of Shares. Wash trading also may place more legitimate digital asset trading platforms at a relative competitive disadvantage.

Digital asset trading platforms may be exposed to front-running.

Digital asset trading platforms on which XRP trades may be susceptible to "front-running," which refers to the process when someone uses technology or market advantage to get prior knowledge of upcoming transactions. Front-running is a frequent activity on centralized as well as decentralized digital asset trading platforms. By using bots functioning on a millisecond-scale time frame, bad actors are able to take advantage of the forthcoming price movement and make economic gains at the cost of those who had introduced these transactions. The objective of a front runner is to buy a chunk of tokens at a low price and later sell them at a higher price while simultaneously exiting the position. Front-running happens via manipulation of gas prices or timestamps, also known as slow matching. To the extent that front-running occurs, it may result in investor frustrations and concerns as to the price integrity of digital asset trading platforms and digital assets more generally.

Large-scale sales of XRP, either on nonmarket terms or in the ordinary course, could result in a reduction in the price of XRP and adversely affect an investment in the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

As an alternative to fiat currencies that are backed by central governments, XRP is subject to supply and demand forces based upon the desirability of an alternative, decentralized means of buying and selling goods and services, and it is unclear how such supply and demand will be impacted by geopolitical events. Nevertheless, political or economic crises may motivate large-scale acquisitions or sales of XRP, either globally or locally. Large-scale sales of XRP would result in a reduction in its price and adversely affect an investment in the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Moreover, there is no registry showing which individuals or entities own XRP or the quantity of XRP that is owned by any particular person or entity. It is possible, and in fact, reasonably likely, that a small group of early XRP adopters hold a significant proportion of the XRP that has been created to date. There are no regulations in place that would prevent a large holder of XRP from selling XRP it holds. To the extent such large holders of XRP engage in large-scale sales or distributions, either on nonmarket terms or in the ordinary course, it could result in a reduction in the price of XRP and adversely affect an investment in the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Errors or thefts involving XRP transactions may be irreversible and result in permanent loss.

XRP transactions recorded on the XRP Ledger are not, from an administrative perspective, reversible without the consent and active participation of the recipient of the transaction or, in theory, control or consent of a majority of the XRP Ledger's aggregate hash rate. Once a transaction has been verified and recorded in a block that is added to the blockchain, an incorrect transfer of XRP or a theft of XRP generally will not be reversible, and Pubco may not be capable of seeking compensation for any such transfer or theft. It is possible that, through computer or human error, or through theft or criminal action, Pubco's XRP could be transferred from custody accounts in incorrect quantities or to unauthorized third parties. To the extent that Pubco is unable to seek a corrective transaction with such third party or is incapable of identifying the third party that has received Pubco's XRP through error or theft, Pubco will be unable to revert or otherwise recover incorrectly transferred XRP. To the extent that Pubco is unable to seek redress for such error or theft, such loss could adversely affect the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Failures or attacks on the XRP Ledger could enable double-spending or ledger inconsistencies.

The XRP Ledger is designed to be resistant to double-spending risks through its consensus algorithm. The consensus protocol ensures that once a transaction is confirmed by a supermajority of trusted validators, it is immutable and cannot be reversed. This immediate finality is a key defense against double-spending. Additionally, transactions on the XRP Ledger are atomic, meaning they are either fully executed or not executed at all. This prevents any partial completion that could lead to inconsistencies or double-spending. Nonetheless, if the consensus mechanism fails (e.g., due to a significant portion of validators being compromised), conflicting transactions could potentially be validated by different parts of the network. Additionally, if a malicious actor controlled or colluded with a supermajority of validators, they could attempt to manipulate the ledger to allow a double spend. However, this would require controlling or influencing over 80% of the trusted validators on the majority of UNLs (Unique Node Lists), which is considered highly improbable given the decentralized nature of the validators. A highly sophisticated network attack that isolates parts of the network could theoretically lead to inconsistent views of the ledger. However, this would require an advanced and coordinated effort, and even then, the network's design aims to prevent such scenarios from resulting in double-spends.

Defects in the XRP Ledger's source code or cryptography could compromise its integrity and reduce confidence in XRP.

In the past, flaws in the source code for digital asset networks have been exposed and exploited, including flaws that disabled some functionality for users, exposed users' personal information and/or resulted in the theft of users' digital assets. Discovery of flaws in or exploitations of the source code that allow malicious actors to take or create money in contravention of known network rules have occurred. The cryptography underlying XRP could prove to be flawed or ineffective, or developments in mathematics and/or technology, such as advances in digital computing, algebraic geometry and quantum computing, could make cryptography ineffective. Quantum computing technology is an emerging phenomenon and, given it remains in early stages of development, it can be difficult to predict its ultimate effect on the future value of XRP and other digital assets. However, if quantum computing technology is able to advance and significantly increase its capacity relative to the capacity of today's leading quantum computers, it could potentially undermine the viability of many of the cryptographic algorithms used across the world's information technology infrastructure, including those used for digital assets like XRP. In any of these circumstances, a malicious actor may be able to steal XRP held by others, which could adversely affect the demand for XRP and therefore adversely impact the price of XRP and the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock. Even if a digital asset other than XRP were affected by similar circumstances, any reduction in confidence in the robustness of the source code or cryptography underlying digital assets generally could negatively affect the demand for all digital assets, including XRP, and therefore adversely affect the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Validators may cease participating in validating activities because they are provided no direct financial incentive to participate or because certain jurisdictions may limit or otherwise regulate validating activities, which could negatively impact the price of XRP and the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Unlike many other blockchain networks, validators on the XRP Ledger are not directly compensated for their participation in the consensus process. The XRP Ledger does not provide block rewards or distribute transaction fees to validators; instead, a small portion of each transaction fee is permanently destroyed as an anti-spam measure. Running a validator on the XRP Ledger is therefore a voluntary activity that contributes to the health and decentralization of the network. Participants typically operate validators for non-monetary reasons (such as supporting the ecosystem, maintaining network integrity, or enhancing their reputation within the XRP community) rather than for direct financial gain.

However, because there is no protocol-level financial incentive to maintain validators, there is no guarantee that existing validators will continue participating or that new validators will join. Sustained validator attrition could reduce the decentralization and resilience of the XRP Ledger, increase its susceptibility to disruption or coordinated attacks, and erode confidence among users and market participants. In addition, transaction fees on the XRP Ledger are typically very low but can rise dynamically during periods of heavy network usage. While such fee adjustments are intended to prevent spam and congestion, they do not compensate validators and could discourage participation if operating costs increase.

Additionally, entities or individuals running validators in certain jurisdictions may be limited or prohibited from continuing these activities as a result of regulation or governmental decree. Validators ceasing operations or participation in the consensus mechanism would make the XRP Ledger more vulnerable to malicious actors obtaining sufficient control to alter the ledger and hinder transactions. Any reduction in confidence in the confirmation process or security of the XRP Ledger could adversely affect Pubco's XRP holdings and operations. To the extent that a significant number of entities or individuals stop running validators, there would be serious negative consequences to the XRP Ledger's functionality, security and overall existence, any of which could have a material adverse effect on Pubco's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Risks Related to Governmental Regulation

Pubco is subject to laws, regulations and executive orders regarding economic and trade sanctions and anti-bribery that could impair our ability to compete in international markets or subject us to criminal or civil liability if we violate them.

As Pubco expands and localizes its international activities, it has and will become increasingly obligated to comply with the laws, rules, regulations, policies and legal interpretations both of the jurisdictions in which it operates and those into which it offers services on a cross-border basis. Laws regulating financial services, the internet, mobile technologies, digital assets and related technologies outside the United States often impose different, more specific or even conflicting obligations on us, as well as broader liability.

Pubco is required to comply with applicable U.S. economic and trade sanctions administered by the Office of Foreign Assets Control of the U.S. Department of the Treasury ("OFAC"), as well as similar requirements in other jurisdictions. The OFAC regulations and requirements generally restrict dealings by persons subject to U.S. jurisdiction with certain countries, or subnational territories that are the target of comprehensive sanctions, which currently are Cuba, Iran and North Korea, as well as Crimea, the so-called Donetsk People's Republic, and the so-called Luhansk People's Republic regions of Ukraine. In addition, OFAC restricts dealings by persons subject to U.S. jurisdiction with specific individuals and entities that are the subject of targeted sanctions, including persons identified on blocked persons lists, in addition to other restrictions on investments and dealings.

In the United States, "financial institutions," as defined under the Bank Secrecy Act of 1970 ("BSA") and its implementing regulations, are required to comply with AML requirements, which include, among other things, the implementation of an AML compliance program and compliance with certain reporting and recordkeeping requirements. Pubco is not a "financial institution" within the meaning of the BSA; however, if any of our activities cause us to be deemed a BSA-regulated "financial institution" (e.g., a "money service business" within the meaning of the BSA), we would be required to comply with the BSA and its implementing regulations, which could require us to expand our compliance framework, increase compliance costs, or expose us to the risk of fines, penalties, inquiries, audits, investigations, enforcement actions, or criminal and civil liability in the event of a violation of regulatory requirements.

Despite our efforts to comply with applicable laws and regulations, there can be no guarantee that regulators and/or law enforcement will view our activities as compliant with the AML or applicable sanctions laws and regulations, including sanctions administered by OFAC. If regulators and/or law enforcement find that we have violated these sanctions laws and regulations, or we are otherwise the subject of government investigations for alleged violations of these laws and regulations, such investigations and alleged violations could result in negative consequences for us, including costs related to government investigations, financial penalties and harm to our reputation. The impact on us related to these matters could be substantial. In connection with Closing, Pubco intends to adopt and implement a risk-based compliance program designed to support compliance with applicable AML and U.S. sanctions requirements, which we expect will include, among other things, written policies and procedures, the assignment of compliance oversight responsibilities, due diligence and ongoing oversight of key third-party service providers, screening of relevant counterparties against applicable sanctions and restricted party lists, and monitoring and escalation processes intended to identify and address potentially suspicious or prohibited activity. However, there is no guarantee that these measures will be viewed as sufficient by regulators or that they will be effective in all circumstances, and we may inadvertently provide products or services to persons or jurisdictions in violation of applicable sanctions laws and regulations.

Regulators worldwide frequently study each other's approaches to the regulation of the blockchain technology and digital assets. Consequently, developments in any jurisdiction may influence other jurisdictions. Further, new developments in one jurisdiction may be extended to additional services and other jurisdictions. As a result, the risks created by any new law or regulation in one jurisdiction are magnified by the potential that they may be replicated in another jurisdiction, which in turn would affect our business across multiple jurisdictions and/or across our services and products. Conversely, if regulations diverge worldwide, we may face difficulty adjusting our products, services and other aspects of our business with the same effect. These risks are heightened as we face increased competitive pressure from other similarly situated businesses that engage in regulatory arbitrage to avoid the compliance costs associated with regulatory changes.

We may operate our business in foreign countries where companies often engage in business practices that are prohibited by the U.S. and other jurisdictions' regulations applicable to us. We are subject to anti-corruption laws and regulations, including the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act of 1977 (the "FCPA") and other laws that prohibit the making or offering of improper payments to foreign government officials and political figures, including anti-bribery provisions enforced by the U.S. Department of Justice and the SEC. The FCPA, for example, prohibits U.S. persons and entities and certain non-U.S. entities from making improper payments or offers of payments to foreign governments and their officials and political parties for the purpose of obtaining or retaining business. We have implemented policies, procedures, systems and controls designed to identify and address potentially impermissible transactions under such laws and regulations. However, there can be no assurance that all of our employees, consultants and agents—including those that may be based in or from countries where practices that violate U.S. or other laws may be customary—will not take actions in violation of our policies, for which we may be ultimately responsible.

The complexity of U.S. federal and state and international regulatory and enforcement regimes, coupled with the global scope of our operations and the evolving global regulatory environment, could result in a single event prompting a large number of overlapping investigations and proceedings by multiple government authorities in different jurisdictions. Furthermore, due to the uncertain application of existing laws and regulations, it may be that, despite our regulatory and legal analysis concluding that certain products and services are currently unregulated or fit within a particular category of regulatory activities, such products or services may indeed be subject to financial regulation, licensing or authorization obligations that we have not obtained or with which we have not complied. As a result, we are at a heightened risk of enforcement action, litigation and regulatory and legal scrutiny, which could lead to sanctions, cease-and-desist orders or other penalties and censures. Any of the foregoing could, individually or in the aggregate, have a material adverse effect on our business, results of operations, financial condition and prospects.

XRP and other digital assets are novel assets, which will expose Pubco to significant legal, commercial and regulatory uncertainty, which could materially adversely affect Pubco's financial position, operations and prospects.

XRP and other forms of digital assets are relatively novel and have been the source of significant regulatory uncertainty, resulting in differing definitional outcomes and the absence of a unifying framework, which may adversely affect their price. In addition, XRP has a relatively limited history of existence and operations, providing only a limited performance record and, therefore, a limited basis for evaluating an investment in XRP. Although past performance is not necessarily indicative of future results, a longer operating history might have offered investors additional information on which to base such an evaluation.

Moreover, XRP and other digital assets are viewed differently by different regulatory and standards setting organizations globally as well as in the United States on the federal and state levels. Certain governments have prohibited certain digital asset activities or have severely curtailed the use of digital assets by prohibiting the acceptance of payment in XRP and other digital assets for consumer transactions and barring banking institutions from accepting deposits of digital assets. Other nations, however, allow digital assets to be used and traded without restriction. In some jurisdictions, such as in the United States, digital assets are subject to extensive, and in some cases overlapping, unclear and evolving regulatory requirements. There is a risk that relevant authorities in any jurisdiction may impose more onerous regulation on XRP, for example banning its use, regulating its operation, or otherwise changing its regulatory treatment. The application of state and federal securities laws and other laws and regulations to digital assets is unclear in certain respects, and it is possible that regulators in the United States or foreign countries may interpret or apply existing laws and regulations in a manner that may introduce a cost of compliance, or have a material impact on our business model, and therefore our financial performance and shareholder returns, and/or adversely affects the price of XRP. The U.S. federal government, states, regulatory agencies and foreign countries have recently enacted and may also enact additional new laws, regulations and guidance, or pursue regulatory, legislative, enforcement or judicial actions, that could materially impact the price of XRP, the ability of individuals or institutions such as us to own or transfer XRP, and/or the competitive landscape for our products and services. For example:

- On January 23, 2025, President Trump signed an Executive Order to promote the growth and use of digital assets, blockchain technology and related technologies across all sectors of the economy. Among other things, the Executive Order established a working group comprised of representatives from key federal agencies, tasked with developing a federal regulatory framework for digital assets and evaluating measures that can be taken to provide regulatory clarity and certainty built on technology-neutral regulations for individuals and firms involved in digital assets, including through well-defined jurisdictional regulatory boundaries. The Executive Order also instructed the U.S. Department of Treasury, the SEC, and other relevant agencies to identify regulations, guidance, documents, orders and other items affecting the digital asset sector and submit recommendations for what should be rescinded, modified or, to the extent applicable, adopted into regulations. Additionally, it revoked President Biden's prior Executive Order from March 9, 2022, relating to digital assets, and all policies, directives and guidance issued pursuant to that Executive Order, including the Department of the Treasury's framework for international engagement on digital assets issued on July 7, 2022 and the White House framework for digital asset development released on September 16, 2022. The establishment of a new working group within the National Economic Council to propose a federal regulatory framework for digital assets could lead to significant changes in market structure, oversight, consumer protection and risk management. The evolving regulatory environment may pose challenges to our operations, particularly if new regulations introduce additional compliance costs or restrict certain activities.
- On March 6, 2025, President Trump signed an Executive Order to establish a Strategic Bitcoin Reserve and a United States Digital Asset Stockpile. Pursuant to this Executive Order, the Strategic Bitcoin Reserve will be capitalized with Bitcoin owned by the Department of Treasury that was forfeited as part of criminal or civil asset forfeiture proceedings, and the Secretaries of Treasury and Commerce are authorized to develop budget-neutral strategies for acquiring additional bitcoin, provided that those strategies impose no incremental costs on American taxpayers. Conversely, the Digital Asset Stockpile will consist of all digital assets other than Bitcoin owned by the Department of Treasury that were forfeited in criminal or civil asset forfeiture proceedings, but the U.S. government will not acquire additional assets for the U.S. Digital Asset Stockpile beyond those obtained through such proceedings. The anticipation of a U.S. government-funded strategic cryptocurrency reserve had motivated large-scale purchases of certain digital assets in the expectation of the U.S. government acquiring XRP to fund such reserve, and the market price of such digital assets decreased significantly as a result of the ultimate content of the Executive Order. Any similar action or omission by the U.S. federal administration or other government authorities with respect to XRP or other digital assets may negatively and significantly impact the price of XRP.
- There have also been several bills introduced in Congress that propose to establish additional regulation and oversight of the digital asset market. For example, with respect to stablecoins, on July 17, 2025, the U.S. Congress passed the Guiding and Establishing National Innovation for U.S. Stablecoins Act ("GENIUS Act"), which was signed into law by President Donald Trump on July 18, 2025. The GENIUS Act introduces the first federal regulatory framework for payment stablecoins, addressing consumer protection, financial stability, national security and AML compliance, and establishes prudential requirements for the issuance, reserve backing and supervision of U.S.-dollar-pegged stablecoins. However, it is not yet in effect and certain provisions depend on final implementing regulations, which are to be issued by the primary federal stablecoin regulators. Additionally, the regulatory treatment of fiat-backed stablecoins across other jurisdictions remains uncertain. Further, the U.S. House of Representatives passed the Digital Asset Market Clarity Act (the "CLARITY Act") in July 2025; the CLARITY Act, which is currently awaiting U.S. Senate approval, which would split jurisdiction of oversight on digital assets between the Commodity Futures Trading Commission ("CFTC"), overseeing "digital commodities," and the SEC, overseeing "restricted digital assets"; the bill also seeks to resolve regulatory ambiguity regarding the meaning of "security" and "commodity." Additionally, the CLARITY Act, if adopted, would amend the Commodity Exchange Act of 1936, as amended (the "CEA") to grant the CFTC additional regulatory and supervisory powers with respect to spot digital assets as "digital commodities." While it is not possible to predict if and in what form such proposals will be adopted, if any, changes to or expansion of the jurisdiction of the CFTC with respect to activities in spot digital assets could result in the imposition of additional regulatory obligations and burdens, which could include registration, disclosure, reporting, and business conduct requirements. For example, it is possible that if the CLARITY Act were to become law as currently proposed, our XRP treasury strategy could cause us to be deemed a "commodity pool" under the CEA such that our operators and advisors may need to register with the CFTC as commodity pool operators and comply with other CFTC regulations as well as the rules of the National Futures Association. Such additional regulatory burdens and oversight could materially increase the cost of our business, could adversely affect the market price of XRP, and in turn could adversely affect the market price of our listed securities.

- Increased regulation may also result in limitations on the use cases of XRP. In addition, regulatory developments may require us to comply with certain existing and new regulatory regimes, such as if any of our activities cause us to be deemed a "money service business" under the BSA, which would require us to, among other things, implement an AML program, submit certain reports to Financial Crimes Enforcement Network of the United States and maintain certain records.

- The U.S. federal banking agencies have revoked prior guidance that restricted the ability of financial institutions to engage in digital asset related activities. On March 7, 2025, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency ("OCC") issued a letter rescinding its previous guidance that required national banks and federal savings associations to receive prior written non-objection before engaging in crypto asset-related activities, and reaffirmed these institutions are permitted to provide crypto asset custody, hold stablecoin reserves and use distributed ledger and stablecoins to engage in payment activities. On March 28, 2025, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation ("FDIC") issued a letter rescinding a previous letter from 2022 that required prior notification from FDIC-supervised institutions that wanted to engage in crypto-related activities, and confirmed that such institutions may engage in certain permissible digital assets-related activities, if they adequately manage the associated risks (including market and liquidity, operational and cybersecurity and AML risks). On April 24, 2025, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System of the United States ("Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve") announced that it had withdrawn previous guidance that required state member banks to provide advance notification and, in certain cases, obtain nonobjections to engage in certain crypto asset and dollar-token activities. In July 2025, the OCC, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve, and the FDIC issued a statement for banking organizations regarding the safekeeping of digital assets, which focused on how existing laws, regulations and risk management principles apply to such activities, and signaled additional progress in the increasing regulatory clarity for digital assets by key financial regulators in the United States. As a result of these regulatory changes, competition on the offering of certain of our products and services may increase, potentially impacting our revenue, as well as the market price of XRP and in turn may adversely affect the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock. On May 7, 2025, the OCC issued a letter confirming that national banks and federal savings associations may provide and outsource digital asset custody and execution services on behalf of customers. See also "Pubco will operate in a highly competitive environment and will compete against companies and other entities with similar strategies, including companies with significant XRP holdings and ETFs and ETPs for XRP and other digital assets, and Pubco's business, operating results and financial condition may be adversely affected if Pubco is unable to compete effectively."

- The U.S. federal banking agencies have enhanced the supervision of novel activities conducted by banking organizations, especially following the failures of Silicon Valley Bank, Signature Bank and Silvergate Bank in March 2023, which were entities perceived as integral to the digital asset ecosystem, causing a number of digital asset industry participants to struggle in finding banks willing to work with them. Reports have also suggested that U.S. regulatory agencies, including the Department of the Treasury, may have advised financial institutions to approach crypto-related clients with caution. While some policymakers and industry participants have argued that this activity constituted a coordinated effort to limit banking access to crypto companies, regulators have not publicly confirmed such an initiative. Congressional hearings continue to explore the extent to which government influence may have contributed to banking challenges for crypto businesses. While recent regulatory developments suggest a more measured approach to crypto-related banking services, as discussed above, and shifts on risk management practices signaling that debanking of digital asset industry participants without individualized risk assessments would not be supported, there is no guarantee that similar measures will not be reintroduced in the future. If banking restrictions tighten due to a shift in U.S. regulatory priorities, the digital asset ecosystem could face challenges in securing banking relationships, which could impact digital asset liquidity, market stability, operational security and institutional adoption, all of which could negatively affect the digital assets market and therefore the value of digital assets.
- On September 8, 2022, under the previous administration, the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy issued a report in coordination with other federal agencies relating to the climate and energy implications of digital assets in the United States. Among its finding are that digital assets are energy intensive and drive significant environmental impacts, and the report recommends further study of the environmental impact of digital assets and the development of environmental performance regulations for digital asset miners, which may include limiting or eliminating digital assets that use high energy intensity consensus mechanisms. Although issued under the previous administration and not currently enforced by the current administration, this report could lay a framework for the policies a subsequent administration may choose to adopt with respect to digital assets. In addition to the United States, other governments or governmental bodies globally have introduced or are contemplating environmental and energy legislative and regulatory changes in response to the increasing focus on power consumption required to operate large-scale data centers. A changing legislative environment could create economic and regulatory uncertainty for our business because the industries in which we operate, with their high energy demand, could become targets for future environmental and energy regulations.
- On April 14, 2023, the SEC re-opened the comment period for its proposal to amend the definition of "exchange" under Exchange Act Rule 3b-16 to encompass trading and communication protocol systems for digital asset securities and trading systems that use distributed ledger or blockchain technology, including both so-called "centralized" and "decentralized" trading systems. On June 12, 2025, the SEC issued a notice to withdraw this proposal. If the SEC seeks to adopt a similar proposal in the future, the new definition would have a sweeping impact on digital asset trading venues and other digital asset industry participants.
- On January 21, 2025, the SEC announced that then-Acting SEC Chairman Mark Uyeda "launched a crypto task force dedicated to developing a comprehensive and clear regulatory framework for crypto assets." The task force is focused on helping the SEC "draw clear regulatory lines, provide realistic paths to registration, craft sensible disclosure frameworks and deploy enforcement resources judiciously." While the SEC has formed the crypto task force to provide clarity on the application of the federal securities laws to the digital asset market and to recommend practical policy measures that aim to foster innovation and protect investors, the task force has only recently begun.

- On April 8, 2025, CFTC Acting Chairman Caroline Pham directed CFTC Staff, pursuant to Executive Order 14219, to deprioritize actions involving violations of registration requirements under the Commodity Exchange Act unless there is evidence that the non-registrant knew of the registration requirement and violated it willfully. The CFTC's deprioritization of such enforcement actions, including against unregistered intermediaries who offer derivatives trading on digital assets, could add risk to the digital asset ecosystem.
- In July 2025, supported by the current U.S. presidential administration, the SEC unveiled "Project Crypto," an SEC initiative to develop a flexible regulatory framework to accommodate digital assets and blockchain-based trading. Key components of "Project Crypto" are to, among other things, (i) provide clarity on digital asset classification and offerings, (ii) facilitate tokenized securities, (iii) facilitate custody of digital assets for market intermediaries and multiple business lines, (iv) develop formal rules proposals under "Project Crypto" while using interpretative or exemptive relief where possible and (iv) consider a potential "innovation exemption" to allow firms to deploy novel business models and technologies without full compliance with existing regulations upon meeting certain conditions.
- In August 2025, the CFTC launched its Listed Spot Crypto Trading Initiative, which aims to establish a framework for retail trading of leveraged, margined, or financed spot digital asset contracts ("Retail Crypto Contracts") on CFTC-registered designated contract markets ("DCMs"). The initiative would utilize existing authority under the CEA, which requires that retail trading of commodities with leverage, margin, or financing must be conducted on DCMs. The CFTC is exploring how to implement such a framework using current regulatory powers. While not final, the initiative may contribute to wider adoption of digital assets by clarifying how existing regulated venues could be used for Retail Crypto Contracts. On September 2, 2025, the staffs of the SEC and CFTC issued a joint statement regarding trading of certain spot digital asset products on regulated exchanges. In this statement, the SEC's Division of Trading and Markets and the CFTC's Divisions of Market Oversight and Clearing & Risk clarify their view that current law does not prohibit SEC-registered national securities exchanges or CFTC-registered exchanges from facilitating trading in these spot crypto commodity products. This cross-agency initiative-part of the SEC's "Project Crypto" and the CFTC's "Crypto Sprint"—is intended to promote trading venue choice for digital assets and encourage crypto market innovation within the U.S. regulatory framework.
- The European Union's Markets in Crypto Assets Regulation ("MiCA"), a comprehensive digital asset regulatory framework for the issuance and provision of services in relation to digital assets, like XRP, became effective in June 2023, with various requirements phasing into effect through 2024. MiCA regulates the authorization requirement for and supervision of crypto asset service providers, as well as crypto asset issuers, offerors and persons seeking admission to trading of crypto assets in the European Union. In addition, MiCA also requires the European Commission (i) to provide a report on the environmental impact of crypto assets and (ii) based upon such report, introduce measures that might be warranted to mitigate the adverse impacts on the environment of technologies employed in markets in crypto assets like the consensus mechanisms such as mandatory minimum sustainability standards for consensus mechanisms.
- In November 2023, the SEC filed a complaint against Kraken, alleging, among other claims, that Kraken's crypto trading platform was operating as an unregistered securities exchange, broker, dealer and clearing agency, which the SEC agreed to dismiss on March 3, 2025. Additionally, individual states have the ability to file similar lawsuits on the grounds of violations of state securities laws. For example, the Oregon state attorney general filed a lawsuit against Coinbase, Inc. in April 2025, for alleged violations of Oregon state securities law, and there have been similar claims against other digital asset industry participants at a state level.

- Firms engaging in crypto asset activities in the UK must currently be registered with the Financial Conduct Authority (the "FCA") under the Money Laundering, Terrorist Financing and Transfer of Funds (Information on the Payer) Regulations 2017 ("MLRs"), and are subject to various requirements and obligations as a result. The marketing of crypto assets is also restricted and may only be conducted by firms that are authorized by the FCA or registered under the MLRs. The FCA has also introduced rules prohibiting the marketing and sale of derivatives and exchange-traded notes that reference certain types of crypto assets to retail customers in the UK, although it now plans to remove the ban on the marketing and sale of exchange-traded notes. The UK regulatory framework for crypto assets continues to evolve rapidly, and firms operating in this space face an increasingly complex and restrictive compliance landscape. The FSMA 2023 established a framework to bring certain crypto asset activities, including issuance and trading, within the UK's financial regulatory perimeter. Detailed rules relating to the regime are still under consultation by His Majesty's Treasury and the FCA. In April 2025, His Majesty's Treasury published draft legislation to bring a wide range of crypto asset activities within the scope of the UK's regulatory perimeter, including operating a crypto asset trading venue, providing custody services and dealing in crypto assets. The FCA is also consulting on various elements of its forthcoming crypto asset regime, including in respect of the issuance of stablecoins, the custody of crypto assets and prudential requirements for crypto asset businesses. The final rules are expected to come into force in phases from late 2025 into 2026.
- In June 2023, the SEC filed a complaint against Coinbase, Inc. charging it with operating as an unregistered securities exchange, broker and clearing agency, and for the unregistered offer and sale of securities in connection with its staking-as-a-service program. In February 2025, the SEC announced the filing of a joint stipulation with Coinbase, Inc and Coinbase to dismiss the civil enforcement action against their crypto platform.
- In November 2023, Binance Holdings Ltd. and its then chief executive officer (who was later pardoned on the criminal charges) reached a settlement with the U.S. Department of Justice, the CFTC, the U.S. Department of Treasury's Office of Foreign Asset Control, and the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network to resolve a multi-year investigation by the agencies and a civil suit brought by the CFTC, pursuant to which Binance Holdings Ltd. agreed to, among other things, pay $4.3 billion in penalties across the four agencies and to discontinue its operations in the United States; and
- In China, the People's Bank of China and the National Development and Reform Commission have outlawed digital asset mining and declared all digital asset transactions illegal within the country. Other jurisdictions, including Egypt, Morocco and the Dominican Republic have also made the use of certain digital assets illegal. If the use of XRP is made illegal in other jurisdictions, particularly where XRP is currently traded in heavy volumes, the available market for XRP may contract. Additionally, if another government with considerable economic power were to ban digital assets or related activities, this could have further impact on the price of XRP. As a result, the markets and opportunities discussed herein may not reflect the markets and opportunities available to us in the future.

While the current administration has expressed support regarding the development and use of digital assets and the U.S. recently enacted the GENIUS Act, the specific regulatory frameworks, including the potential adoption of the CLARITY Act or other legislation designed to address the market structure of digital assets, are still to be developed. The exact timeline and impact of these efforts on our business is uncertain, and there is uncertainty regarding enforcement actions by several U.S. agencies involving digital asset issuers and trading platforms. Additionally, it is not possible to predict whether, or when, any of these developments will lead to Congress granting additional authorities to the SEC or other regulators, or the impact of any such additional authorities, including the authority that Congress has already granted to the banking agencies under the GENIUS Act. It is also not possible to predict how additional legislation, regulation or other form of regulatory or supervisory oversight—such as the implementing regulations under the GENIUS Act or any Senate amendments to the CLARITY Act or other legislation—might impact the ability of digital asset markets to function or the willingness of financial and other institutions to continue to provide services to the digital assets industry, nor how any new regulations or changes to existing regulations might impact the value of digital assets generally and XRP specifically. We cannot be certain as to how future regulatory developments will impact the treatment of XRP under the law, and ongoing and future regulation and regulatory actions could significantly restrict or eliminate the market for or uses of XRP and materially and adversely impact our business. If we fail to comply with such additional regulatory and registration requirements, we may seek to cease certain of our operations or be subjected to fines, penalties and other governmental action. Such circumstances could have a material adverse effect on our ability to continue as a going concern or to pursue our business model at all, which could have a material adverse effect on our business, prospects or operations. The consequences of increased regulation of digital assets and digital asset activities could adversely affect the market price of XRP and any other digital assets we may hold or expect to hold at such time and in turn adversely affect the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Our XRP treasury strategy could create complications with third-party service providers, such as insurance companies, banking entities and auditors, which could have a materially adverse impact on our business.

Our XRP treasury strategy could create complications with third-party service providers that may perceive companies engaging in digital asset treasury activities as presenting elevated regulatory or operational risk. U.S. and other regulators, including the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the Federal Reserve and the FDIC, have issued supervisory statements identifying digital asset activities as "significant risks" to banking organizations. As a result, many third-party service providers (such as insurance companies, banking entities, auditors, payment processors, compliance vendors and public relations firms) have imposed heightened diligence, restrictions or outright prohibitions on companies with digital asset exposure.

If regulators or financial institutions impose additional limitations or restrictions on digital asset activities, our service providers may refuse to enter into, renew or maintain contracts with us, or may impose terms that are commercially unacceptable. This could have severe adverse consequences for our operations. For example, our insurance premiums could increase materially, our insurers may refuse to underwrite policies, or they may exclude digital asset-related liabilities from coverage. If we are unable to obtain directors' and officers' liability insurance on acceptable terms, our directors and officers could face increased personal exposure in connection with securities class actions, regulatory investigations or other proceedings, which could also affect our ability to retain or attract key personnel.

If we lose access to banking services, we could experience disruptions in maintaining liquidity, processing payroll, paying vendors or accessing fiat currency. These disruptions would have a materially adverse effect on our business, financial condition and results of operations. Auditors may also view digital asset-related activities (particularly those involving self-custody, fair-value measurement, impairment testing and transaction monitoring) as high risk. If our independent public accounting firm determines that it is unable to issue an unqualified opinion or declines to continue its engagement, we could fail to meet our reporting obligations under the Exchange Act, which would materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition and ability to access the capital markets.

The regulatory environment for digital assets in the United States and globally remains highly uncertain and is evolving rapidly. U.S. policymakers are only beginning to define a comprehensive regulatory framework for digital assets. As a result, Pubco may face challenges in adapting to proposed or newly enacted laws and regulations, which could materially and adversely affect its business, financial condition and operations.

As digital assets have grown in both popularity and market size, various U.S. federal, state and local and foreign governmental organizations, as well as consumer agencies and public advocacy groups, have increasingly scrutinized the operations of blockchain networks, and digital assets users and platforms, with a focus on how digital assets can be used to launder the proceeds of illegal activities and fund criminal or terrorist enterprises. In addition, the safety and soundness of platforms and other service providers that hold digital assets for users have drawn regulatory and public attention. These concerns have led to calls for heightened regulatory oversight, and new laws and regulations.

Unlike traditional financial institutions, which have cultivated long-standing relationships with policymakers and regulators, participants in the cryptoeconomy are relatively new to the U.S. legislative and regulatory landscape. While engagement with policymakers and regulators has begun, it is still at a relatively nascent stage and may be insufficient to influence future legislation and regulation. As a result, new laws and regulations may be proposed and adopted in the United States and internationally, or existing laws and regulations may be interpreted in new ways, that adversely affect the cryptoeconomy or digital asset platforms. Consequently, Pubco may be disproportionately impacted by such developments, potentially restricting its ability to operate or innovate. Additionally, any future political activities to further our mission may be perceived unfavorably by investors and the public and have an adverse impact on our brand and reputation.

As also noted above, there has been increasing focus on the extent to which digital assets can be used to launder the proceeds of illicit activities, fund criminal or terrorist activities, or circumvent sanctions regimes, including those sanctions imposed in response to ongoing war between Russia and Ukraine. If we are found to have purchased any of our XRP from bad actors that have used XRP to launder money or are sanctioned persons, we may be subject to regulatory proceedings and any further transactions or dealings in XRP by us may be restricted or prohibited.

Additional laws, guidance and policies may be issued by domestic and foreign regulators following the bankruptcy of FTX Trading Ltd., one of the world's largest digital asset trading platforms, in November 2022, which has been widely cited as a catalyst for increased regulatory and enforcement focus on the digital assets industry and certain market participants and practices. Increased enforcement activity and changes in the regulatory environment, including changing interpretations and the implementation of new or varying regulatory requirements by the government or any new legislation affecting XRP, as well as enforcement actions involving or impacting our trading venues, counterparties and custodians, may impose significant compliance and other costs on Pubco, significantly limit our ability to hold and transact in XRP or materially reduce the value of Pubco's XRP holdings.

XRP's status as a product that may be offered and sold as a "security" in any relevant jurisdiction, as well as the status of XRP-related products and services in general, is subject to uncertainty, and if Pubco is unable to properly characterize such product or service offering, Pubco may be subject to regulatory scrutiny, inquiries, investigations, fines and other penalties, which may adversely affect Pubco's business, operating results and financial condition.

Depending on its characteristics, a digital asset may be considered a "security" under U.S. federal securities laws. The test for determining whether a particular digital asset is a "security" is complex and difficult to apply, and the outcome is difficult to predict. Public, though non-binding, statements by senior officials at the SEC have indicated that the SEC does not currently consider bitcoin or ether to be a security and, in certain circumstances, memecoins or some stablecoins, to be securities. In addition, the SEC, by action through delegated authority approving the exchange rule filings to list shares of trusts holding bitcoin and ether as commodity-based ETPs, appears to have implicitly taken the view that each of bitcoin and ether is not a security. The SEC staff has also provided informal assurances via no-action letter to a handful of promoters that their digital assets are not securities. On the other hand, the SEC under prior administrations brought enforcement actions against the issuers and promoters of several other digital assets on the basis that the digital assets in question are securities, as well as against digital asset trading platforms for allegedly operating unregistered securities exchanges on the basis that certain of the digital assets traded on their platforms are securities. For example, in June 2023, the SEC brought suit against two of the largest operators of digital asset trading platforms in Securities and Exchange Commission v. Binance Holdings Ltd., et al (the "Binance Complaint") and Securities and Exchange Commission v. Coinbase, Inc., and Coinbase Global, Inc. (the "Coinbase Complaint"), alleging that Binance and Coinbase had solicited U.S. investors to buy, sell, and trade "crypto asset securities" through their unregistered trading platforms and operated unregistered securities exchanges, brokerages and clearing agencies. In addition, in November 2023, the SEC brought similar charges against Kraken (the "Kraken Complaint"), alleging that it operated as an unregistered securities exchange, brokerage and clearing agency. The Binance Complaint, Coinbase Complaint and Kraken Complaint, although all have now been dismissed, have led, and may in the future lead, to further volatility in digital asset prices.

In January 2025, the SEC launched a crypto task force dedicated to developing a comprehensive and clear regulatory framework for digital assets led by Commissioner Hester Peirce. Subsequently, Commissioner Peirce announced a list of specific priorities to further that initiative, which included pursuing final rules related to a digital asset's security status, a revised path to registered offerings and listings for digital assets-based investment vehicles and clarity regarding digital asset custody, lending and staking. Additionally, on July 31, 2025, Chairman Atkins announced "Project Crypto," a Commission-wide initiative to modernize securities rules for digital assets, reshore innovation in the United States, and implement the recommendations of the report by the interagency working group tasked with "proposing a Federal regulatory framework governing the issuance and operation of digital assets."

Whether a digital asset is a security under the U.S. federal securities laws depends on whether it is included in the lists of instruments making up the definition of "security" in the Securities Act, the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (the "Exchange Act") and the Investment Company Act. Digital assets do not appear in any of these lists, although each list includes the terms "investment contract" and "note," and the SEC has typically analyzed whether a particular digital asset is a security by reference to whether it meets the tests developed by the federal courts interpreting these terms, known as the "Howey" and "Reves" tests, respectively. For many digital assets, whether or not the Howey or Reves tests are met is difficult to resolve definitively, and substantial legal arguments can often be made both in favor of and against a particular digital asset qualifying as a security under one or both of the Howey and Reves tests. Adding to the complexity, the SEC staff has indicated that the security status of a particular digital asset can change over time as the relevant facts evolve.

With respect to XRP, in December 2020, the SEC filed a complaint against Ripple (the "Ripple Complaint") and two of its executives (the "Ripple Defendants"), in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York (the "S.D.N.Y.") alleging that the Ripple Defendants had conducted unregistered securities offerings by selling XRP in contravention of Section 5 of the Securities Act. Under Section 5 of the Securities Act, it is unlawful for any person, directly or indirectly to offer to sell, offer to buy or purchase or sell a "security" unless a registration statement is in effect or has been filed with the SEC as to the offer and sale of such security to the public. On July 13, 2023, the S.D.N.Y. issued several key rulings in the case. Most notably, the court found that XRP was not inherently a security. The court distinguished between the XRP token itself and the manner in which it was sold. This finding was contrary to the SEC's argument, which was that XRP, by its nature, was a security under the definition provided by the Securities Act. The court then analyzed each distribution of XRP as a distinct analysis under the federal securities laws and found that the direct sale of XRP by the Ripple Defendants to certain sophisticated individuals and entities pursuant to written contracts did constitute the unregistered offer and sale of securities in violation of Section 5 of the Securities Act. However, the court found that the programmatic sale of XRP by the Ripple Defendants over digital asset trading platforms in the secondary market did not constitute an unregistered sale of securities. Similarly, the court found that other of Ripple Labs' distributions of XRP, including the XRP that Ripple Labs granted to Ripple Labs employees as compensation or to third-party companies to incentivize the development of new applications for XRP and the XRP Ledger also did not constitute an unregistered sale of securities. The S.D.N.Y. entered a final judgment in the case on August 7, 2024. The SEC filed a notice of appeal in October 2024, and Ripple subsequently filed a cross-appeal. Both appeals were later dismissed, and in August 2025, the SEC issued an order confirming the termination of the appellate proceedings and granting related waivers.

Moreover, also in July 2023, another judge in the S.D.N.Y., in litigation between the SEC and the issuer of the TerraUSD and LUNA digital assets, suggested that he disagreed with the approach underlying the XRP decision. The Binance Complaint, the Coinbase Complaint, and the SEC's actions against XRP's issuer and the issuer of the TerraUSD and LUNA digital assets, as well as seemingly inconsistent views of different district court judges, underscore the continuing uncertainty around which digital assets are securities, and demonstrate that such factors as how long a digital asset has been in existence, how widely held it is, how large its market capitalization is and that it has actual use in commercial transactions, ultimately may have no bearing on whether a court will find it to be a security. Because no federal appellate court has considered the question on the merits, both with respect to XRP and digital assets generally, as well as the fact that because each digital asset presents its own unique set of relevant facts, it is not always possible to directly analogize the analysis of one digital asset to another.

As a result, Pubco could be considered to be engaged in a distribution (i.e., a public offering) of unregistered securities in violation of Section 5 of the Securities Act, which could impose significant civil and criminal liability on Pubco. There is no guarantee that a court of regulatory body will agree with Pubco's assessment of XRP as a non-security. In addition, even though a judge in the S.D.N.Y. found that XRP was not itself a security and that secondary market transactions over digital asset trading platforms are not securities transactions, as a district court opinion, other courts are not bound by that ruling. If a federal court were to disagree with that decision and determine that XRP is a security, it is likely that the value of Pubco Class A Common Stock would decline significantly.

If we were deemed to be an "investment company" under the Investment Company Act, applicable restrictions could make it impractical for us to continue our operations and could have a material adverse effect on our business.

Under the Investment Company Act, an entity is generally deemed to be an "investment company" if it is or holds itself out as being primarily engaged in the business of investing, reinvesting or trading in securities, or if it owns or proposes to acquire investment securities having a value exceeding 40% of the value of its total assets (exclusive of U.S. government securities and cash items) on an unconsolidated basis. Entities deemed to be investment companies are subject to extensive registration, disclosure and operational requirements, including restrictions on transactions with affiliates, limitations on capital structure and leverage, prohibitions on certain compensatory arrangements, and specific governance and compliance obligations. These requirements could make it impractical for us to continue to operate as currently structured and could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition and results of operations.

If XRP were determined by a court or regulatory authority to constitute a security, our holdings of XRP could be considered "investment securities" for purposes of the Investment Company Act. In that event, we could be deemed to be an unregistered investment company, which would subject us to significant additional regulatory controls, including registration and compliance obligations inconsistent with our purpose and structure. Any such determination could require us to materially alter our operations, dispose of assets, restructure our ownership or terminate certain arrangements. These consequences could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition and results of operations.

If we were deemed to be an investment company and were unable to obtain an exemption or otherwise restructure to avoid such status, we could be forced to suspend or cease certain activities, terminate contractual relationships, or liquidate our assets. Compliance with, or attempts to avoid, the requirements of the Investment Company Act could impose substantial costs, create operational uncertainty and materially adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and prospects.

Pubco will not be subject to the same legal and regulatory obligations, including certain compliance and reporting obligations intended to protect investors, that apply to investment companies such as mutual funds and ETFs, or to obligations applicable to investment advisers.

Mutual funds, ETFs and their directors and management are subject to extensive regulation as "investment companies" and "investment advisers" under U.S. federal and state law; this regulation is intended for the benefit and protection of investors. We believe we are currently not subject to, and subsequent to the Transactions, will not be subject to, and do not otherwise voluntarily comply with, these laws and regulations. Consequently, stockholders of Pubco do not have the regulatory protections provided to shareholders in registered and regulated investment companies, which, for example, require investment companies to have a certain percentage of disinterested directors and regulate the relationship between the investment company and certain of its affiliates.

Further, Pubco could hold or trade in commodity futures contracts in order to hedge its XRP holdings. A futures contract, which is a type of derivative, is subject to the risk of loss caused by unanticipated market movements, which are potentially unlimited. In addition, there may at times be an imperfect correlation between the movement in the prices of futures contracts and the value of their underlying instruments or indexes, and there may at times not be a liquid secondary market for certain futures contracts leading to the possible inability to sell or close out a futures contract at the desired time or price. Commodity futures are regulated by the Commodity Exchange Act, as administered by the CFTC. Additionally, under the CEA, the CFTC has broad enforcement authority to police market manipulation and fraud in spot digital assets markets in which we may transact. Beyond instances of fraud or manipulation, the CFTC generally does not oversee cash or spot market exchanges or transactions involving digital asset commodities that do not utilize margin, leverage, or financing, although the passage of the CLARITY Act or other legislation regarding digital asset market structure may provide the CFTC with primary regulatory oversight authority over spot digital commodities. We do not believe that we are a commodity pool for purposes of the Commodity Exchange Act. Consequently, shareholders will not have the regulatory protections provided to shareholders in Commodity Exchange Act-regulated instruments or commodity pools.

This means, among other things, that the execution of or changes to our XRP acquisition and management strategy, our use of leverage, the manner in which our XRP is custodied, our ability to engage in transactions with affiliated parties and our operating and investment activities generally are not subject to the extensive legal and regulatory requirements and prohibitions that apply to investment companies and investment advisers. For example, although a significant change to our XRP acquisition strategy would require the approval of the Pubco Board, no shareholder or regulatory approval would be necessary. Consequently, the Pubco Board has broad discretion over the investment, leverage and cash management policies it authorizes, whether in respect of our XRP holdings or other activities we may pursue, and has the power to change our current policies, including our strategy of acquiring and holding XRP.

Risks Related to Being a Public Company

The market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock may be volatile and decline materially as a result of volatility in XRP or the digital asset markets generally, or for other reasons. You should be aware that you may lose some or all of your investment.

The trading price of Pubco Class A Common Stock following completion of the Transactions are likely to be volatile. The stock market has recently experienced and in the future may experience extreme volatility. This volatility has often been unrelated or disproportionate to the operating performance of particular companies. You may not be able to resell your shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock at an attractive price due to a number of factors such as the following:

- Pubco's operating and financial performance and prospects;
- risk of Pubco's credit rating being downgraded;
- Pubco's quarterly or annual earnings or those of other companies in its industry compared to market expectations;
- conditions that impact demand for Pubco's future products and/or services;
- future announcements concerning Pubco's business, its customers' businesses or its competitors' businesses;

- the public's reaction to Pubco's press releases or other public announcements and filings with the SEC;
- the market's reaction to Pubco's reduced disclosure and other requirements as a result of being an "emerging growth company" under the JOBS Act;
- the size of Pubco's public float;
- volatility in XRP, Pubco's principal asset;
- coverage by or changes in financial estimates by securities analysts or failure to meet their expectations;
- market and industry perception of Pubco's success, or lack thereof, in pursuing its strategy;
- strategic actions by Pubco or its competitors, such as acquisitions or restructurings;
- changes in laws or regulations which adversely affect Pubco's industry or Pubco;
- privacy and data protection laws, privacy or data breaches, or the loss of data;
- changes in Pubco's accounting standards, policies, guidance, interpretations or principles;
- changes in Pubco's senior management or key personnel;
- issuances, exchanges or sales, or expected issuances, exchanges or sales of Pubco Class A Common Stock;
- changes in Pubco's dividend policy;
- failure by Pubco to comply with regulatory requirements, including those related to governance and control requirements in particular jurisdictions, international sanctions or a change in regulations or enforcement policies that adversely affects our operations;
- adverse resolution of new or pending investigation, regulatory action or litigation against Pubco; and
- changes in general market, economic and political conditions in the United States and other global economies or financial markets, including those resulting from inflation and related monetary policy in response to inflation, natural disasters, terrorist attacks, acts of war and responses to such events.

Moreover, broad market and industry factors may materially reduce the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock, regardless of Pubco's operating performance. In addition, price volatility may be greater if the public float and trading volume of Pubco Class A Common Stock is low. As a result, you may suffer a loss on your investment.

Pubco's share price may be exposed to additional risks because our business will become a public company through a "de-SPAC" transaction. There has been increased focus by government agencies on such transactions, and Pubco expects that increased focus to continue. Pubco may be subject to increased scrutiny by the SEC and other government agencies on holders of Pubco securities as a result, which could adversely affect the price of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Our common stock may trade at prices which diverge from the net asset value of our XRP holdings.

The market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock may trade at a significant premium or discount to the net asset value ("NAV") of our XRP holdings, and such premium or discount may fluctuate significantly. The trading price of Pubco Class A Common Stock will be influenced by factors beyond the value of our XRP holdings, including investor perceptions of our strategy and risk profile, liquidity and trading volume, the size of our public float, expectations regarding our operating expenses, indebtedness and other liabilities, concerns about dilution from future equity issuances, general market conditions, and speculation regarding digital assets and digital-asset treasury businesses. We intend to continue to evaluate opportunities to raise capital in the near term, which may contribute further dilutive impacts on the share price.

If Pubco Class A Common Stock trades at a significant or persistent discount to NAV, our ability to raise additional capital on attractive terms could be adversely affected, as equity issuances at a discount to NAV may be more dilutive to existing shareholders and may increase our overall cost of capital. A sustained discount could also limit our ability to use our stock as acquisition currency and may make it more difficult to obtain debt or other financing on acceptable terms. Further, if we have current or future financing obligations, a sustained discount could increase the risk that we would need to monetize XRP holdings at unfavorable times or prices to fund operations or satisfy such obligations, which could adversely affect our financial condition and the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock. Although we expect to have a significant capital base and no outstanding debt following the closing of the Business Combination, there can be no assurance that we will not face liquidity needs or financing requirements that could be exacerbated by a discount to NAV.

Because Pubco will be a holding company whose principal asset is its equity interests in the Company, Pubco will be dependent upon distributions from the Company to pay taxes and other expenses.

Pubco will be a holding company, and its principal asset is expected to be its indirect ownership in the Company. Pubco is not expected to have independent means of generating significant revenue and will have expenses as a public company. As the controller of the sole managing member of the Company, Pubco intends to cause the Company to make distributions to its members, including indirectly to Pubco, sufficient to cover Pubco's tax obligations and other costs or expenses. However, there can be no assurance that the Company will generate sufficient excess cash flow to make distributions to its members sufficient to cover Pubco's tax obligations, payments required under the Tax Receivable Agreement and other costs or expenses, or that laws and regulations or contractual provisions (especially if the Company later issues debt) will not restrict the Company's ability to make distributions.

Upon consummation of the Business Combination, a substantial part of the Company's assets will be its XRP holdings and cash and cash equivalents generated from revenues from activities and the proceeds of the Transactions and the Private Placement Investments not invested in XRP. Applicable law and contractual restrictions, including negative covenants under any debt instruments, if applicable, may restrict the Company's ability to sell XRP in order to fund working capital needs. Pubco or the Company may default on contractual obligations or may need to borrow additional funds. In the event that Pubco or the Company is required to borrow additional funds, it could adversely affect Pubco's liquidity and subject it to additional restrictions imposed by lenders. If Pubco enters into additional financing or other agreements in the future, Pubco cannot make assurances that these agreements will be on favorable terms or that they will not restrict the distribution of dividends or other payments to shareholders.

Pubco's ability to timely raise capital in the future may be limited, or may be unavailable on acceptable terms, if at all, which failure could harm its business, operating results and financial condition.

Pubco cannot be certain if it will generate sufficient cash through the active management of its XRP holdings to fund future operations or growth of its business. Moreover, Pubco cannot guarantee its ability to raise additional capital, or to raise additional capital on favorable terms, as additional financing may not be available on favorable terms, if at all. If adequate funds are not available on acceptable terms, Pubco may be unable to invest in future growth opportunities, which could adversely affect Pubco's business, operating results and financial condition.

Pubco may, from time to time, issue debt in order to further its XRP acquisition strategy. If Pubco incurs additional debt, the debt holders could also have rights senior to holders of Pubco Stock to make claims on Pubco's assets. The terms of any debt could restrict Pubco's operations, including its ability to pay dividends on Pubco Class A Common Stock. As a result, Pubco stockholders bear the risk of future issuances of debt securities reducing the value of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

The issuance of additional shares or convertible securities by Pubco could make it difficult for another company to acquire Pubco, may dilute the ownership of Pubco stockholders and could adversely affect the price of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Pubco may obtain additional financing and may issue additional shares and/or offer debt or other equity securities, including senior or subordinated notes, debt securities convertible into equity and/or shares of preferred stock. Issuing additional shares of Pubco Stock, other equity securities, and/or securities convertible into equity may dilute the economic and voting rights of Pubco's existing shareholders, reduce the market price of outstanding shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, or both. Securities convertible into equity could be subject to adjustments in the conversion ratio, pursuant to which certain events may increase the number of equity securities issuable upon conversion. Shares of preferred stock could have a preference with respect to liquidating distributions or a preference with respect to dividend payments that could further limit Pubco's ability to pay dividends to the holders of Pubco Class A Common Stock. The potential issuance of additional securities may delay or prevent a change in control of Pubco or the Company, discourage bids for our securities at a premium to the market price, and materially and adversely affect the market price and the voting and other rights of the holders of our securities, including Pubco Class A Common Stock. Pubco continues to seek additional financing opportunities ahead of Closing, and is currently in late stages of negotiating an investment for equity-linked securities. Pubco's decision to issue securities in any future offering will depend on market conditions and other factors beyond its control, which may adversely affect the amount, timing or nature of its future offerings. In particular, there can be no assurance that Pubco will successfully execute the equity-linked securities financing referenced above on the terms being discussed, in a timely fashion or at all. As a result, holders of Pubco Class A Common Stock bear the risk that Pubco's future offerings and exercise of any options under any stock option plans that Pubco may implement may reduce the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock and dilute their percentage ownership. See the section entitled "Description of Pubco Securities."

Future resales of Pubco Class A Common Stock after the consummation of the Business Combination may cause the market price of Pubco's securities to drop significantly, even if Pubco's business is doing well.

The Lock-Up Agreements and the Insider Letter (as will be amended at Closing in accordance with the Sponsor Support Agreement) provide that after the consummation of the Business Combination and subject to certain exceptions, the Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants received by the Sponsor, Contributor, the Contributor Related Party Entity and the SPAC Insiders will be locked-up and subject to transfer restrictions, as described below, subject to certain exceptions, as described in the section "The Transactions—Other Transaction Agreements—The Lock-Up Agreements" and "The Transactions—Other Transaction Agreements—The Sponsor Support Agreement."

However, following the expiration of such lock-up, the Sponsor and Ripple will not be restricted from selling Pubco Stock held by them, other than by applicable securities laws. Upon completion of the Transactions and assuming that no SPAC Class A Shares are redeemed in connection with the Transactions and based on the other assumptions included elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus, Ripple and the Sponsor will collectively beneficially own approximately 29.8% of the outstanding shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock at Closing. This scenario assumes that no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued and outstanding under the Incentive Plan.

In addition, pursuant to the A&R Registration Rights Agreement, the Contribution Agreement and the Private Placement Subscription Agreements, Pubco will agree to register for resale, pursuant to Rule 415 under the Securities Act, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (or convertible or exchangeable into of Pubco Class A Common Stock) that are held by the Sponsor, Contributor and the Private Placement Investors. Pursuant to the A&R Registration Rights Agreement, the Contribution Agreement and the Private Placement Subscription Agreements, such parties will have customary registration rights, including demand and piggy-back rights. Pubco estimates that up to an aggregate of approximately 39,426,545 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, consisting of (i) 9,432,524 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding 15,120,318 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon conversion of Pubco Class C Common Stock, and 61,607 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon exercise of warrants, in each case held by Sponsor, (ii) 155,000 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon exercise of warrants held by certain SPAC shareholders, (iii) 3,365,416 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by Contributor, (iv) 1,327,146 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by the Contributor Related Party Entity, (v) 9,481,664 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by the Advance Funding Subscribers, and (vi) 482,870 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by the Delayed Funding Subscribers, will be subject to registration rights following the Transactions and the consummation of the Private Placement Investments, assuming, among other things, that neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, that no Public Shareholders exercise redemption rights with respect to their Public Shares upon completion of the Transactions, that all Private Placement Investors fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, that Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, that the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, that the Closing XRP Price is $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate—New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026), that no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the Incentive Plan, and neither Ripple nor any Private Placement Investor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market.

As restrictions on resale end and registration statements (filed after the Closing to provide for the resale of such shares from time to time) are available for use, the sale or possibility of sale of these shares could have the effect of increasing the volatility in the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock and the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock could decline if the holders of currently restricted shares sell them or are perceived by the market as intending to sell them.

Pubco will incur significant costs post-Transactions as a result of being a public company, including additional legal, accounting, insurance and other expenses, as well as costs associated with public company reporting requirements.

Pubco will incur significant legal, accounting, insurance and other expenses, including costs associated with public company reporting requirements following completion of the Transactions. Pubco will incur significant costs associated with complying with the requirements of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2010, and related rules implemented by the SEC and Nasdaq, or any other national securities exchange on which it may list its securities. Pubco expects these laws and regulations to increase its legal and financial compliance costs after the Transactions and to render some activities more time-consuming and costly, although Pubco is currently unable to estimate these costs with any degree of certainty. Pubco is expected to need to hire more employees post-Transactions or engage outside consultants to comply with these requirements, which will increase its post-Transactions costs and expenses. These laws and regulations could make it more difficult or costly for Pubco to obtain certain types of insurance, including directors' and officers' liability insurance, and Pubco may be forced to accept reduced policy limits and coverage or incur substantially higher costs to obtain the same or similar coverage. These laws and regulations could also make it more difficult for Pubco to attract and retain qualified persons to serve on the Pubco Board or board committees or as executive officers. Furthermore, if Pubco is unable to satisfy its obligations as a public company, it could be subject to delisting of its Pubco Class A Common Stock, fines, sanctions and other regulatory action and potentially civil litigation.

Pubco's management team is expected to have limited experience managing and operating a U.S. public company.

Certain members of Pubco's management team are expected to have limited experience managing and operating a U.S. publicly traded company, interacting with U.S. public company investors, and complying with the increasingly complex laws pertaining to U.S. public companies. Its transition to being a U.S. public company subjects Pubco to significant regulatory oversight and reporting obligations under the U.S. federal securities laws and the continuous scrutiny of securities analysts and investors. These new obligations and constituents will require significant attention from Pubco's senior management and could divert their attention away from the day-to-day management of its business. Pubco may not have adequate personnel with the appropriate level of knowledge, experience and training in the accounting policies, practices or internal control over financial reporting required of U.S. public companies. The development and implementation of the standards and controls necessary for Pubco to achieve the level of accounting standards required of a public company may require costs greater than expected. To support its operations as a U.S. public company, Pubco plans to recruit additional qualified employees or external consultants with relevant experience, which will increase its operating costs in future periods. Should any of these factors materialize, Pubco's business, financial condition and results of operations could be adversely affected.

If Pubco is unable to maintain an effective system of internal controls and compliance, its business and reputation could be adversely affected.

Pubco plans to manage regulatory compliance by monitoring and evaluating its internal controls to ensure that it is in compliance with all relevant statutory and regulatory requirements, there can be no assurance that deficiencies in its internal controls and compliances will not arise, or that it will be able to implement, and continue to maintain, adequate measures to rectify or mitigate any such deficiencies in its internal controls, in a timely manner or at all. Pubco cannot assure that there will be no instances of inadvertent noncompliances with statutory requirements, which may subject it to regulatory action, including monetary penalties, which may adversely affect its business and reputation. See also "Pubco's compliance and risk management methods, including with respect to any lending or hypothecation of Pubco's XRP might not be effective and may result in outcomes that could adversely affect Pubco's reputation, operating results and financial condition."

Pubco's failure to timely and effectively implement controls and procedures required by Section 404(a) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act that will be applicable to it following consummation of the Business Combination could have a material adverse effect on its business, financial condition, results of operations, cash flow and prospects.

Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act will require Pubco to evaluate the effectiveness of its internal control over financial reporting as of the end of each fiscal year, including a management report assessing the effectiveness of its internal control over financial reporting beginning with its second Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year in which the Transactions are consummated. Additionally, once Pubco ceases to be an emerging growth company, its independent registered accounting firm will also be required to attest to the effectiveness of its internal control over financial reporting in each Annual Report on Form 10-K to be filed with the SEC. Pubco may in the future identify material weaknesses or significant deficiencies that it may be unable to remedy before the requisite deadline for those reports. Pubco's ability to comply with the annual internal control reporting requirements will depend on the effectiveness of its financial reporting and data systems and controls across its company. Pubco expects these systems and controls to involve significant expenditures and to become increasingly complex as its business grows. To effectively manage this complexity, Pubco will need to continue to improve its operational, financial and management controls and its reporting systems and procedures. Any weaknesses or deficiencies or any failure to implement required new or improved controls, or difficulties encountered in the implementation or operation of these controls, could harm its operating results and cause it to fail to meet its financial reporting obligations or result in material misstatements in its financial statements, which could adversely affect our business and reduce the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Pubco will be an "emerging growth company." The reduced public company reporting requirements applicable to emerging growth companies may make Pubco Class A Common Stock less attractive to investors.

Pubco will qualify as an "emerging growth company," as defined in the JOBS Act. While Pubco remains an emerging growth company, it will be permitted to and plans to rely on exemptions from certain disclosure requirements that are applicable to other public companies that are not emerging growth companies. These provisions include: (i) an exemption from compliance with the auditor attestation requirement in the assessment of Pubco's internal control over financial reporting pursuant to Section 404 of Sarbanes-Oxley, (ii) not being required to comply with any requirement that may be adopted by the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board regarding mandatory audit firm rotation or a supplement to the auditor's report providing additional information about the audit and the financial statements, (iii) reduced disclosure obligations regarding executive compensation arrangements in Pubco's periodic reports, registration statements and proxy statements, and (iv) exemptions from the requirements of holding a non-binding advisory vote on executive compensation and shareholder approval of any golden parachute payments not previously approved. As a result, the information Pubco provides will be different than the information that is available with respect to other public companies that are not emerging growth companies.

In addition, Section 107 of the JOBS Act provides that an emerging growth company can take advantage of the exemption from complying with new or revised accounting standards provided in Section 7(a)(2)(B) of the Securities Act as long as Pubco is an emerging growth company. An emerging growth company can therefore delay the adoption of certain accounting standards until those standards would otherwise apply to private companies. The JOBS Act provides that a company can elect to opt out of the extended transition period and comply with the requirements that apply to non-emerging growth companies, but any such election to opt out is irrevocable.

Pubco cannot predict whether investors will find Pubco Class A Common Stock less attractive if it relies on these exemptions. If some investors find Pubco Class A Common Stock less attractive as a result, there may be a less active trading market for Pubco Class A Common Stock. The market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock may be more volatile.

Pubco expects to remain an emerging growth company until the earlier of (i) the last day of the fiscal year (1) following the fifth anniversary of the Closing, (2) in which Pubco has total annual gross revenue of at least $1.235 billion, or (3) in which Pubco is deemed to be a large accelerated filer, which means the market value of Pubco Stock that is held by non-affiliates equaled or exceeded $700 million as of the end of that year's second fiscal quarter, and (ii) the date on which Pubco has issued more than $1.00 billion in non-convertible debt securities during the prior three-year period.

If securities or industry analysts do not publish research or reports about Pubco's business or publish negative reports, the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock could decline.

The trading market for Pubco Class A Common Stock will be influenced by the research and reports that industry or securities analysts publish about Pubco, Pubco's business. Pubco may be unable or slow to attract research coverage and if one or more analysts cease coverage of Pubco, the price and trading volume of Pubco's securities would likely be negatively impacted. If any of the analysts that may cover Pubco change their recommendation regarding Pubco's securities adversely, or provide more favorable relative recommendations about Pubco's competitors, the price of Pubco's securities would likely decline. If any analyst that may cover Pubco ceases covering Pubco or fails to regularly publish reports on Pubco, it could lose visibility in the financial markets, which could cause the price or trading volume of Pubco's securities to decline. If one or more of the analysts who cover Pubco downgrades Pubco Class A Common Stock or if Pubco's reporting results do not meet their expectations, the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock could decline. Moreover, the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock may decline after the Transactions if Pubco does not achieve the perceived benefits of the Transactions as rapidly or to the extent anticipated by financial analysts, or the effect of the Transactions on Pubco's financial results is not consistent with the expectations of financial analysts. Accordingly, holders of Pubco Stock following the consummation of the Business Combination may experience a loss as a result of a decline in the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock. In addition, a decline in the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock following the consummation of the Business Combination could adversely affect Pubco's ability to issue additional securities and to obtain additional financing in the future.

Pubco may be subject to material litigation, including individual and class action lawsuits, as well as investigations and enforcement actions by regulators and governmental authorities. These matters are often expensive and time consuming, and, if resolved adversely, could harm Pubco's business, financial condition and operating results.

We may from time to time become subject to claims, arbitrations, individual and class action lawsuits with respect to a variety of matters, including employment, consumer protection, advertising and securities. In addition, we may from time to time become subject to, government and regulatory investigations, inquiries, actions or requests, other proceedings and enforcement actions alleging violations of laws, rules and regulations, both foreign and domestic. The scope, determination and impact of claims, lawsuits, government and regulatory investigations, enforcement actions, disputes and proceedings to which we are subject cannot be predicted with certainty, and may result in:

- substantial payments to satisfy judgments, fines or penalties;
- substantial outside counsel, advisor and consultant fees and costs;
- substantial administrative costs, including arbitration fees;
- additional compliance and licensure requirements;
- loss or non-renewal of then-existing licenses or authorizations, or prohibition from or delays in obtaining additional licenses or authorizations, required for our business;
- loss of productivity and high demands on employee time;
- criminal sanctions or consent decrees;
- termination of certain employees, including members of our executive team;
- barring of certain employees from participating in our business in whole or in part;
- orders that restrict our business or prevent us from offering certain products or services;
- changes to our business model and practices;
- an inability to deliver on our strategy;
- delays to planned transactions, product launches or improvements; and
- damage to our brand and reputation.

Regardless of the outcome, any such matters can have an adverse impact, which may be material, on our business, operating results or financial condition because of legal costs, diversion of management resources, reputational damage and other factors.

The Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws include exclusive forum provisions, which could limit a stockholder's ability to obtain a favorable judicial forum for disputes with Pubco or its directors, officers or other employees.

The Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws provide that, to the fullest extent permitted by Nevada law and unless Pubco consents in writing to the selection of an alternative forum, the Eighth Judicial District Court of Clark County, Nevada will be the sole and exclusive forum for (i) any action brought in the name or right of Pubco or on its behalf, (ii) any action asserting a claim for breach of a fiduciary duty owed by any current or former director, officer, stockholder, employee, agent or fiduciary of Pubco to Pubco or its stockholders, (iii) any "internal action" (as defined in NRS 78.046), including any action asserting a claim against Pubco arising under NRS Chapters 78 or 92A, the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter or the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws, any voting trust agreement or related agreement or as to which the NRS confers jurisdiction on the district court of the State of Nevada, (iv) any action to interpret, apply, enforce or determine the validity of the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter or the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws, or (v) any action asserting a claim governed by the internal affairs doctrine; provided that such exclusive forum provisions will not apply to suits brought to enforce any liability or duty created by the Exchange Act or any other claim for which the federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction. If the Eighth Judicial District Court of Clark County, Nevada lacks jurisdiction over any such action, the sole and exclusive forum will instead be another state district court located in Nevada, and if no state district court in Nevada has jurisdiction, then a federal court located within the State of Nevada will serve as the exclusive forum.

In addition, unless Pubco consents in writing to the selection of an alternative forum, the federal district courts of the United States of America will be the sole and exclusive forum for the resolution of any claim asserting a cause of action arising under the Securities Act. Section 22 of the Securities Act creates concurrent jurisdiction for federal and state courts over all suits brought to enforce a duty or liability created by the Securities Act or the rules and regulations thereunder. Accordingly, there is uncertainty as to whether a court would enforce such an exclusive federal forum provision as written in connection with claims arising under the Securities Act, and Pubco's stockholders will not be deemed to have waived Pubco's compliance with the federal securities laws and the rules and regulations thereunder. Any person or entity purchasing or otherwise acquiring any interest in any security of Pubco shall be deemed to have notice of and consented to the exclusive forum provision of the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws.

The exclusive forum provision in the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws may limit a stockholder's ability to bring a claim in a judicial forum that it finds favorable for disputes with us or our directors, officers, employees or agents, including by requiring Securities Act claims to be brought in federal court, or could result in increased costs for a stockholder to bring a claim, particularly if they do not live in or near Nevada, both of which may discourage the filing of lawsuits with respect to such claims. Alternatively, if a court were to find the exclusive forum provision contained in the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws to be inapplicable or unenforceable in an action, Pubco may incur additional costs associated with resolving such actions in other jurisdictions, which could adversely affect Pubco's business, operating results and financial condition.

The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter includes a waiver of the right to trial by jury for certain claims, which could limit our stockholders' ability to obtain a jury trial and could discourage claims or affect outcomes.

Article 10 of the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter will provide that, to the fullest extent not inconsistent with any applicable U.S. federal laws, any and all "internal actions" (as defined in NRS 78.046) must be tried in a court of competent jurisdiction (subject to the exclusive forum provisions in the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws) before the presiding judge as the trier of fact and not before a jury. Pursuant to NRS 78.046 (as amended effective May 30, 2025, pursuant to Assembly Bill No. 239), such requirement will conclusively operate as a waiver of the right to trial by jury by each party to any such internal action to the extent applicable and not otherwise prohibited by law, including the Securities Act and the Exchange Act and the rules and regulations thereunder. Under NRS 78.046, the limited waiver of trial by jury is only intended to apply to "internal actions" brought in state courts in the State of Nevada and does not limit or otherwise affect any right to a jury trial in any other action, suit or proceeding (including in state courts outside of Nevada and U.S. federal courts). Therefore, under current law, the limited waiver of trial by jury will not apply to claims brought under the Exchange Act, which are subject to exclusive federal jurisdiction, and will only apply to Securities Act claims if such claims are properly brought in state courts in the State of Nevada and constitute an "internal action" under NRS 78.046.

To the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, any person or entity purchasing or otherwise acquiring any interest in shares of our capital stock shall be deemed to have notice of and consented to the limited jury waiver provisions in the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter, except our stockholders will not be deemed to have waived (and cannot waive) compliance with the federal securities laws (including the Securities Act and the Exchange Act) and the rules and regulations thereunder. These jury waiver provisions, to the extent applicable and enforceable, may limit a stockholder's ability to bring a claim in a judicial forum with a jury trial, even if such stockholder may believe such trial by jury to be favorable or convenient for disputes with us or any of our current or former directors, officers, other employees or stockholders. The lack of the ability to bring a claim in a judicial forum with a jury trial may discourage stockholders from bringing otherwise meritorious lawsuits or may put a stockholder at a disadvantage in any litigation that is brought. Alternatively, if a court were to find these provisions contained in the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter to be inapplicable or unenforceable in an action, we may incur additional costs associated with resolving such action before a jury, which could harm our business, results of operations and financial condition.

Immediately following the consummation of this offering, holders of Company Units may require us to issue additional shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

After this offering, we will have an aggregate of 7,452,600,380 shares and 7,494,410,479 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock authorized but unissued under a No Redemptions and Maximum Redemption scenarios, respectively (and based on the other assumptions set forth under "Beneficial Ownership of Securities"), including approximately 35,381,134 shares and 15,624,724 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon the redemption or exchange of Company Units that will be held by the holders of Company Units, respectively. We, Ripple and the Contributor Related Party Entity will enter into the Company A&R LLCA, pursuant to which holders of Company Units (other than us) will have the right, from and after the completion of this offering to require the Company to redeem all or a portion of their Company Units for, at our election, newly issued shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock on a one-for-one basis or a cash payment equal to the volume-weighted average market price of one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each Company Unit redeemed or exchanged. Alternatively, we can elect to directly acquire Company Units in exchange for newly issued shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock on a one-for-one basis or a cash payment equal to the volume-weighted average market price of one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each Company Unit redeemed or exchanged.

If Pubco elects to satisfy redemption or exchange requests by issuing additional shares of Class A Common Stock, the issuance and any subsequent sales of those shares into the public market, it may cause the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock to decline, and could result in substantial dilution to existing holders. Conversely, if Pubco elects to satisfy such redemptions in cash, it could reduce Pubco's liquidity and limit funds available for other corporate purposes. Any of these developments could materially and adversely affect the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock, our business, financial condition, results of operations and prospects.

Risks Related to the Transactions

The market price of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock after the Transactions will be affected by factors different from those currently affecting the market price of SPAC Class A Shares.

The market price of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock after the Transactions will be influenced by various factors, distinct from those affecting the market price of SPAC Class A Shares before the Transactions. These include the financial performance of Pubco, economic conditions, market trends, XRP price performance, investor psychology, relative governance rights and political and social factors.

The market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock may change significantly following the Transactions. The stock market recently has experienced extreme volatility. This volatility often has been unrelated or disproportionate to the operating performance of particular companies. Public Shareholders may not be able to resell their shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock at an attractive price due to a number of factors such as those listed in "Risks Related to the Business and Strategy of Pubco," "Risks Related to Being a Public Company" and the following:

- results of operations that vary from the expectations of securities analysts and investors;
- results of operations that vary from those of Pubco's competitors;

- changes in the market price of XRP;
- changes in expectations as to Pubco's future financial performance, including financial estimates and investment recommendations by securities analysts and investors;
- declines in the market prices of stocks generally;
- strategic actions by Pubco or its competitors;
- announcements by Pubco or its competitors of significant contracts, acquisitions, joint ventures, other strategic relationships or capital commitments;
- any significant change in Pubco's management;
- changes in general economic or market conditions or trends in Pubco's industry or markets;
- changes in business or regulatory conditions, including new laws or regulations or new interpretations of existing laws or regulations applicable to Pubco's business;
- future sales by Pubco of Pubco Class A Common Stock or other securities;
- investor perceptions of the investment opportunity associated with Pubco Class A Common Stock relative to other investment alternatives;
- the public's response to press releases or other public announcements by Pubco or third parties, including Pubco's filings with the SEC;
- litigation involving Pubco, Pubco's industry, or both, or investigations by regulators into the Pubco Board, Pubco's operations or those of Pubco's competitors;
- guidance, if any, that Pubco provides to the public, any changes in this guidance or Pubco's failure to meet this guidance;
- the development and sustainability of an active trading market for Pubco Class A Common Stock;
- actions by institutional or activist stockholders;
- changes in accounting standards, policies, guidelines, interpretations or principles; and
- other events or factors, including those resulting from pandemics, natural disasters, war, acts of terrorism or responses to these events.

These broad market and industry fluctuations may adversely affect the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock, regardless of Pubco's actual operating performance. In addition, price volatility may be greater if the public float and trading volume of Pubco Class A Common Stock is low.

In the past, following periods of market volatility, stockholders have instituted securities class action litigation. If Pubco was involved in securities litigation, it could have a substantial cost and divert resources and the attention of executive management from Pubco's business regardless of the outcome of such litigation.

The consummation of the Business Combination is subject to a number of conditions and if those conditions are not satisfied or waived, the Business Combination Agreement may be terminated in accordance with its terms and the Transactions may not be completed.

The consummation of the Business Combination is conditioned upon the satisfaction or written waiver (where permissible) by the parties to the Business Combination Agreement of certain customary closing conditions. These conditions include, but are not limited to: (i) the approval by SPAC shareholders of the Condition Precedent Proposals; (ii) the expiration or termination of any applicable waiting period under the HSR Act and the consummation of the Transactions not being prohibited by applicable law; (iii) the effectiveness of a registration statement on Form S-4; (iv) the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants having been approved for clearing through DTC and for listing on Nasdaq, the New York Stock Exchange or another national stock exchange, subject only to notice of issuance; and (v) the Advance Funding Subscribers and Delayed Funding Subscribers having contributed an amount of XRP at least equivalent to the amounts of XRP committed in the Advance Funding and Delayed Funding, respectively. Additionally, at or prior to Closing, Pubco, SPAC and the warrant agent will enter into an Assignment, Assumption and Amendment Agreement to the Warrant Agreement in a form to be mutually agreed by Pubco, SPAC and the warrant agent thereunder (the "Warrant Assignment, Assumption and Amendment Agreement"). These conditions to the Closing of the Transactions may not be fulfilled in a timely manner or at all, and, accordingly, the Transactions may not be completed.

Each of the conditions to the Closing under the Business Combination Agreement may be waived by the parties other than the approval by SPAC shareholders of the Condition Precedent Proposals.

None of SPAC, Pubco, the Company, SPAC Merger Sub, Company Merger Sub or Ripple currently expects to waive any immaterial or material condition to the consummation of the Business Combination. If SPAC determines to waive any material condition to the consummation of the Business Combination and such waiver renders the disclosure in this proxy statement/prospectus materially misleading, or requires under applicable law the approval of Public shareholders, proxies will be resolicited from the Public shareholders.

In addition, the parties can mutually decide to terminate the Business Combination Agreement at any time, before or after the approval of the SPAC Shareholder Approval Matters by the SPAC shareholders, or Pubco, the Company or SPAC may elect to terminate the Business Combination Agreement in certain other circumstances. For more information, see the section entitled "Questions and Answers About the Proposals—Q. What conditions must be satisfied or waived to complete the Business Combination?" and the section entitled "The Transactions—The Business Combination Agreement—Conditions to the Parties' Obligations to the Closing."

The Business Combination Agreement contains provisions that limit SPAC from seeking an alternative business combination. If the Transactions are not completed, those restrictions may make it harder for SPAC to complete an alternate business combination before the end of the Combination Period.

While the Business Combination Agreement is in effect, SPAC may not solicit, assist, facilitate the making, submission or announcement of, or intentionally encourage any Acquisition Proposal, such as a merger, material sale of assets or equity interests or other business combination, with any third party, even though any such Acquisition Proposal could be more favorable to SPAC shareholders than the Transactions. Further, if SPAC holds and concludes the Extraordinary General Meeting but the approval of the SPAC Shareholder Approval Matters are not obtained, either SPAC or Ripple may terminate the Business Combination Agreement. If the Business Combination Agreement is terminated and the SPAC Board seeks another business combination, these provisions will make it more difficult for SPAC to complete an alternative business combination by the end of the Combination Period following the termination of the Business Combination Agreement due to the passage of time during which these provisions have remained in effect. There can be no assurance that SPAC will be able to find another acquisition target that would consummate a business combination or that such other business combination will be completed prior to the end of the Combination Period. For more information, see the section entitled "The Transactions—Termination and Effects of Termination."

The trading price of SPAC Class A Shares between the time of the Business Combination Agreement and Closing and the trading price of Pubco Class A Common Stock after Closing are likely to be highly correlated to the price of XRP which is volatile and can rise and fall rapidly and quickly and there is no guarantee that the price of XRP at signing the Business Combination Agreement will be greater than the Closing XRP Price or higher than the redemption price that Public Shareholders would have received if they redeemed their Public Shares.

As noted elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus, due to the initial assets of Pubco primarily comprising XRP, the trading price of SPAC Class A Shares between the execution of the Business Combination

Agreement and the Closing and the trading price of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock following Closing are likely to be highly correlated to the price of XRP. As a result, any increase or decrease in the price of XRP could result in a corresponding increase or decrease in share price of SPAC Class A Shares and shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock. While XRP has been a well performing asset over the long term in the last five years, the price of XRP is volatile and can rise and fall rapidly and quickly and there is no guarantee that the price of XRP will continue to rise or that the price of XRP at signing of the Business Combination Agreement will be greater than the Closing XRP Price. Based on the CME CF XRPUSD_RR benchmark (used to determine the Closing XRP Price pursuant to the terms of the Subscription Agreements), XRP traded below $0.50 per XRP and above $3.60 per XRP over the 12 months ending on the Signing Date based on intraday pricing. The trading price of XRP also fluctuated significantly during 2024—monthly data show lows around $0.42 in July and highs around $2.73 in December. For more information, see the risk factors titled "—Pubco's operating results, revenues and expenses may significantly fluctuate, including due to the highly volatile nature of XRP, which could have an adverse effect on the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock" and "—XRP price volatility and sustained declines could cause losses and adversely affect our business, financial condition and ability to execute our strategy" and in the section of this proxy statement/prospectus titled "The Business Combination Proposal—SPAC Board's Reasons for Approval of the Transactions."

For additional information, see the risk factors titled "Pubco's operating results, revenues and expenses may significantly fluctuate, including due to the highly volatile nature of XRP, which could have an adverse effect on the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock," "XRP price volatility and sustained declines could cause losses and adversely affect our business, financial condition and ability to execute our strategy" and the section of this proxy statement/prospectus titled "SPAC Board's Reasons for the Approval of the Transactions."

Neither SPAC nor the SPAC shareholders will have the protection of any indemnification, escrow, price adjustment or other provisions that allow for a post-closing adjustment to be made to the total consideration for the Mergers in the event that any of the representations and warranties in the Business Combination Agreement made by Pubco or the Company or any other party thereto ultimately proves to be inaccurate or incorrect.

Most of the representations and warranties made by Pubco, SPAC, the SPAC Merger Subs, the Company and Ripple to each other in the Business Combination Agreement will not survive the Closing. As a result, SPAC and the SPAC shareholders will not have the protection of any indemnification, escrow, price adjustment or other provisions that allow for a post-closing adjustment to be made to the total consideration for the Mergers if any non-surviving representation or warranty in the Business Combination Agreement made by Pubco, the Company or Ripple proves to be inaccurate or incorrect. Accordingly, to the extent such non-surviving representations or warranties are incorrect, SPAC and the SPAC shareholders would have no indemnification claim with respect thereto and its financial condition or results of operations could be adversely affected.

The value of the Founder Shares following completion of the Transactions are likely to be substantially higher than the nominal price paid for them, even if the trading price of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock at such time is substantially less than $10.00 per share, which may create an economic incentive for the SPAC management team to pursue and consummate the Transactions which differs from the Public Shareholders.

The Sponsor currently owns 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 7,880,000 Founder Shares. The Sponsor also currently owns 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants. The SPAC Class A Shares, Founder Shares and SPAC Private Warrants were purchased for $6,600,000.00 in the aggregate, composed of the $2,600,000.00 purchase price for the Founder Shares (or approximately $0.33 per share) and the $4,000,000.00 purchase price, collectively, for the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Private Warrants (or $10.00 per unit of one SPAC Class A Share and one-half SPAC Private Warrant). Assuming a trading price of $10.00 per share upon consummation of the Business Combination, the 7,880,000 Founder Shares would have an aggregate implied value of $78,800,000.00, the 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares would have an aggregate implied value of $4,000,000.00 and the 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants would be worthless. Even if the trading price after Closing of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock were to be as low as approximately $0.08 per share, the value of the Founder Shares, SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Private Warrants would be equal to the Sponsor's initial investment in the SPAC of $6,600,000.00 (without accounting for the forfeiture of any SPAC Class A Shares, Founder Shares or SPAC Private Warrants pursuant to the Sponsor Support Agreement).

In addition, the Sponsor agreed to, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor. After the Sponsor's remaining SPAC Class B Shares are automatically converted to SPAC Class A Shares immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time, Sponsor's remaining SPAC Class A Shares will automatically convert into Pubco Class A Common Stock and its remaining SPAC Private Warrants into Pubco Warrants at the SPAC Merger Effective Time. Accordingly, following the Closing, Sponsor will hold no more than (x) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, on an as converted basis, equal to the sum of (A) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares and (B) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares, and (y) the number of Pubco Warrants, on an as converted basis, equal to 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants less the Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants. As a result, if the Transactions are completed and the Sponsor forfeits the minimum number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the Sponsor is likely to be able to recoup its investment in SPAC and make a substantial profit on that investment even if the Public Shares lose significant value. Accordingly, the Sponsor, and SPAC's directors and officers who have an economic interest in the Sponsor, may have an economic incentive that differs from that of the Public Shareholders to pursue and consummate an initial business combination, including the Transactions, rather than to liquidate and to return all of the cash in the Trust Account to the Public Shareholders, even if that business combination were with a riskier or less-established target business. This may have influenced the SPAC management team's motivation in identifying and selecting the Company as SPAC's acquisition target and seeking to consummate the Transactions. For the foregoing reasons, Public Shareholders should consider the SPAC management team's financial incentive to complete the Business Combination when evaluating whether to elect to have their Public Shares redeemed in connection with the consummation of the Business Combination.

In addition to the compensation to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates referred to above, RippleWorks made the RippleWorks Investment that is subject to the Sponsor's obligation to invest all of the RippleWorks Token Investment in shares of Pubco pursuant to the Series C Subscription Agreement. RippleWorks may withdraw the RippleWorks Investment if the Business Combination is not consummated. The Sponsor will receive a customary annual management fee in connection with its management of the RippleWorks Investment. RippleWorks is a limited partner in the Sponsor and, prior to the RippleWorks Investment held, and after the execution of the Business Combination Agreement holds, a majority of the limited partner interests in the Sponsor. Prior to the RippleWorks Investment, RippleWorks was entitled to only customary limited partner information and approval rights in the Sponsor. In connection with the RippleWorks Investment, the Sponsor and RippleWorks entered into a letter agreement dated October 17, 2025 pursuant to which Sponsor agreed to consult with RippleWorks on any decisions directly related to the disposition or voting of Pubco Stock purchased under the Series C Subscription Agreement and to vote such shares as directed by RippleWorks. Chris Larsen, co-founder and Executive Chairman of Ripple, is also a co-founder and member of the board of directors of RippleWorks.

See also "—Since the Sponsor and SPAC's directors and officers have interests that are different from, or in addition to (and which may conflict with), the interests of Public Shareholders, a conflict of interest may have existed in determining whether the Transactions with Pubco and the Company are appropriate as SPAC's initial business combination. Such interests include that the Sponsor will lose its entire investment in SPAC if the Transactions are not completed or any other business combination is not completed."

The "net cash" per Public Share not being redeemed will be less than the redemption price.

Each Public Share not being redeemed will represent a "net cash" per share contribution equal to its pro rata share of the Trust Account by that Public Shareholder to Pubco (which, as of August 20, 2026, was approximately $10.52, which is the approximate redemption amount per Public Share based on the Trust Account balance as of August 20, 2026). This represents a higher contribution of net cash per share to Pubco than (i) shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issued to the applicable Private Placement Investors and the Class A Merger Consideration Shares, which are being issued at $10.00 per share (with respect to the Private Placement Investments) and (ii) the $25,000 that was contributed by the Original Sponsor to SPAC in exchange for 7,880,000 Founder Shares (equal to approximately $0.0032 per share). Accordingly, assuming that the "net cash" per Public Share being contributed to Pubco reflects the cash being contributed at Closing by SPAC to Pubco (i.e., the Trust Account balance net of redemptions and any cash balances of SPAC outside of the Trust Account), the redemption price is expected to be greater than the net cash per share contributed by SPAC to Pubco.

Public Shareholders who do not elect to have their Public Shares redeemed will experience substantial and immediate dilution upon Closing of the Transactions as a result of the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Class B Shares held by the Sponsor, since the value of the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Class B Shares is likely to be substantially higher than the nominal price paid for them, as well as a result of the issuance of the shares of Pubco Stock in the Transactions (including the Private Placement Investments).

The issuance of a significant number of shares of Pubco Stock in the Transactions and in connection with the Private Placement Investments will dilute the equity interests of Public Shareholders in Pubco following the Transactions and may adversely affect prevailing market prices for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

In addition, the Sponsor acquired the Founder Shares at a nominal price, also significantly contributing to this dilution.

It is anticipated that, upon Closing, excluding the impact of the Pubco Warrants and assuming, among other things, that neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, that all Private Placement Investors fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, that Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, that the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, that the Closing XRP Price is $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate—New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026), that no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the Incentive Plan, and neither Ripple nor the Sponsor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market, (a) if no Public Shares are redeemed, (i) Public Shareholders, (ii) the Advance Funding Subscribers, (iii) the Delayed Funding Subscribers, (iv) the Sponsor, (v) the Contributor Related Party Entity, and (vi) Ripple, in each case, will own approximately 48.5%, 20.0%, 1.0%, 19.9%, 2.8% and 7.1% of the issued and outstanding shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, respectively, and the Sponsor will own 100% of the issued and outstanding shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock; (b) if 25% of the Public Shares are redeemed, (i) Public Shareholders, (ii) the Advance Funding Subscribers, (iii) the Delayed Funding Subscribers, (iv) the Sponsor, (v) the Contributor Related Party Entity and (vi) Ripple, in each case, will own approximately 44.0%, 24.2%, 1.2%, 19.9%, 2.8% and 7.1% of the issued and outstanding shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, respectively, and the Sponsor will own 100% of the issued and outstanding shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock; (c) if 50% of the Public Shares are redeemed, (i) Public Shareholders, (ii) the Advance Funding Subscribers, (iii) the Delayed Funding Subscribers, (iv) the Sponsor, (v) the Contributor Related Party Entity and (vi) Ripple, in each case, will own approximately 37.1%, 30.6%, 1.6%, 19.9%, 2.8% and 7.1% of the issued and outstanding shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, respectively, and the Sponsor will own 100% of the issued and outstanding shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock; (d) if 75% of the Public Shares are redeemed, (i) Public Shareholders, (ii) the Advance Funding Subscribers, (iii) the Delayed Funding Subscribers, (iv) the Sponsor, (v) the Contributor Related Party Entity and (vi) Ripple, in each case, will own approximately 25.2%, 41.5%, 2.1%, 19.9%, 2.8% and 7.1% of the issued and outstanding shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, respectively, and the Sponsor will own 100% of the issued and outstanding shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock; and (e) if 100% of the Public Shares are redeemed, (i) Public Shareholders, (ii) the Advance Funding Subscribers, (iii) the Delayed Funding Subscribers, (iv) the Sponsor, (v) the Contributor Related Party Entity, and (vi) Ripple, in each case, will own approximately nil percent, 56.0%, 8.6%, 19.9%, 2.8% and 7.1% of the issued and outstanding shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, respectively, and the Sponsor and SBI will own 78.7% and 21.3%, respectively, of the issued and outstanding shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock.

These ownership percentage assume a $10.00 share price and other assumptions set forth in the section entitled "Summary of the proxy statement/prospectus—Ownership of Pubco After the Transactions," "Questions and Answers About the Proposals—What equity stake will current Public Shareholders, the PIPE Investors, the Sponsor, Ripple, and their affiliates hold in Pubco immediately after the completion of the Transactions and the Private Placement Investments?" in this proxy statement/prospectus. As such, Public Shareholders who do not elect to have their Public Shares redeemed will experience substantial and immediate dilution upon Closing. For more information, see the section entitled "Summary of the Proxy Statement/Prospectus—Dilution."

Additionally, future issuances of Pubco Class A Common Stock, including pursuant to the Incentive Plan, may significantly dilute the equity interests of Public Shareholders who do not exercise their redemption rights and may adversely affect prevailing market prices for Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Further, Pubco may also, from time to time in the future, issue additional shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock or securities convertible into Pubco Class A Common Stock pursuant to a variety of transactions, including acquisitions or other capital markets transactions. Issuing additional shares of its capital stock, other equity securities, or securities convertible into equity may dilute the economic and voting rights of Public Shareholders, reduce the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock, or both. Pubco's decision to issue securities in any future offering will depend on market conditions and other factors beyond its control, which may adversely affect the amount, timing or nature of its future offerings. As a result, holders of Pubco Stock upon the Closing, including Public Shareholders who do not exercise their redemption rights, will bear the risk that future offerings may reduce the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock and dilute their percentage ownership further.

If Public Shareholders who wish to exercise their redemption rights in connection with the Transactions fail to properly demand such redemption rights, they will not be entitled to convert their Public Shares into a pro rata portion of the Trust Account and will instead become stockholders of Pubco.

In connection with the Transactions and pursuant to the SPAC Charter, Public Shareholders may exercise their redemption rights in return for a pro rata portion of the funds available in the Trust Account, calculated as of two Business Days prior to the Closing Date. Public Shareholders who seek to exercise this redemption right must deliver their Public Shares (either physically or electronically) to Continental Stock Transfer & Trust Company, One State Street Plaza, 30th Floor, New York, New York 10004, Attn: SPAC Redemption Team, Email: spacredemptions@continentalstock.com prior to the vote at the Extraordinary General Meeting, or any later time and/or date specified by the SPAC Board in accordance with the SPAC Charter, in accordance with the SPAC Charter. Any Public Shareholder who fails to properly demand redemption rights will not be entitled to have their Public Shares redeemed and receive a pro rata portion of the funds available in the Trust Account and will instead exchange their Public Shares for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and become stockholders of Pubco. See the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Extraordinary General Meeting of SPAC shareholders—Redemption Rights" for the procedures to be followed.

Public Shareholders will not have any rights or interests in funds from the Trust Account except under certain limited circumstances, which includes in connection with the consummation of the Business Combination. Therefore, for a Public Shareholder to liquidate their investment in SPAC prior to such times, a Public Shareholder may be forced to sell their Public Shares in the open market, potentially at a loss.

Public Shareholders will be entitled to receive funds from the Trust Account only upon the earlier to occur of: (i) SPAC's completion of the Transactions or another business combination if the Business Combination is not consummated, and then only in connection with those Public Shares that Public Shareholders have properly elected to exercise their redemption rights, subject to the limitations described herein, (ii) the redemption of any Public Shares properly submitted in connection with a shareholder vote to amend the SPAC Charter (A) to modify the substance or timing of SPAC's obligation to allow redemption in connection with its initial business combination or to redeem 100% of our Public Shares if it does not complete its initial business combination within the Combination Period or (B) with respect to any other material provisions relating to the rights of Public Shareholders or pre-initial business combination activity, and (iii) the redemption of the Public Shares if SPAC is unable to complete an initial business combination within the Combination Period, subject to applicable law and as further described herein. In no other circumstances will a Public Shareholder have any right or interest of any kind in the Trust Account. Accordingly, for a Public Shareholder to liquidate their investment in SPAC prior to such times, a Public Shareholder may be forced to sell their Public Shares or Public Warrants in the open market, potentially at a loss.

The Business Combination Agreement contains a closing condition that SPAC have at least $5,000,0001 of net tangible assets; however, such condition may be waived by the parties. Accordingly, SPAC and Pubco may complete the Business Combination even if Pubco Stock would be a "penny stock" upon the Closing.

SPAC's Charter does not provide a specified maximum redemption threshold. As a result, Public Shareholders may be able to redeem their Public Shares in an amount that would cause SPAC's net tangible assets to be less than $5,000,001 upon the completion of the Business Combination, which may subject SPAC to the SEC's "penny stock" rules for failure to comply with the exclusions from the application of such rules set forth in Rule 3a51-1(g)(1) (the "NTA Rule"). But because the NTA Rule is one of several exclusions from the "penny stock" rules of the SEC, SPAC could rely on another exclusion relating to SPAC being listed on Nasdaq (Rule 3a51-1(a)(2)) (the "Exchange Rule"). For so long as the Public Shares remain listed on Nasdaq, the Public Shares would not be deemed to be a "penny stock" under the Exchange Rule. In addition, another exclusion from the "penny stock" rule that Pubco could potentially rely on after the Closing is the requirement that Pubco Stock have a price of $5.00 or more (the "$5.00 Price Rule"). However, we cannot assure you that Pubco Stock will be listed on Nasdaq at the Closing or that Pubco Stock would comply with the $5.00 Price Rule.

If (i) Pubco has less than $5,000,001 of net tangible assets upon the Closing, such that it does not meet the NTA Rule, (ii) Pubco Stock is not listed on Nasdaq or another national securities exchange, such that it does not satisfy the Exchange Rule, and (iii) the trading price of Pubco Stock is less than $5.00, such that it does not meet the $5.00 Price Rule, and if no other exclusions from the "penny stock" rules apply, then we expect that the Pubco Stock would be a "penny stock" upon Closing.

Pubco and SPAC may nevertheless waive the condition to Closing requiring SPAC to have at least $5,000,0001 of net tangible assets at Closing under the Business Combination Agreement. If the parties consummate the Business Combination at a time when shares of Pubco Stock are a "penny stock", brokers trading in shares of Pubco Stock will be required to adhere to more stringent rules. For example, brokers trading in shares of Pubco Stock would be required to deliver a standardized risk disclosure document specifying information about penny stocks and the nature and significance of risks of the penny stock market. The broker dealer also must provide the customer with bid and offer quotations for the penny stock, the compensation of the broker dealer and any salesperson in the transaction, and monthly account statements indicating the market value of each penny stock held in the customer's account. In addition, the penny stock rules require that, prior to effecting a transaction in a penny stock not otherwise exempt from those rules, the broker dealer must make a special written determination that the penny stock is a suitable investment for the purchaser and receive the purchaser's written agreement to the transaction. If Pubco Stock is a "penny stock", these disclosure requirements may have the effect of reducing the trading activity in the secondary market for Pubco Stock. The penny stock rules are burdensome and may reduce purchases of any offerings and reduce the trading activity for shares of Pubco Stock. If shares of Pubco Stock are subject to the penny stock rules, the holders of such shares may find it more difficult to sell their shares.

The ability of Public Shareholders to exercise redemption rights with respect to a large number of SPAC Class A Shares may reduce proceeds available to Pubco after Closing, reduce the public "float" of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock after Closing, reduce the liquidity of the trading market for the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock after Closing, or make it difficult to obtain or maintain the quotation, listing or trading shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock on Nasdaq or another national securities exchange, and consequently may not allow the parties to complete the Business Combination, or optimize Pubco's capital structure following the Business Combination.

Public Shareholders may vote in favor of the Transactions and still elect to have their Public Shares redeemed. We do not know how many Public Shareholders may exercise their redemption rights in connection with the Transactions. If a larger number of Public Shares are submitted for redemption than we initially expected, we may need to arrange for additional debt or equity financing to provide working capital to Pubco following the Closing. There can be no assurance that such debt or equity financing will be available to us if we need it or, if available, the terms will be satisfactory to us. Raising additional third-party financing may involve dilutive equity issuances or the incurrence of indebtedness at higher than desirable levels and may increase the probability that the Transactions will be unsuccessful.

In such event, if adequate third-party financing is unavailable or only available on unreasonable terms, Pubco may not be able to maintain the listing of its securities on Nasdaq, New York Stock Exchange or another national securities exchange for lack of liquidity and may not have sufficient cash and liquidity to finance its operations as currently contemplated following the Transactions.

Since the Sponsor and SPAC's directors and officers have interests that are different from, or in addition to (and which may conflict with), the interests of Public Shareholders, a conflict of interest may have existed in determining whether the Transactions with Pubco and the Company are appropriate as SPAC's initial business combination. Such interests include that the Sponsor will lose its entire investment in SPAC if the Business Combination is not completed or any other business combination is not completed.

When Public Shareholders consider the recommendation of the SPAC Board to vote in favor of each of the Proposals, including the Business Combination Proposal, they should consider that the Sponsor and SPAC's directors and officers have interests in the Proposals that are different from, or in addition to (and which may conflict with), the interests of Public Shareholders. The SPAC Board was aware of and considered these interests, among other matters, in evaluating and negotiating the Transactions and transaction agreements and in recommending to SPAC shareholders that they vote in favor of the Proposals presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting, including the Business Combination Proposal. SPAC shareholders should take these interests into account in deciding whether to approve the Proposals. These interests include, among other things, the following:

- The Sponsor purchased from the Original Sponsor for an aggregate of $6,600,000, 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants. Certain of SPAC's officers and directors have an indirect economic interest in such shares and warrants through their limited partnership interest in the Sponsor. Assuming a trading price of $10.50 per Founder Share and $0.801 per SPAC (based upon the respective closing prices of the SPAC Class A Shares and the SPAC Public Warrants on Nasdaq on August 20, 2026, the most recent practicable date prior to the date of this proxy statement/prospectus), the 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants, in each case if unrestricted and freely tradable, would have an implied aggregate market value of $87.1 million. However, given the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that will be received in exchange for such Founder Shares or upon exercise of the Pubco Warrants will be subject to lockup restrictions, SPAC believes such shares have less value. Even if the trading price of the Public Shares were as low as approximately $1.1965 per share, the aggregate market value of the Founder Shares alone (without taking into account the value of the SPAC Private Warrants) would be approximately equal to the initial investment in SPAC by the Sponsor.

- In addition, the Sponsor agreed to, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor. After the Sponsor's remaining SPAC Class B Shares are automatically converted to SPAC Class A Shares immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time, the Sponsor's remaining SPAC Class A Shares will automatically convert into Pubco Class A Common Stock and its remaining SPAC Private Warrants into Pubco Warrants at the SPAC Merger Effective Time. Accordingly, following the Closing, Sponsor will hold no more than (x) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, on an as converted basis, equal to the sum of (A) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares and (B) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares, and (y) the number of Pubco Warrants, on an as converted basis, equal to 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants less the Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants. As a result, if the Transactions are completed and the Sponsor forfeits the minimum number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, even if the trading price of the Pubco Class A Common Stock were as low as approximately $1.1965 per share, the aggregate market value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock received in exchange for the Founder Shares and not forfeited, alone (without taking into account the value of the Private Placement Units), would be approximately equal to the initial investment in SPAC by the Sponsor. If the trading price is greater than approximately $1.1965, the Sponsor is likely to be able to make a substantial profit on its investment in SPAC at a time when the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants have lost significant value. On the other hand, if the Transactions are not approved and SPAC is unable to complete another business combination within the Combination Period, the 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants purchased by the Sponsor for an aggregate amount of $6,600,000 will be worthless, and Sponsor will lose its entire investment in SPAC. Accordingly, the economic interests of the Sponsor diverge from the economic interests of holders of the Public Shares.
- As of the date hereof, the Sponsor is the record holder of 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares and 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants. J. Michael Arrington, a member of the SPAC Board, is the sole managing member of Arrington Capital Management, LLC, which is the general partner of the Sponsor. As of the date hereof, J. Michael Arrington is deemed to hold voting and dispositive control over the securities held directly by the Sponsor. J. Michael Arrington disclaims any beneficial ownership of the reported shares other than to the extent of any pecuniary interest he may have therein, directly or indirectly. Each of Mr. Arrington, Taryn Naidu, Chief Executive Officer of SPAC and member of the SPAC Board, Kyle Horton, Chief Financial Officer of SPAC, and Ronald Palmeri, a member of the SPAC Board, owns limited partner interests in the Sponsor and through them has an indirect interest in the Founder Shares, the SPAC Class A Shares and the SPAC Private Warrants and compensation the Sponsor receives in connection with the Transactions. In addition, the Sponsor is expected to transfer 10,000 SPAC Class B Shares to each of Richard Danis, Lindy Key, and Ronald Palmeri, each members of the SPAC Board, prior to the closing of the Business Combination.
- In addition to the compensation to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates referred to above, RippleWorks made the RippleWorks Investment that is subject to the Sponsor's obligation to invest all of the RippleWorks Token Investment in shares of Pubco pursuant to the Series C Subscription Agreement. RippleWorks may withdraw the RippleWorks Investment if the Business Combination is not consummated. The Sponsor will receive a customary annual management fee in connection with its management of the RippleWorks Investment. RippleWorks is a limited partner in the Sponsor and, prior to the RippleWorks Investment held, and after the execution of the Business Combination Agreement holds, a majority of the limited partner interests in the Sponsor. Prior to the RippleWorks Investment, RippleWorks was entitled to only customary limited partner information and approval rights in the Sponsor. In connection with the RippleWorks Investment, the Sponsor and RippleWorks entered into a letter agreement dated October 17, 2025 pursuant to which Sponsor agreed to consult with RippleWorks on any decisions directly related to the disposition or voting of Pubco Stock purchased under the Series C Subscription Agreement and to vote such shares as directed by RippleWorks. Chris Larsen, co-founder and Executive Chairman of Ripple, is also a co-founder and member of the board of directors of RippleWorks.

- The Sponsor and SPAC's directors and officers shall not redeem any of the SPAC Common Shares held by them pursuant to the SPAC Charter.
- The Sponsor and SPAC's officers and directors have agreed to waive their rights to liquidating distributions from the Trust Account with respect to the SPAC Common Shares (other than Public Shares) held by them if SPAC fails to consummate an initial business combination within the Combination Period.
- The Sponsor and SPAC's officers and certain directors may lose their entire investment in SPAC if a business combination is not consummated within the Combination Period.
- The Sponsor has agreed that it will be liable to SPAC if and to the extent any claims by a third party for services rendered or products sold to SPAC, or a prospective target business with which SPAC has entered into a written letter of intent, confidentiality or other similar agreement or business combination agreement (except for SPAC's independent registered public accounting firm), reduce the amount of funds in the Trust Account to below (i) $10.05 per Public Share or (ii) such lesser amount per Public Share held in the Trust Account as of the date of the liquidation of the Trust Account due to reductions in the value of the trust assets, in each case, net of the amount of interest earned on the property in the Trust Account which may be withdrawn to pay taxes, provided that such liability will not apply to any claims by a third party who executed a waiver of any and all rights to seek access to the Trust Account nor will it apply to any claims under SPAC's indemnity of the underwriters of the SPAC IPO against certain liabilities, including liabilities under the Securities Act.
- SPAC's existing officers and directors will be eligible for continued indemnification and continued coverage under a tail directors' and officers' liability insurance policy for up to a six-year period from and after the Closing for events occurring prior to the Closing, which tail policy is to be paid for by Pubco at the Closing pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement. If the Transactions do not close, SPAC's officers and directors may not receive this tail insurance coverage.
- Pursuant to the A&R Registration Rights Agreement, the Sponsor will have customary registration rights, including demand and piggy-back rights, subject to cooperation and cut-back provisions with respect to the Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants held by it following the consummation of the Business Combination.
- The SPAC Charter provides that, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law: (i) none of the Sponsor or any individual serving as a director or an officer shall have any duty, except and to the extent expressly assumed by contract, to refrain from engaging directly or indirectly in the same or similar business activities or lines of business as SPAC; (ii) SPAC renounces any interest or expectancy in, or in being offered an opportunity to participate in, any potential transaction or matter which (a) may be a corporate opportunity for the Sponsor or any director or officer, on the one hand, and SPAC, on the other (b) the presentation of which would breach an existing legal obligation of the Sponsor or any director or officer to any other entity; and (iii) except to the extent expressly assumed by contract, none of the Sponsor or any director or officer will have any duty to communicate or offer any such corporate opportunity to SPAC and shall not be liable to SPAC or its shareholders for breach of any fiduciary duty as a shareholder, director and/or officer solely by reason of the fact that such party pursues or acquires such corporate opportunity for itself, himself or herself, directs such corporate opportunity to another person, or does not communicate information regarding such corporate opportunity to SPAC. In the course of their other business activities, SPAC's officers and directors may have, or may become aware of, other investment and business opportunities which may be appropriate for presentation to SPAC as well as the other entities with which they are affiliated. SPAC's management has pre-existing fiduciary duties and contractual obligations and if there is a conflict of interest in determining to which entity a particular business combination opportunity should be presented, any pre-existing fiduciary obligation will be presented the business combination opportunity before SPAC is presented with it. SPAC does not believe that the pre-existing fiduciary duties or contractual obligations of its officers and directors materially impacted its search for an acquisition target.

- The Sponsor agreed that the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants received by it in connection with the SPAC Merger, and any shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon the exercise of Pubco Warrants, will be locked-up and subject to transfer restrictions, until the earlier of (i) the Anniversary Release and (ii) the date on which Pubco consummates a liquidation, merger, capital stock exchange, reorganization or other similar transaction that results in all Pubco stockholders having the right to exchange their shares of Pubco common stock for cash, securities or other property. The Lock-Up Agreements include customary exceptions to the transfer restrictions, including transfers to affiliates, family members, charitable organizations, and in connection with certain tax or estate planning transactions, provided that the transferee agrees to be bound by the same restrictions for the remainder of the lock-up period.
- On October 19, 2025, concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, the Sponsor entered into the Series C Subscription Agreement (as amended on August 12, 2026), as detailed in the section entitled "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—SPAC's Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Investments by Directors and Officers in PIPE and Private Placement Agreements." As a result, if the Transactions are completed, the Sponsor will receive Pubco Class A Common Stock in exchange for their investments, which may increase in value following the completion of the Transactions. On the other hand, if the Transactions are not approved or, notwithstanding approval, are not completed, the Series C Subscription Agreement will terminate in accordance with its terms, the cash or contributed XRP will be returned in the manner prescribed by the Series C Subscription Agreement, and the Sponsor will not receive Pubco Class A Common Stock or the potential upside benefits of ownership thereof.
- In addition, the Sponsor agreed to, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor. After the Sponsor's remaining SPAC Class B Shares are automatically converted to SPAC Class A Shares immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time, the Sponsor's remaining SPAC Class A Shares will automatically convert into Pubco Class A Common Stock and its remaining SPAC Private Warrants into Pubco Warrants at the SPAC Merger Effective Time. Accordingly, following the Closing, Sponsor will hold no more than (x) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, on an as converted basis, equal to the sum of (A) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares and (B) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares, and (y) the number of Pubco Warrants, on an as converted basis, equal to 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants less the Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants. As a result, if the Transactions are completed and the Sponsor forfeits the minimum number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the Sponsor is likely to be able to make a substantial profit on its investment in SPAC at a time when the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants have lost significant value. On the other hand, if the Transactions are not approved and SPAC is unable to complete another business combination within the Combination Period, the Sponsor may lose its entire investment in SPAC.

For additional information, see the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions."

The existence of personal and financial interests of one or more of SPAC's directors may result in a conflict of interest on the part of such director(s) between what he, she or they may believe is in the commercial interests of SPAC and the Public Shareholders and what he or she may believe is best for himself, herself or themselves in determining to recommend that Public Shareholders vote for the Proposals. The personal and financial interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's directors and officers may have influenced their motivation in identifying and selecting the Company as an acquisition target and completing the Transactions.

In considering the recommendations of the SPAC Board to vote for each of the Proposals, Public Shareholders should consider these interests. For additional information on the interests and relationships of the Sponsor and SPAC's directors and officers in the Transactions, see "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions." See also "The value of the Founder Shares following completion of the Transactions is likely to be substantially higher than the nominal price paid for them, even if the trading price of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock at such time is substantially less than $10.00 per share, which may create an economic incentive for the SPAC management team to pursue and consummate the Transaction which differs from the Public Shareholders." For a discussion of the potential dilutive impact of Redemptions on non-redeeming shareholders, see "Questions and Answers about the Proposals—Q: What happens if a substantial number of Public Shareholders vote in favor of the Business Combination Proposal and exercise their redemption rights".

The parties to the Business Combination Agreement may waive one or more of the conditions to the Transactions or certain of the other transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement.

The parties to the Business Combination Agreement may agree to waive, in whole or in part, some of the conditions to the obligations to consummate the Transactions, to the extent permitted by the Business Combination Agreement, the SPAC Charter, the Private Placement Subscription Agreements and applicable laws. For example, it is a condition to SPAC's obligations to consummate the Transactions that certain of Pubco's, the Company's and Ripple's representations and warranties are true and correct in all respects as of the Closing, subject to the materiality exceptions set forth in the Business Combination Agreement. However, if the SPAC Board determines that it is in the best interest of SPAC to waive any such breach, then the SPAC Board may elect to waive that condition and consummate the Transactions; provided that no party is able to waive the condition that SPAC shareholders approve the Business Combination Proposal.

SPAC's directors and officers will have discretion on whether to agree to changes or waivers in the terms of the Business Combination Agreement, and their interests in exercising that discretion may conflict with those of the SPAC shareholders.

In the period leading up to the Closing, events may occur that, pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement, would require SPAC to agree to amend the Business Combination Agreement, to consent to certain actions taken by Pubco or the Company or to waive or exercise rights that SPAC is entitled to under the Business Combination Agreement. Such events could arise because of a request by Pubco or the Company to undertake actions that would otherwise be prohibited by the terms of the Business Combination Agreement or the occurrence of other events that would have a material adverse effect on Pubco's expected business strategy and would entitle SPAC to terminate the Business Combination Agreement. In any of such circumstances, it would be at SPAC's discretion, acting through the SPAC Board, to grant its consent or waive those rights.

The existence of the financial and personal interests of one or more of the directors of SPAC described in the preceding risk factors (and as described elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus) may result in a conflict of interest on the part of one or more of the directors between such director's potential beliefs in what is best for SPAC and such director's potential beliefs in what is best for himself or herself in determining whether or not to take the requested action.

In the event that SPAC, Pubco, the Company and the other parties to the Business Combination Agreement authorize an amendment to the Business Combination Agreement that does not require further approval by SPAC shareholders, SPAC will inform SPAC shareholders of such amendment by press release and other public communication. In the event that SPAC, Pubco, the Company and the other parties to the Business Combination Agreement authorize an amendment to the Business Combination Agreement that requires further approval by SPAC shareholders, to the extent this proxy statement/prospectus has been mailed to SPAC shareholders, a proxy supplement or an amended proxy statement/prospectus would be delivered to SPAC shareholders, and proxies would be re-solicited for approval of such amendment.

SPAC shareholders who are not affiliated with the Sponsor may be exposed to greater risk as a result of becoming stockholders of Pubco through the Transactions rather than acquiring shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock directly in an underwritten public offering as a result of the differences between the two transaction structures, including that the Transactions did not involve an independent due diligence review by an underwriter and that the Sponsor has conflicts of interest in connection with the Transactions.

Because there is no independent third-party underwriter involved in the Transactions or the issuance of Pubco Stock in connection therewith, investors will not receive the benefit of any outside independent review of the respective finances and operations of SPAC and Pubco. Underwritten public offerings of securities conducted by a licensed broker-dealer are subjected to a due diligence review by the underwriter or dealer manager to satisfy statutory duties under the Securities Act, the rules of Financial Industry Regulatory Authority, Inc. and the national securities exchange where such securities are listed. Additionally, underwriters or dealer-managers conducting such public offerings are subject to liability for any material misstatements or omissions in a registration statement filed in connection with the public offering. As no such review will be conducted in connection with the Transactions, SPAC shareholders must rely on the information in this proxy statement/ prospectus and will not have the benefit of an independent review and investigation of the type normally performed by an independent underwriter in a public security offering.

If Pubco became a public company through an underwritten public offering, the underwriters would be subject to liability under Section 11 of the Securities Act for material misstatements and omissions in the initial public offering registration statement. In general, an underwriter is able to avoid liability under Section 11 if it can prove that, it "had, after reasonable investigation, reasonable ground to believe and did believe, at the time the registration statement became effective, that the statements therein (other than the audited financial statements) were true and that there was no omission to state a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading." In order to fulfill its duty to conduct a "reasonable investigation," an underwriter will, in addition to conducting a significant amount of due diligence on its own, usually require that an issuer's independent registered public accounting firm provide a comfort letter with respect to certain numbers included in the registration statement and will require the law firm for the issuer to include in its legal opinion to the underwriters a statement that such counsel is not aware of any material misstatements or omissions in the initial public offering registration statement.

In addition, the amount of due diligence conducted by SPAC and its advisors in connection with the Transactions may not be as great as would have been undertaken by an underwriter in connection with an initial public offering of Pubco. Accordingly, it is possible that defects in the Company's business or problems with the Company's management that would have been discovered if Pubco conducted an underwritten public offering will not be discovered in connection with the Transactions, which could adversely affect the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Unlike an underwritten initial public offering, the initial trading of Pubco Class A Common Stock will not benefit from the book-building process undertaken by underwriters that helps to inform efficient price discovery with respect to opening trades of newly listed shares and underwriter support to help stabilize, maintain or affect the public price of the new issue immediately after listing. The lack of such a process in connection with the listing of Pubco Class A Common Stock on applicable national securities exchange could result in diminished investor demand, inefficiencies in pricing and a more volatile public price for Pubco Class A Common Stock during the period immediately following the listing.

Furthermore, the Sponsor and SPAC's directors and officers have interests in the Transactions that are different from, or in addition to (and which may conflict with), the interests of Public Shareholders. Such interests may have influenced the SPAC Board in making their recommendation that SPAC shareholders vote in favor of the Business Combination Proposal and the other Proposals. In addition, in the event the Transactions are completed, the value of the Founder Shares will be significantly greater than the amount the Sponsor paid to purchase such shares, even if after consummation of the Business Combination the trading price of Pubco

Class A Common Stock materially declines. See "—Since the Sponsor and SPAC's directors and officers have interests that are different from, or in addition to (and which may conflict with), the interests of Public Shareholders, a conflict of interest may have existed in determining whether the Transactions with Pubco and the Company is appropriate as SPAC's initial business combination. Such interests include that the Sponsor will lose its entire investment in SPAC if the Transactions are not completed or any other business combination is not completed" and the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions." See also "The value of the Founder Shares following completion of the Transactions are likely to be substantially higher than the nominal price paid for them, even if the trading price of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock at such time is substantially less than $10.00 per share, which may create an economic incentive for the SPAC management team to pursue and consummate the Transactions which differs from the Public Shareholders."

If SPAC is deemed to be an investment company under the Investment Company Act, SPAC may be required to institute burdensome compliance requirements and its activities may be restricted, which may make it difficult for SPAC to complete the Business Combination.

The SEC's adopting release with respect to the 2024 SPAC Rules provided guidance relating to the potential status of SPACs as investment companies subject to regulation under the Investment Company Act and the regulations thereunder. Whether a SPAC is an investment company is dependent on specific facts and circumstances and SPAC can give no assurance that a claim will not be made that SPAC has been operating as an unregistered investment company. See also "Risks Related to Governmental Regulation—XRP's status as a product that may be offered and sold as a "security" in any relevant jurisdiction, as well as the status of XRP-related products and services in general, is subject to uncertainty, and if Pubco is unable to properly characterize such product or service offering, Pubco may be subject to regulatory scrutiny, inquiries, investigations, fines and other penalties, which may adversely affect Pubco's business, operating results and financial condition."

If SPAC is deemed to be an investment company under the Investment Company Act, SPAC's activities may be restricted, including (i) restrictions on the nature of its investments; and (ii) restrictions on the issuance of securities, each of which may make it difficult for SPAC to complete the Business Combination. In addition, SPAC may have to impose burdensome requirements, including: (i) registration as an investment company; (ii) adoption of a specific form of corporate structure; and (iii) reporting, record keeping, voting, proxy and disclosure requirements and other rules and regulations.

In order not to be regulated as an investment company under the Investment Company Act, unless SPAC can qualify for an exclusion, SPAC must ensure that it is engaged primarily in a business other than investing, reinvesting or trading in securities and that its activities do not include investing, reinvesting, owning, holding or trading "investment securities" constituting more than 40% of its total assets (exclusive of U.S. government securities and cash items) on an unconsolidated basis. SPAC is mindful of the SEC's investment company definition and guidance and does not intend to complete an initial business combination with an investment company, or to acquire minority interests in other businesses or "investment securities" exceeding the permitted threshold.

To mitigate the risk that its business activities will subject SPAC to the Investment Company Act, SPAC's proceeds held in the Trust Account have only been invested in U.S. government treasury obligations with a maturity of 185 days or less or in any open-ended investment company that holds itself out as money market funds selected by SPAC meeting certain conditions of paragraphs (d)(2), (d)(3) and (d)(4) of Rule 2a-7 under the Investment Company Act, which invest only in direct U.S. government treasury obligations. The holding of the assets in the Trust Account in this form is intended to be temporary and for the sole purpose of facilitating the Transactions or another business combination. To mitigate the risk that SPAC might be deemed to be an investment company for purposes of the Investment Company Act, which risk increases the longer that SPAC holds investments in the Trust Account, SPAC may, at any time, instruct Continental Stock Transfer & Trust Company, as trustee of the Trust Account, to liquidate the investments held in the Trust Account and instead to hold the funds in the Trust Account in cash or in an interest bearing demand deposit account at a bank. SPAC's cash if held in these accounts may exceed any applicable FDIC insurance limits. Should events, including limited liquidity, defaults, non-performance or other adverse developments occur with respect to the banks or other financial institutions that hold SPAC's funds, or that affect financial institutions or the financial services industry generally, or concerns or rumors about any events of these kinds or other similar risks, the value of the assets in the Trust Account could be impaired, which could have a material impact on SPAC's operating results, liquidity, financial condition and prospects. For example, on March 10, 2023, the FDIC announced that Silicon Valley Bank had been closed by the California Department of Financial Protection and Innovation. SPAC cannot guarantee that the banks or other financial institutions that will hold SPAC's funds will not experience similar issues in the future.

Pursuant to the investment management trust agreement between SPAC and Continental Stock Transfer & Trust Company, Continental Stock Transfer & Trust Company is not permitted to invest in securities or assets other than as described above. By restricting the investment of the proceeds to these instruments, and by having a business plan targeted at acquiring and growing businesses for the long term (rather than on buying and selling businesses in the manner of a merchant bank or private equity fund), SPAC intends to avoid being deemed an "investment company" within the meaning of the Investment Company Act. The SPAC IPO was not intended for persons who were seeking a return on investments in government securities or investment securities. The Trust Account is intended solely as a temporary depository for funds pending the earliest to occur of: (i) the completion of the Transactions or another business combination; (ii) the redemption of any Public Shares properly submitted in connection with a shareholder vote to amend the SPAC Charter (x) to modify the substance or timing of SPAC's obligation to redeem 100% of the Public Shares if SPAC does not complete the Business Combination or another business combination within of the Combination Period; or (y) with respect to any other material provision relating to the rights of Public Shareholders or pre-business combination activity; or (iii) absent the consummation of a business combination by the end of the Combination Period, return of the funds held in the Trust Account to Public Shareholders as part of SPAC's redemption of the Public Shares.

SPAC is aware of litigation claiming that certain SPACs should be considered to be investment companies. Although SPAC believes that these claims are without merit, SPAC cannot guarantee that it will not be deemed to be an investment company and thus subject to the Investment Company Act. Notwithstanding SPAC's investment activities or the mitigation measures included herein, SPAC could still be deemed to be or have been an investment company at any time since the IPO.

If SPAC were deemed to be subject to the Investment Company Act, compliance with these additional regulatory burdens would require additional expenses for which SPAC has not allotted funds and may hinder its ability to complete the Transactions or may result in its liquidation. If SPAC is unable to complete the Business Combination or any other business combination, Public Shareholders may only receive approximately $10.52 per share on the liquidation of the Trust Account (which is the approximate amount per Public Share based on the Trust Account balance as of August 20, 2026), and Public Shareholders would also lose the possibility of an investment opportunity in Pubco or another potential business combination.

Members of SPAC's management team and the SPAC Board have significant experience as founders, board members, officers, executives or employees of other companies. Certain of those persons, as well as SPAC's affiliates, have been, may be, or may become, involved in litigation, investigations or other proceedings, including related to those companies or otherwise. The defense or prosecution of these matters could be time-consuming and could divert SPAC management's attention, and may have an adverse effect on SPAC, which may impede SPAC's ability to consummate the Transactions.

During the course of their careers, members of SPAC's management team and the SPAC Board have had significant experience as founders, board members, officers, executives or employees of other companies. As a result of their involvement and positions in these companies, certain of those persons, as well as certain of SPAC's affiliates, have been, may be or may in the future become involved in litigation, investigations or other proceedings, including relating to the business affairs of such companies, transactions entered into by such companies, or otherwise. Individual members of SPAC's management team and the SPAC Board also may become involved in litigation, investigations or other proceedings involving claims or allegations related to or as a result of their personal conduct, either in their capacity as a corporate officer or director or otherwise, and may be personally named in such actions and potentially subject to personal liability. Any liability from such proceedings may or may not be covered by insurance and/or indemnification, depending on the facts and circumstances. The defense or prosecution of these matters could be time-consuming. Any litigation, investigations or other proceedings and the potential outcomes of such actions may divert the attention and resources of SPAC's management team and the SPAC Board away from the Transactions and may negatively affect SPAC's reputation.

Changes in laws or regulations (including the adoption of policies by governing administrations), or a failure to comply with any laws and regulations, may adversely affect SPAC's business, including SPAC's ability to complete the Transactions.

SPAC is subject to laws and regulations enacted by national, regional and local governments. These governing bodies may seek to change laws and regulations, as well as adopt new policies, including tariffs and other economic policies, that could negatively impact SPAC or Pubco. SPAC is also required to comply with certain SEC and other legal requirements and numerous complex tax laws. Compliance with, and monitoring of, applicable laws and regulations may be difficult, time consuming and costly. Those laws and regulations and their interpretation and application may also change from time to time and those changes could have a material adverse effect on SPAC's business, investments and results of operations. In addition, a failure to comply with applicable laws or regulations, as interpreted and applied, could have a material adverse effect on SPAC's business.

On January 24, 2024, the SEC adopted the 2024 SPAC Rules which became effective on July 1, 2024, requiring, among other items, (i) additional disclosures relating to SPAC sponsors and related persons; (ii) additional disclosures relating to SPAC business combination transactions; (iii) additional disclosures relating to dilution and to conflicts of interest involving sponsors and their affiliates in both SPAC initial public offerings and business combination transactions; (iv) additional disclosures regarding projections included in SEC filings in connection with proposed business combination transactions; and (v) the requirement that both the SPAC and its acquisition target be co-registrants for business combination registration statements.

In addition, the SEC's adopting release provided the SPAC Guidance describing circumstances in which a SPAC could become subject to regulation under the Investment Company Act, including its duration, asset composition, business purpose and the activities of the SPAC and its management team in furtherance of such goals.

Compliance with the 2024 SPAC Rules and the SPAC Guidance may increase the costs of, and the time needed to complete, the Transactions.

If the Transactions are not approved and SPAC does not consummate another initial business combination by the end of the Combination Period, then the Sponsor's SPAC Common Shares will become worthless and the expenses it has incurred will not be reimbursed. These interests may have influenced its decision to approve the Transactions.

The Sponsor beneficially owns the SPAC Class A Shares, Founder Shares and SPAC Private Warrants that it purchased from the Original Sponsor for an aggregate of $6,600,000 and the Sponsor has no redemption rights with respect to these SPAC Common Shares. If the Transactions with Pubco or another business combination is not completed by the end of the Combination Period, these securities will be worthless, and SPAC would be unlikely to be able to repay any such borrowings. Certain directors and executive officers of SPAC have an indirect economic interests in the Sponsor and accordingly, they may have an incentive to pursue and consummate an initial business combination, even if that business combination were with an acquisition target or on terms less favorable to Public Shareholders than liquidation. See also "The value of the Founder Shares following completion of the Transactions is likely to be substantially higher than the nominal price paid for them, even if the trading price of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock at such time is substantially less than $10.00 per share, which may create an economic incentive for the SPAC management team to pursue and consummate the Transactions which differs from the Public Shareholders."

For additional information, see the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions."

These financial interests may have influenced the decision of SPAC's directors to approve the Transactions and to continue to pursue such Transactions. In considering the recommendations of the SPAC Board to vote for each of the Proposals, SPAC shareholders should consider these interests.

If third parties bring claims against SPAC, the proceeds held in the Trust Account could be reduced and the per-share redemption amount received by Public Shareholders could be less than $10.52 per share.

SPAC's placing of funds in the Trust Account may not protect those funds from third-party claims against us. Although SPAC will seek to have all vendors, service providers, prospective acquisition targets and other entities with which SPAC does business execute agreements waiving any right, title, interest or claim of any kind in or to any monies held in the Trust Account for the benefit of the Public Shareholders, such parties may not execute such agreements, or even if they execute such agreements they may not be prevented from bringing claims against the Trust Account, including, but not limited to, fraudulent inducement, breach of fiduciary responsibility or other similar claims, as well as claims challenging the enforceability of the waiver, in each case in order to gain advantage with respect to a claim against SPAC's assets, including the funds held in the Trust Account. If any third-party refuses to execute an agreement waiving such claims to the monies held in the Trust Account, SPAC's management will perform an analysis of the alternatives available to it and will only enter into an agreement with a third party that has not executed a waiver if management believes that such third party's engagement would be significantly more beneficial to SPAC than any alternative. CBIZ CPAs PC, SPAC's independent registered public accounting firm and the underwriters in the SPAC IPO have not executed and will not execute an agreement with SPAC waiving such claims to the monies held in the Trust Account.

Examples of possible instances where SPAC may engage a third party that refuses to execute a waiver include the engagement of a third-party consultant whose particular expertise or skills are believed by SPAC's management to be significantly superior to those of other consultants that would agree to execute a waiver or in cases where SPAC's management is unable to find a service provider willing to execute a waiver. In addition, there is no guarantee that such entities will agree to waive any claims they may have in the future as a result of, or arising out of, any negotiations, contracts or agreements with SPAC and will not seek recourse against the Trust Account for any reason. Upon redemption of the Public Shares, if SPAC is unable to complete the Business Combination or another business combination by the end of the Combination Period, or upon the exercise of a redemption right in connection with the Transactions or another business combination, SPAC will be required to provide for payment of claims of creditors that were not waived that may be brought against SPAC within the 10 years following redemption. Accordingly, the per-share redemption amount received by public shareholders could be less than the $10.52 per Public Share redemption price as of August 20, 2026, due to claims of such creditors.

Pursuant to the Insider Letter, the Sponsor has agreed that it will be liable to SPAC if and to the extent any claims by a third party for services rendered or products sold to SPAC, or a prospective target business with which SPAC has entered into a written letter of intent, confidentiality or other similar agreement or business combination agreement (except for SPAC's independent registered public accounting firm), reduce the amount of funds in the Trust Account to below (i) $10.05 per Public Share or (ii) such lesser amount per Public Share held in the Trust Account as of the date of the liquidation of the Trust Account due to reductions in the value of the trust assets, in each case, net of the amount of interest earned on the property in the Trust Account which may be withdrawn to pay taxes, provided that such liability will not apply to any claims by a third party who executed a waiver of any and all rights to seek access to the Trust Account nor will it apply to any claims under SPAC's indemnity of the underwriters of the SPAC IPO against certain liabilities, including liabilities under the Securities Act. However, SPAC has not asked the Sponsor to reserve for such indemnification obligations, nor has SPAC independently verified whether the Sponsor has sufficient funds to satisfy its indemnity obligations and believes that the Sponsor's only assets are SPAC Common Shares. Therefore, SPAC cannot assure Public Shares that the Sponsor would be able to satisfy those obligations. None of SPAC's officers or directors will indemnify SPAC for claims by third parties including, without limitation, claims by vendors and prospective acquisition targets.

Additionally, if SPAC is forced to file a bankruptcy case or an involuntary bankruptcy case is filed against it which is not dismissed, or if SPAC otherwise enters compulsory or court supervised liquidation, the proceeds held in the Trust Account could be subject to applicable bankruptcy law and may be included in its bankruptcy estate and subject to the claims of third parties with priority over the claims of the Public Shareholders. To the extent any bankruptcy claims deplete the Trust Account, SPAC may not be able to return to its Public Shareholders $10.52 per share (which is the approximate amount per Public Share based on the Trust Account balance as of August 20, 2026).

SPAC shareholders may be held liable for claims by third parties against SPAC to the extent of distributions received by them.

If SPAC is unable to complete the Business Combination with the Company or another business combination by the end of the Combination Period, SPAC will, in accordance with the SPAC Charter, (i) cease all operations except for the purpose of winding up, (ii) as promptly as reasonably possible, but not more than 10 Business Days thereafter, subject to lawfully available funds, redeem the Public Shares, at a per-share price, payable in cash, equal to the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account including interest earned on the funds held in the Trust Account (which interest shall be net of taxes payable and up to $100,000 of interest to pay dissolution expenses), divided by the number of then issued and outstanding Public Shares, which redemption will completely extinguish Public Shareholders' rights as shareholders (including the right to receive further liquidating distributions, if any), subject to applicable law, and (iii) as promptly as reasonably possible following such redemption, subject to the approval of SPAC's remaining shareholders and directors, liquidate and dissolve, subject in each case to SPAC's obligations under Cayman Islands law to provide for claims of creditors and subject to the other requirements of applicable law. SPAC cannot assure Public Shareholders that it will properly assess all claims that may be potentially brought against SPAC.

If SPAC is forced to enter into an insolvent liquidation, any distributions received by SPAC shareholders could be viewed as an unlawful payment under applicable corporate, debtor/creditor and/or bankruptcy/ insolvency laws, for example as a "preferential transfer" or a "fraudulent conveyance, preference or disposition", or if it was proved that immediately following the date on which the distribution was made, SPAC was unable to pay its debts as they fall due in the ordinary course of business. As a result, a liquidator or bankruptcy or other court could seek to recover all amounts received by SPAC shareholders. Furthermore, SPAC's directors may be viewed as having breached their fiduciary duties to SPAC or SPAC's creditors and/or may have acted in bad faith, thereby exposing themselves and SPAC to claims, by paying Public Shareholders from the Trust Account prior to addressing the claims of creditors. There is no assurance that claims will not be brought against SPAC for these reasons. SPAC and its directors and officers who knowingly and willfully authorized or permitted any distribution to be paid out of the Trust Account while SPAC was unable to pay its debts as they fall due in the ordinary course of business would be guilty of an offense and may be liable to a fine of $18,292.68 and to imprisonment for five years in the Cayman Islands.

SPAC's directors may decide not to enforce the indemnification obligations of the Sponsor, resulting in a reduction in the amount of funds in the Trust Account available for distribution to the Public Shareholders.

In the event that the proceeds in the Trust Account are reduced below the lesser of (i) $10.05 per share and (ii) the actual amount per share held in the Trust Account as of the date of the liquidation of the Trust Account if less than $10.05 per share due to reductions in the value of the assets in the Trust Account, in each case net of the interest which may be withdrawn to pay taxes, and the Sponsor asserts that it is unable to satisfy its obligations or that it has no indemnification obligations related to a particular claim, SPAC's independent directors would determine whether to take legal action against the Sponsor to enforce its indemnification obligations.

While SPAC currently expects that its independent directors would take legal action on SPAC's behalf against the Sponsor to enforce its indemnification obligations to SPAC, it is possible that SPAC's independent directors in exercising their business judgment and subject to their fiduciary duties may choose not to do so in any particular instance if, for example, the cost of such legal action is deemed by the independent directors to be too high relative to the amount recoverable or if the independent directors determine that a favorable outcome is not likely. If SPAC's independent directors choose not to enforce these indemnification obligations, the amount of funds in the Trust Account may be reduced below $10.52 per share (which is the approximate amount per Public Share based on the Trust Account balance as of August 20, 2026).

SPAC may not have sufficient funds to satisfy indemnification claims of its directors and officers.

SPAC has agreed to indemnify its officers and directors to the fullest extent permitted by law. However, its officers and directors have agreed to waive any right, title, interest or claim of any kind in or to any monies in the Trust Account and to not seek recourse against the Trust Account for any reason whatsoever. Accordingly, any indemnification provided will be able to be satisfied by SPAC only if (i) SPAC has sufficient funds outside of the Trust Account or (ii) SPAC consummates the Transactions or another business combination. SPAC's obligation to indemnify its officers and directors may discourage SPAC shareholders from bringing a lawsuit against its officers or directors for breach of their fiduciary duty. These provisions also may have the effect of reducing the likelihood of derivative litigation against its officers and directors, even though such an action, if successful, might otherwise benefit SPAC and the SPAC shareholders. Furthermore, a SPAC shareholder's investment may be adversely affected to the extent SPAC pays the costs of settlement and damage awards against its officers and directors pursuant to these indemnification provisions.

Following the Transactions, Pubco's business activities may be subject to review or approval by regulatory authorities pursuant to certain U.S. or foreign laws or regulations.

Certain business activities are subject to review or approval by regulatory authorities pursuant to certain U.S. or foreign laws or regulations. In the event that such regulatory approval or clearance is not obtained, or such approval or clearance are subject to conditions that are not acceptable to us, we may not be able to engage in such activities.

Among other things, the offering of certain financial products may be subject to state, federal or foreign laws or regulations. U.S. or foreign laws or regulations may also affect our ability to acquire interests in other businesses. In the United States, certain mergers that may affect competition may require filings and review by the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission, and investments or acquisitions that may affect national security are subject to review by the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States ("CFIUS"). CFIUS is an interagency committee authorized to review certain transactions involving foreign investment in the United States by foreign persons in order to determine the effect of such transactions on the national security of the United States.

The Sponsor and SPAC's directors and officers have entered into letter agreements with SPAC, and the Sponsor has entered into the Sponsor Support Agreement with SPAC and Pubco, in each case, which requires them to vote in favor of the Transactions, regardless of how the Public Shareholders vote.

The Sponsor and SPAC's directors and officers have entered into letter agreements with SPAC, including the Insider Letter, and the Sponsor has entered into the Sponsor Support Agreement with SPAC and Pubco, pursuant to which, among other things, they have agreed to vote all of their SPAC Common Shares in favor of any proposed business combination (except that it, he or she shall not vote any SPAC Class A Shares that it, he or she purchased after SPAC publicly announced its intention to engage in the Transactions for or against approving the Transactions). As of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus, the Sponsor owns approximately 100% of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares.

To pass each of the Business Combination Proposal and the Adjournment Proposal requires an ordinary resolution, being the affirmative vote of at least a simple majority of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the respective proposal at the Extraordinary General Meeting. To pass each of the Domestication Proposal and the Merger Proposal requires a special resolution, being the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the respective Proposal at the Extraordinary General Meeting. SPAC shareholders are also being asked to approve, as an ordinary resolution on a non-binding advisory basis, each of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals and the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals. Although the SPAC Board is asking SPAC shareholders to approve the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals and the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals on a non-binding advisory basis, regardless of the outcome of the non-binding advisory vote on each of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals and the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals, the Transactions will be completed if the Business Combination Proposal, the Merger Proposal and the Domestication Proposal are approved. Pursuant to the Cayman Companies Act and the SPAC Charter, only the holders of the SPAC Class B Shares are entitled to vote on the Domestication Proposal. All holders of SPAC Common Shares are entitled to vote on the Merger Proposal, the Business Combination Proposal, the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals, the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals and the Adjournment Proposal.

As a result, with respect to each Proposal that requires approval of SPAC shareholders by an ordinary resolution, in addition to the Sponsor's, CCM's, and Northland's SPAC Common Shares, SPAC would need only 7,205,001, or 31.3%, of the 23,000,000 Public Shares (assuming all issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares are voted at the Extraordinary General Meeting) and the Sponsor would be able to approve each such Proposal alone if only such shares as are required to establish a quorum are represented at the Extraordinary General Meeting and cast votes on the ordinary resolutions in order to have the Transactions approved.

With respect to the Merger Proposal, which requires approval of SPAC shareholders by a special resolution, in addition to the Sponsor's, CCM's and Northland's SPAC Common Shares, SPAC would need only 12,470,000, or 54.2%, of the 23,000,000 Public Shares (assuming all issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares are voted at the Extraordinary General Meeting) and the Sponsor would be able to approve each such Proposal alone if only such shares as are required to establish a quorum are represented at the Extraordinary General Meeting and cast votes on the special resolution in order to have the Transactions approved.

In addition, the Sponsor would be able to approve the Domestication Proposal alone and without the vote of any other SPAC shareholder, as only the holders of the SPAC Class B Shares are entitled to vote on that Proposal and the Sponsor holds 100% of the issued SPAC Class B Shares.

Accordingly, the agreement by the Sponsor to vote its SPAC Common Shares in favor of the Transactions increases the likelihood that SPAC will receive the requisite SPAC shareholder approval for the Transactions.

The Sponsor and SPAC's directors and officers and their respective affiliates may elect to purchase Public Shares from Public Shareholders, which may influence the vote on the Transactions and reduce the public "float" of SPAC Class A Shares.

Subject to compliance with applicable securities laws, the Sponsor, SPAC's directors and officers and their affiliates may purchase Public Shares in privately negotiated transactions or in the open market prior to the record date of the Extraordinary General Meeting, although they are under no obligation or duty to do so.

Any such purchases shall be effected at a price per share no higher than the amount per share a Public Shareholder would receive if it elected to have its Public Shares redeemed in connection with the Transactions. However, they have no current commitments, plans or intentions to engage in such transactions and have not formulated any terms or conditions for any such transactions. None of the funds in the Trust Account will be used to purchase Public Shares in such transactions. Such a purchase may include a contractual acknowledgment that such shareholder, although still the record holder of Public Shares is no longer the beneficial owner thereof and therefore agrees not to exercise its redemption rights. In the event that the Sponsor, SPAC's directors and officers or any of their affiliates purchase Public Shares in privately negotiated transactions from Public Shareholders who have already elected to exercise their redemption rights, such selling shareholders would be required to revoke their prior elections to have their Public Shares redeemed. It is intended that, if Rule 10b-18 under the Exchange Act would apply to such purchases, then such purchases will comply with Rule 10b-18 under the Exchange Act, to the extent it applies, which provides a safe harbor for purchases made under certain conditions, including with respect to timing, pricing and volume of purchases. Any such purchases, together with the SPAC Common Shares currently owned by the Sponsor, could influence the vote on the Transactions or otherwise result in the completion of the Transactions that may not otherwise have been possible.

Additionally, at any time at or prior to the consummation of the Business Combination, subject to applicable securities laws (including with respect to material non-public information), the Sponsor, SPAC's directors and officers and their affiliates may enter into transactions with investors and others to provide them with incentives to acquire Public Shares or not to elect to have their Public Shares redeemed. However, they have no current commitments, plans or intentions to engage in such transactions and have not formulated any terms or conditions for any such transactions. None of the funds in the Trust Account will be used to purchase Public Shares in such transactions.

If such purchases are made, the public "float" of SPAC Class A Shares may be reduced and the number of beneficial holders of SPAC Class A Shares may be reduced, which may make it difficult to maintain or obtain the quotation, listing or trading of Public Shares on Nasdaq or another securities exchange. Any such purchases will be reported pursuant to Section 13 and Section 16 of the Exchange Act to the extent such purchasers are subject to such reporting requirements.

Additionally, in the event the Sponsor, SPAC's directors and officers or their affiliates were to purchase Public Shares from Public Shareholders, such purchases would be structured in compliance with the requirements of Rule 14e-5 under the Exchange Act to the extent such rule is applicable including, in pertinent part, through adherence to the following:

- SPAC would disclose in this proxy statement/prospectus the possibility that the Sponsor, SPAC's directors and officers or their affiliates may purchase Public Shares from Public Shareholders outside the redemption process, along with the purpose of such purchases;
- if the Sponsor, SPAC's directors and officers or their affiliates were to purchase Public Shares from Public Shareholders, they would do so at a price no higher than the price offered through the redemption process;
- SPAC would include in this proxy statement/prospectus a representation that any of the Public Shares purchased by the Sponsor, SPAC's directors and officers or their affiliates would not be voted in favor of approving the Transactions;

- the Sponsor, SPAC's directors and officers or their affiliates would either not possess any redemption rights with respect to such Public Shares or they would waive such rights; and
- SPAC would disclose in a Form 8-K filed prior to the Extraordinary General Meeting, the following items, to the extent material:
- the amount of Public Shares purchased outside of the redemption offer by the Sponsor, SPAC's directors and officers or their affiliates, along with the average purchase price;
- the purpose of the purchases by the Sponsor, SPAC's directors and officers or their affiliates;
- the impact, if any, of the purchases by the Sponsor, SPAC's directors and officers or their affiliates on the likelihood that the Transactions will be approved at the Extraordinary General Meeting;
- the identities of the SPAC shareholders who sold Public Shares to the Sponsor, SPAC's directors and officers or their affiliates s (if not purchased in the open market) or the nature of the SPAC shareholders (e.g., 5% shareholders) who sold Public Shares to the Sponsor, SPAC's directors and officers or their affiliates; and
- the number of Public Shares for which SPAC has received redemption requests pursuant to its redemption offer as of a date shortly prior to the filing date of the Form 8-K.

SPAC, the Company, Ripple and other parties to the Business Combination Agreement will incur transaction costs in connection with the Transactions.

Each of the parties to the Business Combination Agreement has incurred and expects that it will incur significant, non-recurring costs in connection with the consummation of the Transactions. Pubco may also incur additional costs to retain key employees. SPAC and Pubco will also incur significant legal, financial advisor, accounting, banking and consulting fees, fees relating to regulatory filings and notices, SEC filing fees, printing and mailing fees and other costs associated with the Transactions. Assuming no Public Shareholders exercise redemption rights with respect to their Public Shares upon completion of the Transactions, SPAC and Pubco estimate that they will incur $24.3 million in aggregate transaction costs. As preliminary estimates, SPAC expects to incur $14.7 million in transaction costs, and Pubco expects to incur $9.6 million of estimated transaction costs for placement agent, legal, accounting, and advisory fees incurred as part of the Transactions. Some of these costs are payable regardless of whether the Transactions are completed.

Government shutdowns or similar disruptions at U.S. federal agencies, including the SEC, may delay or prevent completion of the Transactions and adversely affect our business and the market for our securities.

A lapse in U.S. federal appropriations or other government shutdowns can furlough "non-essential" federal employees and curtail services at impacted agencies, including the SEC, the Federal Trade Commission, and other regulators whose actions are relevant to the Transactions. During a shutdown, the SEC may limit or suspend acceptance, review and/or clearance of filings, issuance of SEC staff comments, responses to registrant correspondence, declaration of effectiveness of registration statements, processing of no-action or interpretive requests, and other routine functions. Any such limitations could, among other things:

- delay the mailing of the proxy statement/prospectus and the holding of the Extraordinary General Meeting;
- delay or prevent the SEC from declaring effective the registration statement(s) relating to the Transactions, or slow our ability to respond to SEC staff comments;
- delay or affect related regulatory processes, such as certain antitrust/Hart-Scott-Rodino timing mechanics; and
- compress the timetable available to satisfy closing conditions, increasing the risk that milestones tied to outside dates, redemption deadlines, charter-imposed completion windows or financing commitments are missed.

These impacts could push completion of the Transactions beyond the currently expected time frame of the second quarter of 2026, require us to adjourn or postpone the Extraordinary General Meeting, necessitate additional extensions or amendments to the SPAC's governing documents, or lead to the termination of the Business Combination Agreement if an outside date is not extended. They could also increase costs (including additional advisory, printing and mailing expenses), affect investor sentiment and market conditions at the time of any securities offering, and/or require changes to the structure or sequencing of the Transactions. Because the timing, duration and scope of any shutdown or related curtailment of agency operations are outside our control and inherently uncertain, we cannot predict the magnitude or duration of any resulting delay. Any of the foregoing could have a material adverse effect on the Transactions and on the market price of our securities.

The fairness opinion obtained by the SPAC from CCM will not reflect changes, circumstances, developments or events that may have occurred or may occur after the date of such opinion.

SPAC has not obtained, and will not obtain, an updated Fairness Opinion as of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus from CCM. CCM's written opinion was addressed to the SPAC Board (in its capacity as such) in connection with and for the purposes of its evaluation of the proposed business combination, was directed only to fairness, from a financial point of view, of the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness Opinion) to SPAC in the proposed business combination and did not address any other aspect of the proposed business combination. Furthermore, CCM's opinion was based on economic, monetary, regulatory, market and other conditions existing and which could have been evaluated as of the date of the Fairness Opinion. Changes in the operations and prospects of SPAC or the Company, regulatory or legal changes, general market and economic conditions, cost and other estimates with respect to revenues and margins and other factors that may be beyond the control of SPAC and the Company, and on which the Fairness Opinion was based, may change from the date of the Fairness Opinion and alter the values of the SPAC and Company or the prices of any securities relating to the SPAC or the Company prior to consummation of the Business Combination. The Fairness Opinion does not speak to the time the Business Combination will be completed or to any date other than the date of the Fairness Opinion. For a description of the Fairness Opinion that SPAC received from CCM, please see "The Business Combination Proposal—Opinion of the SPAC Financial Advisor." For a copy of the Fairness Opinion, please see the attached Exhibit F.

Risks Related to Ownership of Pubco Stock Following the Transactions.

Immediately after the Closing, a relatively small number of stockholders are expected to control a significant portion of Pubco's voting power, and may be in a position to control or otherwise significantly influence actions that require stockholder approval and may make decisions that are adverse to other stockholders.

Immediately after the Closing, the Contributor Group Holders and the Sponsor will collectively hold approximately 9.9% and 19.9% of Pubco's voting power, respectively, regardless of the number of Public Shares redeemed. Moreover, immediately after closing, SBI will hold approximately 29.8% of Pubco's voting power, assuming no Public Shares are redeemed (or 34.1%, 39.7%, 47.7% or 59.7% of Pubco's voting power if 25%, 50%, 75% or 100% of the Public Shares are redeemed). As a result, this relatively small number of holders will have significant influence over, and may in certain circumstances have the ability to exercise control over, certain decisions requiring stockholder approval, including the election of directors, amendments to the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter and Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws and approval of significant corporate transactions, such as a merger or other sale of Pubco or our assets. Accordingly, such holders will have significant influence over Pubco and Pubco's decisions, including the appointment of management and any other action requiring a vote of the Pubco Board. In addition, this concentration of ownership may have the effect of delaying, preventing or deterring a change in control of us and may negatively affect the market price of Pubco Class A Common Stock

In addition, RippleWorks, which, as of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus, holds a majority of the limited partner interests in the Sponsor, was co-founded by Chris Larsen, who serves as a member of the board of directors of RippleWorks and who also serves as co-founder and executive chairman of Ripple. This structure may create potential conflicts of interest between Mr. Larsen's duties to Ripple, his influence over RippleWorks' investment in the Sponsor, and the interests of Pubco and its stockholders. Although Mr. Larsen does not have direct control over RippleWorks' voting or investment decisions with respect to the Sponsor, his dual roles and affiliations could give rise to situations where his interests as an executive of Ripple differ from or conflict with the interests of Pubco and holder of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Conflicts of interest could arise with respect to certain of our directors and/or strategic advisors, which could adversely affect Pubco's business and decision-making.

Stuart Alderoty, Ripple's chief legal officer, is expected to serve on Pubco's board of directors, and Brad Garlinghouse and David Schwartz, the latter two Ripple's chief executive officer and a Ripple director, respectively, are expected to provide strategic advisory services to Pubco while continuing in such roles at Ripple. As a result, these individuals will have fiduciary or other duties to Ripple and/or its stakeholders, and their ongoing responsibilities to Ripple may create actual or perceived conflicts of interest when matters affecting both Pubco and Ripple are presented to Pubco's board or management, including with respect to business strategy, commercial relationships, competitive positioning, allocation of time and resources, and the pursuit of corporate opportunities.

These potential conflicts may be heightened to the extent Pubco seeks to pursue opportunities that could be complementary to, competitive with, or otherwise overlap with Ripple's business, or to the extent Pubco enters into, or seeks to enter into, any commercial arrangements or collaborations involving Ripple or its affiliates. In such circumstances, Messrs. Alderoty, Garlinghouse and Schwartz could be inclined, or could be perceived as inclined, to act in a manner that advances Ripple's interests, including by recommending strategies or decisions that favor Ripple or by limiting the scope of opportunities pursued by Pubco. In addition, because these individuals will continue to have significant professional obligations to Ripple, their ability to devote sufficient time, attention and resources to Pubco could be limited, including during periods when Pubco requires heightened strategic, operational or legal support.

If Pubco is unable to appropriately manage these actual or perceived conflicts of interest, Pubco's decision-making could be adversely affected, Pubco may be unable to capitalize on certain business opportunities, and Pubco could become subject to reputational harm, litigation, regulatory scrutiny or other disputes, any of which could have a material adverse effect on Pubco's business, financial condition and financial statements.

Securities of companies formed through mergers with SPACs such as Pubco may experience a material decline in price relative to the share price of the SPACs prior to such merger.

SPAC issued SPAC Class A Shares for $10.00 per share upon the closing of the SPAC IPO. As with other SPACs, each SPAC Unit issued in the SPAC IPO carries a right to have such share redeemed for a pro rata portion of the proceeds held in the Trust Account. As of June 30, 2026, the redemption price per Public Share was approximately $10.49, which is the approximate redemption amount per Public Share based on the Trust Account balance as of June 30, 2026. Following the Closing, the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding will no longer have any such redemption right and may be dependent upon the fundamental value of Pubco, as well as other relevant factors such as market conditions and trading multiples, and the securities of other companies formed through mergers with SPACs in recent years, and may be significantly less than $10.00 per share.

Volatility in Pubco's share price could subject Pubco to securities class action litigation.

The market price of the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock may be volatile and, in the past, companies that have experienced volatility in the market price of their shares have been subject to securities class action litigation. Pubco may be the target of this type of litigation and investigations. Securities litigation against Pubco could result in substantial costs and divert management's attention from other business concerns, which could seriously harm Pubco's business.

Since the completion of the SPAC IPO, there has been a precipitous drop in the market values of companies formed through mergers involving SPACs. Accordingly, securities of companies such as Pubco may be more volatile than other securities and may involve special risks.

Since the completion of the SPAC IPO, there has been a precipitous drop in the market values of companies formed through mergers involving SPACs like ours. These include inflationary pressures, increases in interest rates and other adverse economic and market forces have contributed to these drops in market value for SPACs. As a result, the Public Shares are subject to potential downward pressures, which may result in high levels of exercises of redemptions rights, reducing the cash available from the Trust Account. If there are substantial redemptions by Public Shareholders in connection with the Transactions, there will be a lower public float of Pubco Class A Common Stock following the Closing, which may cause volatility in the price of our securities and adversely impact our ability to secure financing following the Closing.

Currently, there is no public market for the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock. Public Shareholders cannot be sure about whether the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock will develop an active trading market or whether Pubco is able to maintain the listing of Pubco Class A Common Stock in the future even if Pubco is successful in listing Pubco Class A Common Stock on Nasdaq or any other national securities exchange, which could limit investors' ability to make transactions in shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and subject Pubco to additional trading restrictions.

As part of the Transactions, following the SPAC Domestication, each outstanding SPAC Class A Share (including the SPAC Class A Shares issued upon conversion of the outstanding SPAC Class B Shares) will be converted automatically into one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock. Pubco is a newly formed entity and prior to this transaction it has not issued any securities in the U.S. markets or elsewhere nor has there been extensive information about it, its businesses or its operations publicly available. SPAC and Pubco have agreed to cause the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock to be issued in the Transactions to be approved for listing on Nasdaq, or any other national securities exchange, prior to the effective time of the Transactions. SPAC cannot assure Public Shareholders that Pubco will be able to meet the initial listing requirements. However, Pubco may be unsuccessful in listing Pubco Class A Common Stock on Nasdaq, or any other national securities exchange, and even if successful, Pubco may be unable to maintain the listing of Pubco Class A Common Stock in the future. A successful listing also does not ensure that a market for the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock will develop or the price at which the shares will trade. No assurance can be provided as to the demand for or trading price of the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock following the Closing and the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock may trade at a price less than the current market price of the SPAC Class A Shares.

If Pubco fails to meet the initial listing requirements and Nasdaq or another national securities exchange does not list its shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock on its exchange, none of the parties to the Business Combination Agreement would be required to consummate the Transactions. In the event that all such parties elected to waive this condition, and the Transactions were consummated without shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock being listed on Nasdaq or on another national securities exchange, Pubco could face significant material adverse consequences, including:

- a limited availability of market quotations for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock;
- reduced liquidity for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock;
- to the extent that Pubco does not qualify for any of the other penny stock exemptions from under the applicable provisions of Rule 3a51-1 under the Exchange Act, a determination that shares of Pubco Class A Stock are "penny stocks" which will require brokers trading in shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock to adhere to more stringent rules and possibly result in a reduced level of trading activity in the secondary trading market for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock;

- a limited amount of news and analyst coverage; and
- a decreased ability to issue additional securities or obtain additional financing in the future.

The National Securities Markets Improvement Act of 1996, which is a federal statute, prevents or preempts the states from regulating the sale of certain securities, which are referred to as "covered securities." If shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are not listed on Nasdaq or another national securities exchange, such shares would not qualify as covered securities and Pubco would be subject to regulation in each state in which Pubco offers its shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock because states are not preempted from regulating the sale of securities that are not covered securities.

Even if Pubco is successful in listing Pubco Class A Common Stock and developing a public market, there may not be enough liquidity in such market to enable Pubco stockholders to sell their shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock. If a public market for the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock does not develop, investors may not be able to re-sell their shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, rendering their shares illiquid and possibly resulting in a complete loss of their investment. Pubco cannot predict the extent to which investor interest in Pubco will lead to the development of an active, liquid trading market. The trading price of and demand for the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock following completion of the Transactions and the development and continued existence of a market and favorable price for the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock will depend on a number of conditions, including the development of a market following, including by analysts and other investment professionals, the businesses, operations, results and prospects of Pubco, general market and economic conditions, governmental actions, regulatory considerations, legal proceedings and developments or other factors. These and other factors may impair the development of a liquid market and the ability of investors to sell shares at an attractive price. These factors also could cause the market price and demand for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock to fluctuate substantially, which may limit or prevent investors from readily selling their shares and may otherwise affect negatively the price and liquidity of the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock. Many of these factors and conditions are beyond the control of Pubco or stockholders of Pubco.

Reports published by analysts, including projections in those reports that differ from Pubco's actual results, could adversely affect the price and trading volume of Pubco Stock.

Pubco's management currently expects that securities research analysts will establish and publish their own periodic projections for its business. These projections may vary widely and may not accurately predict the results Pubco actually achieves. Pubco's share price may decline if its actual results do not match the projections of these securities research analysts. Similarly, if one or more of the analysts who write reports on Pubco downgrades its stock or publishes inaccurate or unfavorable research about its business, its share price could decline. If one or more of these analysts ceases coverage of Pubco or fails to publish reports on it regularly, its share price or trading volume could decline. While Pubco's management expects research analyst coverage, if no analysts commence coverage of Pubco, the trading price and volume for Pubco Stock could be adversely affected.

Pubco may or may not pay cash dividends or make other distributions in the foreseeable future.

Any decision to declare and pay dividends or other distributions in the future will be made at the discretion of the Pubco Board and will depend on, among other things, applicable law, regulations, statutory restrictions, Pubco's and the Company's respective results of operations, financial condition, cash requirements, contractual restrictions, the future projects and plans of Pubco and the Company and other factors that the Pubco Board may deem relevant. As a result, capital appreciation, if any, of Pubco Class A Common Stock will be an investor's sole source of gain for the foreseeable future.

However, under the Company A&R LLCA, the Company will generally be required from time to time to make pro rata distributions in cash to us and the other holders of Company Units at certain assumed tax rates in amounts that could be significant. See "Risks Related to Taxation—In certain circumstances, the Company will be required to make distributions to us and the other holders of Company Units, and the distributions that the Company will be required to make may be substantial."

Risks Related to Our Organizational Structure and the Pubco Class A Common Stock

Pubco is a holding company and its principal asset after completion of this offering will be its 70.9% ownership interest in the Company, and it is accordingly dependent upon distributions from the Company to pay dividends, if any, and taxes, make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement and pay other expenses.

Pubco is a holding company and, upon completion of the Transactions, its principal asset will be its ownership of approximately 70.9% of the outstanding Company Units (including Company Units held through Pubco's ownership of SPAC Surviving Subsidiary), assuming no redemptions and subject to the additional assumptions set forth in "Beneficial Ownership of Securities—Post-Transactions Beneficial Ownership of the Company." Pubco has no independent means of generating revenue. The Company is, and will continue to be, treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes and, as such, will not be subject to U.S. federal income tax. Instead, the taxable income of the Company will be allocated to holders of Company Units, including Pubco. Accordingly, Pubco will incur income taxes on its allocable share of any net taxable income of the Company. Pubco will also incur expenses related to its operations, and will have obligations to make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement. As the sole managing member of the Company, Pubco intends to cause the Company to make distributions to the holders of Company Units (including Pubco) in amounts sufficient to (i) cover all applicable taxes payable by Pubco and the other holders of Company Units, (ii) allow Pubco to make any payments required under the Tax Receivable Agreement, (iii) fund dividends to Pubco's stockholders in accordance with its dividend policy, to the extent that Pubco's board of directors declares such dividends and (iv) pay its expenses.

Deterioration in the financial conditions, earnings or cash flow of the Company and its subsidiaries for any reason could limit or impair their ability to pay such distributions. Additionally, to the extent that Pubco need funds and the Company is restricted from making such distributions under applicable law or regulation, as a result of covenants in its debt agreements or otherwise, Pubco may not be able to obtain such funds on terms acceptable to it, or at all, and, as a result, could suffer a material adverse effect on its liquidity and financial condition. To the extent that Pubco is unable to make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement for any reason, such payment will accrue interest until paid.

In certain circumstances, the Company will be required to make distributions to us and the other holders of Company Units, and the tax distributions that the Company will be required to make may be substantial.

Under the Company A&R LLCA (as defined herein), the Company will generally be required to make quarterly pro rata distributions in cash to Pubco and the other holders of Company Units at certain assumed tax rates in amounts that are intended to be sufficient to cover the taxes on Pubco's and the other Company Unit holders' respective allocable shares of the taxable income of the Company. As a result of (i) potential differences in the amount of net taxable income allocable to Pubco and the other Company Unit holders, (ii) the lower tax rate applicable to corporations than individuals, (iii) the use of an assumed tax rate (based on the tax rate applicable to individuals) in calculating the Company's distribution obligations and (iv) the favorable tax benefits that Pubco anticipates receiving from (a) acquisitions of interests in the Company in connection with future taxable redemptions or exchanges of Company Units for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock or cash and (b) payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement, Pubco may receive tax distributions significantly in excess of its tax liabilities and obligations to make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement. Pubco's board of directors will determine the appropriate uses for any excess cash so accumulated, which may include, among other uses, dividends, repurchases of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the payment of obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement and the payment of other expenses. Pubco will have no obligation to distribute such cash (or other available cash other than any declared dividend) to its stockholders.

No adjustments to the redemption or exchange ratio of Company Units for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock will be made as a result of either (i) any cash distribution by Pubco or (ii) any cash that Pubco retains and does not distribute to its stockholders. To the extent that Pubco does not distribute such excess cash as dividends on its Pubco Class A Common Stock and instead, for example, holds such cash balances or lends them to the Company, such cash, if retained, could cause other holders of Company Units to benefit from any value attributable to such cash balances as a result of their ownership of Pubco Class A Common Stock following a redemption or exchange of their Company Units. See "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Pubco's Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Company A&R LLCA."

The tax distributions to the Company unitholders may be substantial and may, in the aggregate, exceed the amount of taxes that the Company would have paid if it were a similarly situated corporate taxpayer. Funds used by the Company to satisfy its tax distribution obligations will generally not be available for reinvestment in its business.

Because key holders of Pubco Stock are subject to voting ownership caps, other holders' relative voting power will be enhanced and may produce governance outcomes that are not aligned with their economic ownership.

In connection with the Transactions, the Sponsor has agreed to a voting ownership cap of 19.9% of Pubco's total voting power, with any excess economic interest to be represented by non-voting Pubco Class C Common Stock (or other non-voting equity), and the Contributor Group Holders are collectively capped at 9.9% of Pubco's total voting power, with any excess economic interest to be delivered in Company Units (or other non-voting/indirect interests), in each case as described under "The Transactions." As a result of these caps, a substantial portion of the capital contributed to Pubco will not translate into commensurate voting power, and voting control over Pubco may be disproportionately concentrated in other stockholders whose aggregate economic stake is smaller than that of the capped investors. Any such concentration could influence the election of directors and the outcome of other matters submitted to a stockholder vote, including amendments to organizational documents and approval of significant transactions. Moreover, because the public float of voting shares may be relatively limited, even modest accumulations or transfers by other investors could further shift effective control, potentially in ways that non-voting or capped investors cannot counterbalance. These dynamics could adversely affect corporate decision-making and the market price of the Pubco Class A Common Stock. For more information, see also "Description of Capital Stock."

In addition, the Sponsor and the Contributor Group Holders may be able to sell voting Pubco Class A Common Stock and thereafter convert or exchange non-voting instruments (e.g., Pubco Class C Common Stock or Company Units) into Pubco Class A Common Stock, subject to the caps and any applicable transfer, lock up, exchange or other restrictions—to reestablish their voting ownership up to the applicable cap. This dynamic could enable significant resales of Pubco Class A Common Stock while the capped investors maintain similar levels of voting influence, increase the public float of Pubco Class A Common Stock over time and place downward pressure on the trading price and increase volatility, particularly following the effectiveness of any resale registration statement or the expiration of applicable restrictions. There can be no assurance that the timing, volume or manner of any such resales will not adversely affect the market price of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

We will be required to pay the TRA Parties and any other persons that become parties to the Tax Receivable Agreement for certain tax benefits we may receive, and the amounts we may pay could be substantial.

In connection with the Transactions, we intend to enter into the Tax Receivable Agreement with the TRA Parties that will provide for the payment by us to the TRA Parties of 85% of the amount of cash savings, if any, in U.S. federal, state and local income tax or franchise tax that we actually realize as a result of (i) any increase in tax basis in the Company's assets resulting from (a) the purchase of Company Units from any of the TRA Parties using the net proceeds from any future offering, (b) redemptions or exchanges by the TRA Parties of Company

Units for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock or cash or (c) payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement and (ii) tax benefits related to imputed interest resulting from payments made under the Tax Receivable Agreement. The payment obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement are our obligations and not obligations of the Company. The term of the Tax Receivable Agreement will begin upon the completion of the Business Combination and will continue until all tax benefits that are subject to the Tax Receivable Agreement have been utilized or expired and all required payments are made, unless we exercise our right to terminate the Tax Receivable Agreement (or the Tax Receivable Agreement is terminated due to other circumstances) and we make the termination payment specified in the Tax Receivable Agreement.

We expect that, as a result of the increases in the tax basis of the assets of the Company attributable to the redeemed or exchanged Company Units, the payments that we may make to the existing TRA Parties could be substantial. The payments we will be required to make under the Tax Receivable Agreement, will depend on a number of factors, including the market value of Pubco Class A Common Stock at the time of redemption or exchange, the prevailing federal tax rates applicable to us over the life of the Tax Receivable Agreement (as well as the assumed combined state and local tax rate), the amount and timing of the taxable income that we generate in the future and the extent to which future redemptions, exchanges or purchases of Company Units are taxable transactions. Estimating the amount and timing of our realization of tax benefits subject to the Tax Receivable Agreement is by its nature imprecise. The actual increases in tax basis covered by the Tax Receivable Agreement, as well as the amount and timing of our ability to use any deductions (or decreases in gain or increases in loss) arising from such increases in tax basis, are dependent upon significant future events, including but not limited to the timing of the redemptions of Company Units, the price of Pubco Class A Common Stock at the time of each redemption, the extent to which such redemptions are taxable transactions, the amount of tax basis associated with the Company Units of the redeeming holder at the time of the relevant redemption, the depreciation and amortization periods that apply to the increase in tax basis, the amount, character, and timing of taxable income the Company generates in the future, the timing and amount of any earlier payments that we may have made under the Tax Receivable Agreement, the U.S. federal income tax rate then applicable to us, and the portion of our payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement that constitute imputed interest or give rise to depreciable or amortizable tax basis. For purposes of the Tax Receivable Agreement, net cash savings in tax generally will be calculated by comparing our actual tax liability (determined by using the actual applicable U.S. federal income tax rate and certain simplifying assumptions with respect to state and local income taxes) to the amount it would have been required to pay had it not been able to utilize any of the tax benefits subject to the Tax Receivable Agreement. The amount and timing of any payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement are dependent upon significant future events, including those noted above in respect of estimating the amount and timing of our realization of tax benefits.

We will not be reimbursed for any payments made under the Tax Receivable Agreement in the event that any tax benefits are subsequently disallowed.

Payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement will be based on certain tax reporting positions, and the IRS or another tax authority may challenge all or part of the tax basis increases upon which payment under the Tax Receivable Agreement are based, as well as other related tax positions we take, and a court could sustain such challenge. The TRA Parties will not reimburse us for any payments previously made if such tax basis increases or other tax benefits are subsequently disallowed by the IRS, except that any excess payments made to the TRA Parties will be netted against future payments otherwise to be made under the Tax Receivable Agreement, if any, after our determination of such excess (which determination may be made a number of years following the initial payment and after future payments have been made). As a result, in such circumstances, we could make payments to the TRA Parties under the Tax Receivable Agreement that are greater than our actual cash tax savings and we may not be able to recoup those payments, which could materially adversely affect our liquidity.

In certain cases, payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement may be accelerated and/or significantly exceed the actual benefits, if any, we realize in respect of the tax attributes subject to the Tax Receivable Agreement.

The Tax Receivable Agreement provides that (1) in the event that we breach any of our material obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement, (2) upon certain changes of control, which includes certain mergers, asset sales, and other forms of business combinations and certain changes to the composition of our board, or (3) if, with the written approval of a majority of our independent directors, we elect an early termination of the Tax Receivable Agreement, our obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement (with respect to all Company Units, whether or not Company Units have been exchanged or acquired before or after such transaction) would accelerate and become payable in a lump sum amount equal to the present value of the anticipated future tax benefits calculated based on certain assumptions, including that we would have sufficient taxable income to fully utilize the deductions arising from the tax deductions, tax basis and other tax attributes subject to the Tax Receivable Agreement. These provisions in the Tax Receivable Agreement may result in situations where the TRA Parties have interests that differ from or are in addition to those of our other stockholders. Any payments made under the Tax Receivable Agreement following an acceleration event may be made significantly in advance of, and may be substantial and materially in excess of our, or a potential acquirer's, future cash tax savings to which such payment relates. If the Tax Receivable Agreement terminates early (in the situations described above), our obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement could have a substantial negative impact on our liquidity and could have the effect of delaying, deferring, or preventing certain mergers, asset sales, or other forms of business combinations or changes of control that could be in the best interests of holders of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

If our obligation to make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement is accelerated in connection with a change of control, we generally expect the accelerated payments due under the Tax Receivable Agreement to be funded out of the proceeds of the change of control transaction giving rise to such acceleration. However, we may be required to fund such payment from other sources, and, as a result, any early termination of the Tax Receivable Agreement could have a substantial negative impact on our liquidity. Our obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement will also apply with respect to any person that becomes a party to the Tax Receivable Agreement in the future.

Finally, because we are a holding company with no operations of our own, our ability to make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement depends on the ability of the Company to make distributions to us. There can be no assurance that we will be able to meet our obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement. To the extent that we are unable to make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement for any reason, such payments will accrue interest until paid and nonpayment may constitute a breach of a material obligation under the Tax Receivable Agreement and therefore accelerate payments due under the Tax Receivable Agreement, which could negatively impact our results of operations.

If our payment obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement are accelerated in connection with certain mergers, other forms of business combinations, or other changes of control, the consideration payable to holders of the Pubco Class A Common Stock for such merger or other form of business combination could be substantially reduced.

If Pubco experiences a change of control (as defined under the Tax Receivable Agreement, which includes certain mergers, asset sales, and other forms of business combinations and certain changes to the composition of the Pubco Board), then Pubco's obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement would be based upon certain assumptions and deemed events set forth in the Tax Receivable Agreement, and, in such situations, payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement may be made significantly in advance of, and may materially exceed, the actual realization, if any, of the future cash tax savings to which the payment relates. As a result of Pubco's payment obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement, holders of Pubco Class A Common Stock could receive substantially less consideration in connection with a change of control transaction than they would receive in the absence of such obligation. Further, Pubco's payment obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement will not be conditioned upon the TRA Parties having a continued interest in Pubco or the Company, and the rights of the TRA Parties (including the right to receive payments) under the Tax Receivable Agreement are generally transferable by the TRA Parties as long as the transferee of such rights has executed and delivered or in connection with such transfer executes and delivers, a joinder to the Tax Receivable Agreement. Accordingly, the TRA Parties' interests may conflict with those of the holders of the Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Risks Related to Taxation

The SPAC Domestication and SPAC Merger may result in adverse tax consequences for holders of SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants.

As discussed in "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC" below, the SPAC Domestication is intended to qualify as a tax-deferred reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a)(1)(F) of the Code. However, due to the absence of direct guidance on the application of Section 368(a)(1)(F) of the Code to a corporation holding only investment-type assets, such as SPAC, this result is not entirely clear.

Additionally, subject to the limitations and qualifications described in "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related To SPAC—II. U.S. Holders—C. U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences of the SPAC Merger" below, the SPAC Merger and the LLC Merger, taken together with the other Transactions that constitute the Business Combination, are intended qualify as an exchange subject to Section 351(a) and Section 351(b) of the Code, but qualification as such is not free from doubt.

If the SPAC Domestication fails to qualify a tax-deferred reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a)(1)(F) of the Code, a U.S. Holder of SPAC Class A Shares or SPAC Public Warrants generally would recognize gain or loss with respect to its SPAC Class A Shares or SPAC Public Warrants in an amount equal to the difference, if any, between the fair market value of the corresponding Pubco Class A Common Stock or Pubco Warrants received following the SPAC Domestication and SPAC Merger and the U.S. Holder's adjusted tax basis in its SPAC Class A Shares or SPAC Public Warrants surrendered in exchange therefor.

Even if the SPAC Domestication qualifies as a tax-deferred reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a)(1)(F) of the Code and the SPAC Merger qualifies as an exchange subject to Section 351(a) and Section 351(b) of the Code, U.S. Holders may be required to recognize gain or include income pursuant to the PFIC rules and the rules under Section 367(b) of the Code. Additionally, regardless of the tax-treatment of the SPAC Domestication or the SPAC Merger, Non-U.S. Holders may become subject to withholding tax on any amounts treated as dividends paid on Pubco Class A Common Stock after the SPAC Domestication and SPAC Merger.

For a more complete discussion of the U.S. federal income tax considerations of the SPAC Domestication, see the section entitled "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC." If you are a holder exchanging SPAC Class A Shares or SPAC Public Warrants in the SPAC Merger, you are urged to consult your tax advisor to determine the tax consequences thereof.

The 1% excise tax included in the Inflation Reduction Act of 2022 may decrease the value of our securities following the Transactions, hinder our ability to consummate the Transactions, and decrease the amount of funds available for distribution.

On August 16, 2022, the Inflation Reduction Act of 2022 became law, which, among other things, imposes a 1% excise tax on certain repurchases (including certain redemptions) of stock by publicly traded U.S. corporations and certain U.S. subsidiaries of publicly traded non-U.S. corporations (each, a "covered corporation"). The excise tax applies only to stock repurchases occurring in 2023 and beyond. The excise tax is imposed on the repurchasing corporation itself, not its stockholders from whom the shares are repurchased (although it may reduce the amount of cash distributable in a current or subsequent redemption). The amount of the excise tax is generally 1% of the fair market value of the shares of stock repurchased by the repurchasing corporation during the same taxable year. However, for purposes of calculating the excise tax, repurchasing corporations are permitted to net the fair market value of certain new stock issuances against the fair market value of stock repurchases during the same taxable year (the "netting rule"). The U.S. Department of Treasury has authority to provide regulations and other guidance to carry out, and prevent the abuse or avoidance of, the excise tax.

It is possible that the excise tax will apply to any redemptions of SPAC Class A Shares, unless an exemption is available. Consequently, the value of your investment in our securities may decrease as a result of the excise tax.

The treatment of digital assets for U.S. federal income tax purposes is uncertain.

Due to the new and evolving nature of digital assets and the absence of comprehensive guidance with respect to digital currencies, many significant aspects of the U.S. federal income tax treatment of digital assets are uncertain.

In 2014, the Internal Revenue Service ("IRS") released a notice (the "Notice") discussing certain aspects of "convertible virtual currency" (that is, digital assets that have an equivalent value in fiat currency or that act as substitute for fiat currency) for U.S. federal income tax purposes and, in particular, stating that such digital assets (i) are "property," (ii) are not "currency" for purposes of the rules relating to foreign currency gain or loss and (iii) may be held as a capital asset. In 2019, the IRS released a revenue ruling and a set of "Frequently Asked Questions" (the "Ruling & FAQs") that provide some additional guidance, including guidance to the effect that, under certain circumstances, hard forks of digital assets are taxable events giving rise to ordinary income and guidance with respect to the determination of the tax basis of digital currency. However, the Notice and the Ruling & FAQs do not address other significant aspects of the U.S. federal income tax treatment of digital assets. Moreover, although the Ruling & FAQs address the treatment of hard forks, there continues to be uncertainty with respect to the timing and amount of the income inclusions.

Future developments that may arise with respect to digital assets may increase the uncertainty with respect to the treatment of digital assets for U.S. federal income tax purposes. For example, the Notice addresses only digital currency that is "convertible virtual currency," and it is conceivable that, as a result of a fork, airdrop or similar occurrence, the Company will hold certain types of digital currency that are not within the scope of the Notice.

There can be no assurance that the IRS will not alter its position with respect to digital assets in the future or that a court would uphold the treatment set forth in the Notice and the Ruling & FAQs. It is also unclear what additional legislation or guidance on the treatment of digital assets for U.S. federal income tax purposes may be issued in the future. For example, currently pending legislative proposals that have passed the House would disallow a capital-loss deduction where a taxpayer acquires substantially identical digital assets within 30 days of a sale. Should any such legislation be enacted, which legislation could apply retroactively, investors in XRP may receive a lower after-tax return on their investment of XRP, which may have an adverse effect on the market price of the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock. Any future legislation or guidance on the treatment of digital assets for U.S. federal income tax purposes could increase the expenses of the Company and could have an adverse effect on the prices of digital assets, including on the price of XRP in the digital asset markets. As a result, any such future legislation or guidance could have an adverse effect on the value of the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

To the extent that Pubco has tax liability on account of the Company's ownership of XRP, Pubco may not have sufficient cash to pay such U.S. federal income taxes and may be required to find other sources of cash.

Future developments in the treatment of digital currency for tax purposes other than U.S. federal income tax purposes could adversely affect the value of the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

The taxing authorities of certain states (i) have announced that they will follow the Notice with respect to the treatment of digital assets for state income tax purposes and/or (ii) have issued guidance exempting the purchase and/or sale of digital assets for fiat currency from state sales tax. Other states have not issued any guidance on these points, and could take different positions (e.g., imposing sales taxes on purchases and sales of digital assets for fiat currency), and states that have issued guidance on their tax treatment of digital assets could update or change their tax treatment of digital assets. In addition, several states have enacted or are actively considering gross receipts, franchise, consumption, or excise taxes that apply specifically to a wide range of digital asset activities, including the mere holding of a crypto-treasury. It is unclear what further guidance on the treatment of digital assets for state or local tax purposes may be issued in the future. A state or local government authority's treatment of XRP may have negative consequences, including the imposition of a greater tax burden on investors in XRP or the imposition of a greater cost on the acquisition, holding and disposition of XRP generally.

The treatment of digital assets for tax purposes by non-U.S. jurisdictions may differ from the treatment of digital assets for U.S. federal, state or local tax purposes. It is possible, for example, that a non-U.S. jurisdiction would impose sales tax or value-added tax on purchases and sales of digital assets for fiat currency. If a foreign jurisdiction with a significant share of the market of XRP users imposes onerous tax burdens on digital currency users, or imposes sales or value-added tax on purchases and sales of digital currency for fiat currency, such actions could result in decreased demand for XRP in such jurisdiction.

Any future guidance on the treatment of digital assets for state, local or non-U.S. tax purposes could increase the expenses of the Company and could have an adverse effect on the prices of digital assets, including on the price of XRP in digital asset exchanges. As a result, any such future guidance could have an adverse effect on the value of the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Pubco could incur a tax liability as result of income derived from forks, airdrops and similar occurrences.

If a hard fork occurs in the XRP Ledger, the Company could hold both the original XRP and the alternative new XRP. In addition to hard forks, the XRP Ledger may become subject to a similar occurrence known as an "airdrop," and, as a result, the Company could be entitled to claim another digital asset based on the fact that it holds XRP. Under the guidance provided in the Ruling & FAQs, hard forks, airdrops and similar occurrences with respect to digital assets will under certain circumstances be treated as taxable events giving rise to taxable income.

Pubco does not currently intend to distribute to its shareholders any digital assets that may be created, received or made available as a result of any fork, airdrop or similar occurrence. See "—Shareholders may not receive the benefits of any 'forks' or 'airdrops'." However, the distribution and/or sale of digital assets (or proceeds from the sale thereof) received by the Company as a result of a hard fork, airdrop or similar occurrence may cause Pubco to incur a United States federal, state, and/or local, or non-U.S., tax liability. Income taxes resulting from hard forks, air drops or similar occurrences or from the distribution or sale of the assets received as a result thereof could adversely impact an investment in the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

In certain circumstances, the Company will be required to make distributions to us and the other holders of Company Units, and the distributions that the Company will be required to make may be substantial.

Under the Company A&R LLCA, the Company will generally be required from time to time to make pro rata distributions in cash to us and the other holders of Company Units at certain assumed tax rates in amounts that are intended to be sufficient to cover the taxes on our and the other Company Unit holders' respective allocable shares of the taxable income of the Company. As a result of (i) potential differences in the amount of net taxable income allocable to us and the other Company Unit holders, (ii) the lower tax rate applicable to corporations than individuals and (iii) the use of an assumed tax rate (based on the tax rate applicable to individuals) in calculating the Company's distribution obligations, we may receive tax distributions significantly in excess of our tax liabilities and obligations to make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement. Our board of directors will determine the appropriate uses for any excess cash so accumulated, which may include, among other uses, dividends, repurchases of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the payment of obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement and the payment of other expenses. We will have no obligation to distribute such cash (or other available cash other than any declared dividend) to our stockholders. No adjustments to the redemption or exchange ratio of Company Units for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock will be made as a result of either (i) any cash distribution by us or (ii) any cash that we retain and do not distribute to our stockholders. To the extent that we do not distribute such excess cash as dividends on Pubco Class A Common Stock and instead, for example, hold such cash balances or lend them to the Company, holders of Company Units would benefit from any value attributable to such cash balances as a result of their ownership of Pubco Class A Common Stock following a redemption or exchange of their Company Units. See "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Pubco's Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Company A&R LLCA."

EXTRAORDINARY GENERAL MEETING OF SPAC SHAREHOLDERS

General

SPAC is furnishing this proxy statement/prospectus to SPAC shareholders as part of the solicitation of proxies by the SPAC Board for use at the Extraordinary General Meeting. This proxy statement/prospectus provides SPAC shareholders with information they need to know to be able to vote or direct their vote to be cast at the Extraordinary General Meeting.

Date, Time and Place

The Extraordinary General Meeting will be held on September 30, 2026, at 12:00 p.m. Eastern Time, virtually at https://www.cstproxy.com/armadaacqii/2026. For the purposes of Cayman Islands law and the SPAC Charter, the physical place of the meeting will be at 701 5th Ave #5100, Seattle, WA 98104. There is no requirement to attend the Extraordinary General Meeting in person at the physical place of the meeting in order to vote, and SPAC encourages virtual participation. Shareholders will be afforded the same rights and opportunities to vote, ask questions and participate as they would at an in-person Extraordinary General Meeting. In particular, shareholders may submit questions in advance of the Extraordinary General Meeting by following the instructions and rules of conduct on the Extraordinary General Meeting website. You can participate in the Extraordinary General Meeting and vote via live webcast by visiting https://www.cstproxy.com/armadaacqii/2026.

Purpose of the Extraordinary General Meeting

At the Extraordinary General Meeting, SPAC will ask shareholders to consider and vote upon:

1) The Business Combination Proposal—to adopt and approve, by ordinary resolution, the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions. See the section entitled "The Business Combination Proposal."

2) The Merger Proposal—to authorize and approve, by special resolution, the SPAC Merger. See the section entitled "The Merger Proposal."

3) The Domestication Proposal— to approve, by special resolution, the Plan of Domestication and a change in the corporate structure and domicile of SPAC by transfer by way of continuation of SPAC from an exempted company incorporated in accordance with the laws of the Cayman Islands to a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware. See the section entitled "The Domestication Proposal."

4) The Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals—to consider and vote, on a non-binding, advisory basis, upon separate proposals to approve, by ordinary resolution, the material differences between the SPAC Charter and the Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents. See the section entitled "The Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals."

5) The Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals—to consider and vote, on a non-binding, advisory basis, upon separate proposals to approve, by ordinary resolution, the material differences between the SPAC Charter and the Proposed Organizational Documents. See the section entitled "The Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals."

6) The Adjournment Proposal—to approve, by ordinary resolution, the adjournment of the Extraordinary General Meeting to a later date or dates. See the section entitled "The Adjournment Proposal."

Each of the Condition Precedent Proposals are cross-conditioned on the approval of the other. If our shareholders do not approve each of the Condition Precedent Proposals, then we will not consummate the Transaction. See the sections of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal," "The Merger Proposal," and "The Domestication Proposal." Each of Proposal No. 4 and Proposal No. 5 is conditioned on the approval of each of the Condition Precedent Proposals. Proposal No. 6 is not conditioned upon the approval of any other proposal set forth in this proxy statement/prospectus.

Recommendation of the SPAC Board

The SPAC Board believes that the Business Combination Proposal and the other proposals to be presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting are in the best interest of SPAC and its shareholders and recommends that its shareholders vote "FOR" the Business Combination Proposal, "FOR" the Merger Proposal, "FOR" the Domestication Proposal, "FOR" the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals, "FOR" the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals, and "FOR" the Adjournment Proposal, in each case, if presented to the Extraordinary General Meeting.

The existence of financial and personal interests of one or more of SPAC's directors may result in a conflict of interest on the part of such director(s) between what he, she or they may believe is in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders and what he, she, or they may believe is best for himself, herself, or themselves in determining to recommend that shareholders vote for the proposals. In addition, SPAC's officers have interests in the Transactions that may conflict with your interests as a Public Shareholder. See the section entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions" for a further discussion of these considerations.

Record Date; Issued and Outstanding Shares; SPAC shareholders Entitled to Vote

SPAC shareholders will be entitled to vote or direct votes to be cast at the Extraordinary General Meeting if they owned SPAC Common Shares at the close of business on August 20, 2026, which is the Record Date for the Extraordinary General Meeting. SPAC shareholders are entitled to one vote on each Proposal they are entitled to vote on at the Extraordinary General Meeting for each SPAC Common Share held as of the Record Date. Pursuant to the Cayman Companies Act and the SPAC Charter, only the holders of the SPAC Class B Shares are entitled to vote on the Domestication Proposal. All holders of SPAC Common Shares are entitled to vote on the Merger Proposal, the Business Combination Proposal, the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals, the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals and the Adjournment Proposal. If you hold your shares in "street name," which means your shares are held of record by a broker, bank or nominee, you should contact your broker, bank or nominee to ensure that votes related to the shares you beneficially own are properly counted. In this regard, you must provide the broker, bank or nominee with instructions on how to vote your shares or, if you wish to attend the Extraordinary General Meeting and vote, obtain a "legal proxy" from your broker, bank or nominee.

As of the close of business on the Record Date, there were 31,590,000 SPAC Common Shares issued and outstanding, consisting of 23,710,000 SPAC Class A Shares (including 23,000,000 Public Shares) and 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares (all of which were held by the Sponsor).

Quorum and Vote of SPAC shareholders

A quorum of SPAC's shareholders is necessary to hold a valid meeting. The presence, in person or, in the case of a corporation or other non-natural person, by duly authorized representative (including virtually) or by proxy, of one or more shareholders holding at least one-third of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares constitutes a quorum at the Extraordinary General Meeting. Abstentions will be considered present for the purposes of establishing a quorum. The Sponsor owns 26.2% of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares as of the Record Date, which will count towards this quorum. As a result, as of the Record Date, in addition to the shares of the Sponsor, 2,250,000 SPAC Class A Shares held by Public Shareholders would be required to be present at the Extraordinary General Meeting to achieve a quorum.

The approval of each of the Merger Proposal and the Domestication Proposal requires a special resolution, being the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the respective Proposal at the Extraordinary General Meeting. The approval of each of the Business Combination Proposal, the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals, the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals and the Adjournment Proposal requires an ordinary resolution, being the affirmative vote of at least a simple majority of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the respective proposal at the Extraordinary General Meeting.

Pursuant to the Cayman Companies Act and the SPAC Charter, only the holders of the SPAC Class B Shares are entitled to vote on the Domestication Proposal. All holders of SPAC Common Shares are entitled to vote on the Merger Proposal, the Business Combination Proposal, the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals, the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals and the Adjournment Proposal.

Voting Your SPAC Common Shares

Each SPAC Common Share that you own in your name entitles you to one vote on each Proposal you are entitled to vote on. Pursuant to the Cayman Companies Act and the SPAC Charter, only the holders of the SPAC Class B Shares are entitled to vote on the Domestication Proposal. All holders of SPAC Common Shares are entitled to vote on the Merger Proposal, the Business Combination Proposal, the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals, the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals and the Adjournment Proposal. Your proxy card shows the number of SPAC Common Shares that you own. If your shares are held in "street name" or are in a margin or similar account, you should contact your broker to ensure that votes related to the shares you beneficially own are properly counted.

Voting Your SPAC Common Shares—Shareholders of Record

There are three ways to vote your SPAC Common Shares:

- You can vote by signing and returning the enclosed proxy card. If you vote by proxy card, your "proxy," whose name is listed on the proxy card, will vote your shares as you instruct on the proxy card. If you sign, date and return the proxy card without indicating how you wish to vote, your shares will be voted as recommended by the SPAC Board "FOR" the Business Combination Proposal, "FOR" the Merger Proposal, (for the holders of SPAC Class B Shares only) "FOR" the Domestication Proposal, "FOR" the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals, "FOR" the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals, and "FOR" the Adjournment Proposal, in each case, if presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting. Your proxy card must be received by SPAC not less than 48 hours before the scheduled time of the Extraordinary General Meeting or any adjournment thereof at which the person named in the proxy card proposes to vote. Proxy cards received after this time will not be counted.
- You can attend the Extraordinary General Meeting at the physical meeting location and vote in person. You will receive a ballot when you arrive. However, if your SPAC Common Shares are held in the name of your broker, bank or another nominee, you must get a valid legal proxy from the broker, bank or other nominee.
- You can attend the Extraordinary General Meeting online and vote electronically. You may attend, vote and examine the list of shareholders entitled to vote at the General Meeting by visiting https://www.cstproxy.com/armadaacqii/2026 and entering the control number found on your proxy card. However, if your SPAC Common Shares are held in the name of your broker, bank or another nominee, you must get a valid legal proxy from the broker, bank or other nominee.

Voting Your Shares—Beneficial Owners

If your SPAC Common Shares, are held in "street name" by a bank, broker or other nominee, you have the right to direct your bank, broker or other nominee on how to vote the shares in your account. You are also invited to attend the Extraordinary General Meeting. However, since you are not the holder of record, you may not vote your shares in person (including virtually) at the Extraordinary General Meeting unless you request and obtain a valid proxy from your broker or other agent. Beneficial owners (those holding shares through a stock brokerage account or by a bank or other nominee) who wish to attend the Extraordinary General Meeting must obtain a legal proxy by contacting their account representative at the bank, broker, or other nominee that holds their shares and e-mail a copy (a legible photograph is sufficient) of their legal proxy to proxy@continentalstock.com. Beneficial owners who e-mail a valid legal proxy will be issued a 12-digit meeting control number that will allow them to register to attend and participate in the online Extraordinary General Meeting. After contacting the transfer agent, a beneficial owner will receive an e-mail prior to the Extraordinary General Meeting with a link and instructions for entering the Extraordinary General Meeting online. Beneficial owners should contact the transfer agent at least five business days prior to the date of the Extraordinary General Meeting in order to ensure access.

Share Ownership of and Voting by SPAC's Sponsor, Directors and Officers

As of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus, the Sponsor has agreed, and SPAC's officers and directors intend, to vote the SPAC Common Shares owned by them in favor of the Business Combination Proposal and the other proposals presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting. As of the Record Date, the Sponsor owns 26.2% of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares. SPAC's officers and directors do not hold any Public Shares, but may purchase Public Shares at any time, subject to compliance with law and SPAC's trading policies. As a result, in addition to approval by the Sponsor, CCM and Northland, approval of the Business Combination Proposal will require the affirmative vote of at least 7,205,001 SPAC Common Shares held by Public Shareholders (or approximately 31.3% of the Public Shares) if all SPAC Common Shares are represented at the Extraordinary General Meeting and cast votes, and the Sponsor would be able to approve the Business Combination Proposal if only such shares as are required to establish a quorum are represented at the Extraordinary General Meeting and cast votes.

Attending the Extraordinary General Meeting

The Extraordinary General Meeting will be held on September 30,, 2026, at 12:00 p.m. Eastern Time. The Extraordinary General Meeting will be held at 701 5th Ave #5100, Seattle, WA 98104 and virtually over the Internet. You will be able to attend, vote your shares and submit questions during the Extraordinary General Meeting via a live webcast available at https://www.cstproxy.com/armadaacqii/2026 and using a control number assigned by Continental Stock Transfer & Trust Company. To register and receive access to the Extraordinary General Meeting, registered shareholders and beneficial owners (those holding shares through a stock brokerage account or by a bank or other holder of record) will need to follow the instructions applicable to them provided in this proxy statement/prospectus. You will need the voter control number included on your proxy card in order to be able to vote your shares or submit questions during the Extraordinary General Meeting. If you do not have a voter control number, you will be able to listen to the Extraordinary General Meeting only and you will not be able to vote or submit questions during the Extraordinary General Meeting.

Revoking Your Proxy

If you are a SPAC shareholder and you give a proxy, you may revoke it at any time before it is exercised by doing any one of the following:

- you may send another proxy card with a later date provided that it is received by SPAC not less than 48 hours before the scheduled time of the Extraordinary General Meeting or any adjournment thereof at which the person named in the proxy card proposes to vote;
- you may notify SPAC's secretary in writing that you have revoked your proxy, which must be received by SPAC no less than 48 hours prior to the vote at the Extraordinary General Meeting; or
- you may attend the Extraordinary General Meeting in person (including virtually), revoke your proxy, and vote in person (including virtually), as indicated above.

Who Can Answer Your Questions About Voting Your Shares

If you are a SPAC shareholder and have any questions about how to vote or direct a vote in respect of your SPAC Common Shares, you may call SPAC's proxy solicitor, Georgeson, toll free at +1 (866) 486-7058 or non-toll free at +1 (520) 534-0852, or may contact them by email at Armada@Georgeson.com.

Redemption Rights

Pursuant to the SPAC Charter, a Public Shareholder that is not the Sponsor, a Founder, Officer or Director (as each such term is defined in the SPAC Charter) may request that SPAC redeem all or a portion of its Public Shares for cash if the Business Combination is consummated. You will be entitled to receive cash for any Public Shares to be redeemed only if you:

(i) (A) hold Public Shares; or (B) hold Public Shares through SPAC Units and elect to separate your SPAC Units into the underlying Public Shares and SPAC Public Warrants prior to exercising your redemption rights with respect to the Public Shares;

(ii) submit a written request to the Transfer Agent, including the legal name, phone number and address of the beneficial owner of the Public Shares for which redemption is requested, that SPAC redeems all or a portion of your Public Shares for cash; and

(iii) deliver your share certificates for Public Shares (if any) along with any other applicable redemption forms to the Transfer Agent, physically or electronically through DTC.

Holders must complete the procedures for electing to have their Public Shares redeemed in the manner described above prior to the Redemption Deadline in order to properly exercise their redemption rights. If SPAC is not able to complete the Business Combination within the Combination Period, SPAC may seek to amend the provisions of the SPAC Charter to extend the time it has to complete a Business Combination, and SPAC will provide the Public Shareholders, other than the Sponsor, a Founder, Officer or Director (as each such term is defined in the SPAC Charter), with the opportunity to redeem their Public Shares upon the effectiveness of any such amendment at a per-share price, payable in cash, equal to the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account, including interest earned on the Trust Account (which interest shall be net of taxes payable), divided by the number of Public Shares then in issue, subject to applicable law.

Public Shareholders may elect to have all or a portion of their Public Shares redeemed, regardless of if or how they vote in respect of the Business Combination Proposal. If the Business Combination is not consummated, the Public Shares will be returned to the respective holder, broker or bank. If the Business Combination is consummated, and if a Public Shareholder properly exercises its redemption rights with respect to all or a portion of the Public Shares that it holds and timely delivers the certificates for its shares (if any) along with the redemption forms to the Transfer Agent, then at the SPAC Merger Effective Time, such Public Shares will automatically be canceled and cease to exist and will thereafter represent only the right to receive the Redemption Price. For illustrative purposes, based on funds in the Trust Account of approximately $241.9 million as of August 20, 2026, the Record Date, the estimated per share redemption price would have been approximately $10.52, including additional interest earned on the funds held in the Trust Account and not previously released to SPAC. If a Public Shareholder exercises its redemption rights in full, then it will be electing to exchange its Public Shares for cash and will no longer own Public Shares.

If you hold the shares in "street name," you will have to coordinate with your broker to have your shares certificated or delivered electronically. Shares that have not been tendered (either physically or electronically) in accordance with these procedures will not be redeemed for cash. There is a nominal cost associated with this tendering process and the act of certificating the shares or delivering them through DTC's DWAC (deposit withdrawal at custodian) system. The Transfer Agent will typically charge the tendering broker approximately $100 and it would be up to the broker to decide whether to pass this cost on to the redeeming shareholder. In the event the Business Combination is not consummated this may result in an additional cost to shareholders for the return of their Public Shares.

Any request for redemption, once made by a Public Shareholder, may not be withdrawn following the Redemption Deadline, unless the SPAC Board determines (in its sole discretion) to permit such withdrawal of a redemption request (which it may do in whole or in part). The directors (in their sole discretion) shall determine the timing of such redemption of Public Shares in order to facilitate the consummation and/or closing of the Transactions.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, a Public Shareholder, acting together with any affiliate of their or any other person with whom they are acting in concert or as a partnership, limited partnership, syndicate, or other group (including, for the avoidance of doubt, a "group" (as defined under Section 13 of the Exchange Act) for the purposes of acquiring, holding, or disposing of shares may not exercise this redemption right with respect to more than 20% of the Public Shares in the aggregate without the prior consent of SPAC.

Our Sponsor, officers and directors have agreed to, among other things, waive their redemption rights in connection with the Closing with respect to any SPAC Common Shares held by them. The SPAC Class B Shares held by the Sponsor will be excluded from the pro rata calculation used to determine the per-share Redemption Price. As of the Record Date, the Sponsor owns 26.2% of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares.

In the event SPAC does not consummate a business combination within the Combination Period, SPAC will, in accordance with the SPAC Charter, (i) cease all operations except for the purpose of winding up, (ii) as promptly as reasonably possible but not more than 10 Business Days thereafter, subject to lawfully available funds redeem the Public Shares, at a per-share price, payable in cash, equal to the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account, including interest earned on the funds held in the Trust Account (which interest shall net of taxes payable and up to $100,000 of interest to pay dissolution expenses), divided by the number of then issued and outstanding Public Shares, which redemption will completely extinguish Public Holders' rights as shareholders (including the right to receive further liquidating distributions, if any), subject to applicable law, and (iii) as promptly as reasonably possible following such redemption, subject to the approval of SPAC's remaining shareholders and directors, liquidate and dissolve, subject in each case to SPAC's obligations under Cayman Islands law to provide for claims of creditors and subject to the other requirements of applicable law.

Non-redeeming Public Shareholders may experience material dilution of their interests as a result of redemptions. If a Public Shareholder exercises its redemption rights, such exercise will not result in the loss of any warrants that it may hold. Assuming that all Public Shares held by Public Shareholders were redeemed, the Public Shareholders will retain the 11,499,992 SPAC Public Warrants. If a substantial number of Public Shareholders exercise their redemption rights and certain holders of the SPAC Public Warrants choose to exercise their warrants, any non-redeeming shareholders would experience dilution to the extent such warrants are exercised.

Further detail regarding the potential dilutive impact of redemptions on non-redeeming shareholders is provided in the sections of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Prospectus Summary—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions," "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions," "Summary of the proxy statement/prospectus—Ownership of Pubco After the Transactions," "Summary of the proxy statement/prospectus—Dilution," "Questions and Answers About the Proposals—What equity stake will current Public Shareholders, the PIPE Investors, the Sponsor, Ripple, and their affiliates hold in Pubco immediately after the completion of the Transactions and the Private Placement Investments?" and "Questions and Answers about the Proposals—Q: What happens if a substantial number of Public Shareholders vote in favor of the Business Combination Proposal and exercise their redemption rights."

Appraisal Rights and Dissenters' Rights

Under section 238 of the Cayman Companies Act, shareholders of a Cayman Islands company ordinarily have dissenters' rights with respect to a statutory merger that occurs under the legislation. The Cayman Companies Act prescribes when shareholder dissenters' rights will be available and sets the limitations on such rights. Where such rights are available, shareholders are entitled to receive fair value for their shares. However, as the SPAC Merger will occur after the SPAC Domestication has been completed and pursuant to the DGCL, those provisions of the Cayman Companies Act will not apply. Accordingly, neither holders of SPAC Common Shares nor holders of SPAC Warrants have appraisal rights or dissenters' rights in respect of such securities with respect to the Transactions under the Cayman Companies Act. Additionally, as the SPAC Merger is being effected by SPAC Delaware and will be authorized pursuant to and in accordance with Section 388 of the DGCL, such holders will not have appraisal rights under the DGCL in respect of the SPAC Merger. Holders of record of Public Shares are still entitled to exercise the rights of redemption as detailed in this proxy statement/prospectus and the SPAC Board has determined that the redemption proceeds payable to holders of record of Public Shares who exercise such redemption rights represent the fair value of those shares. The certainty provided by the redemption process may be preferable for Public Shareholders wishing to exchange their SPAC Class A Shares for cash. See the sections titled "The Merger Proposal—Appraisal Rights and Dissenters' Rights" and "The Domestication Proposal—Appraisal Rights and Dissenters' Rights" for additional information.

Proxy Solicitation Costs

SPAC is soliciting proxies on behalf of the SPAC Board. This solicitation is being made by mail but also may be made by telephone or in person. SPAC and its directors, officers and employees may also solicit proxies in person, by telephone or by other electronic means. SPAC will bear the cost of the solicitation.

SPAC has engaged Georgeson to assist in the proxy solicitation process. SPAC will pay Georgeson a fee of $20,000 plus disbursements.

SPAC will ask banks, brokers and other institutions, nominees and fiduciaries to forward the proxy materials to their principals and to obtain their authority to execute proxies and voting instructions. SPAC will reimburse them for their reasonable expenses.

THE BUSINESS COMBINATION PROPOSAL

General

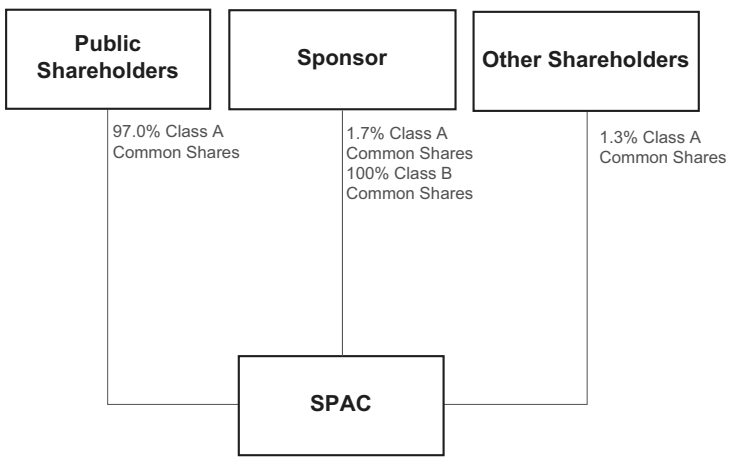
We are asking our shareholders to adopt and approve the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions, including the Mergers. SPAC shareholders should read this proxy statement/prospectus carefully and in its entirety for more detailed information concerning the Business Combination Agreement, which is attached as Annex A to this proxy statement/prospectus, and the Transactions. Please see "—The Business Combination Agreement" below for additional information and a summary of certain terms of the Business Combination Agreement. You are urged to read carefully the Business Combination Agreement in its entirety before voting on this proposal. Because we are holding a shareholder vote on the Transactions, we may consummate the Transactions only if the Business Combination Proposal is approved by an ordinary resolution, being the affirmative vote of at least a simple majority of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy at the Extraordinary General Meeting and entitled to vote on such matter.

Organizational Structure

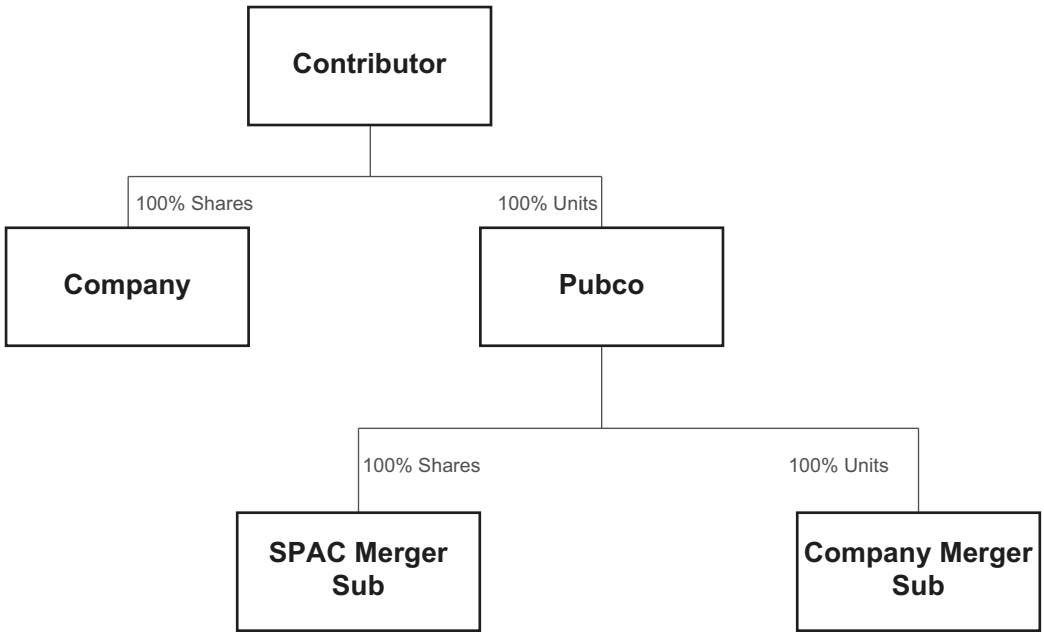
Prior to the Transactions

The following simplified diagrams illustrate the ownership structures of SPAC, Pubco and the Company before the consummation of the Business Combination:

SPAC

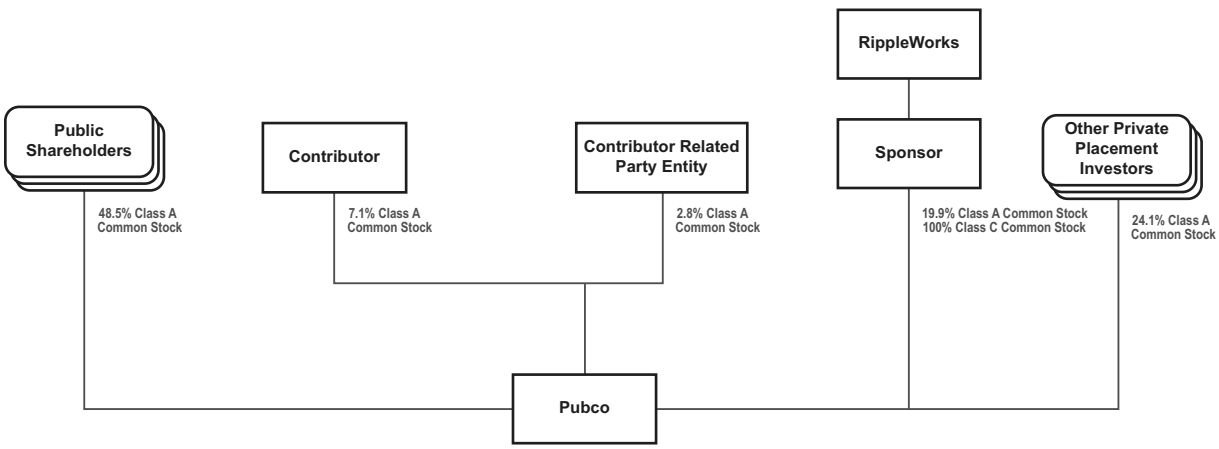


Pubco and the Company



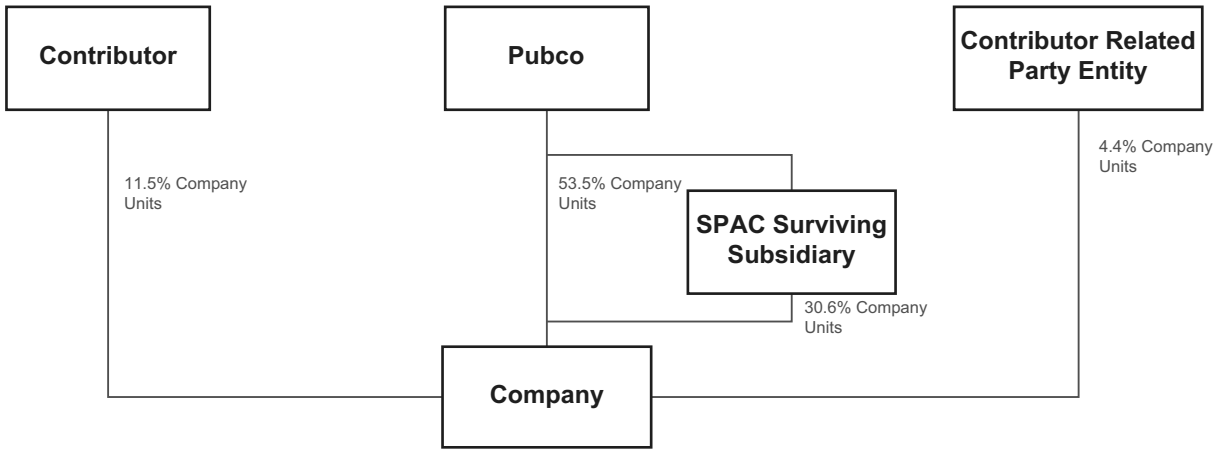
Following the Transactions

The following simplified diagram illustrates the ownership structure of Pubco immediately following the consummation of the Business Combination, assuming no redemptions and including the impact of the Pubco Warrants:



Note: Each holder of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class B Common Stock is entitled to one vote for each share held of record as of the record date on all matters voted on by stockholders, including the election of directors. Holders of Pubco Class C Common Stock will not be entitled to vote on any matters voted on by stockholders, except as required by the NRS, on any amendment to the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter that would change the powers, preferences or rights of the holders of shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock in a manner that is disproportionately adverse to the Pubco Class C Common Stock as compared to the Pubco Class A Common Stock or the Pubco Class B Common Stock, and any change to the maximum ownership restriction applicable to the Pubco Class C Common Stock in the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter. For more information, see "Description of Pubco Securities—Pubco Stock—Voting Rights."

The following simplified diagram illustrates the ownership structure of the Company immediately following the consummation of the Business Combination, assuming no redemptions and including the impact of the Pubco Warrants:



Note: As the sole managing member of the Company, Pubco will control all of the Company's affairs and decision-making, and, through its officers and directors, Pubco will be responsible for the Company's operational and administrative decisions and the day-to-day management of its business. Under the Company A&R LLCA, the other members and other holders of Company Units hold units that provide economic rights but, except as expressly provided in the Company A&R LLCA, do not have the power or authority to vote on, approve or consent to any matter or action taken by the Company (notwithstanding any provision of the DLLCA). For more information, see "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Pubco's Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Company A&R LLCA."

For additional information on the assumptions underlying our assessment of post-Closing ownership and voting percentages, please refer to "Beneficial Ownership of Securities."

Headquarters; Listing of Securities

After completion of the transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement:

- the corporate headquarters and principal executive offices of Pubco will be located at 600 Battery St., San Francisco, California 94111; and
- if Pubco's application for listing are approved, shares of Pubco Stock are expected to be traded on Nasdaq under the symbol "XRPN."

Background of the Transactions

The following chronology summarizes the key meetings and events culminating in the execution of the Business Combination Agreement and the announcement thereof. This chronology does not purport to catalog every discussion and correspondence among representatives of SPAC, Pubco, and Ripple, and their respective advisors. Please also refer to "Questions and Answers and About the Proposal—What are the reasons for the structure and timing of the Business Combination Proposal and the Private Placement Investments?"

SPAC is a blank check company incorporated on October 3, 2024, as a Cayman Islands exempted company to effect a merger, share exchange, asset acquisition, share purchase, reorganization, or similar business combination with one or more businesses or entities. On May 22, 2025, SPAC consummated its initial public offering (the "SPAC IPO") of 23,000,000 SPAC Units at $10.00 per unit, generating gross proceeds of $230,000,000. Each SPAC Unit consists of (i) one SPAC Class A Share and (ii) one-half of one SPAC Public Warrant. Simultaneously with the closing of the SPAC IPO, SPAC completed the private placement of 710,000

SPAC Units, generating gross proceeds of $7,100,000. Following the closing of the SPAC IPO and the concurrent private placement, $231,150,000 of net proceeds (including up to $4,600,000 of the underwriter's deferred discount) were placed in the Trust Account.

Since the SPAC IPO, SPAC's activities have been limited to identifying and evaluating potential business combination opportunities. In particular, SPAC sought to acquire and take public a target business in the financial technology, software-as-a-service and artificial intelligence sectors, prioritizing private companies that would benefit from a public listing and partnership with SPAC, with an emphasis on a business that: (i) featured innovative, leading-edge technology with breakthrough potential, (ii) presented a strong value proposition and significant potential for sustainable, profitable growth, (iii) had low minimum cash requirements with committed private placement support, and (iv) valued SPAC's structure and the experience of its officers, directors, and advisors.

Prior to the consummation of the SPAC IPO, neither SPAC nor any of its representatives had any substantive discussions, formal or otherwise, with respect to a potential business combination transaction between SPAC and any third party.

Search for a Target Business

Following the SPAC IPO, SPAC's management who had been appointed by Armada Sponsor II, LLC (the "Original Sponsor") oversaw the target search process and provided updates to members of the SPAC Board who had been appointed by the Original Sponsor. The potential targets evaluated by the Original Sponsor included the following six potential counterparties:

- Company A: On June 11, 2025, SPAC management held an introductory discussion with Company A, a company proposing to acquire all or a substantial portion of a leading foundry and casting company. Additional preliminary discussions were held with SPAC management and Company A on June 20 and 27, 2025. SPAC entered into a non-disclosure agreement with Company A on June 12, 2025. Following preliminary due diligence and these discussions, the parties terminated further discussions on or about July 18, 2025, as SPAC management did not believe that Company A had either the financial resources or the contractual arrangements in place in order to successfully acquire the operating company in the near future.
- Company B: On July 1, 2025, SPAC management held an introductory call with Company B, an energy-innovation company providing wellbore diagnostics and integrity/flow-profiling technologies and services. SPAC subsequently entered into a non-disclosure agreement with Company B on the same date. Following preliminary due diligence and discussions, the parties terminated further discussions on July 30, 2025, as Company B indicated that it was terminating its process to merge with another special purpose acquisition company.
- Company C: On July 8, 2025, SPAC management held an introductory discussion with Company C, a green-hydrogen company that develops, finances, designs, builds and operates water-electrolysis hydrogen production systems. SPAC entered into a non-disclosure agreement with Company C on the same date. Following preliminary due diligence and advisor feedback, the parties terminated further discussions in mid-July 2025 as Company C required additional capital resources which SPAC was not in a position to provide.
- Company D: On July 17 and August 26, 2025, SPAC management held introductory discussions with Company D, an omni-channel payments company that focuses on unattended retail payment systems. Following advisor feedback, SPAC terminated further discussions as the Original Sponsor had determined to pursue the sponsor securities purchase transaction (as described below) with the Sponsor.
- Company E: On July 24 and August 8, 2025, SPAC management held introductory discussions with Company E, an early-stage platform for the "machine economy," enabling devices to trade services and data on their own. SPAC entered into a non-disclosure agreement with Company E as of July 24, 2025. Following advisor feedback, SPAC did not engage in further discussions as the Original Sponsor had determined to pursue the sponsor securities purchase transaction (as described below) with the Sponsor.

- Company F: On August 5, 2025, SPAC management held an introductory discussion with Company F, an autonomous-vehicle technology company that develops and deploys self-driving shuttles/robotaxi services. SPAC entered into a non-disclosure agreement with Company F on the same date. SPAC did not pursue any further discussions as the Original Sponsor had determined to pursue the sponsor securities purchase transaction (as described below) with the Sponsor.

New SPAC Sponsor and History of Discussions with the Company

Ripple and the Sponsor have been acquainted since the Sponsor's formation in late 2017. In January 2018, RippleWorks, a nonprofit foundation, first acquired limited partnership interests in the Sponsor.

In June 2025, representatives of the Sponsor and Ripple held several meetings to discuss XRP-funded opportunities for digital-asset treasury companies and discussed the formation of such a company through a "de-SPAC" transaction. In connection with these meetings, the Sponsor evaluated a number of prospective special purpose acquisition companies with characteristics appropriate to facilitate such a transaction and identified SPAC as one potential counterparty.

During June and July 2025, representatives of Ripple and the Sponsor held regular discussions regarding a potential business combination transaction. As part of these discussion, on July 1, 2025, the Sponsor shared a written transaction proposal identifying the targeted initial capital raise, key management roles and business model of a digital asset company formed through a "de-SPAC" transaction as well as key special purpose acquisition company characteristics.

In early July 2025, Ripple agreed to negotiate in good faith the Sponsor's proposal involving a "de-SPAC" transaction, subject to further evaluation of potential business combination structures, tax, legal and other considerations.

On August 12, 2025, SPAC, the Original Sponsor and the Sponsor entered into a sponsor securities purchase agreement (the "Purchase Agreement"), pursuant to which the Sponsor agreed to purchase from the Original Sponsor an aggregate of 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares, and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants, for an aggregate purchase price of $6.6 million, and receive a limited, revocable license to the "Armada Acquisition Corp. II" branding expiring no later than November 22, 2026.

On August 14, 2025, a representative of Pubco informed the Sponsor that Pubco planned to invite RippleWorks to participate in a potential "de-SPAC" transaction as an equity private placement investor. At that time, the Sponsor was not notified of, nor aware of, any details regarding RippleWorks's prospective involvement in any transaction, including the expected size of RippleWorks's investment, and at that time RippleWorks had not contacted the Sponsor to discuss investing through the Sponsor or any of its affiliates.

On August 21, 2025, representatives of the Sponsor received an initial non-binding letter of intent from representatives of Ripple (the "LOI"). The LOI contemplated that SPAC would complete a business combination with Pubco and the Company, resulting in Pubco becoming a publicly traded company and SPAC being delisted. Ripple would contribute XRP tokens with at least $300 million in value to the Company in connection with the signing of the Business Combination Agreement in exchange for units of the Company equal to the value of XRP contributed divided by $10.00. Additionally, the LOI provided an upside closing adjustment under which, if the price of XRP at Closing exceeded the price at signing (or if yield accrued on XRP held), Ripple would be entitled to receive additional shares of Pubco valued at $10.00 per share corresponding to the increased XRP price. The LOI contemplated equity private placement investors participating in the transaction with the option to fund their commitments in cash or XRP, in exchange for shares of Pubco equal to the value of XRP or cash so contributed divided by $10.00. Such equity private placement investors also would have the option to "advance" fund their commitments upfront at the transaction announcement (with any such "advance" investors entitled to a similar upward adjustment mechanism as Ripple would be entitled to), or to "delay" funding their commitments until the closing of the Business Combination. The LOI also contemplated the post-Closing governance framework, including the size and composition of the Pubco Board, to be determined in accordance with the Business Combination Agreement. The proposed directors are described under "Management of Pubco Following the Transactions." The LOI also contemplated a 30-day exclusivity period, during which period the Company, SPAC, or their respective representatives were prohibited from soliciting alternative transactions.

From August 21, 2025, through August 28, 2025, the Sponsor, the Company and their respective management and legal counsel continued to discuss a potential transaction and discuss the key commercial terms of the LOI including:

- Sponsor Economics: The Company initially proposed that the Sponsor (i) forfeit a number of Founder Shares and SPAC Units held by the Sponsor for no consideration immediately prior to the Closing, (ii) remove the vesting conditions applicable to certain Founder Shares and SPAC Units held by the Sponsor, and replace with new vesting conditions pursuant to which such Founder Shares and SPAC Units would only vest if the closing price of Pubco shares exceeded a fixed price for a fixed period of time, following which, if such equity did not vest, such equity would be forfeited, (iii) cancel a number of Founder Shares and SPAC Units held by the Sponsor if, at the Closing, SPAC's unpaid or contingent liabilities were greater than a predetermined amount, and (iv) cancel a number of Founder Shares and SPAC Units held by the Sponsor if cash in SPAC's trust account fell below a predetermined amount. The Sponsor countered with a proposal that, prior to the Closing, the Sponsor would forfeit 30% of its equity in SPAC, which was accepted by the Company.
- Lockup of Pubco Shares: The Company initially proposed that the equity securities of Pubco issued to Ripple affiliates in the private placement be subject to a six-month lockup and the shares of Pubco issued to the Sponsor in the private placement and merger be subject to a twelve-month lockup. The Sponsor countered with a proposal that the lockup be a mutual six-month period, which was accepted by the Company.
- Exclusivity: The Company initially proposed that, following the execution of the LOI, SPAC would not, and SPAC would cause its representatives not to, solicit or initiate or enter into discussions, negotiations or transactions with, or knowingly encourage, or provide any information to any other potential target company concerning any merger, share exchange, asset acquisition, share purchase, reorganization or similar business combination with such other potential target company. The Sponsor countered that SPAC would have the right to continue, and initiate, discussions with another target provided that SPAC would not enter into exclusive discussions with such other target during the term of the LOI, which was accepted by the Company.

On August 28, 2025, the Original Sponsor and the Sponsor consummated the closing of the Purchase Agreement. Later on August 28, 2025, the new SPAC Board gathered to discuss and approve, among other preliminary matters, the ratification and appointment of the new members of the SPAC Board, the SPAC officers, and the appointment of Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati, P.C. ("Wilson Sonsini"), and Mourant Ozannes (Cayman) LLP, to act as SPAC's U.S. and Cayman legal counsel, respectively. At the same meeting, members of SPAC and Wilson Sonsini reviewed the terms of the LOI. No formal action was taken at this meeting. Also on the same date, in connection with the closing of Purchase Agreement, Stephen P. Herbert and Douglas M. Lurio, former directors and officers of SPAC resigned from their positions, executed Advisory Agreements and began serving as strategic advisors to Taryn Naidu, the incoming Chief Executive Officer of SPAC.

On August 29, 2025, representatives of Citigroup Global Markets Inc. ("Citigroup"), serving as sole private placement agent and capital markets advisor to the Company, with Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP as Citigroup's counsel, exchanged emails with representatives of the Company and SPAC regarding the initial investor presentation and information package regarding the private placement. Representatives of Citigroup then circulated the initial investor presentation and draft information package to prospective investors.

On September 1, 2025, the SPAC Board, acting by unanimous written consent, approved SPAC's entry into the LOI. On the same day, representatives of SPAC and the Company also entered into a Mutual Confidentiality and Non-Disclosure Agreement to facilitate further discussions regarding a potential business combination. The agreement included customary provisions and a two-year term with certain obligations surviving for one year following termination of such agreement.

On September 2, 2025, representatives of SPAC and the Company executed the LOI.

On September 8, 2025, representatives of Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP ("DPW"), Pubco's legal counsel, delivered a first draft of the Business Combination Agreement to SPAC's representatives and its counsel. SPAC's representatives then began reviewing the draft of the Business Combination Agreement with Wilson Sonsini.

On September 9, 2025, representatives of DPW and Wilson Sonsini engaged in preliminary discussions regarding the draft of the Business Combination Agreement and the timing and structuring of the private placement. The representatives of DPW explained to Wilson Sonsini that RippleWorks was expected to participate in the equity private placement and be subject to limitations on the quantity of voting stock it and certain of its affiliates could beneficially own or control. SPAC and the Company agreed that a separate class of non-voting shares of Pubco would be authorized and issuable to such impacted investors in order to adhere to the applicable voting limitations.

On September 9, 2025, SPAC and the underwriters of its IPO, CCM and Northland Securities, Inc., entered into a letter agreement pursuant to which the underwriters irrevocably waived a portion of the deferred underwriting commissions that otherwise would have become payable upon completion of the Business Combination.

On September 17, 2025, SPAC management and representatives of Wilson Sonsini discussed the Company's initial draft of the Business Combination Agreement and on September 19, 2025, representatives of Wilson Sonsini delivered a revised draft of the Business Combination Agreement to DPW.

From September 18, 2025, through October 19, 2025, the parties and their advisors negotiated the Business Combination Agreement. Throughout this time, SPAC's management had ongoing discussions with representatives of Wilson Sonsini about the transaction and the Business Combination Agreement. Significant areas of discussion and negotiation included: (i) overall deal structure and timing; (ii) closing conditions; (iii) interim covenants and the ability of the parties to conduct operations in the ordinary course; (iv) capital structure and post-Closing ownership parameters; (v) private placement financing terms and timing; (vi) representations, warranties and termination rights; and (vii) SPAC Board's ability to change its recommendation to SPAC shareholders in response to an Intervening Event. The parties also coordinated on the private placement and upcoming roadshow process.

In parallel with the negotiation of the Business Combination Agreement, from September 8, 2025 to October 19, 2025, representatives of DPW and Wilson Sonsini exchanged successive drafts of key ancillary agreements, including: the Sponsor Support Agreement, the Subscription Agreements, the Contribution Agreement, the A&R Registration Rights Agreement, the Tax Receivable Agreement, the Lock-Up Agreements, the ESPP, the Incentive Plan, and the Plan of Domestication, and negotiated open items to reflect the parties' agreed terms.

On September 29, 2025, representatives of SPAC and the Company executed a letter agreement amending the LOI to extend the exclusivity period through 5:00 p.m. Pacific Time on October 30, 2025. All other LOI terms remained in effect.

On October 8, 2025, representatives of Wilson Sonsini and DPW held discussions regarding the open issues in the Business Combination Agreement.

On October 11, 2025, representatives of Wilson Sonsini met with representatives of Davis Wright Tremaine LLP, counsel to RippleWorks, to discuss a potential investment whereby RippleWorks would invest in the Sponsor, and the Sponsor would then invest such amount in Pubco (rather than RippleWorks making its investment directly in Pubco).

On October 14, 2025, representatives of SPAC and RippleWorks, along with their respective legal counsel, continued to discuss a potential investment by RippleWorks in the Sponsor and the Sponsor's subsequent investment in Pubco. The SPAC Board considered any actual or perceived conflicts that may arise from such an arrangement and determined to proceed with the Business Combination Agreement. Legal counsel for SPAC and RippleWorks discussed how this change would impact the transaction documents, following which legal counsel for SPAC, RippleWorks and Pubco implemented such changes.

On October 15, 2025, SPAC engaged CCM, a leading independent valuation firm, to assist the SPAC Board to prepare and deliver an opinion, in customary form, regarding the fairness, from a financial point of view, of the exchange ratio to SPAC of the proposed SPAC Merger.

Also, on October 15, 2025, representatives of Wilson Sonsini and DPW, along with representatives of SPAC and the Company, held further discussions to negotiate the remaining open issues in the Business Combination Agreement.

On October 16, 2025, the SPAC Board met with representatives of Wilson Sonsini and CCM to review the proposed final terms of the Business Combination Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereunder, including the contemplated investments to be made by third parties in cash and XRP, which would include contributions of XRP by RippleWorks into a fund held by the Sponsor, and the Sponsor's obligation to reinvest such amount in exchange for shares of Pubco. The SPAC Board considered any actual or perceived conflicts that might arise from such an arrangement and determined to proceed with the Business Combination Agreement. The SPAC Board then reviewed its fiduciary duties in connection with the transaction, including obligations with respect to their duties of care and loyalty. Thereafter, representatives of CCM presented and discussed their preliminary financial analyses of the proposed SPAC Merger to the SPAC Board, which concluded that the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness Opinion) set forth in the Business Combination Agreement was fair, from a financial point of view to SPAC. The SPAC Board authorized SPAC's management to progress the Business Combination Agreement and related ancillary documents to final form and to obtain an updated analysis from CCM for the fairness opinion prior to entering into the Business Combination Agreement.

On October 18, 2025, the SPAC Board met with representatives of Wilson Sonsini and CCM. Representatives from Wilson Sonsini confirmed that the Business Combination Agreement and ancillary documents were substantially final and reviewed updates to the Business Combination Agreement with the SPAC Board including the anticipated investment by RippleWorks into a fund held by the Sponsor, and the Sponsor's obligation to reinvest such amount in exchange for shares of Pubco. The SPAC Board considered any actual or perceived conflicts that might arise from such an arrangement and determined to proceed with the Business Combination Agreement. Representatives from CCM presented a refreshed analysis with respect to its fairness opinion. A representative of CCM then rendered to the SPAC Board its preliminary oral opinion, which was subsequently confirmed by delivery of a written opinion dated October 19, 2025, and that is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex F, that, as of such date, based upon and subject to the assumptions, qualifications, limitations and other matters set forth in its opinion, that the Exchange Ratio (as defined therein) set forth in the Business Combination Agreement is fair, from a financial point of view to SPAC.

On October 19, 2025, the SPAC Board, acting by unanimous written consent, approved SPAC's entry into the Business Combination Agreement, the related ancillary documents, and the transactions contemplated thereunder, including RippleWorks' participation in the transaction through its investment in the Sponsor.

Later on October 19, 2025, SPAC, Pubco, SPAC Merger Sub, the Company, Company Merger Sub, and Ripple executed the Business Combination Agreement. Concurrently, the parties executed the applicable ancillary documents including: (i) the Sponsor Support Agreement, (ii) the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, (iii) the Series C Subscription Agreement, (iv) the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, and (v) the Contribution Agreement. CCM then delivered its executed written fairness opinion to the SPAC Board.

On October 20, 2025, SPAC and Pubco publicly announced the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, and SPAC filed a Form 8-K that included, among other things, the Business Combination Agreement, an investor presentation, and a joint press release.

The SPAC Board's Reasons for Approval of the Transactions

In evaluating the Transactions, the SPAC Board consulted with SPAC management and SPAC's financial, legal, and other professional advisors. The SPAC Board considered a range of factors, including, but not limited to, the factors discussed below, in reaching its unanimous resolution (i) that the Business Combination Agreement, the Ancillary Agreements to which SPAC is a party, and the Transactions are advisable and in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders and (ii) to recommend that the shareholders of SPAC adopt and approve the Business Combination Agreement, the Ancillary Agreements to which SPAC is a party, and the Transactions. The SPAC Board viewed its decision as being based on all of the information available and the factors presented to and considered by it. In addition, individual directors may have given different weight to different factors. This explanation of the SPAC Board's reasons for the Business Combination and all other information presented in this section is forward-looking in nature and, therefore, should be read in light of the factors discussed under "Cautionary Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements."

Factors Supporting the Business Combination

- Size of the Potential Total Addressable Market. Pubco will provide investors with simple, liquid, and transparent exposure to XRP through a publicly listed vehicle. There is a significant and growing market for XRP as a productive, treasury reserve asset, with increasing institutional demand driven by XRP ETFs and corporate treasuries.
- Consistency with SPAC's Formation Purpose and Stated Criteria. SPAC was formed to pursue targets in the financial technology, software-as-a-service and artificial intelligence sectors. In evaluating the Business Combination, the SPAC Board considered that the Transactions are consistent with those published criteria and with SPAC's emphasis on partnering with such companies, including through a transaction structure and capital commitments designed to support Pubco's growth as a public company.
- Attractive Market Opportunity and Strategic Partnership. Pubco will be a publicly traded digital asset treasury that will provide investors with regulated, liquid exposure to XRP and pursue strategies, including ecosystem participation (such as projects that expand XRP's utility across payments, capital markets, and tokenized assets, determined on a case-by-case basis) and yield generation, intended to increase shareholder value over time. In public communications, Pubco is expected to be the largest public XRP treasury company and a first-of-its-kind institutional vehicle built to accelerate XRP adoption. The SPAC Board considered that this positioning would provide public investors direct exposure to the XRP ecosystem through a first-of-its-kind model, and that strategic alignment with ecosystem participants could present preferential opportunities, such as early participation in network initiatives and validator roles, which the SPAC Board believes may strengthen the combined company's market presence and long-term growth prospects.
- Unique Opportunities for Growth. Unlike a passive ETF, Pubco seeks to grow shareholder value over time by participating in institutional lending, liquidity provisioning, and DeFi (decentralized finance) yield opportunities. In addition, XRP presents a compelling opportunity for investors as one of the few digital assets with a recognized regulatory framework in the United States and a proven use case in powering global payments.

- Roadmap for Long-Term Success. Pubco intends to build one of the largest institutional XRP treasuries in the world, and deploy resources towards advancing the XRP ecosystem, including through operating XRP validators to strengthen the resilience and decentralization of the XRP ledger, leveraging Ripple's RLUSD stablecoin as an on-ramp into XRP-based decentralized (enabling yield opportunities and broader adoption of XRP as collateral) and providing liquidity and participating in projects that expand XRP's real-world utility across payments, capital markets, and tokenized assets. This strategy ensures that Pubco is designed not only to accumulate XRP as a reserve asset but also to act as a long-term catalyst for the adoption and institutionalization of the XRP Ledger. These steps position Pubco for long-term success.
- NAV-Accretive Platform Architecture. The SPAC Board considered the market precedent of digital asset treasury vehicles that can trade at premiums to their net asset value ("NAV"). A premium-to-NAV trading profile could allow Pubco to raise capital above the underlying value of its digital assets, thereby making subsequent equity issuances accretive to existing shareholders. The SPAC Board believes that Pubco's structure and exposure to XRP positions it to achieve similar NAV-accretive dynamics, enhancing capital formation flexibility.
- Up-C Structure and In-Kind XRP Funding. The SPAC Board considered that, as described under "The Transactions" and "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC" in this proxy statement/prospectus, the Transactions are structured as an "Up-C," pursuant to which Pubco will be a publicly traded corporation and the Company will be treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes. In this structure, certain investors may satisfy their funding commitments with cash and/or XRP, with any XRP contributed in-kind to Pubco or the Company in exchange for equity interests. Investors that have purchased Company Units will be entitled to economic interests in the Company that are equivalent to the indirect economic interests that other shareholders will have in the Company via their ownership of shares of Pubco. However, any Company Units that are held without any corresponding shares of Class B Common Stock in Pubco will not entitle their holder to any voting rights in Pubco, and such holder will only be entitled to voting rights in Pubco to the extent any such Company Units have been converted to shares of Class A Common Stock in Pubco in accordance with the Company A&R LLCA. The SPAC Board believed that this structure may provide potential tax benefits and structuring efficiencies for certain investors and may offer a differentiated way to contribute XRP in-kind as compared to other potential XRP investment alternatives.
- SPAC Board considered that, as described under "The Transactions" and "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC" in this proxy statement/prospectus, the Transactions are structured as an "Up-C," pursuant to which Pubco will be a publicly traded corporation and the Company will be treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes. In this structure, certain investors may satisfy their funding commitments with cash and/or XRP, with any XRP contributed in-kind to Pubco or the Company in exchange for equity interests. Investors that have purchased Company Units will be entitled to economic interests in the Company that are equivalent to the indirect economic interests that other shareholders will have in the Company via their ownership of shares of Pubco, but will not be entitled to vote their interests in Pubco for as long as they hold Company Units (without corresponding shares of Class B Common Stock in Pubco) unless and until they exchange such Company Units for shares of Class A Common Stock in Pubco. The SPAC Board believed that this structure may provide potential tax benefits and structuring efficiencies for certain investors and may offer a differentiated way to contribute XRP in-kind as compared to other potential XRP investment alternatives.
- Attractive Entry Valuation. The SPAC Board believes that Pubco provides an attractive entry valuation (calculated as a multiple to NAV) to XRP. The SPAC Board also considered that Pubco was able to secure over $1 billion of commitments from Private Placement Investors, from institutional, crypto-native, and strategic investors, to purchase common equity at $10.00 per share, in connection with the negotiation of the Business Combination Agreement.

- Redemption Option. The SPAC Board considered that SPAC's public shareholders will be able to exercise redemption rights with respect to their Public Shares in connection with the Business Combination, allowing those who do not wish to remain invested in Pubco to exit their investment.
- Pubco's Initial XRP Holdings. Pubco is expected to launch with corporate XRP holdings of at least 473,276,430 XRP at Closing, comprised of: (i) 600,000 XRP that the Advance Funding Subscribers have agreed to contribute to Pubco prior to Closing pursuant to the Advance Funding Subscription, (ii) 200,000 XRP that the Delayed Funding Subscribers have agreed to contribute to Pubco at Closing pursuant to the Delayed Funding Subscription, (iii) 211,319,096.061435 XRP that the Sponsor has agreed to contribute to Pubco prior to Closing pursuant to the Series C Subscription, (iv) 50,000,000 XRP that the Contributor Related Party Entity has agreed to contribute to Pubco prior to Closing pursuant to the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription, (v) 126,791,458 XRP that Ripple contributed to the Company concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement pursuant to the Contribution Agreement and (vi) 84,365,876.3625 XRP purchased using $214 million in aggregate cash proceeds from the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements at an average price of $2.53657058 per XRP.
- Negotiated Transaction and Terms of the Business Combination and Ancillary Agreements. The SPAC Board considered that the financial and other terms and conditions of the Business Combination Agreement and the Ancillary Agreements are reasonable. The SPAC Board also evaluated each party's representations, warranties, covenants, and agreements, as well as the conditions to each party's obligations and the commitment of each party to complete the Business Combination.
- Highly Experienced Management Team. Pubco will be led by Asheesh Birla as Chief Executive Officer, and he will also serve on the Board of Directors of Pubco. Asheesh Birla is a seasoned entrepreneur and expert in the blockchain and fintech industries, with over 20 years of experience in Silicon Valley. He spent nine years at Ripple, joining in 2013 shortly after the company launched, where he led the team bringing the first enterprise crypto product to market with hundreds of customers worldwide, and helped grow the company to over 1,000 employees. After leaving Ripple, Mr. Birla focused his time on investing in and advising early-stage tech companies, and sat on the board of Ripple. He also previously served on the board of Bitso, the largest LATAM crypto exchange, as well as MoneyGram and several other fintech startups. Mr. Birla also guest lectures on entrepreneurship and blockchain at Wharton, the Haas School of Business at Berkely, and the University of Michigan. Stuart Alderoty has served as the Chief Legal Officer at Ripple since 2019, and the President of the National Cryptocurrency Association since 2025, and will serve as a member of the Board upon completion of the Business Combination. Mr. Alderoty brings more than 40 years of legal experience to the role with particular expertise in financial services and regulatory affairs. He's been General Counsel and part of the executive leadership teams at CIT Group and HSBC North America Holdings. Mr. Alderoty was also Managing Counsel at American Express. As a member of Pubco's Board of Directors, Mr. Alderoty will exercise fiduciary duties of care and loyalty to Pubco and its shareholders, participate in board committees as assigned, and otherwise support the Chief Executive Officer. Mr. Alderoty will receive compensation solely in his capacity as a member of the Board of Directors, consistent with the compensation provided to other non-employee directors.
- Renowned Strategic Advisors. Pubco will be supported by non-executive strategic advisors Brad Garlinghouse and David Schwartz. Mr. Garlinghouse will provide strategic advisory services on an informal basis. His advisory role will focus on industry relationships, market positioning and strategic opportunities within the digital asset ecosystem. Mr. Garlinghouse will not receive any compensation from Pubco for these services, and there is no written agreement governing this arrangement. Mr. Schwartz, a Ripple director, will provide technical advisory services on an informal basis. His advisory role will focus on technical matters related to the XRP Ledger and blockchain technology considerations relevant to Pubco's treasury operations. Mr. Schwartz will not receive any compensation from Pubco for these services, and there is no written agreement governing this arrangement.

- Lockup. Subject to certain limited and customary exceptions with respect to permitted transfers, certain Ripple affiliates, the Sponsor, and certain SPAC Insiders will be subject to a six-month lockup in respect of the Pubco Class A Common Stock (and any other securities convertible into or exercisable or exchangeable for Pubco Class A Common Stock) and/or Pubco Class C Common Stock issued to them as consideration in the Business Combination (and including shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and/or Pubco Class C Common Stock received in connection with the Private Placement Investments), which will provide important stability to Pubco.
- Due Diligence and Fairness Opinion. SPAC management and its advisors conducted a due diligence review of the Company and its businesses and operations, including a review of relevant documentation and discussions with the Company's management and the Company's financial and legal advisors. The SPAC's financial advisor, CCM, delivered an opinion that, as of the date rendered, the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness Opinion) is fair, from a financial point of view, to SPAC.
- Other Alternatives. The SPAC Board believes, after a thorough review of other business combination opportunities reasonably available to SPAC, that the proposed Business Combination represents the best potential business combination for SPAC and the most attractive opportunity for SPAC's management to accelerate its business plan based upon its evaluation and assessment of other potential business combination targets.

In connection with its evaluation of the Business Combination, the SPAC Board also considered a variety of risks and uncertainties and other potentially negative factors concerning the Business Combination, including the following:

- Benefits May Not Be Achieved. The risk that the potential benefits of the Business Combination may not be fully achieved or may not be achieved within the expected time frame.
- Minority Shareholder Position. The SPAC's shareholders will hold a minority economic interest in Pubco after the Closing, which will limit their ability to influence governance, strategic decisions, or changes in control.
- Redemption Risk. The potential that a significant number of SPAC shareholders elect to redeem their Public Shares prior to the consummation of the Business Combination and pursuant to the SPAC Charter, thereby reducing the amount of cash available to (i) SPAC and potentially resulting in an inability to consummate the Business Combination if the available cash in the Trust Account is less than $5,000,001, unless such condition to closing is waived by all parties pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement and (ii) Pubco following the consummation of the Business Combination, which could adversely affect Pubco or reduce the benefits of the Business Combination to SPAC's shareholders.
- Closing Conditions. The fact that completion of the Business Combination is conditioned on the satisfaction of certain closing conditions that are not within SPAC's control, such as the Advance Funding Subscribers and Delayed Funding Subscribers having contributed an amount of XRP at least equivalent to the amounts of XRP committed in the Advanced Funding and Delayed Funding, respectively, and the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants having been approved for clearing through DTC (subject to DTC's customary eligibility criteria) and approved for listing on Nasdaq, the New York Stock Exchange or another national exchange reasonably acceptable to Pubco, the SPAC and Ripple.
- No Operating History. The risks associated with the Company and Pubco being newly formed entities with no operating histories or track records.
- XRP and the Volatility of the Price of XRP. XRP is a highly volatile asset. The XRP market has been characterized by significant volatility and unexpected price movements, and has previously experienced significant declines. Such volatility will impact the overall value of the combined company and could cause volatility in the price of its stock. See the risk factors entitled "Our XRP acquisition strategy exposes us to various risks associated with XRP" and "XRP price volatility and sustained declines could cause losses and adversely affect our business, financial condition and ability to execute our strategy."

- Listing Risks. The challenges associated with preparing Pubco, a newly formed private company, for the applicable disclosure and requisite internal controls and listing requirements to which Pubco will be subject as a publicly traded company on a national stock exchange.
- Litigation. The possibility of litigation challenging the Business Combination or that an adverse judgment granting permanent injunctive relief could indefinitely enjoin consummation of the Business Combination.
- Fees and Expenses. The fees and expenses incurred by the parties in connection with completing the Business Combination.
- Management and Key Personnel Risk. The performance of Pubco depends on the services of Pubco's future management team and key personnel. Loss of key personnel could disrupt operations, execution of strategic plans, and overall governance.
- Limited Right of the SPAC Board to Change Its Recommendation. As part of the negotiation of the Business Combination Agreement, SPAC agreed that the SPAC Board would not be permitted to change its recommendation to SPAC shareholders that they vote in favor of the Proposals in certain circumstances, including as a result in the decrease in the price or trading volume of XRP, although the SPAC Board will be permitted to advise SPAC shareholders of their right to redeem their SPAC Class A Shares in such a situation. See the risk factor entitled "The Business Combination Agreement includes a requirement that the SPAC Board will not change its recommendation that SPAC Shareholders vote in favor of the SPAC Shareholder Approval Matters, except in limited situations."
- Cybersecurity and Operational Risks. Validator and network participation on the XRP Ledger, and Pubco's treasury, trading, and custody activities, is vulnerable to cybersecurity threats, unauthorized access, private key compromise, software defects, and third-party service outages. Such events could result in loss of assets, business interruption, and reputational harm.
- Market and Macroeconomic Risks. Volatility in digital asset markets, including the market for XRP, and broader economic, geopolitical, or market conditions, such as interest rate changes, inflation, recessionary pressures, or instability in global financial markets, may adversely affect digital asset prices, liquidity, capital raising, and Pubco's operating performance.
- Competition Risk. The digital asset market is highly competitive. Alternative layer-1 and layer-2 networks, payment and settlement protocols, centralized and decentralized platforms, investment funds, and other companies with digital asset treasuries may reduce demand for XRP or for Pubco's services, which could adversely affect growth prospects and results of operations. In addition, other XRP Digital Asset Treasuries could scale more quickly and become more valuable, potentially diverting users, capital, or developer attention.
- Regulatory and Legal Uncertainty. Digital asset markets are subject to evolving and uncertain regulation in multiple jurisdictions. XRP and Pubco's related activities, including holding, transferring, providing exposure to, or participating in the XRP ecosystem, could be subject to regulatory actions or restrictions by authorities, including the SEC and other U.S. and non-U.S. regulators. Changes in or interpretations of laws relating to securities, commodities, money transmission, sanctions, AML, consumer protection, or taxation could limit Pubco's ability to operate, access markets, or execute its strategy.
- Other Risks. Various other risks exist, including cybersecurity and operational, technological, regulatory, or financial risks associated with Pubco, XRP, and the broader digital asset ecosystem, as more fully described in the "Risk Factors" section elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus.

In addition to considering the factors described above, the SPAC Board also considered:

- Interests of Certain Persons. The Sponsor, and certain executive officers and directors of the SPAC, as individuals, may have interests in the Business Combination that are in addition to, and that may be different from and may conflict with, the interests of SPAC shareholders (see sections entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions"). The SPAC Board, including the independent directors on the SPAC Board, reviewed and considered these interests, including RippleWorks' limited partner interests in the Sponsor, the RippleWorks Investment and the customary annual management fee the Sponsor will receive in connection with its management of the RippleWorks Investment, during the negotiation of the Business Combination Agreement and in evaluating and unanimously approving, as members of the SPAC Board, the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions and did not view such interests to constitute a disqualifying event to proceed with the Transactions. The independent directors on the SPAC Board did not retain an unaffiliated representative to act solely on behalf of unaffiliated security holders for purposes of negotiating the terms of the Business Combination and/or preparing a report concerning the approval of the Business Combination.
- Shareholder Flexibility. In connection with the Business Combination, SPAC's public shareholders have the option to: (i) become stockholders of Pubco following the consummation of the Business Combination; (ii) sell their Public Shares; or (iii) redeem their Public Shares for the Redemption Price pursuant to the terms of the SPAC Charter.
- Differing Returns. The Sponsor paid $2,600,000.00, or approximately $0.33 per share, for the Founder Shares, of which it currently holds 7,880,000. Based on the closing price of SPAC Class A Shares of $10.48 on October 17, 2025 (the business day before the SPAC Board approved the Business Combination), such Founder Shares, if unrestricted and freely tradable, would be valued at approximately $82,582,400.00. The Founder Shares will be worthless if a business combination is not consummated. The Sponsor and its affiliates can earn a positive rate of return on their investment even if Public Shareholders experience a negative return following the consummation of the Business Combination. In connection with the Business Combination, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, 2,364,000 Founder Shares held by the Sponsor will be forfeited pursuant to the Sponsor Support Agreement, and the remaining 5,516,000 Founder Shares will automatically convert into 5,516,000 SPAC Class A Shares in accordance with the SPAC's organizational documents. The Sponsor will not receive any such additional shares if the Closing is not consummated.

The foregoing discussion of the information and factors considered by the SPAC Board is not meant to be exhaustive but includes the material information and factors considered by the SPAC Board as well as any other factors that the SPAC Board deemed relevant. The SPAC Board's decision to approve the Transactions were based on factors existing as of the date of its approval on October 19, 2025.

The SPAC Board concluded that the potential benefits that it expected SPAC and its shareholders to achieve as a result of the Business Combination outweighed the potentially negative and other factors associated with the Business Combination. Accordingly, the SPAC Board unanimously determined that the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions were advisable and in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders.

Opinion of the SPAC Financial Advisor

Pursuant to an engagement letter, Armada Acquisition Corp. II ("SPAC") retained Cohen & Company Securities, LLC acting through Cohen & Company Capital Markets division ("CCM"), as its financial advisor in connection with the proposed business combination.

At the meeting of the board of directors of SPAC (the "SPAC Board") on October 18, 2025, CCM rendered its oral opinion to the SPAC Board that, as of such date and based upon and subject to the assumptions, qualifications, limitations and other matters set forth in CCM's written opinion, the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness Opinion) set forth in the Business Combination Agreement was fair, from a financial point of view, to the holders of SPAC Class A Shares. CCM subsequently confirmed its oral opinion by delivering its written opinion, dated October 19, 2025, to the SPAC Board, that, as of such date, the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness Opinion) in the Business Combination Agreement was fair, from a financial point of view, to SPAC.

The full text of the written opinion of CCM, which sets forth the assumptions made, matters considered, and limits on the review undertaken, is attached as Annex F to this proxy statement/ prospectus and is incorporated by reference herein. The summary of the opinion of CCM set forth in this proxy statement/prospectus is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full text of such opinion. SPAC shareholders are urged to read the opinion in its entirety.

CCM's written opinion was addressed to the SPAC Board (in its capacity as such) in connection with and for the purposes of its evaluation of the proposed business combination, was directed only to fairness, from a financial point of view, of the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness Opinion) to SPAC in the proposed business combination and did not address any other aspect of the proposed business combination. CCM expressed no opinion as to the fairness of any consideration to be paid in connection with the proposed business combination to the holders of any other class of securities, creditors or other constituencies of SPAC or as to the underlying decision by SPAC to engage in the proposed business combination. The issuance of CCM's opinion was approved by the Fairness Committee of Cohen & Company Securities, LLC. The opinion did not and does not constitute a recommendation to any SPAC shareholder as to how such shareholder should vote with respect to the proposed business combination or any other matter.

In arriving at its opinion, CCM, among other things:

- reviewed the following documents and completed the following actions:
  - a draft dated October 12, 2025 of the business combination agreement;
  - certain publicly available business and financial information about SPAC;
  - certain non-public information furnished to CCM by SPAC management relating to the business, operations and prospects of SPAC and Pathfinder Digital Assets LLC (the "Company");
  - held discussions with members of senior management of SPAC and the Company concerning the matters described in the bullets immediately above;
  - compared the proposed financial terms of the proposed business combination with the financial terms of certain other transactions that CCM deemed relevant; and
  - performed such other financial studies, analyses and investigations as CCM deemed appropriate.

In addition, CCM held discussions with certain members of the management of SPAC and the Company with respect to certain aspects of the proposed business combination, and the past and current business operations of SPAC and the Company, the financial condition and future prospects and operations of SPAC and the Company, the effects of the proposed business combination on the financial condition and future prospects of SPAC and the Company, and certain other matters CCM believed necessary or appropriate to its inquiry.

In giving its opinion, CCM relied upon and assumed, with the knowledge and permission of the SPAC Board, the accuracy and completeness of all information that was publicly available or was furnished to or discussed with CCM by SPAC and the Company or otherwise reviewed by or for CCM. CCM did not independently verify any such information or its accuracy or completeness and, pursuant to CCM's engagement letter with SPAC, CCM did not assume any obligation to undertake any such independent verification. CCM did not conduct and was not provided with any independent evaluation or appraisal of any assets or liabilities, nor did

CCM conduct a physical inspection of any of the properties or facilities of SPAC. CCM was not furnished with any such evaluations or appraisals of such physical inspections, and CCM does not assume any responsibility to obtain any such evaluations or appraisals. In relying on financial analyses provided to CCM (or analyses derived therefrom) and examined by CCM, CCM assumed, with the knowledge and permission of the SPAC Board, that they were reasonably prepared on bases reflecting the best currently available estimates and good faith judgments by management as to the expected future results of operations and financial condition of SPAC and the Company to which such analyses relate. CCM expressed no view as to such analyses or the assumptions on which they were based. CCM is not a legal, regulatory or tax expert and relied on the assessments made by advisors to SPAC and the SPAC Board with respect to such issues. CCM further assumed, with the knowledge and permission of the SPAC Board, that the proposed business combination would be consummated in accordance with the terms of the Business Combination Agreement, without any waiver, modification or amendment of any term, condition or agreement that would be material to CCM's analysis. CCM also assumed, with the knowledge and permission of the SPAC Board, all material governmental, regulatory or other consents and approvals necessary for the consummation of the proposed business combination will be obtained without any adverse effect on SPAC or the Company or on the contemplated benefits of the proposed business combination. CCM also assumed that the representations and warranties made by SPAC, the Company and any of their respective affiliates in the Business Combination Agreement and the related agreements were and will be true and correct in all respects material to its analysis.

CCM's opinion was necessarily based on economic, monetary, regulatory, market and other conditions as in effect on, and the information made available to CCM as of, the date of such opinion. CCM's opinion noted that subsequent developments may affect its opinion, and that CCM does not have any obligation to update, revise, or reaffirm such opinion. CCM's opinion was limited to the fairness, from a financial point of view, of the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness Opinion) in the proposed business combination to SPAC, and CCM has expressed no opinion as to the fairness of any consideration to be paid in connection with the proposed business combination to the holders of any other class of securities, creditors or other constituencies of SPAC or the relative merits of the transactions contemplated by the merger agreement as compared to any alternative transaction or opportunity that might be available to SPAC, or the underlying business decision by SPAC to engage in the proposed business combination or the terms of the merger agreement or the documents referred to therein. Furthermore, CCM expressed no view or opinion as to the fairness, financial or otherwise, of the amount or nature of any compensation payable or to be received by any of SPAC's officers, directors or employees, or any class of such persons, in connection with the proposed business combination relative to the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness Opinion) to be received by holders of SPAC Class A Shares (other than the Company and its affiliates). CCM expressed no opinion as to the price at which the SPAC Class A Shares will trade at any time or the price at which any shares of Pubco will trade at any time.

The terms of the Business Combination Agreement, including the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness Opinion), were determined through arm's-length negotiations between SPAC and the Company, and the decision to enter into the Business Combination Agreement was solely that of the SPAC Board and the Company's board of directors. CCM's opinion and financial analyses were only one of the many factors considered by the SPAC Board in its evaluation of the proposed business combination and should not be viewed as determinative of the views of the SPAC Board or SPAC management with respect to the proposed business combination or the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness Opinion).

CCM was not authorized to and did not solicit any expressions of interest from any other parties with respect to the sale of all or any part of SPAC or any other alternative transaction.

Financial Analysis

In accordance with customary investment banking practice, CCM employed generally accepted valuation methods in rendering its opinion to the SPAC Board on October 19, 2025. The following is a summary of the material financial analyses undertaken by CCM in connection with the production and delivery of its opinion to the SPAC Board, and as contained in the presentation provided to the SPAC Board on October 18, 2025. The following does not purport to be a complete description of the analyses or data presented by CCM. Considering the data set forth below without considering the full narrative description of the financial analyses, including the methodologies and assumptions underlying the analyses, could create a misleading or incomplete view of CCM's analyses. The summary text set forth below does not represent and should not be viewed by anyone as constituting or purporting to constitute the complete conclusions reached by CCM with respect to any of the analyses performed by it in connection with the fairness opinion.

Analysis of Selected Publicly Traded Companies

As part of its financial analyses, CCM reviewed and compared certain publicly available financial data, ratios and implied enterprise value as a multiple of cryptocurrency net asset value ("mNAV") for publicly traded companies that employ cryptocurrency treasury strategies as part of their businesses which CCM determined, based on its professional judgment, to be similar to the Company in one or more respects, including (but not limited to) cryptocurrency holdings, including XRP, business plans (including cryptocurrency treasury strategies), diversification, access to capital, growth prospects and balance sheet information deemed by CCM to be relevant, including the following companies (collectively, the "Selected Publicly Traded Companies"):

- Metaplanet Inc.
- Strategy Inc.
- KULR Technology Group, Inc.
- Fold Holdings Inc.
- The Blockchain Group
- Empery Digital Inc.
- Kindly MD Inc.
- DeFi Development Corp.
- Upexi, Inc.
- ETHZilla Corporation
- Bitmine Immersion Technologies, Inc.
- SharpLink Gaming, Inc.
- CEA Industries Inc.
- TON Strategy Company
- ALT5 Sigma Corporation

Financial data of the Selected Publicly Traded Companies was based on publicly available information, including information from public filings. CCM reviewed data, including mNAV.

The multiples for each of the above-mentioned financial metrics for each of the Selected Publicly Traded Companies were calculated using their respective closing prices on October 17, 2025. Public market data relating to the applicable cryptocurrencies was based on trading activity on October 17, 2025. CCM used certain information provided by SPAC management and its advisors for comparison to similar data for the Selected Publicly Traded Companies. Such information included commitments from investors participating in private placements of Pubco and Company securities, the amount of XRP expected to be held by Pubco following closing of the proposed business combination.

The following summarizes the results of these analyses with respect to the financial results and metrics of the Selected Publicly Traded Companies after applying the discounted multiples as set forth above, including:

- mNAV multiples: The Selected Publicly Traded Companies had mNAV multiples ranging from a low of 0.37x to a high of 1.57x. The mean mNAV multiple was 0.99x and the median mNAV multiple was 0.93x.

No company used in the Selected Publicly Traded Companies analysis is identical to the Company. In evaluating the Selected Publicly Traded Companies, CCM made judgments and assumptions based on its experience and professional judgment concerning differences between the business, financial and operating characteristics of the Company and with respect to industry performance, general business, the value of XRP held, economic, market and financial conditions and other matters which are beyond SPAC's and the Company's control. These include, among other things, the impact of competition on the business of the Company or its industry generally, industry growth, the value of XRP held, and the absence of any adverse material change in the Company's financial condition and prospects or those of the Company or its industry or the financial markets in general, which could affect the public trading value of the Selected Publicly Traded Companies to which the Company is being compared.

Analysis of Selected Precedent Transactions

As part of its financial analyses, CCM reviewed publicly available financial data, ratios and multiples for certain transactions that that have been publicly disclosed prior to October 17, 2025, involving companies within the cryptocurrency treasury strategy industry, where companies were deemed similar to the Company, in one or more respects, including (but not limited to) cryptocurrency holdings, including XRP, business plans (including cryptocurrency treasury strategies), diversification, access to capital, growth prospects and balance sheet information deemed by CCM to be relevant, including the following transactions (collectively, the "Selected Precedent Transactions"):

Transaction Announcement Date	Target	Buyer/Seller
October 1, 2025	Avalanche Treasury Co.	Mountain Lake Acquisition Corp.
July 21, 2025	The Ether Machine	Dynamix Corporation
July 17, 2025	BSTR Holdings, Inc.	Cantor Equity Partners I, Inc.
July 8, 2025	ReserveOne, Inc.	M3-Brigade Acquisition V Corp.
June 23, 2025	ProCap BTC, LLC	Columbus Circle Capital Corp. I
April 23, 2025	Twenty One Capital, Inc.	Cantor Equity Partners, Inc.

Financial data of the Selected Precedent Transactions was based on publicly available information, including information from public filings. CCM reviewed data, including mNAV. None of the Selected Precedent Transactions had been consummated as of the date of the delivery of the fairness opinion.

Using publicly available information, for each of the Selected Precedent Transactions, CCM calculated the ratio of the enterprise value implied for the target company in such transaction to the target company's mNAV as of the time of the public announcement of such transaction.

- mNAV multiples: The overall low to high mNAV multiples observed for the Selected Precedent Transactions were 0.89x to 1.33x (with a mean of 1.08x and a median of 1.06x).

No transaction used in the Selected Precedent Transactions analysis is identical to the proposed business combination. In evaluating the Selected Precedent Transactions, CCM made judgments and assumptions based on its experience and professional judgment concerning differences between the business, financial and operating characteristics of the Company and with respect to industry performance, general business, economic, market and financial conditions and other matters which are beyond SPAC's and the Company's control. These include, among other things, the impact of competition on the business of the Company or its industry generally, industry growth and the absence of any adverse material change in the Company's financial condition and prospects or those of the Company or its industry or the financial markets in general, which could affect the aggregate value and enterprise value of the Selected Precedent Transactions to which the proposed business combination is being compared.

Miscellaneous

The foregoing summary of certain material financial analyses does not purport to be a complete description of the analyses or data presented by CCM. The preparation of a fairness opinion is a complex process and is not necessarily susceptible to partial analysis or summary description. CCM believes that the foregoing summary and its analyses must be considered as a whole and that selecting portions of the foregoing summary and these analyses, without considering all of its analyses as a whole, could create an incomplete view of the processes underlying the analyses and its opinion. As a result, the ranges of valuations resulting from any particular analysis or combination of analyses described above were merely utilized to create points of reference for analytical purposes and should not be taken to be the view of CCM with respect to the actual value of any entities involved in the proposed business combination. The order of analyses described does not represent the relative importance or weight given to those analyses by CCM. In arriving at its opinion, CCM did not attribute any particular weight to any analyses or factors considered by it and did not form an opinion as to whether any individual analysis or factor (positive or negative), considered in isolation, supported or failed to support its opinion. Rather, CCM considered the totality of the factors and analyses performed in determining its opinion.

Analyses based upon forecasts of future results are inherently uncertain, as they are subject to numerous factors or events beyond the control of the parties and their advisors. Accordingly, analyses used or made by CCM are not necessarily indicative of actual future results, which may be significantly more or less favorable than suggested by those analyses. Moreover, CCM's analyses are not and do not purport to be appraisals or otherwise reflective of the prices at which businesses actually could be acquired or sold.

As a part of its investment banking business, CCM and its affiliates are continually engaged in the valuation of businesses and their securities in connection with mergers and acquisitions, investments for passive and control purposes, negotiated underwritings, secondary distributions of listed and unlisted securities, private placements, and valuations for corporate and other purposes. CCM was selected to advise SPAC with respect to the proposed business combination on the basis of, among other things, such experience and its qualifications and reputation in connection with such matters and its familiarity with SPAC, the Company and the industries in which they operate.

CCM was retained by SPAC to provide an opinion to the SPAC Board as to the fairness of the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness opinion) in the proposed business combination, from a financial point of view, to SPAC. Pursuant to the terms of its engagement, CCM became entitled to a fee of $450,000 in consideration for the fairness opinion (the "Fairness Opinion Fee"). The Fairness Opinion Fee is due and payable to CCM as follows: (i) up to $100,000 became due to CCM upon informing the SPAC Board that it was prepared to render and deliver the fairness opinion; and (ii) the balance of the Fairness Opinion Fee is due upon the earlier of the closing of the proposed business combination or the termination of the Business Combination Agreement entered into by SPAC with respect to the proposed business combination. SPAC has also agreed to reimburse CCM's reasonable expenses up to an aggregate amount of $125,000 and to indemnify CCM against liabilities arising out of or in connection with the services rendered and to be rendered by CCM under its engagement with SPAC. No portion of CCM's Fairness Opinion Fee is contingent upon either the conclusion expressed in its opinion or whether the proposed business combination is successfully consummated. CCM served as an underwriter to SPAC in its initial public offering. In connection with services rendered as underwriter, CCM is entitled to receive up to $4,600,000 in deferred underwriting commissions that are conditioned on SPAC's completion of an initial business combination and subject to reduction based on the amount of funds remaining in SPAC's trust account after the redemption of any public shares in connection with the initial business combination.

During the two years preceding the date of its written opinion, other than services provided to SPAC under the Underwriting Agreement, and pursuant to which fees are payable to CCM as described above, CCM has not provided any other material financial advisory or other material financing services to SPAC, Pubco, the Company or their respective affiliates. CCM may, however, provide such services to such parties in the future and may receive, fees for the rendering of such services. CCM and its affiliates may trade or hold securities of SPAC or Pubco and/or their respective affiliates for its own account and for the accounts of its customers and, accordingly, may at any time hold long or short positions in those securities. In addition, CCM may seek to, in the future, provide financial advisory and financing services to SPAC, Pubco or entities that are affiliated with SPAC or Pubco, for which it would expect to receive compensation.

Satisfaction of 80% Test

It is a requirement under the Nasdaq listing requirements and the SPAC Charter that any business acquired by SPAC have a fair market value equal to at least 80% of the net assets held in the Trust Account (excluding the deferred underwriting commissions and taxes payable on the interest earned on the Trust Account) at the time of the execution of a definitive agreement for an initial business combination. As of October 17, 2025, the last business day prior to the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, the balance of funds held in the Trust Account was $235,076,208.70 and 80% of such funds represents approximately $188,060,967.

In determining whether the 80% test was satisfied, the SPAC Board considered, among other things, the value implied by the financial terms of the transaction as set forth in the Business Combination Agreement, including the aggregate consideration to be paid in the transaction and the exchange ratio negotiated between Pubco and SPAC. The SPAC Board also considered the work performed by Cohen & Company Securities, LLC acting through Cohen & Company Capital Markets division ("CCM"), which SPAC engaged to act as financial advisor to the SPAC Board in connection with the transaction. In particular, the SPAC Board received and considered a written opinion from CCM, dated October 19, 2025, to the effect that, as of that date and subject to the assumptions, limitations and qualifications set forth therein, the exchange ratio of the transaction was fair, from a financial point of view, to SPAC. In connection with rendering its opinion, CCM (among other things) (i) reviewed a draft of the Business Combination Agreement, (ii) reviewed certain publicly available financial and other information about SPAC, (iii) reviewed certain non-public information furnished by SPAC's management relating to the business, operations and prospects of SPAC and the target, (iv) held discussions with members of senior management regarding such matters, (v) compared the proposed financial terms of the transaction with the financial terms of certain other transactions deemed relevant, and (vi) performed such other financial studies, analyses and investigations as it deemed appropriate. See "The Business Combination Proposal—Opinion of the SPAC Financial Advisor" for more information. The SPAC Board reviewed and considered these materials and discussions as additional support for its determination that the fair market value of the business to be acquired satisfied the 80% test.

The SPAC Board considered all of the factors described above and the fact that the aggregate consideration for SPAC was the result of arm's length negotiations with Pubco and the Company. As a result, the SPAC Board concluded that the fair market value of the business acquired was in excess of 80% of the net assets held in the Trust Account (excluding any deferred underwriting commissions and taxes payable on the interest earned on the Trust Account). In light of the financial background and experience of the members of SPAC's management team and the SPAC Board, the SPAC Board believes that the members of the management team and the SPAC Board are qualified to determine whether the Transactions meet the 80% test.

When you consider the recommendation of the SPAC Board in favor of approval of the Business Combination Proposal and the other proposals, you should keep in mind that the Sponsor and certain of SPAC's directors and officers have interests in such proposals that are different from, or in addition to, those of SPAC's shareholders and holders of SPAC Public Warrants generally. In particular:

- The Sponsor purchased from the Original Sponsor for an aggregate of $6,600,000, 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants. Certain of SPAC's officers and directors have an indirect economic interest in such shares and warrants through their membership interest in the Sponsor. Assuming a trading price of $10.50 per Founder Share and $0.801 per SPAC Private Warrant (based upon the respective closing prices of the SPAC Class A Shares and the SPAC Public Warrants on Nasdaq on August 20, 2026, the most recent practicable date prior to the date of this proxy statement/prospectus), the 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants, in each case if unrestricted and freely tradable, would have an implied aggregate market value of $87.1 million. However, given the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that will be received in exchange for such Founder Shares or upon exercise of the Pubco Warrants will be subject to lockup restrictions, SPAC believes such shares have less value. Even if the trading price of the Public Shares were as low as approximately $1.1965 per share, the aggregate market value of the Founder Shares alone (without taking into account the value of the SPAC Private Warrants) would be approximately equal to the initial investment in SPAC by the Sponsor.
- In addition, the Sponsor agreed to, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor. After the Sponsor's remaining SPAC Class B Shares are automatically converted to SPAC Class A Shares immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time, Sponsor's remaining SPAC Class A Shares will automatically convert into Pubco Class A Common Stock and its remaining SPAC Private Warrants into Pubco Warrants at the SPAC Merger Effective Time. Accordingly, following the Closing, Sponsor will hold no more than (x) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, on an as converted basis, equal to the sum of (A) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares and (B) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares, and (y) the number of Pubco Warrants, on an as converted basis, equal to 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants less the Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants. As a result, if the Transactions are completed and the Sponsor forfeits the minimum number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, even if the trading price of the Pubco Class A Common Stock were as low as approximately $1.1965 per share, the aggregate market value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock received in exchange for the Founder Shares and not forfeited, alone (without taking into account the value of the Private Placement Units), would be approximately equal to the initial investment in SPAC by the Sponsor. If the trading price is greater than approximately $1.1965, the Sponsor is likely to be able to make a substantial profit on its investment in SPAC at a time when the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants have lost significant value. On the other hand, if the Transactions are not approved and SPAC is unable to complete another business combination within the Combination Period, the 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants purchased by the Sponsor for an aggregate amount of $6,600,000 will be worthless, and Sponsor will lose its entire investment in SPAC. Accordingly, the economic interests of the Sponsor diverge from the economic interests of holders of the Public Shares.

- As of the date hereof, the Sponsor is the record holder of 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants. J. Michael Arrington, a member of the SPAC Board, is the sole managing member of Arrington Capital Management, LLC, which is the general partner of the Sponsor. As of the date hereof, J. Michael Arrington is deemed to hold voting and dispositive control over the securities held directly by the Sponsor. J. Michael Arrington, who disclaims any beneficial ownership of the reported shares other than to the extent of any pecuniary interest he may have therein, directly or indirectly. Each of Mr. Arrington, Taryn Naidu, Chief Executive Officer of SPAC and member of the SPAC Board, Kyle Horton, Chief Financial Officer of SPAC, and Ronald Palmeri, a member of the SPAC Board, own limited partner interests in the Sponsor and through them has an indirect interest in the Founder Shares, the SPAC Class A Shares and the SPAC Private Warrants and compensation the Sponsor receives in connection with the Transactions. In addition, the Sponsor is expected to transfer 10,000 SPAC Class B Shares to each of Richard Danis, Lindy Key, and Ronald Palmeri, each members of the SPAC Board, prior to the closing of the Business Combination.
- In addition to the compensation to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates referred to above, RippleWorks made the RippleWorks Investment that is subject to the Sponsor's obligation to invest all of the RippleWorks Token Investment in shares of Pubco pursuant to the Series C Subscription Agreement. RippleWorks may withdraw the RippleWorks Investment if the Business Combination is not consummated. The Sponsor will receive a customary annual management fee in connection with its management of the RippleWorks Investment. RippleWorks is a limited partner in the Sponsor and, prior to the RippleWorks Investment held, and after the execution of the Business Combination Agreement holds, a majority of the limited partner interests in the Sponsor. Prior to the RippleWorks Investment, RippleWorks was entitled to only customary limited partner information and approval rights in the Sponsor. In connection with the RippleWorks Investment, the Sponsor and RippleWorks entered into a letter agreement dated October 17, 2025 pursuant to which Sponsor agreed to consult with RippleWorks on any decisions directly related to the disposition or voting of Pubco Stock purchased under the Series C Subscription Agreement and to vote such shares as directed by RippleWorks. Chris Larsen, co-founder and Executive Chairman of Ripple, is also a co-founder and member of the board of directors of RippleWorks.
- The Sponsor and SPAC's directors and officers shall not redeem any of the SPAC Common Shares held by them pursuant to the SPAC Charter.
- The Sponsor and SPAC's officers and directors have agreed to waive their rights to liquidating distributions from the Trust Account with respect to the SPAC Common Shares (other than Public Shares) held by them if SPAC fails to consummate an initial business combination within the Combination Period.

- The Sponsor and SPAC's officers and certain directors may lose their entire investment in SPAC if a business combination is not consummated within the Combination Period.
- The Sponsor has agreed that it will be liable to SPAC if and to the extent any claims by a third party for services rendered or products sold to SPAC, or a prospective target business with which SPAC has entered into a written letter of intent, confidentiality or other similar agreement or business combination agreement (except for SPAC's independent registered public accounting firm), reduce the amount of funds in the Trust Account to below (i) $10.05 per Public Share or (ii) such lesser amount per Public Share held in the Trust Account as of the date of the liquidation of the Trust Account due to reductions in the value of the trust assets, in each case, net of the amount of interest earned on the property in the Trust Account which may be withdrawn to pay taxes, provided that such liability will not apply to any claims by a third party who executed a waiver of any and all rights to seek access to the Trust Account nor will it apply to any claims under SPAC's indemnity of the underwriters of the SPAC IPO against certain liabilities, including liabilities under the Securities Act.
- SPAC's existing officers and directors will be eligible for continued indemnification and continued coverage under a tail directors' and officers' liability insurance policy for up to a six-year period from and after the Closing for events occurring prior to the Closing, which tail policy is to be paid for by Pubco at the Closing pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement. If the Transactions do not close, SPAC's officers and directors may not receive this tail insurance coverage.
- Pursuant to the A&R Registration Rights Agreement, the Sponsor will have customary registration rights, including demand and piggy-back rights, subject to cooperation and cut-back provisions with respect to the Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants held by it following the consummation of the Business Combination.
- The SPAC Charter provides that, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law: (i) none of the Sponsor or any individual serving as a director or an officer shall have any duty, except and to the extent expressly assumed by contract, to refrain from engaging directly or indirectly in the same or similar business activities or lines of business as SPAC; (ii) SPAC renounces any interest or expectancy in, or in being offered an opportunity to participate in, any potential transaction or matter which (a) may be a corporate opportunity for the Sponsor or any director or officer, on the one hand, and SPAC, on the other or (b) the presentation of which would breach an existing legal obligation of the Sponsor or any director or officer to any other entity; and (iii) except to the extent expressly assumed by contract, none of the Sponsor or any director or officer will have any duty to communicate or offer any such corporate opportunity to SPAC and shall not be liable to SPAC or its shareholders for breach of any fiduciary duty as a shareholder, director and/or officer solely by reason of the fact that such party pursues or acquires such corporate opportunity for itself, himself or herself, directs such corporate opportunity to another person, or does not communicate information regarding such corporate opportunity to SPAC. In the course of their other business activities, SPAC's officers and directors may have, or may become aware of, other investment and business opportunities which may be appropriate for presentation to SPAC as well as the other entities with which they are affiliated. SPAC's management has pre-existing fiduciary duties and contractual obligations and if there is a conflict of interest in determining to which entity a particular business combination opportunity should be presented, any pre-existing fiduciary obligation will be presented the business combination opportunity before SPAC is presented with it. SPAC does not believe that the pre-existing fiduciary duties or contractual obligations of its officers and directors materially impacted its search for an acquisition target.
- The Sponsor agreed that the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants received by it in connection with the SPAC Merger, and any shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon the exercise of Pubco Warrants, will be locked-up and subject to transfer restrictions, until the earlier of (i) the Anniversary Release and (ii) the date on which Pubco consummates a liquidation, merger, capital stock exchange, reorganization or other similar transaction that results in all Pubco stockholders having the right to exchange their shares of Pubco common stock for cash, securities or other property. The Lock-Up Agreements include customary exceptions to the transfer restrictions, including transfers to affiliates, family members, charitable organizations, and in connection with certain tax or estate planning transactions, provided that the transferee agrees to be bound by the same restrictions for the remainder of the lock-up period.

- On October 19, 2025, concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, the Sponsor entered into the Series C Subscription Agreement (as amended on August 12, 2026), as detailed in the section entitled "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—SPAC's Relationships and Related Party Transactions." As a result, if the Transactions are completed, the Sponsor will receive Pubco Class C Common Stock in exchange for their investments, which may increase in value following the completion of the Transactions. On the other hand, if the Transactions are not approved or, notwithstanding approval, are not completed, the Series C Subscription Agreement will terminate in accordance with its terms, the cash or contributed XRP will be returned in the manner prescribed by the applicable Series C Subscription Agreement, and the Sponsor will not receive Pubco Class A Common Stock or the potential upside benefits of ownership thereof. In addition, the Sponsor who participated in the Company Unit Subscription (but not holders of SPAC Class A Shares) will receive additional shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock at the Closing if the Closing XRP Price is greater than the Signing XRP Price.

Consideration Received by the Sponsor and its Affiliates

The compensation to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates upon the consummation of the Business Combination (excluding any consideration from participation in the Private Placement Investments) is: up to (x) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, on an as converted basis, equal to the sum of (A) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares and (B) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares, and (y) the number of Pubco Warrants, on an as converted basis, equal to 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants less the Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants, each of which entitles the holder of such warrant to purchase one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock at a price of $11.50 per share as set forth in the Pubco Warrant Agreement. In addition to the exchanges described in the preceding sentence, the Sponsor agreed to, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit the interests it holds in SPAC that would otherwise remain after such exchanges, consisting of a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor.

The Sponsor purchased 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants from the Original Sponsor for an aggregate purchase price of $6,600,000. Assuming a trading price of $10.50 per Founder Share and $0.801 per SPAC Private Warrant (based upon the respective closing prices of the SPAC Class A Shares and the SPAC Public Warrants on Nasdaq on August 20, 2026, the most recent practicable date prior to the date of this proxy statement/prospectus), the 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants, in each case if unrestricted and freely tradable, would have an implied aggregate market value of $87.1 million.

In addition to the compensation to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates referred to above, RippleWorks made the RippleWorks Investment that is subject to the Sponsor's obligation to invest all of the RippleWorks Token Investment in shares of Pubco pursuant to the Series C Subscription Agreement. RippleWorks may withdraw the RippleWorks Investment if the Business Combination is not consummated. The Sponsor will receive a customary annual management fee in connection with its management of the RippleWorks Investment. RippleWorks is a limited partner in the Sponsor and, prior to the RippleWorks Investment held, and after the execution of the Business Combination Agreement holds, a majority of the limited partner interests in the Sponsor. Prior to the RippleWorks Investment, RippleWorks was entitled to only customary limited partner information and approval rights in the Sponsor. In connection with the RippleWorks Investment, the Sponsor and RippleWorks entered into a letter agreement dated October 17, 2025 pursuant to which Sponsor agreed to consult with RippleWorks on any decisions directly related to the disposition or voting of Pubco Stock purchased under the Series C Subscription Agreement and to vote such shares as directed by RippleWorks. Chris Larsen, co-founder and Executive Chairman of Ripple, is also a co-founder and member of the board of directors of RippleWorks.

Set forth below is a summary of the price paid and the amount of compensation and securities received or to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates in connection with the Business Combination and related transactions:

	Price Paid	Securities to be Received	Other Compensation
Sponsor	The Sponsor purchased 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants from the Original Sponsor for an aggregate purchase price of $6,600,000.[(1)(2)]	The number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, on an as converted basis, equal to the sum of (A) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares and (B) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares. The number of Pubco Warrants, on an as converted basis, equal to 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants less the Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants.	The Sponsor will receive a customary annual management fee in connection with its management of the RippleWorks Investment following the Closing.

(1) The Sponsor agreed to, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit the interests it holds in SPAC that would otherwise remain after the Company Merger Effective Time, consisting of a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor.

(2) Assuming a trading price of $10.50 per Founder Share and $0.801 per SPAC Private Warrant (based upon the respective closing prices of the SPAC Class A Shares and the SPAC Public Warrants on Nasdaq on August 20, 2026, the most recent practicable date prior to the date of this proxy statement/prospectus), the 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants, in each case if unrestricted and freely tradable, would have an implied aggregate market value of $87.1 million.

(3) The number of securities to be received by the Sponsor does not reflect the expected transfers by the Sponsor of 10,000 SPAC Class B Shares to each of Richard Danis, Lindy Key, and Ronald Palmeri, each members of the SPAC Board, prior to the closing of the Business Combination. Taking such transfers into account, the Sponsor would receive 5,766,000 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock in exchange for Founder Shares in connection with the Business Combination and related transactions.

Non-redeeming shareholders will experience dilution from the issuance of Pubco Class A Common Stock upon the exchange of Founder Shares as presented in the table above. Further, to the extent that the Sponsor (or any of its affiliates) exercises the Pubco Warrants described above to acquire shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the resulting issuances of Pubco Class A Common Stock may result in material dilution of the non-redeeming shareholders of the SPAC who become stockholders of Pubco. In addition, non-redeeming shareholders will experience dilution due to the issuance of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and securities exercisable for or convertible into shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock to others in the Business Combination and any related financing transactions.

Further detail regarding the price paid and the compensation received and to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates and the dilution that may be caused thereby is provided in the sections of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Prospectus Summary— Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions," "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions," "Summary of the proxy statement/prospectus—Ownership of Pubco After the Transactions," "Summary of the proxy statement/prospectus—Dilution," "Questions and Answers About the Proposals—What equity stake will current Public Shareholders, the PIPE Investors, the Sponsor, Ripple, and their affiliates hold in Pubco immediately after the completion of the Transactions and the Private Placement Investments?" and "Q*uestions and Answers about the Proposals—Q: What happens if a substantial number of Public Shareholders vote in favor of the Business Combination Proposal and exercise their redemption rights*."

Potential Purchases of Public Shares

At any time prior to the Extraordinary General Meeting, subject to applicable securities laws (including with respect to material non-public information), the Sponsor and the SPAC Insiders or their affiliates may enter into transactions with investors and others to provide them with incentives to acquire Public Shares, vote their Public Shares in favor of the Transactions or not redeem their Public Shares. However, the SPAC Insiders and their affiliates have no current commitments, plans or intentions to engage in such transactions and have not formulated any terms or conditions for any such transactions. None of the funds in the Trust Account will be used to purchase Public Shares in such transactions.

The purpose of any such transactions could be to increase the likelihood of obtaining shareholder approval of the Transactions, where it appears that such requirement would otherwise not be met. Any such purchases of our securities may result in the consummation of the Business Combination, which may not otherwise have been possible.

In addition, if such purchases are made, the public "float" of our shares may be reduced and the number of beneficial holders of our shares may be reduced, which may make it difficult to maintain or obtain the quotation, listing or trading of our shares on a national securities exchange. Any such purchases will be reported pursuant to Section 13 and Section 16 of the Exchange Act to the extent such purchasers are subject to such reporting requirements. Additionally, in the event the SPAC Insiders or their affiliates were to purchase Public Shares from Public Shareholders, such purchases would be structured in compliance with the requirements of Rule 14e-5 under the Exchange Act to the extent such rule is applicable including, in pertinent part, through adherence to the following if required:

- if the SPAC Insiders or their affiliates were to purchase Public Shares from Public Shareholders, they would do so at a price no higher than the Redemption Price;
- if the SPAC Insiders or their affiliates were to purchase Public Shares from Public Shareholders, such shares would not be voted in favor of approving the Transactions;
- the SPAC Insiders and their affiliates would not possess any redemption rights with respect to our Public Shares or, if they do acquire and possess redemption rights, they would waive such rights; and
- we would disclose in a Form 8-K, before the Extraordinary General Meeting to approve the Transactions, the following material items:
- the amount of our Public Shares purchased outside of the redemption offer by the SPAC Insiders or their affiliates, along with the purchase price;
- the purpose of the purchases by the SPAC Insiders or their affiliates;

- the impact, if any, of the purchases by the SPAC Insiders or their affiliates on the likelihood that the Transactions will be approved;
- the identities of our security holders who sold to the SPAC Insiders or their affiliates (if not purchased on the open market) or the nature of our security holders (e.g., 5% security holders) who sold to the SPAC Insiders or their affiliates; and
- the number of our Public Shares for which we have received redemption requests pursuant to our redemption offer.

The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter

At or prior to the consummation of the Business Combination, the Pubco Board and the stockholders of Pubco will amend and restate Pubco's articles of incorporation in the form of the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter. The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter will reflect the following material differences from the SPAC Charter:

- the name of the new public entity will be Evernorth Holdings Inc.;
- Pubco will be incorporated under the laws of the State of Nevada, as opposed to the laws of the Cayman Islands;
- Pubco's corporate existence is perpetual as opposed to SPAC's corporate existence terminating if a business combination is not consummated by SPAC within a specified period of time;
- the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter will not include the various provisions applicable only to special purpose acquisition companies that the SPAC Charter contains; and
- Pubco's capital stock will be made up of Pubco Class A Common Stock, Pubco Class B Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock, and unlike holders of SPAC's ordinary shares, holders of Pubco Class C Common Stock will not be entitled to vote on any matters voted on by stockholders, except (a) as required by NRS Chapter 78, (b) for any matter that disproportionately adversely affects holders thereof relative to the Pubco Class A Common or Pubco Class B Common Stock and (c) relating to any change to the maximum ownership restriction applicable to the Pubco Class C Common Stock in the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter.

For more information regarding the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter, see the section entitled "Description of Pubco Securities."

Comparison of Corporate Governance and Stockholder Rights

There are certain differences in the rights of Pubco's stockholders and SPAC shareholders prior to the Transactions and following the consummation of the Business Combination. Please see the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Description of Pubco Securities."

Regulatory Matters

The Transactions and the transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement are not subject to any additional federal or state regulatory requirement or approval, except for (i) filings with the Cayman Registrar necessary to effectuate the SPAC Domestication, which will be filed on behalf of SPAC with the Cayman Registrar and (ii) filings with the Delaware Secretary of State necessary to effectuate the Company Merger and the SPAC Merger, which will be filed on behalf of SPAC, SPAC Merger Sub, the Company and Company Merger Sub, respectively, with the Delaware Secretary of State upon the approval of the Business Combination Proposal and satisfaction of all other conditions not waived by the applicable parties under the Business Combination Agreement.

Anticipated Accounting Treatment

Company Merger

The Company Merger whereby Company Merger Sub (a subsidiary of Pubco) will merge with and into the Company, with the Company continuing as a surviving company as a subsidiary of Pubco, is anticipated to be accounted for as a transaction between entities under common control in accordance with U.S. GAAP. Under ASC 805-50, "Transactions Between Entities Under Common Control," transfers of net assets or exchanges of equity interests between entities under common control are accounted for in a manner similar to a pooling of interests. Accordingly, the assets and liabilities transferred as part of the Company Merger will be recognized by Pubco at their historical carrying amounts as reflected in the accounts of the Company immediately prior to the transaction. No new goodwill or step-up in basis will be recognized as a result of the Company Merger.

SPAC Merger

The SPAC Merger, whereby SPAC Merger Sub (a subsidiary of Pubco) will merge with and into SPAC Delaware, with SPAC Delaware continuing as the surviving entity as a subsidiary of Pubco, will be accounted for as a recapitalization in accordance with U.S. GAAP where Pubco issues shares in exchange for the net assets of the SPAC. It was determined that the SPAC, Pubco and the Company were not considered to be businesses in accordance with U.S. GAAP and therefore the SPAC Merger, which is a combination of assets from the various parties, is akin to a recapitalization and the ultimate equity structure will be that of Pubco as the successor entity to the Company Merger and the SPAC Merger. Under this method of accounting, SPAC will be treated as the "acquired" company for financial reporting purposes. Accordingly, for accounting purposes, the Transactions would be treated as Pubco issuing shares for the net assets of the SPAC, accompanied by the common control recapitalization above. The net assets of SPAC would be stated at fair value, with no goodwill recorded. As a result, any transaction costs incurred to effect the recapitalization represent costs related to issuing equity and raising capital that are recognized as a reduction to the total amount of equity raised rather than an expense recorded as incurred. Any activities prior to the Transactions will be those of Pubco and its common control entity, the Company, with Pubco as the reporting legal entity.

Resolution to be Voted Upon

The full text of the resolution to be passed is as follows:

"RESOLVED, as an ordinary resolution, that the entry by Armada Acquisition Corp. II ("SPAC") into the Business Combination Agreement, dated as of October 19, 2025, attached to the proxy statement/prospectus as Annex A (as may be amended or restated from time to time, the "Business Combination Agreement"), pursuant to which and among other things, on the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Business Combination Agreement, the parties will consummate the Transactions (as such term is defined in the proxy statement/prospectus) described in the proxy statement/prospectus, and the performance by SPAC of its obligations thereunder and the consummation of the Transactions, be approved, ratified and confirmed in all respects."

Required Vote and Recommendation of the SPAC Board

The approval of the Business Combination Proposal requires an ordinary resolution, being the affirmative vote of at least a simple majority of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the Business Combination Proposal at the Extraordinary General Meeting. The Transactions are not structured so that the approval of at least a simple majority of the unaffiliated securityholders of SPAC is required. Abstentions and broker non-votes, while considered present for the purposes of establishing a quorum, will not count as votes cast at the Extraordinary General Meeting and otherwise will have no effect on a particular proposal.

The Business Combination Proposal is conditioned on the approval of the Merger Proposal and the Domestication Proposal and vice versa. Therefore, if the Merger Proposal is not approved, the Business Combination Proposal will have no effect, even if approved by the requisite holders of SPAC Common Shares.

As of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus, the Sponsor has agreed to vote the SPAC Common Shares owned by them in favor of the Business Combination Proposal. As of the Record Date, the Sponsor owns 26.2% of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares. SPAC's officers and directors do not hold any Public Shares, but may purchase Public Shares at any time, subject to compliance with law and SPAC's trading policies. As a result, in addition to approval by the Sponsor, CCM and Northland, approval of the Business Combination Proposal will require the affirmative vote of at least 7,205,001 SPAC Common Shares held by Public Shareholders (or approximately 31.3% of the Public Shares) if all SPAC Common Shares are represented at the Extraordinary General Meeting and cast votes, and the Sponsor would be able to approve the Business Combination Proposal alone if only such shares as are required to establish a quorum are represented at the Extraordinary General Meeting and cast votes.

The SPAC Board believes that the Business Combination Proposal to be presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting is in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders.

THE SPAC BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT SPAC SHAREHOLDERS VOTE "FOR" THE APPROVAL OF THE BUSINESS COMBINATION PROPOSAL.

The existence of financial and personal interests of one or more of SPAC's directors may result in a conflict of interest on such directors(s) between what such director may believe is in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders and what such director may believe is best for themselves in determining to recommend that shareholders vote for the proposals. The Sponsor and SPAC's officers also have interests in the Transactions that may be different from, or in addition to, your interests as a Public Shareholder. See the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions" for a further discussion of these considerations.

THE TRANSACTIONS

On October 19, 2025, SPAC, Pubco, the Company, SPAC Merger Sub, Company Merger Sub and Ripple entered into the Business Combination Agreement, pursuant to which, following the SPAC Domestication and upon Closing, (a) Company Merger Sub will merge with and into the Company, with the Company continuing as the surviving company, with holders of Company Units receiving one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each Company Unit, subject to certain reductions and other limitations imposed on the Contributor Related Parties, as set forth in the Business Combination Agreement, and (b) simultaneously with the Company Merger, SPAC Merger Sub will merge with and into SPAC Delaware, with SPAC Delaware continuing as the surviving entity, with (x) stockholders of SPAC Delaware receiving one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each SPAC Class A Share held by such stockholder, and (y) warrantholders of SPAC Delaware receiving one warrant to purchase one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each warrant to purchase one SPAC Class A Share held by such warrantholders. As a result of the Mergers and the Transactions, Pubco will become a publicly traded company, in each case upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Business Combination Agreement and in accordance with applicable law.

On August 12, 2026, SPAC, Pubco, the Company, SPAC Merger Sub, Company Merger Sub and Ripple entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Business Combination Agreement for purposes of proposing certain changes to Pubco's amended and restated articles of incorporation, with such changes to be adopted by Pubco and to take effect upon the Closing.

Concurrently with the signing of the Business Combination Agreement, Ripple, Pubco and the Company entered into the Contribution Agreement, pursuant to which, prior to the Closing, Ripple contributed to the Company the Initial Contribution. On August 12, 2026, Ripple, Pubco and the Company entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Contribution Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Contributor Subscribed Units. The amendment subjects the initial unit calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-unit adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price.

In addition, concurrently with the signing of the Business Combination Agreement, on October 19, 2025:

(i) Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements with the Advance Funding Subscribers, pursuant to which the Advance Funding Subscribers agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, the Advance Funding Shares for $214.05 million in cash and a contribution of 600,000 XRP tokens, in the Advance Funding, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and each Advance Funding Subscriber entered into Amendment No. 1 to the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Advance Funding Shares. Under the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, as amended, each Advance Funding Subscriber will receive at the closing of the Advance Funding a number of Advance Funding Shares equal to the sum of (a) the Advance Funding Initial Subscribed Shares, which are subject to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, and (b) the Advance Funding Adjustment Shares, if any, which are issuable if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. In addition, on August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and the SBI Stockholders entered into the SBI Entity Amendments, the sole purpose of which is to apply a 39.9% ownership limitation to the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable in respect of SBI's Advance Funding Subscription;

(ii) Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements with the Delayed Funding Subscribers, pursuant to which the Delayed Funding Subscribers agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, the Delayed Funding Shares for $10.5 million in cash and a contribution of 200,000 XRP tokens, in the Delayed Funding, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. Delayed Funding Subscribers will receive at the closing of the Delayed Funding a number of Delayed Funding Shares equal to the quotient of (a) the Delayed Funding Subscription Price and (b) $10.00;

(iii) Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into the Series C Subscription Agreement with the Sponsor, pursuant to which the Sponsor agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, the Series C Subscribed Shares for 211,319,096.061435 XRP tokens, in the Series C Subscription, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and the Sponsor entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Series C Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Series C Subscribed Shares. Under the Series C Subscription Agreement, as amended, the Sponsor will receive a number of Series C Subscribed Shares equal to the sum of (a) the Series C Initial Subscribed Shares, which are subject to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, and (b) the Series C Adjustment Shares, if any, which are issuable if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price; and

(iv) Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement with the Contributor Related Party Entity, pursuant to which the Contributor Related Party Entity agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, and the Company agreed to issue and sell Company Units, for an aggregate contribution of 50 million XRP tokens, in the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and the Contributor Related Party Entity entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests. Under the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, as amended, the Contributor Related Party Entity will receive a number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests equal to the sum of (a) the Contributor Related Party Entity Initial Subscribed Equity Interests, which are subject to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, and (b) the Contributor Related Party Entity Adjustment Equity Interests, if any, which are issuable if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price.

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, SPAC entered into the Sponsor Support Agreement, pursuant to which, among other things, the Sponsor agreed to (a) vote its SPAC Common Shares in favor of the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions and each of the proposals to be approved by SPAC shareholders at the Extraordinary General Meeting, (b) vote its SPAC Common Shares against (i) any Acquisition Proposal or Alternative Transaction, (ii) any merger, consolidation, combination, sale of substantial assets, reorganization, recapitalization, dissolution, liquidation or winding up of or by SPAC (other than the Transactions), (iii) any change in the business of SPAC, and (iv) any proposal, action or agreement involving SPAC that would or would reasonably be expected to jeopardize the Transactions, (c) comply with the restrictions imposed by the Insider Letter, including the restrictions on transferring and redeeming SPAC Common Shares in connection with the Transactions, (d) subject to and conditioned upon the Closing, waive any anti-dilution rights that would otherwise result in the SPAC Class B Shares converting into SPAC Class A Shares on a greater than one-for-one basis and (e) immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit for no consideration a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor. Further, pursuant to the Sponsor Support Agreement, SPAC, Sponsor and Pubco agreed that prior to the Closing they would enter into an amendment to the Insider Letter to remove certain terms relating to transfer restrictions applicable to the shares held by the Sponsor.

At least one Business Day prior to the Closing Date, SPAC will de-register from the Register of Companies in the Cayman Islands by way of continuation out of the Cayman Islands and into the State of Delaware so as to migrate to and domesticate as a Delaware corporation (the "SPAC Domestication") in accordance with the SPAC

Charter, Section 388 of the DGCL and Part 12 of the Cayman Companies Act, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Business Combination Agreement.

Concurrently with the Closing, Pubco, SPAC, the Sponsor and certain securityholders listed therein will enter into the A&R Registration Rights Agreement, pursuant to which Pubco will (i) assume the registration obligations of SPAC under such registration rights agreement, with such rights applying to the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and (ii) provide registration rights with respect to the resale of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock held by the Sponsor and certain other parties identified therein. The A&R Registration Rights Agreement provides for customary demand registration rights, piggyback registration rights, and shelf registration rights for the benefit of the certain securityholders listed therein, subject to customary cutbacks and issuer suspension rights. It also includes customary provisions relating to underwriting participation, registration expenses, indemnification, and coordination of sales in underwritten offerings. The A&R Registration Rights Agreement will become effective upon the Closing and will supersede SPAC's existing registration rights agreement in its entirety.

Pubco estimates that up to an aggregate of approximately 39,426,545 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, consisting of (i) 9,432,524 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding 15,120,318 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon conversion of Pubco Class C Common Stock, and 61,607 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon exercise of warrants, in each case held by Sponsor, (ii) 155,000 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon exercise of warrants held by certain SPAC shareholders, (iii) 3,365,416 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by Contributor, (iv) 1,327,146 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by the Contributor Related Party Entity, (v) 9,481,664 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by the Advance Funding Subscribers, and (vi) 482,870 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by the Delayed Funding Subscribers, will be subject to registration rights following the Transactions and the consummation of the Private Placement Investments, assuming, among other things, that neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, that no Public Shareholders exercise redemption rights with respect to their Public Shares upon completion of the Transactions, that all Private Placement Investors fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, that Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, that the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, that the Closing XRP Price is $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026), that no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the Incentive Plan, and neither Ripple nor any Private Placement Investor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market.

Concurrently with the Closing, Ripple, the Contributor Related Party Entity, the Sponsor and the SPAC Insiders will enter into the Lock-Up Agreements, pursuant to which such parties agree that the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants received by them in connection with the Transactions, and any shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon the exercise of Pubco Warrants or the conversion or exchange of Pubco Class C Common Stock or Company Units, will be locked-up and subject to transfer restrictions, subject to certain exceptions.

The Business Combination Agreement

Merger Consideration and the Mergers

Company Merger

On the Closing Date, when the Company Certificate of Merger has been duly accepted for filing by the Delaware Secretary of State in accordance with the DLLCA (or such other time as specified in the Company Certificate of Merger), by virtue of the Company Merger and without any further action on the part of any party to the Business Combination Agreement, each issued and outstanding Company Unit will automatically be cancelled and cease to exist in exchange for the right to receive from Pubco one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock; provided that (i) the aggregate number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issued to Ripple will be reduced by (x) the 10 Company Units held by Ripple as of the date of the Business Combination Agreement (prior to giving effect to the Contribution) and (y) the number of shares of Pubco Stock held by Ripple immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, subject to certain limitations on the initial holdings of Ripple and certain related entities as further set forth in the Business Combination Agreement, and (ii) thereafter, if the completion of the Company Merger and the other Transactions (including any substantially concurrent investments by the XRP Investors at Closing) would result in the Contributor Related Beneficially Owning Pubco Stock that has a combined voting power in Pubco in excess of 9.9% of the total voting power of Pubco, the Company Units held by Ripple will be converted, in the aggregate, to (x) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that, when taken together with any shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock subscribed for by the other Contributor Related, would result in the Contributor Related Beneficially Owning Pubco Stock with a combined voting power in Pubco equal to 9.9% of the total voting power of Pubco and (y) the number of units of the Company Surviving Subsidiary that is equal to the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock forgone by the Contributor Related pursuant to this proviso.

In addition, all of the Company Merger Sub Units issued and outstanding immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time will be converted into a number of units of the Company Surviving Subsidiary equal to the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding immediately following the Company Merger Effective Time.

The Sponsor also agreed to forfeit, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor. The Sponsor will exchange its remaining SPAC Private Warrants for Pubco Warrants, which will have substantially the same terms as the SPAC Private Warrants.

At the Company Merger Effective Time, all of the shares of Pubco Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time will remain outstanding as shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

SPAC Merger

By virtue of the SPAC Merger and without any action on the part of any Party or the holders of securities of SPAC, Pubco or SPAC Merger Sub:

(i) immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time, each SPAC Unit issued and outstanding immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time will be automatically detached and the holder thereof shall be deemed to hold one SPAC Class A Share and one-half of one SPAC Public Warrant;

(ii) each SPAC Warrant outstanding immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time will cease to be a warrant with respect to SPAC Class A Shares and will be assumed by Pubco and converted into a warrant to purchase one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock, which will be subject to substantially the same terms and conditions as were applicable to such SPAC Warrant immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time;

(iii) at the SPAC Merger Effective Time, each SPAC Class A Share issued and outstanding immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time (excluding SPAC Class A Shares redeemed prior to the SPAC Domestication and SPAC Common Shares owned by SPAC as treasury shares immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time) will be converted automatically into one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock, following which, all such SPAC Class A Shares will cease to be outstanding and will be automatically cancelled and will cease to exist;

(iv) immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time, all issued and outstanding SPAC Class B Shares (other than SPAC Common Shares owned by SPAC as treasury shares immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time) will be converted automatically into SPAC Class A Shares, following which, all SPAC Class B Shares will cease to be outstanding and will be canceled and will cease to exist;

(v) at the SPAC Merger Effective Time, each issued and outstanding SPAC Class A Share that was issued in the SPAC Domestication to a holder that has validly exercised redemption rights with respect to each such SPAC Class A Share prior to the SPAC Domestication will automatically be cancelled and will cease to exist and thereafter represent only the right to receive a pro rata share of the aggregate amount payable with respect to all redemptions of SPAC Class A Shares;

(vi) at the SPAC Merger Effective Time, if there are any SPAC Common Shares that are owned by SPAC as treasury shares immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time, such SPAC Common Shares will be automatically canceled and will cease to exist without any conversion thereof or payment therefor; and

(vii) at the SPAC Merger Effective Time, all SPAC Merger Sub Common Shares (as defined in the Business Combination Agreement) issued and outstanding immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time will be converted into an equal number of shares of common stock, par value $0.0001, of the SPAC Surviving Subsidiary.

Representations and Warranties

The Business Combination Agreement contains customary representations and warranties of the parties, which will not survive the Closing other than certain specified representations set forth in the Business Combination Agreement. Many of the representations and warranties are qualified by materiality or Material Adverse Effect. "Material Adverse Effect" as used in the Business Combination Agreement means with respect to any specified Person, any fact, event, occurrence, change or effect that has had, or would reasonably be expected to have, individually or in the aggregate, a material adverse effect on (i) the business, assets, Liabilities, results of operations or condition (financial or otherwise) of such Person and its Subsidiaries, taken as a whole, or (ii) the ability of such Person or any of its Subsidiaries to consummate the Transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement or the Ancillary Agreements to which it is a party or bound or to perform its obligations under the Business Combination Agreement or the Ancillary Agreements. Certain of the representations are subject to specified exceptions and qualifications contained in the Business Combination Agreement or in information provided pursuant to certain disclosure schedules to the Business Combination Agreement.

The following changes or effects (by themselves or when aggregated with others) are not considered a Material Adverse Effect:

- General changes in financial or securities markets (including interest rates) or general economic or political conditions in the country or region where the party or its subsidiaries do business.
- Changes, conditions, or effects that generally affect the industries or markets in which the party or its subsidiaries principally operate.
- Changes in the price or trading volume of XRP.
- Any proposal, enactment, or change in interpretation of, or any other change in, applicable laws, GAAP, or other applicable accounting principles.
- Conditions caused by acts of God, natural disasters, terrorism (including cyberterrorism), war (whether or not declared and including cyber warfare), cyberattacks, escalation of hostilities, geopolitical conditions, local, national or international political conditions or an epidemic or pandemic, or the effects of governmental actions in response to them.
- The taking of any action required by the terms of the Business Combination Agreement or any Ancillary Agreement.

- Any failure by the party and its subsidiaries to meet internal or published budgets, projections, forecasts, or predictions of financial performance for any period.

The exceptions in the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, and seventh bullet points above will be taken into account in determining whether a Material Adverse Effect has occurred to the extent that such event has a disproportionate and adverse effect on the Party or its Subsidiaries compared to other similarly situated participants in the same industries.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, with respect to SPAC, the amount of the redemption or the failure to obtain the Required Shareholder Approval shall not in and of itself be deemed to be a Material Adverse Effect on or with respect to SPAC (provided that the underlying causes of any such redemption or failure to obtain the Required Shareholder Approval may be considered in determining whether a Material Adverse Effect has occurred or would reasonably be expected to occur to the extent not excluded by another exception herein.

- no additional representations and warranties, except as expressly set forth in any Ancillary Agreement.

Covenants

As described in further detail below, the Business Combination Agreement also contains certain covenants of the Parties, which do not survive the Closing (other than those that are to be performed after the Closing). Certain of the covenants are subject to specified exceptions and qualifications contained in the Business Combination Agreement or in information provided pursuant to certain disclosure schedules to the Business Combination Agreement.

Conduct of Business Prior to Closing the Company, Pubco and the Merger Subs

During the Interim Period, the Company, Pubco and the Merger Subs agreed to (i) only engage in activities relating to the initial organization and commencement of their respective operations, and, in the case of the Company, the Contribution and holding or acquiring XRP, (ii) to comply in all material respects with all laws applicable to them and their respective businesses and assets and (iii) to take all commercially reasonable measures necessary or appropriate to preserve intact, in all material respects, their respective business organizations, and to preserve the possession, control and condition of their respective material assets.

In addition, during the Interim Period, the Company, Pubco and the Merger Subs agreed not to, without the prior written consent of SPAC:

- amend, waive or otherwise change their respective organizational documents;
- form any Subsidiary;
- authorize for issuance, issue, grant, sell, pledge, dispose of or propose to issue, grant, sell, pledge or dispose of any of its equity securities or any options, warrants, commitments, subscriptions or rights of any kind to acquire or sell any of its equity securities, or other securities, including any securities convertible into or exchangeable for any of its shares or other equity securities or securities of any class and any other equity-based awards, or engage in any hedging transaction with a third Person with respect to such securities unless pursuant to an Additional Permitted Financing;
- split, combine, recapitalize or reclassify any of its shares or other equity interests or issue any other securities in respect thereof or pay or set aside any dividend or other distribution (whether in cash, equity or property or any combination thereof) in respect of its equity interests, or directly or indirectly redeem, purchase or otherwise acquire or offer to acquire any of its securities;
- make or rescind any material election related to taxes, settle any action related to taxes, file any amended tax return or claim for refund, or make any material change in its accounting or tax policies or procedures, subject to certain exceptions;
- incur, create, assume, guarantee, prepay or otherwise become liable for any indebtedness for borrowed money in excess of $250,000 individually or $500,000 in the aggregate, in each case, (a) except for any actions that are on commercially reasonable terms that were negotiated on an arm's length basis or which do not adversely impact SPAC (or would reasonably be expected to adversely impact the Company Surviving Subsidiary and the SPAC Surviving Subsidiary) and (b) other than pursuant to any contract with Ripple or any of its Affiliates;
- sell, lease, license (other than non-exclusive licenses granted in the ordinary course of business), transfer, exchange or swap, mortgage or otherwise pledge or encumber (including securitizations), or otherwise dispose of any material portion of its properties, assets or rights;
- adopt a plan of complete or partial liquidation, dissolution, merger, consolidation, restructuring, recapitalization or other reorganization;
- enter into, materially amend, waive any material term of or terminate (other than terminations in accordance with their terms) any material transaction with Ripple or any of its Affiliates, other than offer compensation and benefits and advancement of expenses to any Person that is an Affiliate of Ripple, any such action that is on commercially reasonable terms and was negotiated on an arm's length basis or any such action which does not adversely impact SPAC (or would reasonably be expected to adversely impact the Company Surviving Subsidiary and the SPAC Surviving Subsidiary) in any material respect;
- amend, waive or terminate the Contribution Agreement, subject to certain exceptions;
- take any action that would reasonably be expected to significantly delay or impair the obtaining of any consents of any governmental authority obtained in connection with the Business Combination Agreement;
- pay cash compensation to employees or other individual service providers of Pubco, the Company or the Merger Subs in excess of $10,000,000 in the aggregate;
- authorize or agree to do any of the foregoing actions; and
- solely with respect to the Company, issue any Company Units (other than pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement or an Ancillary Agreement), and no Company Member shall sell, transfer or dispose of any Company Unit owned by such Company Member.

In addition, during the Interim Period, each Ripple agreed not to sell, transfer or dispose of any Company Units owned by such Ripple without the prior written consent of SPAC.

Conduct of Business Prior to Closing by SPAC

During the Interim Period, SPAC agreed to (i) conduct its business in all material respects in the ordinary course of business, (ii) comply with all applicable laws applicable to it and its businesses, assets and employees and (iii) take all commercially reasonable measures necessary or appropriate to preserve intact, in all material respects, its business organizations.

In addition, during the Interim Period, SPAC agreed not to and to cause its Subsidiaries not to, without the prior written consent of Pubco:

- amend, waive or otherwise change its organizational documents;
- authorize for issuance, issue, grant, sell, pledge, dispose of or propose to issue, grant, sell, pledge or dispose of any of its equity securities or any options, warrants, commitments, subscriptions or rights of any kind to acquire or sell any of its equity securities, or other securities, including any securities convertible into or exchangeable for any of its equity securities or other security interests of any class and any other equity-based awards, or engage in any hedging transaction with a third person with respect to such securities;
- split, subdivide, combine, consolidate, recapitalize or reclassify any of its shares or other equity interests or issue any other securities in respect thereof or pay or set aside any dividend or other distribution (whether in cash, equity or property or any combination thereof) in respect of its shares or other equity interests, or directly or indirectly redeem, purchase or otherwise acquire or offer to acquire any of its securities;
- subject to certain exceptions, incur, create, assume, prepay, repay or otherwise become liable for any indebtedness (directly, contingently or otherwise), fees or expenses in excess of $250,000 individually or $500,000 in the aggregate, make a loan or advance to or investment in any third party, or guarantee or endorse any indebtedness, Liability or obligation of any person;
- make or rescind any material election relating to taxes, settle any action relating to taxes, file any amended tax return or claim for refund, or make any material change in its tax accounting or tax policies or procedures, in each case except as required by applicable law or make any material change in its accounting policies, except as required to comply with GAAP;
- amend, waive or otherwise change the Trust Agreement;
- subject to certain exceptions, amend or otherwise modify, terminate, waive or assign or delegate (as applicable) any right or obligation under any SPAC Material Contract or enter into any new contract that would be a SPAC Material Contract;
- unless otherwise required by the express terms of the Sponsor Support Agreement, enter into, renew, amend, waive or terminate (other than terminations in accordance with their terms) any contracts, arrangements or transactions with any related person, including any ancillary document to which SPAC or any related person is a party;
- fail to maintain its books, accounts and records in all material respects in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice;
- establish any Subsidiary or enter into any new line of business;
- revalue any of its material assets or make any change in accounting methods, principles or practices, except to the extent required to comply with GAAP, and after consulting SPAC's outside auditors;
- subject to certain exceptions, waive, release, assign, settle or compromise any action (including any action relating to the Business Combination Agreement or the Transactions) or otherwise pay, discharge or satisfy any actions, liabilities or obligations, unless such amount has been reserved in SPAC's financial statements;

- acquire, including by merger, consolidation, acquisition of equity interests or assets, or any other form of business combination, any corporation, company, partnership, limited liability company, other business organization or any division thereof, or any material amount of assets outside the ordinary course of business;
- adopt a plan of complete or partial liquidation, dissolution, merger, consolidation, restructuring, recapitalization or other reorganization (other than with respect to the SPAC Domestication and/or the SPAC Merger);
- subject to certain exceptions, voluntarily incur any liability or obligation (whether absolute, accrued, contingent or otherwise) in excess of $250,000 individually or $500,000 in the aggregate;
- sell, lease, license, transfer, exchange or swap, mortgage or otherwise pledge or encumber (including securitizations), or otherwise dispose of any material portion of its properties, assets or rights;
- take any action that would reasonably be expected to significantly delay or impair the obtaining of any consents of any governmental authority to be obtained in connection with the Business Combination Agreement; or
- authorize or agree to do any of the foregoing actions.

Exclusivity

During the Interim Period, the Parties agreed not to, directly or indirectly, solicit, knowingly assist, initiate, continue or knowingly facilitate the making, submission or announcement of, or intentionally encourage, any Acquisition Proposal. Acquisition Proposals include any inquiry, proposal or offer, or any indication of interest in making an offer or proposal, from any Person or group at any time relating to (i) with respect to the Company, Pubco, the Merger Subs, Ripple and their respective Affiliates, a transaction (other than the Transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement and any Ancillary Agreement) concerning the sale of all or substantially all of the business or assets of Pubco and its Subsidiaries, taken as a whole, whether such transaction takes the form of a sale of the shares or other equity interests in Pubco or the Company, assets, merger, consolidation, issuance of debt securities, joint venture or partnership, or otherwise and (ii) with respect to SPAC and its Affiliates, a transaction (other than the Transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement) concerning a Business Combination of, by or involving SPAC. The Parties also agreed not to provide non-public information or enter into any negotiations or agreements that could lead to an Acquisition Proposal. If any Party receives an Acquisition Proposal, such Party is expected to promptly notify the other Parties and keep them informed of any developments.

Registration Statement

Pubco agreed to (i) prepare, with reasonable assistance from SPAC and other parties, and, as promptly as practicable after completion of the Company's audited financial statements, file with SEC the Registration Statement which will also include a proxy statement for soliciting proxies from SPAC shareholders to vote on the Proposals at the Extraordinary General Meeting and (ii) take all reasonable and necessary actions to satisfy legal requirements in connection with this Registration Statement, the Extraordinary General Meeting, and the redemption process for eligible Public Shareholders.

Subject to the immediately following paragraph, SPAC agreed that the SPAC Board will not change, withdraw, withhold, qualify or modify its recommendation to the SPAC shareholders that they vote in favor of (i) the approval of the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions, (ii) the approval of the SPAC Merger, (iii) the approval of the SPAC Domestication, the Plan of Domestication and the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation and (iv) the adoption and approval of such other matters as Ripple, the Company, Pubco and SPAC mutually determine to be necessary to effect the Transactions ("Modification in Recommendation").

However, SPAC Board may, at any time prior to, but not after, obtaining the SPAC shareholder approval, make a Modification in Recommendation with respect to SPAC's recommendation that SPAC shareholders vote in favor of the SPAC Shareholder Approval Matters in response to an Intervening Event (as defined below) if the SPAC Board determines in good faith, based on the advice of outside legal counsel, that the failure to take such action would be a breach of the fiduciary duties of the SPAC Board under applicable law, subject to certain notice requirements and other exceptions. An "Intervening Event" includes, among other things and without limitation, any material and negative event after the date of the Business Combination Agreement that was not known and was not reasonably foreseeable to the SPAC Board as of the date of the Business Combination Agreement and does not relate to and excludes, whether alone or in combination, any Acquisition Proposal or Alternative Transaction, the Transactions, the Business Combination Agreement, any Ancillary Agreement or any change in the price or trading volume of SPAC Class A Shares, any action filed or threated against SPAC or any member of the SPAC Board arising out of or related to the Transactions, and any change, event, circumstance, occurrence, effect, development or state of facts that is excluding in determining whether a Material Adverse Effect with respect to the Company has occurred or would reasonably be expected to occur pursuant to specified clauses of the definition thereof. Once this Registration Statement is effective, SPAC agreed, as soon as practicable to set a record date.

Once this Registration Statement is effective, SPAC agreed, as soon as practicable to set a record date and distribute the Registration Statement to SPAC shareholders and then call and convene the Extraordinary General Meeting for a date that is mutually acceptable to Pubco and SPAC and that complies with SPAC's organizational documents. The Company and SPAC agreed to bear all fees, costs and expenses incurred by any Party in connection with the filing of the Registration Statement with the SEC and submitting a listing application for Pubco Class A Common Stock to Nasdaq or other applicable securities exchange.

Post-Closing Pubco Board of Directors and Executive Officers

The parties agreed to take all necessary actions so that effective as of the Closing, (i) Pubco's board of directors (the "Pubco Board") will consist of (x) one director designed by SPAC that is reasonably acceptable to Pubco and (y) other persons who are designated by Ripple, at least two of whom will be required to qualify as an independent director under Nasdaq rules, and (ii) the persons listed in the disclosure schedules to the Business Combination Agreement or such other persons as are designated by Ripple, are elected or appointed, as applicable, to such positions of officers of Pubco, to serve in such positions, in each case until successors are duly appointed and qualified in accordance with the Pubco A&R Organizational Documents and applicable law.

Indemnification of Directors and Officers and Tail Insurance

The parties agreed that all rights to exculpation, indemnification and advancement of expenses existing in favor of the current or former directors and officers of SPAC, the Company, Pubco or the Merger Subs (the "D&O Indemnified Persons") as provided in their respective organizational documents or under any indemnification, employment or other similar agreements between any D&O Indemnified Person and SPAC, the Company, Pubco or the Merger Subs, in each case as in effect on the date of the Business Combination Agreement, will survive the Closing and continue in full force and effect in accordance with their respective terms to the extent permitted by applicable law. Pubco further agreed that it will uphold all rights and obligations contained in the indemnification agreements of the former director and officers of SPAC. For a period of six years after the Company Merger Effective Time, Pubco will cause the organizational documents of Pubco, the Company Surviving Subsidiary and the SPAC Surviving Subsidiary to contain provisions no less favorable with respect to exculpation and indemnification of and advancement of expenses to D&O Indemnified Persons than are set forth as of the date of the Business Combination Agreement in the organizational documents of SPAC, the Company, Pubco and the Merger Subs, to the extent permitted by applicable law. This covenant survives the Closing.

In addition, from and after the Closing, Pubco has agreed to, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, indemnify and hold harmless, and provide advancement of expenses to, each of the D&O Indemnified

Persons from, against and in respect of any and all costs, expenses (including reasonable expenses of investigation and court costs and attorneys' fees and expenses), judgments, fines, losses, penalties, claims, amounts paid in settlement, damages or liabilities paid, suffered, incurred by, or imposed upon and such D&O indemnified Person that are based upon, arise out of, result from, or are in connection with, in whole or in part, directly or indirectly, any action, whether civil, criminal, administrative or investigative, arising out of or pertaining to (i) any action or omission in such D&O Indemnified Person's capacity as a director or officer of SPAC, the Company, Pubco or the Merger Subs, occurring or alleged to have occurred at or prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, whether asserted or claimed prior to, at or after the Company Merger Effective Time, provided that, Pubco shall only be responsible for such amounts and liabilities from and after the Company Merger Effective Time and (ii) any shareholder action relating to the SPAC Board's failure to make a Modification in Recommendation.

Prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time, SPAC has agreed to obtain, and Pubco has agreed to fully pay the premium for, subject to certain limitations, a "tail" insurance policy under SPAC's existing insurance policy for the benefit of SPAC's directors and officers and the Sponsor (to the extent covered under SPAC's existing insurance policy) that provides coverage for up to a six-year period from and after the SPAC Merger Effective Time for events occurring prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time, on terms substantially equivalent to and in any event not less favorable in the aggregate than SPAC's existing coverage, subject to certain limitations.

Other Covenants

The Business Combination Agreement contains other covenants and agreements, including covenants related to:

- the Company, Pubco and the Merger Subs, subject to certain specified restrictions and conditions, providing SPAC and its representatives reasonable access to their offices, facilities, employees, contracts, books, records and other information as reasonably requested;
- SPAC, subject to certain specified restrictions and conditions, providing Ripple, the Company and Pubco and their representatives reasonable access to SPAC's offices, facilities, employees, contracts, books, records and other information as reasonably requested;
- the Company and Pubco delivering annual and interim financial statements to SPAC and Ripple on the dates specified in the Business Combination Agreement;
- SPAC keeping current and timely filing all reports required to be filed or furnished with the SEC and otherwise complying in all material respects with its reporting obligations under applicable securities laws;
- the Company, Pubco, the Merger Subs and Ripple not trading SPAC securities while in possession of material non-public information;
- to the extent the Company is a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes, the Company having an effective election under Section 754 of the Code in effect for the taxable year that includes the Closing Date;
- each party giving prompt notice to the other parties of, among other matters, (i) any material breach of the Business Combination Agreement or any representation, warranty or covenant thereof, (ii) any event or development that would reasonably be expected to prevent or materially delay the Closing, and (iii) any material litigation, investigation or proceeding initiated or threatened against such party or its Affiliates with respect to the consummation of the Transactions;
- each party using its reasonable best efforts and to cooperate fully with the other parties to take all actions and do all things necessary, proper or advisable to consummate the transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement;

- subject to the terms set forth therein, confidentiality and publicity relating to the Business Combination Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby;
- use of funds in the Trust Account;
- the Company and Ripple using reasonable best efforts to complete the Contribution within four Business Days of the date of the Business Combination Agreement;
- the Parties reasonably cooperating with Pubco to cause the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants to be issued in connection with the Mergers to be approved for listing on Nasdaq as of the Closing Date;
- the parties taking all necessary actions to cause the SPAC Units, SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants to be delisted from Nasdaq as of the Closing Date and to terminate SPAC's registration with the SEC as soon as possible following the Closing Date;
- at or prior to the Closing, Pubco amending and restating its organizational documents so that the articles of incorporation of Pubco are substantially in form attached as Exhibit O to the Business Combination Agreement and the bylaws of Pubco are on terms that are satisfactory to the Company and SPAC, each acting reasonably;
- effective as of Closing, SPAC, Pubco and Ripple amending and restating the Sponsor Registration Rights Agreement substantially in the form of the A&R Registration Rights Agreement;
- within 10 Business Days after the funding of the Advance Funding, Pubco using its reasonable best efforts to purchase a number of XRP, placing the Purchased XRP into the Pubco Digital Wallets, not selling or transferring the Purchased XRP or the Pubco Digital Wallets and using its reasonable best efforts to maintain exclusive control over the Pubco Digital Wallets;
- prior to the Closing, the Pubco Board will approve and adopt the Incentive Plan and ESPP, subject to the approval of Pubco stockholders as constituted prior to the Closing;
- the Company, Pubco, Ripple and certain Ripple Affiliate Investors entering into a Tax Receivable Agreement effective as of the Closing; and
- Immediately after the Closing, Pubco, the SPAC Surviving Subsidiary and the Company Surviving Subsidiary each contributing substantially all of its assets to the Company in exchange for Company Units.

Conditions to the Parties' Obligations to the Closing

Conditions to Each Party's Obligations (subject to written waiver by Ripple and SPAC where permissible)

The obligations of each party to consummate (or cause to be consummated) the Transactions are subject to the satisfaction or waiver of the following mutual conditions:

- approval by the SPAC shareholders of the Condition Precedent Proposals (the "Required Shareholder Approval");
- any required waiting periods (including any extension thereof) applicable to the consummation of the Mergers under the HSR Act shall have terminated or expired;
- the consummation of the Transactions not being prohibited by applicable law;
- the effectiveness of the Registration Statement;
- the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants having been approved for clearing through DTC (subject to DTC's customary eligibility criteria) and approved for listing on Nasdaq, the New York Stock Exchange or another national securities exchange; and
- SPAC having net tangible assets equal to or exceeding $5,000,001 as of the Closing Date.

Conditions to Obligations of the Company, Pubco, the Merger Subs and Ripple (subject to written waiver by Ripple)

The obligations of the Company, Pubco, the Merger Subs and Ripple to consummate (and cause to be consummated) the Transactions are subject to the satisfaction or waiver of the following conditions:

- the representations and warranties of SPAC being true and correct, subject to the applicable materiality standards contained in the Business Combination Agreement;
- material compliance by SPAC with its applicable pre-closing covenants;
- there having been no occurrence of a Material Adverse Effect since the date of the Business Combination Agreement which is continuing with respect to SPAC;
- the Sponsor having performed in all material respects its obligations required under the Sponsor Support Agreement;
- SPAC having completed the SPAC Domestication at least one Business Day prior to the Closing Date;
- the Advance Funding Subscribers and Delayed Funding Subscribers having contributed an amount of XRP at least equivalent to the amounts of XRP committed in the Advance Funding and Delayed Funding, respectively;
- the Available Transaction Cash as of the Closing Date being equal to or exceeding the amount of cash committed by the Advance Funding Subscribers and Delayed Funding Subscribers pursuant to the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements and the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements, respectively; and
- SPAC having delivered its Closing deliverables.

Conditions to Obligations of SPAC (subject to written waiver by SPAC)

The obligations of SPAC to consummate (or cause to be consummated) the Transactions are subject to the satisfaction or waiver of the following conditions:

- the representations and warranties of the Company, Pubco, the Merger Subs and Ripple being true and correct, subject to the applicable materiality standards contained in the Business Combination Agreement;
- material compliance by the Company, Pubco, the Merger Subs and Ripple with their respective pre-closing covenants;
- there having been no occurrence of a Material Adverse Effect since the date of the Business Combination Agreement which is continuing with respect to Pubco or the Company;
- completion of the Contribution; and
- each of Pubco (and, as applicable, the Merger Subs), the Company and Ripple having delivered their respective Closing deliverables.

Each of the conditions to the Closing under the Business Combination Agreement may be waived by the parties other than the approval by SPAC shareholders of the Condition Precedent Proposals.

None of SPAC, Pubco, the Company, SPAC Merger Sub, Company Merger Sub or Ripple currently expects to waive any immaterial or material condition to the consummation of the Business Combination. If SPAC determines to waive any material condition to the consummation of the Business Combination and such waiver renders the disclosure in this proxy statement/prospectus materially misleading, or requires under applicable law the approval of Public shareholders, proxies will be resolicited from the Public shareholders.

Termination and Effects of Termination

The Business Combination Agreement contains certain termination rights for different parties. If the Business Combination Agreement is validly terminated pursuant to the following grounds, the Business Combination Agreement will become void, and there will be no liability on the part of any of the parties thereto or their respective representatives except in the case of willful breach of any representation, warranty, covenant or obligation under the Business Combination Agreement or fraud of a party thereto. However, confidentiality, waiver of claims against the Trust Account and certain other technical provisions will continue in effect notwithstanding termination if the Business Combination Agreement. No party is required to pay a termination fee or reimburse any other party for its expenses as a result of a termination of the Business Combination Agreement.

Mutual Termination Rights

The Business Combination Agreement may be terminated and the Transactions may be abandoned at any time prior to the Closing as follows:

- by mutual written consent of SPAC and Pubco;
- subject to certain limitations, by SPAC or Pubco if any of the conditions to the Closing under the Business Combination Agreement have not been satisfied or waived by the first anniversary of the Business Combination Agreement;
- subject to certain limitations, by SPAC or Pubco, if a governmental authority has issued a final and non-appealable order or taken any other action permanently restraining, enjoining or otherwise prohibiting the Transactions;
- by SPAC or Pubco, if the Extraordinary General Meeting is held and has concluded, SPAC shareholders have duly voted, and the Required Shareholder Approval was not obtained.

Pubco's Termination Rights

The Business Combination Agreement may be terminated and the Transactions may be abandoned by Pubco:

- if, subject to certain limitations, SPAC has materially breached any of its representations, warranties, covenants or agreements contained in the Business Combination Agreement or if any representation or warranty of SPAC has become materially untrue or materially inaccurate and such breach or inaccuracy is incapable of being cured or is not cured within the time frame described under the Business Combination Agreement; or
- if there has been a Modification in Recommendation.

SPAC's Termination Rights

The Business Combination Agreement may be terminated and the Transactions may be abandoned by SPAC if, subject to certain limitations, the Company, Pubco, the Merger Subs or Ripple has materially breached any of its representations, warranties, covenants or agreements contained in the Business Combination Agreement or if any representation or warranty of the Company, Pubco, the Merger Subs or Ripple has become materially untrue or materially inaccurate and such breach or inaccuracy is incapable of being cured or is not cured within the time frame described under the Business Combination Agreement.

Trust Account Waiver

Each of the Company, Pubco, the Merger Subs and Ripple agreed that it and its affiliates will not have any right, title, interest or claim of any kind in or to any monies in SPAC's Trust Account held for its public shareholders, and agreed not to, and waived any right to, make any claim against the Trust Account (including any distributions therefrom).

Amendments

The Business Combination Agreement may be amended or modified only by execution of a written instrument signed by each of SPAC, Pubco, the Merger Subs, the Company and Ripple.

Specific Performance

The parties agreed that they will be entitled to seek an injunction or restraining order to prevent breaches of the Business Combination Agreement and to seek to enforce specifically the terms and provisions thereof, in each case, without posting a bond or other security and without proof of damages, which rights are in addition to any other remedy to which they are entitled at law or in equity.

Other Transaction Agreements

The Sponsor Support Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, SPAC entered into the Sponsor Support Agreement, pursuant to which, among other things, the Sponsor agreed to (a) vote its SPAC Common Shares in favor of the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions and each of the proposals to be approved by SPAC shareholders at the Extraordinary General Meeting, (b) vote its SPAC Common Shares against (i) any Acquisition Proposal or Alternative Transaction, (ii) any merger, consolidation, combination, sale of substantial assets, reorganization, recapitalization, dissolution, liquidation or winding up of or by SPAC (other than the Transactions), (iii) any change in the business of SPAC, and (iv) any proposal, action or agreement involving SPAC that would or would reasonably be expected to impede, frustrate, prevent or nullify the Business Combination Agreement or any Ancillary Agreement, (c) during the Interim Period, comply with the restrictions imposed by the Insider Letter, including the restrictions on redeeming SPAC Common Shares in connection with the Transactions and complying with the transfer restrictions with respect to its SPAC Common Shares and SPAC Private Warrants, (d) subject to and conditioned upon the Closing, waive any anti-dilution rights in connection with the Transactions that would otherwise result in the SPAC Class B Shares converting into SPAC Class A Shares on a greater than one-for-one basis, (e) subject to and conditioned upon the Closing, effective as of the Closing, waive and forever discharge all Claims (as defined below) against the SPAC, Pubco, the Company and each of their respective and each of its and their past and present directors, officers, employees, agents, predecessors, successors, assigns, Affiliates and Subsidiaries, provided that nothing releases, waives or discharges any claim for fraud or the specific categories of claims expressly preserved in the Sponsor Support Agreement (including claims under the Sponsor Support Agreement or any other Ancillary Agreement, rights to receive Pubco securities thereunder, and indemnification rights) and (f) immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit for no consideration 120,000 SPAC Class A Shares, 2,364,000 SPAC Class B Shares and 60,000 SPAC Private Warrants.

On August 12, 2026, SPAC, Pubco and Sponsor entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Sponsor Support Agreement for purposes of adjusting the number of SPAC Class A Shares, SPAC Class B Shares and Private Placement Warrants that will be forfeited by Sponsor at the Company Merger Effective Time. Specifically, Amendment No. 1 to the Sponsor Support Agreement provides that Sponsor will forfeit to SPAC for cancellation and for no consideration the Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares, the Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares and the Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants.

For the purposes of the preceding paragraph, “Claims” mean all past or present claims, demands, damages, debts, judgments, causes of action and liabilities of any nature whatsoever, whether or not known, suspected or claimed, arising directly or indirectly from any act, omission, event or transaction occurring (or any circumstances existing) at or prior to the Closing.

For more information about the Sponsor Support Agreement, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Other Transaction Agreements—Sponsor Support Agreement." A copy of the Sponsor Support Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex J.

Joinder Agreement

On August 28, 2025, the Sponsor entered that certain joinder to insider letter agreement and registration rights agreement (the "Joinder"). Pursuant to the Joinder, the Sponsor agreed, with effect from the date of the Joinder, to join as a party a letter agreement, dated May 20, 2025, among SPAC, the Original Sponsor and each of the directors and officers of the Company (the "Insider Letter"), and to that certain Registration Rights Agreement, dated May 20, 2025, among SPAC, the Original Sponsor, CCM, Northland and the other Holders (as defined therein) signatory thereto (the "Registration Rights Agreement"). Pursuant to the Insider Letter, the Sponsor and each of the directors and officers of SPAC have agreed, in each case as set forth therein, to vote in favor of SPAC's initial business combination; to facilitate the liquidation and winding up of SPAC if an initial business combination is not consummated within 18 months from the closing of the IPO or such later period approved by SPAC's shareholders; to certain transfer restrictions with respect to SPAC's securities; and, as to Sponsor, to certain indemnification obligations. The Registration Rights Agreement provides for customary demand and piggy-back registration rights for the Holders, as well as certain transfer restrictions applicable to the Holders with respect to the securities of SPAC that they hold.

Waiver to Insider Letter

On August 28, 2025, SPAC and certain other parties entered into a waiver agreement with respect to the Insider Letter pursuant to which the parties thereto irrevocably waived certain provisions of the Insider Letter to the extent, but only to the extent, necessary or desirable to facilitate the purchase of the New Sponsor Purchase by the Sponsor from the Original Sponsor.

Contribution Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Ripple, Pubco and the Company entered into the Contribution Agreement, pursuant to which Ripple contributed to the Company the "Contributed XRP" in the "Initial Contribution", in exchange for the Company issuing to Ripple the Contributor Subscribed Units equal to the Contributor Initial Subscribed Units. At Closing, the Company may also issue to Ripple the Contributor Adjustment Units, if any.

Prior to and effective upon closing, Pubco, Ripple and the Contributor Related Party Entity will enter into the Company A&R LLCA.

The Contribution Agreement may be terminated prior to the Closing as follows: (a) by the mutual written consent of the parties thereto and SPAC; or (b) automatically with no further action required by the parties thereto if the Business Combination Agreement is terminated in accordance with its terms. A copy of the Contribution Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex K.

On August 12, 2026, Ripple, Pubco and the Company entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Contribution Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Contributor Subscribed Units. The amendment subjects the initial unit calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-unit adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. A copy of Amendment No. 1 to the Contribution Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex W.

Advance Funding Subscription Agreements

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into Advance Funding Subscription Agreements with certain Advance Funding Subscribers, pursuant to which the Advance Funding Subscribers agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, the Advance Funding Shares for $214.05 million in cash and a contribution of 600,000 XRP tokens in a private placement, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and each Advance Funding Subscriber entered into Amendment No. 1 to the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Advance Funding Shares. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial share calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-share adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. Under the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, as amended, each Advance Funding Subscriber will receive a number of Advance Funding Shares at the closing of the Advance Funding equal to the sum of (a) the Advance Funding Initial Subscribed Shares and (b) the Advance Funding Adjustment Shares, if any.

In addition to the changes reflected by Amendment No. 1 above, on August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and each of the SBI Stockholders further amended the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreements. The purpose of each SBI Entity Amendment is to apply a 39.9% ownership limitation to the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable in respect of SBI's Advance Funding Subscription. At the Transaction Closing, Pubco will issue in respect of SBI's subscription (i) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would cause the Subscriber Group Ownership Percentage (as defined in the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreement, as amended) to equal 39.9% and (ii) the balance of the Subscribed Shares as shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock. This allocation will not change the aggregate number of Subscribed Shares, the aggregate Subscription Price or the Per Share Price, which will be identical for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock. The shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock will be convertible into shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock in accordance with the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter.

Prior to the execution of the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, Pubco established the necessary custodial arrangements for both cash and XRP contributions, including entering into cash and digital asset custody agreements with third-party custodians and liquidity providers. Each Advance Funding Subscriber was required to fund its subscription amount either (i) in cash, by wire transfer of U.S. dollars to a segregated cash custody account maintained for the benefit of Pubco, or (ii) in XRP, by transfer to a designated digital wallet maintained with an independent XRP custodian. Following receipt of any cash Advance Funding Subscription proceeds, Pubco, on behalf of the Advance Funding Subscribers, instructed its cash custodian to transfer such proceeds (net of customary transaction and network fees) to its XRP custodian for use in purchasing XRP at then-prevailing market prices from one or more liquidity providers. In aggregate, the Company purchased 84,365,876.3625 XRP tokens with the cash proceeds from the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements. Such purchased XRP, together with any XRP originally contributed by the Private Placement Investors, are being held in escrow in an unencumbered digital custody wallet maintained in the name of Pubco but for the benefit of all such Private Placement Investors, pending completion of the Business Combination.

Pursuant to the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, Pubco has agreed to use commercially reasonable efforts to file a registration statement registering the resale of the Advance Funding Shares (at Pubco's sole cost and expense) within 30 calendar days following the Closing Date and to use commercially reasonable efforts to have such registration statement declared effective as soon as practicable, and in any event no later than 75 calendar days after the Closing Date, subject to an extension in the event of SEC review.

Each Advance Funding Subscription Agreement will terminate and be void and of no further force or effect upon the earliest to occur of (i) the termination of the Business Combination Agreement in accordance with its terms, (ii) the date that is twelve months from the date of each such Advance Funding Subscription Agreement or (iii) the mutual written agreement of the parties thereto.

The description of the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full and complete terms of the form of Advance Funding Subscription Agreements which is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex M and Annex N. Copies of Amendments No. 1 to the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements are attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex X and Annex Y, respectively.

Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements with the Delayed Funding Subscribers, pursuant to which the Delayed Funding Subscribers agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, the Delayed Funding Shares for $10.5 million in cash and a contribution of 200,000 XRP, in a private placement, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. Delayed Funding Subscribers will receive a number of Delayed Funding Shares at the closing of the Delayed Funding equal to the quotient of (i) the Delayed Funding Subscription Price and (ii) $10.00.

Pursuant to the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements, Pubco has agreed to use commercially reasonable efforts to file a registration statement registering the resale of the Delayed Funding Shares (at Pubco's sole cost and expense) within 30 calendar days following the Closing Date and to use commercially reasonable efforts to have such registration statement declared effective as soon as practicable, and in any event no later than 75 calendar days after the Closing Date, subject to an extension in the event of SEC review.

Each Delayed Funding Subscription Agreement will terminate and be void and of no further force or effect upon the earliest to occur of (i) the termination of the Business Combination Agreement in accordance with its terms, (ii) the date that is twelve months from the date of each such Delayed Funding Subscription Agreement or (iii) the mutual written agreement of the parties thereto.

The net cash proceeds from the Delayed Funding, along with funds from the Trust Account, will be used to pay or reimburse expenses in accordance with the Business Combination Agreement. The remaining proceeds will be disbursed to the Company or Pubco and used for working capital, general corporate purposes and the purchase of XRP. As of the Record Date, there was approximately $241.9 million in the Trust Account. For a discussion of the amount of cash expected to be in the Trust Account following the payment of estimated fees and expenses incurred in connection with the Transactions and in the event of no Redemptions by Public Shareholders, 25% Redemptions by Public Shareholders, 50% Redemptions by Public Shareholders, 75% Redemptions by Public Shareholders and 100% Redemptions, by Public Shareholders see the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Summary of the Proxy Statement/Prospectus—Sources and Use of Funds by Pubco for the Transactions".

The description of the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full and complete terms of the form of Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements which is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex O and Annex P.

Series C Subscription Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into the Series C Subscription Agreement with the Sponsor, pursuant to which the Sponsor agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, Series C Subscribed Shares for 211,319,096.061435 XRP tokens, in a PIPE, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and the Sponsor entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Series C Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Series C Subscribed Shares. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial share calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-share adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. The Sponsor will receive (i) a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would result in the Series C DQ Persons (as defined below) owning, immediately after the Transaction Closing and the other related transactions, a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would cause the Series C DQ Persons to be the beneficial owners (as defined in Rule 13d-3 or 13d-5 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act"), or any successor statute or regulation) of capital stock of Pubco such that the Series C Attributed Ownership Percentage (as defined below) equals 19.9% and (ii) a number of shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock equal to the number of Series C Subscribed Shares minus the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issued to the Sponsor pursuant to clause (i). Under the Series C Subscription Agreement, as amended, the total Series C Subscribed Shares will equal the sum of (a) the Series C Initial Subscribed Shares and (b) the Series C Adjustment Shares, if any.

The Sponsor was required to transfer its subscription amount in XRP to a digital wallet designated by Pubco and maintained with an independent XRP custodian. Prior to executing the Series C Subscription Agreement, Pubco put in place the necessary custodial arrangements for the Sponsor's XRP contribution, including entering into a digital asset custody agreement with a third-party custodian.

Pursuant to the Series C Subscription Agreement, Pubco has agreed to use commercially reasonable efforts to file a registration statement registering the resale of the Series C Subscribed Shares (at Pubco's sole cost and expense) within 30 calendar days following the Closing Date and to use commercially reasonable efforts to have such registration statement declared effective as soon as practicable, and in any event no later than 75 calendar days after the Closing Date, subject to an extension in the event of SEC review.

Each Series C Subscription Agreement will terminate and be void and of no further force or effect upon the earliest to occur of (i) the termination of the Business Combination Agreement in accordance with its terms, (ii) the date that is twelve months from the date of the Series C Subscription Agreement or (iii) the mutual written agreement of the parties thereto.

The description of the Series C Subscription Agreement is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full and complete terms of the form of the Series C Subscription Agreement which is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex L. A copy of Amendment No. 1 to the Series C Subscription Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex Z.

Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement with the Contributor Related Party Entity, pursuant to which the Contributor Related Party Entity purchased and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests for an aggregate contribution of 50 million XRP tokens in a private placement, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and the Contributor Related Party Entity entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial equity-interest calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-equity-interest adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. The Contributor Related Party Entity will not receive a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would result in the Contributor Group Holders collectively owning, immediately after the Transaction Closing and the other related transactions, a number of shares that would cause the Contributor Group Ownership Percentage (as defined below) to exceed 9.9% and, to the extent the number of shares issued to the Contributor Group Holders is reduced as a result of the foregoing, the Contributor Related Party Entity will receive a number of Company Units equal to the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests minus the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Shares. Under the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, as amended, the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests will equal the sum of (a) the Contributor Related Party Entity Initial Subscribed Equity Interests and (b) the Contributor Related Party Entity Adjustment Equity Interests, if any. Prior to and effective upon closing, Pubco, Ripple and the Contributor Related Party Entity will enter into the Company A&R LLCA.

The Contributor Related Party Entity was required to transfer its subscription amount in XRP to a digital wallet designated by Pubco and maintained with an independent XRP custodian. Prior to executing the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, Pubco and the Company put in place the necessary custodial arrangements for the Contributor Related Party Entity's XRP contribution, including entering into a digital asset custody agreement with a third-party custodian.

Pursuant to the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, Pubco has agreed to use commercially reasonable efforts to file a registration statement registering the resale of the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests (at Pubco's sole cost and expense) within 30 calendar days following the Closing Date and to use commercially reasonable efforts to have such registration statement declared effective as soon as practicable, and in any event no later than 75 calendar days after the Closing Date, subject to an extension in the event of SEC review.

Each Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement will terminate and be void and of no further force or effect upon the earliest to occur of (i) the termination of the Business Combination Agreement in accordance with its terms, (ii) the date that is twelve months from the date of each such Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement or (iii) the mutual written agreement of the parties thereto.

The description of the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full and complete terms of the form of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement which is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex Q. A copy of Amendment No. 1 to the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex AA.

Lock-Up Agreements

Concurrently with the Closing, Ripple, the Contributor Related Party Entity, the Sponsor, the SPAC Insiders and certain other parties will enter into the Lock-Up Agreements with Pubco, pursuant to which such parties will agree that the Restricted Securities, will be locked-up and subject to transfer restrictions, as described below, subject to certain exceptions. The Restricted Securities will be locked up until the earlier of (a) the Anniversary Release; and (b) the date on which Pubco consummates a liquidation, merger, capital stock exchange, reorganization or other similar transaction after the Closing which results in all of Pubco's stockholders having the right to exchange their shares of Pubco common stock for cash, securities or other property.

The foregoing lock-up restrictions do not apply to the following permitted transfers so long as the transferee of such permitted transfer executes and delivers to Pubco an agreement stating that the transferee is receiving and holding the Restricted Securities subject to the provisions of the Lock-Up Agreements and that the Restricted Securities will not be further transferred (except in accordance with the Lock-Up Agreements):

(i) in the case of an entity, transfers (A) to another entity that is an Affiliate of the holder, (B) as part of a distribution to members, partners or stockholders of the holder, (C) to officers or directors of the holder, any Affiliate or family member of any holder's officers or directors, or to any members, officers, directors or employees of the holder or any of its Affiliates and (D) by virtue of the laws of the state of the entity's organization and the entity's organizational documents upon dissolution or liquidation of the entity;

(ii) in the case of an individual, transfers (A) by gift to members of the individual's immediate family or to a trust, the beneficiary of which is a member of one of the individual's immediate family or an Affiliate of such person, (B) by virtue of laws of descent and distribution upon death of the individual or for bona fide estate planning purposes and (C) pursuant to a qualified domestic relations order;

(iii) to a charitable organization;

(iv) in connection with certain tax or estate planning transactions;

(v) transfers to satisfy any U.S. federal, state, or local income tax obligations of the holder (or its direct or indirect owners) to the extent necessary to cover any tax liability as a direct result of the Transactions;

(vi) transfers in the form of a pledge of Restricted Securities in a bona fide transaction as collateral to secure obligations pursuant to lending or other financing arrangements between the holder (or its Affiliates), on the one hand, and a third party, on the other hand, for the benefit of such holder and/or its Affiliates, provided, however, that during the period the Restricted Securities are locked-up, such third party shall not be permitted to foreclose upon such Restricted Securities or otherwise be entitled to enforce its rights or remedies with respect to the Restricted Securities, including, without limitation, the right to vote, transfer or take title to or ownership of such Restricted Securities; or

(vii) transfers to Pubco

The description of the Lock-Up Agreements is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full and complete terms of the form of Lock-Up Agreements which is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex G.

Tax Receivable Agreement

Future taxable redemptions or exchanges by the TRA Parties of Company Units for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock or cash, as well as other transactions described herein, are expected to result in tax basis adjustments to the assets of the Company and thus produce favorable tax attributes allocable to us. These tax attributes would not be available to us in the absence of those transactions. The anticipated tax basis adjustments are expected to reduce the amount of tax that we would otherwise be required to pay in the future.

Concurrently with the Closing of the Business Combination Agreement, we will enter into the Tax Receivable Agreement with the TRA Parties and the Company, which will provide for the payment by us to the TRA Parties of 85% of the amount of cash savings, if any, in U.S. federal, state and local income tax or franchise tax that we actually realize as a result of (i) any increase in tax basis in the Company's consolidated assets resulting from (a) the acquisition of Company Units from the TRA Parties using the net proceeds from any future offering, (b) redemptions or exchanges by the TRA Parties of Company Units for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock or cash in the future or (c) payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement, and (ii) tax benefits related to imputed interest resulting from payments made under the Tax Receivable Agreement. The remaining 15% of any such cash savings will remain for Pubco's own benefit.

We expect that, as a result of the increases in the tax basis of the assets of the Company attributable to the redeemed or exchanged Company Units, the payments that we may make to the existing Pre-IPO LLC Members could be substantial. The actual payments we will be required to make under the Tax Receivable Agreement, will depend on a number of factors, including the market value of Pubco Class A Common Stock at the time of redemption or exchange, the prevailing federal tax rates applicable to us over the life of the Tax Receivable Agreement (as well as the assumed combined state and local tax rate), the amount and timing of the taxable income that we generate in the future and the extent to which future redemptions, exchanges or purchases of Company Units are taxable transactions.

Payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement are not conditioned on the TRA Parties' continued ownership of us. There may be a material negative effect on our liquidity if, as described below, the payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement exceed the actual benefits we receive in respect of the tax attributes subject to the Tax Receivable Agreement and/or distributions to us by the Company are not sufficient to permit us to make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement.

In addition, the TRA Parties will not reimburse us for any payments previously made if such tax basis increases or other tax benefits are subsequently disallowed by the IRS, except that any excess payments made to the TRA Parties will be netted against future payments otherwise to be made under the Tax Receivable Agreement, if any, after our determination of such excess. As a result, in such circumstances we could make payments to the TRA Parties under the Tax Receivable Agreement that are greater than our actual cash tax savings and may not be able to recoup those payments, which could negatively impact our liquidity.

In addition, the Tax Receivable Agreement provides that (1) in the event that we breach any of our material obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement, (2) upon certain changes of control or (3) if, with the written approval of a majority of our independent directors, we elect an early termination of the Tax Receivable Agreement, our obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement (with respect to all Company Units, whether or not Company Units have been exchanged or acquired before or after such transaction) would accelerate and become payable in a lump sum amount equal to the present value of the anticipated future tax benefits calculated based on certain assumptions, including that we would have sufficient taxable income to fully utilize the deductions arising from the tax deductions, tax basis and other tax attributes subject to the Tax Receivable Agreement. These provisions in the Tax Receivable Agreement may result in situations where the TRA Parties have interests that differ from or are in addition to those of our other stockholders. In addition, we could be required to make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement that are substantial and materially in excess of our, or a potential acquirer's, actual cash savings in income tax.

Finally, because we are a holding company with no operations of our own, our ability to make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement is dependent on the ability of the Company to make distributions to us. To the extent that we are unable to make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement for any reason, such payments will be deferred and will accrue interest until paid at a rate of SOFR plus 500 basis points and nonpayment may constitute a breach of a material obligation under the Tax Receivable Agreement and therefore accelerate payments due under the Tax Receivable Agreement, which could negatively impact our results of operations.

Our obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement will also apply with respect to any person that becomes a party to the Tax Receivable Agreement in the future.

Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement

Concurrently with the Closing, SPAC, Pubco, the Sponsor and certain securityholders listed therein will enter into the Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement ("A&R Registration Rights Agreement") that will amend and restate the registration rights agreement entered into by SPAC, the Original Sponsor and certain other securityholders thereto at the time of the SPAC IPO. For more information about the A&R Registration Rights Agreement, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Other Transaction Agreements—Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement." A copy of the form of A&R Registration Rights Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex E.

Pubco estimates that up to an aggregate of approximately 39,426,545 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, consisting of (i) 9,432,524 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding 15,120,318 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon conversion of Pubco Class C Common Stock, and 61,607 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon exercise of warrants, in each case held by Sponsor, (ii) 155,000 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon exercise of warrants held by certain SPAC shareholders, (iii) 3,365,416 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by Contributor, (iv) 1,327,146 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by the Contributor Related Party Entity, (v) 9,481,664 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by the Advance Funding Subscribers, and (vi) 482,870 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by the Delayed Funding Subscribers, will be subject to registration rights following the Transactions and the consummation of the Private Placement Investments, assuming, among other things, that neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, that no Public Shareholders exercise redemption rights with respect to their Public Shares upon completion of the Transactions, that all Private Placement Investors fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, that Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, that the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, that the Closing XRP Price is $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026), that no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the Incentive Plan, and neither Ripple nor any Private Placement Investor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market.

Evernorth Holdings Inc. 2026 Omnibus Incentive Plan

Prior to the consummation of the Mergers, Pubco will approve and adopt the Incentive Plan, subject to approval by Pubco's stockholders prior to the Closing. The Incentive Plan will be administered by the Pubco Board or the compensation committee of the Pubco Board. Employees, non-employee directors and individual consultants will be eligible to be selected by the administrator to receive awards under the Incentive Plan. Awards may comprise stock options, restricted stock units, restricted stock, and other cash- and stock-based awards.

The number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock initially reserved for issuance under the Incentive Plan will be equal to 10% of the total number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding as of the Closing (as determined on a fully-diluted basis) and the Incentive Plan will include an automatic annual increase to such share reserve, beginning with the first fiscal year of Pubco following the year in which the Closing occurs and ending with the fiscal year of Pubco that is nine (9) years thereafter, equal to the lesser of (x) 5% of the total number of shares of all classes of Pubco common stock outstanding on the last day of the immediately preceding fiscal year of Pubco or (y) a lesser number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock determined by the Pubco Board or a duly authorized committee of the Pubco Board in its discretion.

In the event of certain corporate transactions, the administrator will, as it deems equitable and proportionate, adjust any or all of the following so as to ensure no undue enrichment or harm:

- the number and type of shares of common stock (or other securities) which thereafter may be the subject of awards;
- the number and type of shares of common stock (or other securities) subject to outstanding awards (including the identity of the issuer);
- the grant, purchase or hurdle price with respect to any award or, if deemed appropriate, make provision for a cash payment to the holder of an outstanding award; and
- the terms and conditions of any outstanding award, including the performance criteria applicable to any performance awards.

The Incentive Plan will be effective at Closing, subject to approval by the Pubco stockholders as constituted prior to the Closing, and will automatically terminate after the earliest to occur of (i) the 10-year anniversary of the effective date, (ii) the maximum number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock available for issuance under the Incentive Plan have been issued, and (iii) the Pubco Board terminates the plan. The Pubco Board may amend, alter, suspend, discontinue or terminate the Incentive Plan or any portion thereof at any time; provided, however, that no such amendment, alteration, suspension, discontinuation or termination shall be made without (i) stockholder approval if such approval is required by applicable law or the rules of the stock market or exchange, if any, on which the Pubco Class A Common Shares are principally quoted or traded or (ii) subject to the terms of the Incentive Plan, the consent of the affected participant, if such action would materially adversely affect the rights of such participant under any outstanding award, except (x) to the extent any such amendment, alteration, suspension, discontinuance or termination is made to cause the Incentive Plan to comply with applicable law, stock market or exchange rules and regulations or accounting or tax rules and regulations or (y) to impose any "clawback" or recoupment provisions on any awards.

Pubco intends to file a registration statement on Form S-8 to register the number of shares of PubCo Class A Common Stock reserved for issuance under the Incentive Plan on or as soon as reasonably practicable following the Closing Date.

The above summary of the Incentive Plan is qualified in its entirety by the full text of the Incentive Plan, a copy of which is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex S.

Evernorth Holdings Inc. 2026 Employee Stock Purchase Plan

Prior to the consummation of the Mergers, Pubco will approve and adopt the ESPP, subject to approval by Pubco's stockholders prior to the Closing. The ESPP will include both a component intended to qualify under Section 423 of the Code and a non-Section 423 component, which is not intended to qualify under Section 423 of the Code. Employees of Pubco and its eligible subsidiaries who are customarily employed for at least 20 hours per week and more than five months in any calendar year will be eligible to purchase shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock at a discount through payroll deductions during the designated offering periods. The ESPP will be administered by the Pubco Board or the compensation committee of the Pubco Board.

The number of Pubco Class A Common Stock initially reserved for issuance under the ESPP will be equal to 2% of the total number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding as of the Closing (as determined on a fully-diluted basis) and the ESPP will include an automatic annual increase to such share reserve, beginning with the first fiscal year of Pubco following the year in which the Closing occurs and ending with the fiscal year of Pubco that is nine (9) years thereafter, equal to the lesser of (x) 1% of the total number of shares of all classes of Pubco common stock outstanding on the last day of the immediately preceding fiscal year of Pubco or (y) a lesser number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock determined by the Pubco Board or a duly authorized committee of the Pubco Board in its discretion.

In the event of certain corporate transactions, the administrator shall, in such manner as it deems appropriate, equitably and proportionally adjust (i) the number and class of shares that may be delivered under the ESPP, the purchase price per share and the number of shares covered by each outstanding option under the ESPP, and the number of shares available for issuance under the ESPP and the maximum number of shares that any participant may purchase during an offering period.

The ESPP will be effective at Closing, subject to approval by Pubco stockholders as constituted prior to the Closing. The ESPP will automatically terminate on the earlier of the 10th anniversary of the effective date or the date that the administrator terminates the ESPP. The administrator may, in its sole discretion, amend, suspend or terminate the ESPP at any time and for any reason. If the ESPP is terminated, the administrator may elect to terminate all outstanding offering periods either immediately or once shares have been purchased on the next purchase date (which may, in the discretion of the administrator, be accelerated) or permit offering periods to expire in accordance with their terms. If any offering period is terminated before its scheduled expiration, all amounts that have not been used to purchase shares will be returned to participants (without interest, except as otherwise required by law) as soon as administratively practicable.

Pubco intends to file a registration statement on Form S-8 to register the number of shares of PubCo Class A Common Stock reserved for issuance under the ESPP on or as soon as reasonably practicable following the Closing Date.

The above summary of the ESPP is qualified in its entirety by the full text of the ESPP, a copy of which is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex T.

THE MERGER PROPOSAL

Overview

SPAC is asking that its shareholders vote to approve, by special resolution, a proposal to authorize and approve the SPAC Merger pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement. If approved by the SPAC shareholders, the SPAC Merger will be effected following the completion of the SPAC Domestication.

Reasons for the SPAC Merger

The approval of the SPAC Merger by shareholders is not required under the SPAC Charter or Cayman Islands law, as the SPAC Merger will occur after SPAC ceases to be a Cayman Islands company. However, because the SPAC Merger will be effected after the effectiveness of the SPAC Domestication, the SPAC Merger must be approved pursuant to the applicable provisions of the DGCL. Pursuant to Section 388 of the DGCL, the SPAC Merger will be deemed authorized, adopted, and approved by SPAC Delaware and the board of directors and stockholders thereof, and shall not require any further action by such board of directors or stockholders if the SPAC Merger is approved pursuant to the Plan of Domestication in accordance with Cayman Islands law and the SPAC Charter. Consequently, the SPAC Board is asking SPAC shareholders to approve the SPAC Merger by special resolution. Furthermore, the approval of the Merger Proposal is a condition to the adoption of the Business Combination Proposal and vice versa. Shareholders are being asked to adopt the Merger Proposal to facilitate the consummation of the Business Combination and to satisfy the requirements of Section 388 of the DGCL. Shareholders should note that the SPAC Merger will occur under the DGCL and not the Cayman Companies Act.

As further described in the Business Combination Proposal, as a result of the SPAC Merger, SPAC Delaware will no longer be a blank check company with public reporting obligations with the SEC. Shareholders of SPAC will become stockholders of Pubco in connection with the Transactions, upon the terms and subject to the conditions of the Business Combination Agreement.

Resolution to Be Voted Upon

The full text of the resolution to be passed is as follows:

"RESOLVED, as a special resolution,

a) that, conditional upon and following its registration as a corporation under the laws of the State of Delaware and its change of name to "Arrington Capital SPAC I Inc." in each case in accordance with the Plan of Domestication attached to the proxy statement/prospectus as Annex B, Armada Acquisition Corp. II ("SPAC") be authorized to merge with Evernorth Corporate Merger Sub Inc. ("SPAC Merger Sub"), so that SPAC be the surviving company and all the undertaking, property and liabilities of the SPAC Merger Sub vest in SPAC as the surviving company by virtue of such merger, pursuant to Sections 251 and 388 of the Delaware General Corporation Law, as applicable."

Required Vote and Recommendation of the SPAC Board

The approval of the Merger Proposal requires a special resolution, being the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the Merger Proposal at the Extraordinary General Meeting. Abstentions and broker non-votes, while considered present for the purposes of establishing a quorum, will not count as votes cast at the Extraordinary General Meeting and otherwise will have no effect on a particular proposal.

Each of the Merger Proposal and the Domestication Proposal is conditioned on the approval of the Business Combination Proposal and vice versa. Therefore, if the Business Combination Proposal is not approved, the Merger Proposal and the Domestication Proposal will have no effect, even if approved by the requisite holders of SPAC Common Shares.

As of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus, the Sponsor has agreed to vote the SPAC Common Shares owned by them in favor of the Merger Proposal. As of the Record Date, the Sponsor owns 26.2% of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares. SPAC's officers and directors do not hold any Public Shares, but may purchase Public Shares at any time, subject to compliance with law and SPAC's trading policies. As a result, in addition to approval by the Sponsor, CCM and Northland, approval of the Merger Proposal will require the affirmative vote of at least 12,470,000 SPAC Common Shares held by Public Shareholders (or approximately 54.2% of the Public Shares) if all SPAC Common Shares are represented at the Extraordinary General Meeting and cast votes, and the Sponsor would be able to approve the Merger Proposal alone if only such shares as are required to establish a quorum are represented at the Extraordinary General Meeting and cast votes.

The SPAC Board believes that the Merger Proposal to be presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting is in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders.

THE SPAC BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT SPAC SHAREHOLDERS VOTE "FOR" THE APPROVAL OF THE MERGER PROPOSAL.

The existence of financial and personal interests of one or more of SPAC's directors may result in a conflict of interest on the part of such directors(s) between what such director may believe is in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders and what such director may believe is best for themselves in determining to recommend that shareholders vote for the proposals. The Sponsor and SPAC's officers also have interests in the Transactions that may be different from, or in addition to, your interests as a Public Shareholder. See the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions" for a further discussion of these considerations.

Appraisal Rights and Dissenters' Rights

Under section 238 of the Cayman Companies Act, shareholders of a Cayman Islands company ordinarily have dissenters' rights with respect to a statutory merger that occurs under that legislation. The Cayman Companies Act prescribes when shareholder dissenters' rights will be available and sets the limitations on such rights. Where such rights are available, shareholders are entitled to receive fair value for their shares. However, as the SPAC Merger will occur after the SPAC Domestication has been completed and pursuant to the DGCL, those provisions of the Cayman Companies Act will not apply. Accordingly, neither holders of SPAC Common Shares nor holders of SPAC Warrants have appraisal rights or dissenters' rights in respect of such securities with respect to the Transactions under the Cayman Companies Act. Additionally, as the SPAC Merger is being effected by SPAC Delaware and will be authorized pursuant to and in accordance with Section 388 of the DGCL, such holders will not have appraisal rights under the DGCL in respect of the SPAC Merger. Holders of record of Public Shares are still entitled to exercise the rights of redemption as detailed in this proxy statement/prospectus and the SPAC Board has determined that the redemption proceeds payable to holders of record of Public Shares who exercise such redemption rights represent the fair value of those shares. See the sections titled "The Domestication Proposal—Appraisal Rights and Dissenters' Rights" and "The Merger Proposal—Appraisal Rights and Dissenters' Rights" for additional information.

THE DOMESTICATION PROPOSAL

Overview

Assuming each of the Condition Precedent Proposals, including the Business Combination Proposal, is approved, SPAC is seeking shareholder approval of the Domestication Proposal. The approval of the Domestication Proposal is a condition to the Closing under the Business Combination Agreement. If the Domestication Proposal is approved, but the Business Combination Proposal is not approved, then neither the SPAC Domestication nor the Business Combination will be consummated.

As a condition to Closing, the SPAC Board has unanimously approved a change of SPAC's jurisdiction of incorporation by de-registering as an exempted company in the Cayman Islands and continuing and domesticating as a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware. In accordance with the Plan of Domestication, to effect the SPAC Domestication, SPAC will file an application to de-register with the Cayman Registrar, together with the necessary accompanying documents, and file the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation and a certificate of corporate domestication with the Secretary of State of the State of Delaware, under which SPAC will be domesticated and continue as a Delaware corporation. In connection with the SPAC Domestication and prior to the Business Combination, SPAC will be renamed Arrington Capital SPAC I Inc.

In connection with the SPAC Domestication: (i) each then issued and outstanding Class A ordinary share, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC shall convert automatically into one share of Class A common stock, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC Delaware; (ii) each then issued and outstanding Class B ordinary share, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC shall convert automatically into one share of Class B common stock, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC Delaware; (iii) each then issued and outstanding SPAC Warrant shall convert automatically into a warrant to acquire one share of Class A common stock, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC Delaware on the same terms as the SPAC Warrant; and (iv) each then issued and outstanding SPAC Unit shall convert automatically into one unit of SPAC Delaware that entitles the holder to one share of Class A common stock, par value $0.0001 per share, of SPAC Delaware and one-half of one SPAC Warrant of SPAC Delaware.

The Domestication Proposal, if approved, will authorize a change of SPAC's jurisdiction of incorporation from the Cayman Islands to the State of Delaware. Accordingly, while SPAC is currently governed by the Cayman Companies Act, upon the SPAC Domestication, SPAC Delaware will be governed by the DGCL, the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation and the proposed bylaws of SPAC Delaware ("Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws" and together with the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation, the "Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents"). SPAC encourages shareholders to carefully consult the information set out below under "-Comparison of Shareholder Rights under Applicable Corporate Law Before and After Domestication."

Reasons for the SPAC Domestication

The SPAC Board believes that there are significant advantages to SPAC that will arise as a result of a change of domicile to Delaware. Further, the SPAC Board believes that any direct benefit that SPAC will realize as a result of such change will benefit Pubco, the owner of SPAC following the Transactions, and the shareholders of SPAC, who will be stockholders of Pubco following the Transactions.

SPAC will function principally as a holding company following the Transactions that owns interests in the Company. The Company, in turn, will be a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes that operates a business in the United States. The SPAC Domestication will permit both Pubco to hold its interest in SPAC and SPAC to hold its interest in the Company in a materially more tax efficient manner. Specifically, the SPAC Domestication will permit the SPAC to avoid being subject to withholding taxes on the income of the Company, avoid additional income inclusions for Pubco, and materially simplify the tax reporting and compliance for the Company, SPAC and Pubco. The SPAC Domestication will also streamline the legal and regulatory compliance of Pubco by eliminating the need to maintain compliance functionality in the Cayman Islands, a jurisdiction that will have no connection to the operations of Pubco, SPAC or the Company following the Transactions. Accordingly, the Domestication is expected to result in material cost savings to Pubco, SPAC and the Company going forward.

Reasons for the Name Change

The SPAC Board believes that it would be in the best interests of SPAC to, in connection with the SPAC Domestication and the Business Combination, change its corporate name to Arrington Capital SPAC I Inc. in order to facilitate the Business Combination.

Regulatory Approvals; Third-Party Consents

SPAC is not required to make any filings or to obtain any approvals or clearances from any antitrust regulatory authorities in the United States or other countries in order to complete the SPAC Domestication. However, because the SPAC Domestication must occur in connection with the Business Combination, it will not occur unless the Business Combination can be completed, which will require the approvals as described under the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal." SPAC must comply with applicable U.S. federal and state securities laws in connection with the SPAC Domestication.

The SPAC Domestication will not breach any covenants or agreements binding upon SPAC and will not be subject to any additional federal or state regulatory requirements, except compliance with the laws of the Cayman Islands and Delaware necessary to effect the SPAC Domestication.

Proposed Certificate of Incorporation and Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws

Commencing with the effective time of the SPAC Domestication, the DGCL the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation and the proposed bylaws of SPAC Delaware ("Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws") will govern the rights of stockholders in SPAC Delaware.

A chart comparing your rights as a holder of SPAC Common Shares as a Cayman Islands exempted company with your rights as a holder of SPAC Delaware's Class A common stock, par value $0.0001 per share, or SPAC Delaware's Class B common stock, par value $0.0001 per share, as applicable, can be found below.

Shareholder/Stockholder Written Consent in Lieu of a Meeting	The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter provides that action required or permitted to be taken at any annual or special meeting of stockholders may only be taken upon a vote of stockholders at an annual or special meeting of stockholders duly noticed and called in accordance with the corporation's bylaws and the NRS and may not be taken by written consent of stockholders without a meeting.	The SPAC Charter provides that shareholder resolutions may be passed by a vote in person, or where proxies are allowed by proxy at a general meeting, or by unanimous written resolution.
Classified Board	The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter provides that except as otherwise provided in the terms of any series of Pubco Preferred Stock entitled to separately elect directors, the directors shall be divided into three classes, designated Class I, Class II and Class III with each director serving for a three-year term. The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter also provides that the Board, by resolution, shall determine the number of directors on the Board.	The SPAC Charter provides that SPAC's board of directors will be divided into three classes with only one class of directors being appointed in each year and each class (except for those directors appointed prior to SPAC's first annual general meeting) serving a three-year term. The SPAC Charter also provides that there shall be a board of directors consisting of not less than one person provided however that subject to the requirement to have at least one director, the directors may from time to time fix the maximum and minimum number of directors to be appointed by resolution of the board of directors.
Corporate Name	Pubco's corporate name is Evernorth Holdings Inc.	The name of the company is Armada Acquisition Corp. II.
Perpetual Existence	The NRS provides that any Nevada corporation, unless otherwise provided in its articles of incorporation, has perpetual existence. The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter does not provide otherwise.	The SPAC Charter provides that, unless such time frame is extended by a special resolution of shareholders or the SPAC Board determines to wind up the SPAC earlier (in each case in accordance with the SPAC Charter), if SPAC does not consummate a business combination within 18 months from the consummation of the IPO, SPAC shall cease all operations except for the purpose of winding up and shall redeem the shares issued in the IPO and liquidate the Trust Account.

	Pubco (Post-Closing)	SPAC
Takeovers by Interested Stockholders	Pubco has elected in the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter not to be governed by Nevada's Combinations with Interested Stockholders statutes (NRS 78.411 through 78.444, inclusive). Pubco has also elected in the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws that Nevada's Acquisitions of Controlling Interest statutes (NRS 78.348 through 78.3793, inclusive) shall not apply to Pubco or to any acquisition of its shares.	The SPAC Charter does not provide for any anti-takeover provisions however the SPAC Charter does (i) provide for a the issuance of up to 1,000,000 preference shares with such designations, rights and preferences as may be determined from time to time by the SPAC Board and (ii) provide that, unless such time frame is extended by a special resolution of shareholders or the SPAC Board determines to wind up the SPAC earlier (in each case in accordance with the SPAC Charter) if SPAC does not consummate a business combination within 18 months from the consummation of the IPO, SPAC shall cease all operations except for the purpose of winding up and shall redeem the shares issued in the IPO and liquidate the Trust Account.
Provisions Related to Status as Blank Check Company	Not applicable.	The SPAC Charter sets forth that the business combination must not be solely effectuated with another blank check company or similar company with nominal operations.
Fiscal Year End	Pubco's fiscal year ends on December 31.	SPAC's fiscal year ends on September 30.

Comparison of Shareholder Rights under Applicable Corporate Law Before and After SPAC Domestication

When the SPAC Domestication is completed, the rights of stockholders of SPAC Delaware will be governed by Delaware law, including the DGCL, rather than by the laws of the Cayman Islands. Certain differences exist between the DGCL and the Cayman Companies Act that will alter certain of the rights of shareholders of SPAC and affect the powers of the SPAC Delaware Board and management following the SPAC Domestication.

Shareholders should consider the following summary comparison of the material differences between the rights of shareholders under the laws of the Cayman Islands, on the one hand, and the DGCL, on the other. This comparison is not intended to be complete and is qualified in its entirety by reference to the DGCL and the Cayman Companies Act.

The owners of a Delaware corporation's shares are referred to as "stockholders." For purposes of language consistency, in certain sections of this proxy statement/prospectus, we may continue to refer to the share owners of SPAC as "shareholders."

Provision	Delaware	Cayman Islands
Applicable legislation	General Corporation Law of the State of Delaware	The Companies Act (as amended) of the Cayman Islands

Provision	Delaware	Cayman Islands
General Vote Required for Combinations with Interested Stockholders/ Shareholders	Generally, a corporation may not engage in a business combination with an interested stockholder for a period of three years after the time of the transaction in which the person became an interested stockholder, unless the corporation opts out of the statutory provision or the other statutory exceptions are met.	No similar provision
Appraisal Rights	Generally, a stockholder of a publicly traded corporation does not have appraisal rights in connection with a merger. Stockholders of a publicly traded corporation do, however, generally have appraisal rights in connection with a merger if they are required by the terms of a merger agreement to accept for their shares anything except: (a) shares or depository receipts of the corporation surviving or resulting from such merger; (b) shares of stock or depository receipts that will be either listed on a national securities exchange or held of record by more than 2,000 holders; (c) cash in lieu of fractional shares or fractional depository receipts described in (a) and (b) above; or (d) any combination of the shares of stock, depository receipts and cash in lieu of fractional shares or fractional depository receipts described in (a), (b) and (c) above.	Under certain circumstances, shareholders may dissent from a merger of a Cayman Islands company by following the procedure set out in the Cayman Companies Act. Shareholders that dissent from a merger are entitled to be paid the fair value of their shares, which, if necessary, may ultimately be determined by the courts of the Cayman Islands. These rights of are not available in certain circumstances, for example, to dissenters holding shares of any class in respect of which an open market exists on a recognized stock exchange or recognized interdealer quotation system at the relevant date or where the consideration for such shares to be contributed are shares of any company listed on a national securities exchange or shares of the surviving or consolidated company.
Requirements for Stockholder/Shareholder Approval	Subject to the certificate of incorporation, stockholder approval of mergers, a sale of all or substantially all the assets of the corporation, dissolution and amendments of constitutional documents require a majority of the voting power of the outstanding shares; unless otherwise specified in the corporation's certificate of incorporation or bylaws, most other stockholder approvals require the affirmative vote of a majority of the voting power of the shares present and entitled to vote on the subject matter, provided a quorum is present. The Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws will provide that except as otherwise provided by law, SPAC Delaware's certificate of incorporation, SPAC Delaware's bylaws or the rules of any applicable stock exchange on which SPAC	Subject to the articles of association, matters which require shareholder approval, whether under the Cayman Companies Act or the company's articles of association, are determined (subject to quorum requirements, the Cayman Companies Act, applicable law and the relevant articles of association) by "ordinary resolution", being a resolution passed by a simple majority of such shareholders as, being entitled to do so, vote in person (including virtually) or, where proxies are allowed, by proxy at a general meeting of the company, or by "special

However, a company may in its articles of association specify that the required majority shall be a number greater than two-thirds, and may additionally provide that any such majority (being not less than two-thirds) may differ as between matters required to be approved by a special resolution. For the purposes of the above, where a poll is taken, regard shall be had in computing a majority to the number of votes to which each shareholder is entitled. Under the SPAC Charter, the above two-thirds majority is increased to 90%, unless the amendment is proposed in respect of the consummation of an initial business combination, with respect to any amendment of the provisions that provide that only holders of the SPAC Class B Shares will be entitled to vote on the appointment and removal of directors or continuing SPAC to a jurisdiction outside the Cayman Islands (including any special resolution required to amend its constitutional documents or to adopt new constitutional documents, in each case, as a result of its approving a transfer by way of continuation to a jurisdiction outside the Cayman Islands).

Requirement for Quorum	Quorum is a majority of shares entitled to vote and present at the meeting unless otherwise set in the constitutional documents, but cannot be less than one-third of shares entitled to vote at the meeting. The Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws will provide that the holders of a majority of the voting power of SPAC Delaware's capital stock issued and outstanding and entitled to vote at a meeting of stockholders, present in person or represented by proxy, will constitute a quorum for the transaction of business at all meetings of the stockholders, unless otherwise required by law, SPAC Delaware's certificate of incorporation, SPAC Delaware's bylaws or the rules of any applicable stock exchange on which SPAC Delaware's securities are listed.	Quorum is set in the company's memorandum and articles of association.
Stockholder/ Shareholder Consent to Action Without Meeting	Unless otherwise provided in the certificate of incorporation, stockholders may act by written consent.	Shareholder action by written resolutions (whether unanimous or otherwise) may be permitted by the articles of association, subject to the Cayman Companies Act. The articles of association may provide that shareholders may not act by written resolutions.
Inspection of Books and Records	Any stockholder may inspect the corporation's books and records for a proper purpose during the usual hours for business.	Shareholders generally do not have any rights to inspect or obtain copies of the register of members or other corporate records of a company.
Stockholder/ Shareholder Lawsuits	A stockholder may bring a derivative suit subject to procedural requirements.	In the Cayman Islands, the decision to institute proceedings on behalf of a company is generally taken by the company's board of directors. A shareholder may be entitled to bring a derivative action on behalf of the company only in certain limited circumstances (e.g., where a company acts or proposes to act illegally or ultra vires (beyond the scope of its authority); the act complained of, although not ultra vires, could be effected if duly authorized by a special resolution that has not been obtained; and those who control the company are perpetrating a "fraud on the minority").

Removal of Directors	Any director or the entire board may be removed, with or without cause, by the holders of a majority of the shares then entitled to vote at an election of directors, except as follows: (1) unless the certificate of incorporation otherwise provides, in the case of a corporation with a classified board, stockholders may effect such removal only for cause; or (2) in the case of a corporation having cumulative voting, if less than the entire board is to be removed, no director may be removed without cause if the votes cast against such director's removal would be sufficient to elect such director if then cumulatively voted at an election of the entire board. For so long as the SPAC Delaware Board will be classified, pursuant to the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation, a director may be removed from office only for cause and only by the affirmative vote of at least a majority of the total voting power of the issued and outstanding shares of capital stock of the corporation entitled to vote on the election of directors, voting together as a single class.	A company's memorandum and articles of association may provide that a director may be removed for any or no reason and that, in addition to shareholders, boards may be granted the power to remove a director.
Number of Directors	The number of directors is fixed by, or in the manner provided in, the bylaws, unless the certificate of incorporation fixes the number of directors, in which case a change in the number of directors shall be made only by amendment of the certificate of incorporation. The Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws provide that the number of directors shall be determined from time to time by resolution of a majority of the whole board of directors.	There must be at least one director. Subject to the memorandum and articles of association, the board may increase the size of the board and fill any vacancies.
Classified or Staggered Boards	Classified boards are permitted.	Classified boards are permitted.
Fiduciary Duties of Directors	Directors must exercise a duty of care and duty of loyalty, including good faith to the corporation and its stockholders.	Under Cayman Islands law, directors and officers owe the following fiduciary duties: • duty to act in good faith in what the director or officer believes to be in the best interests of the company as a whole;

		• duty to not improperly fetter the exercise of future discretion; • duty to exercise authority for the purpose for which it is conferred; • duty not to put themselves in a position in which there is a conflict between their duty to the company and their personal interest; and • duty to exercise independent judgment. In addition to fiduciary duties, directors owe a duty of care, diligence and skill. Such duties are owed to the company but may be owed to creditors or shareholders in certain limited circumstances.
Indemnification of Directors and Officers	A corporation is generally permitted to indemnify any person who was or is a party to any proceeding because such person is or was a director, officer, employee or agent of the corporation, or is or was serving at the request of the corporation as a director, officer, employee or agent of another entity against expenses, judgments, fines and amounts paid in settlement actually and reasonably incurred if the person acted in good faith and in a manner reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the corporation, and, with respect to any criminal proceeding, had no reasonable cause to believe their conduct was unlawful. If the action was brought by or on behalf of the corporation, no indemnification is made for judgments, fines or amounts paid in settlement, and no indemnification shall be made in respect of expenses when a person is adjudged liable to the corporation unless a court determines such person is fairly and reasonably entitled to indemnity for expenses the court deems proper.	A Cayman Islands exempted company generally may indemnify its directors or officers, except to the extent any such indemnification may be held by the Cayman Islands courts to be contrary to public policy, such as to provide indemnification against willful default, willful neglect, actual fraud or the consequences of committing a crime.

Limited Liability of Directors and Officers	Permits the limiting or eliminating of the monetary liability of a director or officer to a corporation or its stockholders, except with regard to breaches of duty of loyalty, acts or omissions not in good faith or which involve intentional misconduct or a knowing violation of law, or for any transaction involving an improper personal benefit, or for directors involving unlawful stock repurchases or dividends, or for officers involving any action by or in the right of the corporation. The Proposed Certificate of Incorporation limits the monetary liability of SPAC Delaware's directors and officers for breach of fiduciary duty as a director or officer to the fullest extent permitted by the DGCL.	Liability of directors may be limited, except to the extent any such limitation may be held by the Cayman Islands court to be contrary to public policy, such as with regard to their own willful default, willful neglect, or actual fraud.

Accounting Treatment of the SPAC Domestication

The SPAC Domestication is being proposed solely for the purpose of changing the legal domicile of SPAC. There will be no accounting effect or change in the carrying amount of the assets and liabilities of SPAC as a result of the SPAC Domestication. The business, capitalization, assets and liabilities and financial statements of SPAC immediately following the SPAC Domestication will be the same as those immediately prior to the SPAC Domestication.

Resolution to be Voted Upon

The full text of the resolution to be passed is as follows:

"RESOLVED, as a special resolution, that Armada Acquisition Corp. II ("SPAC") be transferred by way of continuation to the State of Delaware pursuant to Article 48 of the Amended and Restated Articles of Association of SPAC, Part 12 of the Companies Act (as amended) of the Cayman Islands and Section 388 of the Delaware General Corporation Law, as amended, and, immediately upon being de-registered in the Cayman Islands, be continued and domesticated as a corporation under the laws of the State of Delaware and that the Plan of Domestication, attached to the proxy statement/prospectus as Annex B, be approved and adopted pursuant to Section 388 of the Delaware General Corporation Law and conditional upon, and with effect from, the registration of SPAC as a corporation under the laws of the State of Delaware, the name of SPAC be changed from "Armada Acquisition Corp. II" to "Arrington Capital SPAC I Inc."

Required Vote

The approval of the Domestication Proposal requires a special resolution under the Cayman Companies Act and the SPAC Charter, being the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the Domestication Proposal at the Extraordinary General Meeting. Pursuant to the Cayman Companies Act and the SPAC Charter, only the holders of the SPAC Class B Shares are entitled to vote on the Domestication Proposal. Abstentions and broker non-votes, while considered present for the purposes of establishing a quorum, will not count as votes cast at the Extraordinary General Meeting and otherwise will have no effect on a particular proposal.

The Domestication Proposal is conditioned on the approval of each of the Condition Precedent Proposals. Therefore, if any of the Condition Precedent Proposals is not approved, the Domestication Proposal will have no effect, even if approved by the requisite holders of SPAC Common Shares.

As of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus, the Sponsor has agreed to vote the SPAC Common Shares owned by them in favor of the Domestication Proposal. Only the holders of the SPAC Class B Shares are entitled to vote on the Domestication Proposal. As of the Record Date, the Sponsor owns 100% of the issued and outstanding SPAC Class B Shares. As a result, the Sponsor would be able to approve the Domestication Proposal alone and without the vote of any other SPAC shareholder.

Recommendation of the SPAC Board

The SPAC Board believes that the Domestication Proposal to be presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting is in the best interests of SPAC.

THE SPAC BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMEND THAT SPAC ELIGIBLE SHAREHOLDERS VOTE "FOR" THE APPROVAL OF THE DOMESTICATION PROPOSAL.

The existence of financial and personal interests of one or more of SPAC's directors may result in a conflict of interest on the part of such director(s) between what such director may believe is in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders and what such director may believe is best for themselves in determining to recommend that shareholders vote for the proposals. The Sponsor and SPAC's officers also have interests in the Business Combination that may be different from, or in addition to, your interests as a shareholder. See the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers and in the Transactions" for a further discussion of these considerations.

THE ADVISORY SPAC DELAWARE DOCUMENTS PROPOSALS

Overview

SPAC is asking its shareholders to vote on the governance provisions referred to below, which are included in the Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents. In accordance with SEC guidance, this proposal is being presented as separate sub-proposals to give shareholders the opportunity to present their separate views on important corporate governance provisions, and each sub-proposal will be voted upon on a non-binding advisory basis. These separate votes are not otherwise required by Cayman Islands law or Delaware law. Accordingly, the SPAC shareholder vote regarding the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals is an advisory vote and is not binding on SPAC or the SPAC Board. Furthermore, the Condition Precedent Proposals are not conditioned on the separate approval of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals.

In the judgment of the SPAC Board, these provisions are necessary to adequately address the needs of SPAC and its stockholders following the effectiveness of the SPAC Domestication and are a condition to the Closing under the Business Combination Agreement. Accordingly, regardless of the outcome of the non-binding advisory vote on these proposals, SPAC intends that the Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents will take effect at the effective time of the SPAC Domestication.

The Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents are not intended to differ significantly from the SPAC Charter and are only expected to govern the rights of stockholders for a brief time period between the SPAC Domestication, required under the Business Combination Agreement to occur at least one Business Day prior to the Closing Date, and the Closing. The following table sets forth a summary of the principal changes proposed between the SPAC Charter and the Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents. This summary is qualified by reference to the complete text of the SPAC Charter, a copy of which is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex U, the complete text of the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation, a copy of which is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex H, and the complete text of the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws, a copy of which is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex I. Reasons for the Amendments

Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposal 4A — Vote Requirement to Amend the Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents

The SPAC Charter provides that amendments may be made by a special resolution under the Cayman Companies Act and the SPAC Charter. For this purpose, a "special resolution" is a resolution passed by a majority of not less than two-thirds of such shareholders entitled to vote in person (including virtually) or, where proxies are allowed, by proxy, at a general meeting of which notice specifying the intention to propose the resolution as a special resolution has been duly given. Under the SPAC Charter, the above two-thirds majority is increased to 90%, unless the amendment is proposed in respect of the consummation of an initial business combination, with respect to any amendment of the provisions that provide that only holders of the SPAC Class B Shares will be entitled to vote on the appointment and removal of directors or continuing SPAC to a jurisdiction outside the Cayman Islands.

The Proposed Certificate of Incorporation will require the SPAC Board acting pursuant to a resolution adopted by a majority of the directors then serving on the SPAC Board and the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the voting power of the outstanding voting securities of SPAC entitled to vote thereon, voting together as a single class, to amend, repeal, or modify any provision of the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation, other than to Article I (Name), Article II (Registered Agent and Address), Article III (Nature of Business), and Sections 1 (authorized shares) and 2 (votes per share) of Article IV.

The Proposed Certificate of Incorporation and the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws will require the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of the outstanding voting power of SPAC, voting together as a single class, for the stockholders to alter, amend or repeal the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws, or adopt new bylaws; provided, however, that the affirmative vote of the holders of at least two-thirds of the total voting power of outstanding voting securities of SPAC, voting together as a single class, shall be required for the stockholders of SPAC to alter, amend or repeal, or adopt any bylaw inconsistent with, the following provisions of the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws: Article II (stockholder meeting provisions), Sections 3.1 (powers of directors), 3.2 (number of directors), 3.4 (resignations and vacancies) and 3.11 (removal of directors) of Article III, Article VIII (indemnification of directors and officers), Section 9.5 (exclusive forum) of Article IX or Article X (amendments).

The Proposed Certificate of Incorporation and the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws permit the SPAC Board to adopt, alter, amend or repeal the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws without the consent or vote of the stockholders of SPAC. The affirmative vote of at least a majority of all of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present or unanimous written consent shall be required in order for the SPAC Board to adopt, alter, amend or repeal the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws.

The reduced approval threshold for certain amendments to the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation and stockholder amendments to the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws or new bylaws are intended to reduce barriers to amendments that the SPAC Board, the majority of stockholders or two-thirds of stockholders, as applicable, approve of.

Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 4B — Exclusive Forum Provision

Adopting Delaware as the exclusive forum for certain litigation, including (a) any derivative action or proceeding brought on behalf of SPAC, (b) any action asserting a claim of breach of a fiduciary duty owed by any director, stockholder, officer or other employee of SPAC to SPAC or SPAC's stockholders, (c) any action arising pursuant to any provision of the DGCL or the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation or the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws or (d) any action asserting a claim governed by the internal affairs doctrine, is intended to assist SPAC in avoiding multiple lawsuits in multiple jurisdictions regarding the same matter, which is consistent with the approach under the SPAC Charter where Cayman law is the exclusive forum for certain litigation. The ability to require such claims to be brought in a single forum will help to assure consistent consideration of the issues and should promote efficiency and cost-savings in the resolutions of such claims. The SPAC Board believes that the Court of Chancery of Delaware is best suited to address disputes involving such matters given that SPAC is incorporated in Delaware and Delaware law generally applies to such matters. The SPAC Board further believes that providing that the federal district courts of the United States will be the exclusive forum for resolving actions arising under the Securities Act, provides the flexibility to file such suits in any federal district court while providing the benefits of eliminating duplicative litigation and having such cases heard by courts that are well-versed in the applicable law. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws will provide that the exclusive forum provision will not apply to suits brought to enforce any liability or duty created by the Exchange Act or any other claim for which the federal courts of the United States have exclusive jurisdiction.

The SPAC Board further believes that the Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents providing for such exclusive forum would promote judicial fairness and avoid conflicting results, as well as make SPAC's defense of applicable claims less disruptive and more economically feasible, principally by avoiding duplicative discovery.

The exclusive forum provisions in the Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents may impose additional costs and burdens on stockholders who wish to bring claims against SPAC or SPAC's directors, officers or other employees, which may discourage stockholders from bringing such claims or limit their ability to bring a claim in a judicial forum that they find favorable.

There is uncertainty as to whether a court would enforce the forum selection provisions in the Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents in connection with claims arising under the Securities Act because Section 22 of the Securities Act creates concurrent jurisdiction for federal and state courts over all Securities Act claims. Investors cannot waive compliance with the federal securities laws and the rules and regulations thereunder.

In addition, notwithstanding the inclusion of the forum selection provisions in the Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents, courts may find them inapplicable or unenforceable in certain cases in which they are intended to apply, including claims brought under the Securities Act. If this were to occur in any particular lawsuit, SPAC may incur additional costs associated with resolving such lawsuit in other jurisdictions or resolving lawsuits involving similar claims in multiple jurisdictions, all of which could harm its business, results of operations and financial condition.

The foregoing summaries are qualified by reference to the complete text of the Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents, copies of which are attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex H and Annex I. All shareholders are encouraged to read the Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents in their entirety for a more complete description of their terms.

Resolution to be Voted Upon

Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposal 4A — "RESOLVED, as an ordinary resolution, on an advisory non-binding basis, that the Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents will require the SPAC Board acting pursuant to a resolution adopted by a majority of the directors then serving on the SPAC Board and the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the voting power of the outstanding voting securities of SPAC entitled to vote thereon, voting together as a single class, to amend, repeal, or modify any provision of the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation, other than to Article I (Name), Article II (Registered Agent and Address), Article III (Nature of Business), and Sections 1 (authorized shares) and 2 (votes per share) of Article IV, which requires the affirmative vote of at least a majority of the voting power of the outstanding SPAC capital stock entitled to vote thereon, voting together as a single class, in addition to any requirements for such amendments under the DGCL that the Proposed SPAC Delaware Documents will require the affirmative vote of at least a majority of the total voting power of the outstanding voting securities of SPAC, voting together as a single class, for the stockholders to adopt, amend, alter, or repeal the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws, provided the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the total voting power of the outstanding voting securities of SPAC, voting together as a single class, will be required for SPAC stockholders to alter, amend or repeal, or adopt any bylaw inconsistent with, certain provisions of the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws; and that the SPAC Board shall also have the power to adopt, amend or repeal the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws."

Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposal 4B — "RESOLVED, as an ordinary resolution, on an advisory non-binding basis, that the Proposed Organizational Documents will adopt: (i) the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware as the exclusive forum for certain litigation; and (ii) the federal district courts of the United States as the exclusive forum for resolving actions arising under the Securities Act."

Required Vote and Recommendation of the SPAC Board

The approval of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals does not require the passing of a resolution under the SPAC Charter or Cayman Islands law. Notwithstanding this, the SPAC Board is asking SPAC shareholders to approve the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals on a non-binding advisory basis by ordinary resolution, being the affirmative vote of at least a simple majority of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals at the Extraordinary General Meeting. Abstentions and broker non-votes, while considered present for the purposes of establishing a quorum, will not count as votes cast at the Extraordinary General Meeting and otherwise will have no effect on a particular proposal.

As discussed above, a vote to approve the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals is an advisory vote, and therefore, is not binding on SPAC or the SPAC Board. Accordingly, regardless of the outcome of the non-binding advisory vote, SPAC intends that the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation, in the form set forth on Annex H, and the Proposed SPAC Delaware Bylaws, in the form set forth on Annex I, will take effect at SPAC Domestication, assuming adoption of the Condition Precedent Proposals.

The Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals are conditioned on the approval of each of the Condition Precedent Proposals. Therefore, if either of the Condition Precedent Proposals is not approved, the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals will have no effect, even if approved by the requisite holders of SPAC Common Shares.

As of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus, the Sponsor has agreed to vote the SPAC Common Shares owned by them in favor of each of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals. As of the Record Date, the Sponsor owns 26.2% of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares. SPAC's officers and directors do not hold any Public Shares, but may purchase Public Shares at any time, subject to compliance with law and SPAC's trading policies. As a result, in addition to approval by the Sponsor, CCM and Northland, approval of each of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals will require the affirmative vote of at least 7,205,001 SPAC Common Shares held by Public Shareholders (or approximately 31.3% of the Public Shares) if all SPAC Common Shares are represented at the Extraordinary General Meeting and cast votes, and the Sponsor would be able to approve the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals alone if only such shares as are required to establish a quorum are represented at the Extraordinary General Meeting and cast votes.

The SPAC Board believes that each of the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposals to be presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting are in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders.

THE SPAC BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT SPAC SHAREHOLDERS VOTE "FOR" THE APPROVAL OF EACH OF THE SPAC DELAWARE DOCUMENTS PROPOSALS.

The existence of financial and personal interests of one or more of SPAC's directors may result in a conflict of interest on such director(s) between what such director may believe is in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders and what such director may believe is best for themselves in determining to recommend that shareholders vote for the proposals. The Sponsor and SPAC's officers also have interests in the Transactions that may be different from, or in addition to, your interests as a Public Shareholder. See the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions" for a further discussion of these considerations.

THE ADVISORY ORGANIZATIONAL DOCUMENTS PROPOSALS

Overview

SPAC is asking its shareholders to vote on the governance provisions referred to below, which are included in the Proposed Organizational Documents. In accordance with SEC guidance, this proposal is being presented as separate sub-proposals to give shareholders the opportunity to present their separate views on important corporate governance provisions, and each sub-proposal will be voted upon on a non-binding advisory basis. These separate votes are not otherwise required by Cayman Islands law or Nevada law. Accordingly, the SPAC shareholder vote regarding the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals is an advisory vote and is not binding on SPAC or the SPAC Board, Pubco or Pubco Board. Furthermore, the Condition Precedent Proposals are not conditioned on the separate approval of the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals.

In the judgment of the SPAC Board and Pubco Board, these provisions are necessary to adequately address the needs of Pubco and its stockholders following the consummation of the Business Combination. Accordingly, regardless of the outcome of the non-binding advisory vote on these proposals, SPAC intends that the Proposed Organizational Documents will take effect at consummation of the Business Combination, upon the terms and subject to the conditions of the Business Combination Agreement.

The Proposed Organizational Documents differ materially from the SPAC Charter. The following table sets forth a summary of the principal changes proposed between the SPAC Charter and the Proposed Organizational Documents. This summary is qualified by reference to the complete text of the SPAC Charter, a copy of which is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex U, the complete text of the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter, a copy of which is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex C, and the complete text of the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws, a copy of which is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex D. All shareholders are encouraged to read the Proposed Organizational Documents in their entirety.

Reasons for the Amendments

Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5A — Authorized Shares

The principal purpose of this proposal is to provide for an authorized capital structure of Pubco that will enable it to continue as an operating company governed by the Nevada Revised Statutes. The Pubco Board believes that it is important for Pubco to have available for issuance a number of authorized shares of Pubco Common Stock and Pubco Preferred Stock sufficient to support growth and to provide flexibility for future corporate needs.

The SPAC Board has approved, subject to the consummation of the Business Combination, that the Proposed Organizational Documents authorize 10,000,000,000 shares of capital stock consisting of (i) 7,400,000,000 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, 100,000,000 shares of Pubco Class B Common Stock, and 2,400,000,000 shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock, and (ii) 100,000,000 shares of Pubco Preferred Stock, each with a par value of $0.001 per share.

Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5B — Removal of Directors

The SPAC Charter provides that amendments may be made by a special resolution under the Companies Act, being the affirmative vote of holders of at least two-thirds of the SPAC Ordinary Shares represented in person or by proxy and entitled to vote at an extraordinary general meeting and who vote at the extraordinary general meeting. Under the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter, amendments thereto will require the affirmative vote of a majority of the voting power of the outstanding shares of capital stock of Pubco, except that, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, holders of common stock will not be entitled to vote on any amendment to the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter that relates solely to the terms of any outstanding preferred stock if the holders of such preferred stock are entitled to vote as a separate class thereon.

The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter and the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws require the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of the outstanding voting power of Pubco, voting together as a single class, for the stockholders to amend or repeal the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws, or adopt new bylaws. The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter and the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws also permit the Pubco Board to adopt, amend or repeal the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws without the consent or vote of the stockholders of Pubco. The affirmative vote of at least a majority of all of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present or unanimous written consent shall be required in order for the Pubco Board to adopt, alter, amend or repeal the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws. The SPAC Charter provides that prior to the closing of a business combination, any director may only be removed by the shareholders by an ordinary resolution of the holders of SPAC Class B Shares, being a resolution passed by a simple majority of the votes cast by such of the holders of SPAC Class B Shares as vote in person (including virtually) or, where proxies are allowed, by proxy at a general meeting of the company or approved in writing by holders of all of the SPAC Class B Shares. The SPAC Charter also provides that, after the consummation of a business combination, any director may only be removed by the shareholders by an ordinary resolution of the holders of the SPAC Common Shares, being a resolution passed by a simple majority of the votes cast by such of the holders of SPAC Common Shares as vote in person (including virtually) or, where proxies are allowed, by proxy at a general meeting of the company or approved in writing by holders of all of the SPAC Common Shares.

The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter provide that no director may be removed from office by the stockholders except with the affirmative vote of the holders of at least the minimum percentage of the voting power of all outstanding shares of stock of Pubco entitled to vote generally in the election of directors, voting together as a single class, then permitted under the Nevada Revised Statutes for such vote but no less than a simple majority. The Nevada Revised Statutes currently requires two-thirds of the voting power to approve the removal of directors from office.

The SPAC Board believes that the supermajority standard described in the preceding sentence will (i) increase board continuity and the likelihood that experienced board members with familiarity of Pubco's business operations would serve on the board at any given time and (ii) make it more difficult for a potential acquirer or other person, group or entity to gain control of the Pubco Board.

Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5C — Action by Written Consent of Stockholders

Under the Proposed Organizational Documents, Pubco's stockholders will have the ability to propose items of business and nominations of persons for election to the Pubco Board (subject to the restrictions set forth therein) at duly convened stockholder meetings. The Proposed Organizational Documents require that any action to be taken by the stockholders may only be taken at an annual or special meeting and may not be taken by written consent without a meeting.

The SPAC Board believes that eliminating the right of stockholders to act by written consent is appropriate to limit the circumstances under which stockholders can act on their own initiative to, among other things, alter or amend the Proposed Organizational Documents outside of a duly called special or annual meeting of the stockholders of Pubco.

The elimination of the stockholders' ability to act by written consent may have certain anti-takeover effects by forcing a potential acquirer to take control of the Pubco Board only at duly called special or annual meetings. Inclusion of these provisions in the Proposed Organizational Documents might also increase the likelihood that a potential acquirer would negotiate the terms of any proposed transaction with the Pubco Board and help protect stockholders from the use of abusive and coercive takeover tactics.

Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5D — Vote Requirement to Amend the Proposed Organizational Documents

The SPAC Charter provides that amendments may be made by a special resolution under the Cayman Companies Act and the SPAC Charter. For this purpose, a "special resolution" is a resolution passed by a majority of not less than two-thirds of such shareholders entitled to vote in person (including virtually) or, where proxies are allowed, by proxy, at a general meeting of which notice specifying the intention to propose the resolution as a special resolution has been duly given. Under the SPAC Charter, the above two-thirds majority is increased to 90%, unless the amendment is proposed in respect of the consummation of an initial business combination, with respect to any amendment of the provisions that provide that only holders of the SPAC Class B Shares will be entitled to vote on the appointment and removal of directors or continuing SPAC to a jurisdiction outside the Cayman Islands.

The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter and the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws require the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of the outstanding voting power of Pubco, voting together as a single class, for the stockholders to amend or repeal, or adopt new bylaws. The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter and the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws also permits the Pubco Board to adopt, amend or repeal the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws without the consent or vote of the stockholders of Pubco. The affirmative vote of at least a majority of all of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present or unanimous written consent shall be required in order for the Pubco Board to adopt, alter, amend or repeal the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws.

The reduced approval threshold for amendments to the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter and stockholder amendments to the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws or new bylaws are intended to reduce barriers to amendments that the majority of stockholders approve of.

Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5E — Exclusive Forum Provision

Adopting Nevada as the exclusive forum for certain litigation, including (a) any action brought in the name or right of Pubco or on its behalf, (b) any action asserting a claim for breach of a fiduciary duty owed by any current or former director, officer, stockholder, employee, agent or fiduciary of Pubco to Pubco or its stockholders, (c) any "internal action" (as defined in NRS 78.046), including any action asserting a claim against Pubco arising under NRS Chapters 78 or 92A, the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter or the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws, and any voting trust agreement or related agreement or as to which the NRS confers jurisdiction on the district court of the State of Nevada, (d) any action to interpret, apply, enforce or determine the validity of the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter or the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws, or (e) any action asserting a claim governed by the internal affairs doctrine, and is intended to assist Pubco in avoiding multiple lawsuits in multiple jurisdictions regarding the same matter. The ability to require such claims to be brought in a single forum will help to assure consistent consideration of the issues and should promote efficiency and cost-savings in the resolutions of such claims. The SPAC Board believes that the Nevada courts are best suited to address disputes involving such matters given that Pubco is incorporated in Nevada and Nevada law generally applies to such matters. The SPAC Board further believes that providing that the federal district courts of the United States will be the exclusive forum for resolving actions arising under the Securities Act, provides the flexibility to file such suits in any federal district court while providing the benefits of eliminating duplicative litigation and having such cases heard by courts that are well-versed in the applicable law. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws will provide that the exclusive forum provision will not apply to suits brought to enforce any liability or duty created by the Exchange Act or any other claim for which the federal courts of the United States have exclusive jurisdiction.

The SPAC Board further believes that the Proposed Organizational Documents providing for such exclusive forum would promote judicial fairness and avoid conflicting results, as well as make Pubco's defense of applicable claims less disruptive and more economically feasible, principally by avoiding duplicative discovery.

The foregoing summaries are qualified by reference to the complete text of the Proposed Organizational Documents of Pubco, copies of which are attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex C and Annex D. All shareholders are encouraged to read the Proposed Organizational Documents in their entirety for a more complete description of their terms.

Resolution to be Voted Upon

The full text of the resolutions to be passed is as follows:

Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5A — "RESOLVED, as an ordinary resolution, on an advisory non-binding basis, that under the Proposed Organizational Documents, Pubco will be authorized to issue 10,000,000,000 shares of capital stock consisting of (i) 7,400,000,000 shares of Class A common stock, 100,000,000 shares of Class B common stock, and 2,400,000,000 shares of Class C common stock, and (ii) 100,000,000 shares of Pubco Preferred Stock, each with a par value of $0.001 per share."

Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5B — "RESOLVED, as an ordinary resolution, on an advisory non-binding basis, that the Proposed Organizational Documents will permit the removal of a director only with the affirmative vote of the holders of at least the minimum percentage of the voting power of all outstanding shares of stock of Pubco entitled to vote generally in the election of directors, voting together as a single class, then permitted under the Nevada Revised Statutes for such vote (currently two-thirds of the voting power) but no less than a simple majority."

Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5C — "RESOLVED, as an ordinary resolution, on an advisory non-binding basis, that under the Proposed Organizational Documents, any action taken by the stockholders of Pubco may only be taken at an annual or special meeting and may not be taken by written consent without a meeting."

Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5D — "RESOLVED, as an ordinary resolution, on an advisory non-binding basis, that amendments to the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter will require the affirmative vote of a majority of the voting power of the outstanding shares of capital stock of Pubco, except: that, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, holders of common stock will not be entitled to vote on any amendment to the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter that relates solely to the terms of any outstanding preferred stock if the holders of such preferred stock are entitled to vote as a separate class thereon; that the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter and the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws will require the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of the outstanding voting power of Pubco, voting together as a single class, for the stockholders to amend or repeal the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws, or adopt new bylaws; and that the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter and the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws will permit the Pubco Board to adopt, amend or repeal the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws without the consent or vote of the stockholders of Pubco.

Advisory Organizational Documents Proposal 5E — "RESOLVED, as an ordinary resolution, on an advisory non-binding basis, that the Proposed Organizational Documents will adopt: (i) the Eighth Judicial District Court of Clark County, Nevada as the exclusive forum for certain litigation; and (ii) the federal district courts of the United States as the exclusive forum for resolving actions arising under the Securities Act."

Required Vote and Recommendation of the SPAC Board

The approval of the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals does not require the passing of a resolution under the SPAC Charter or Cayman Islands law. Notwithstanding this, the SPAC Board is asking SPAC shareholders to approve the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals on a non-binding advisory basis by ordinary resolution, being the affirmative vote of at least a simple majority of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals at the Extraordinary General Meeting. Abstentions and broker non-votes, while considered present for the purposes of establishing a quorum, will not count as votes cast at the Extraordinary General Meeting and otherwise will have no effect on a particular proposal.

As discussed above, a vote to approve the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals is an advisory vote, and therefore, is not binding on SPAC, Pubco or their respective boards of directors. Accordingly, regardless of the outcome of the non-binding advisory vote, SPAC and Pubco intend that the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter, in the form set forth on Annex C, and the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws, in the form set forth on Annex D, will take effect at consummation of the Business Combination, assuming adoption of the Condition Precedent Proposals.

The Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals are conditioned on the approval of each of the Condition Precedent Proposals. Therefore, if either of the Condition Precedent Proposals is not approved, the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals will have no effect, even if approved by the requisite holders of SPAC Common Shares.

As of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus, the Sponsor has agreed to vote the SPAC Common Shares owned by them in favor of each of the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals. As of the Record Date, the Sponsor owns 26.2% of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares. SPAC's officers and directors do not hold any Public Shares, but may purchase Public Shares at any time, subject to compliance with law and SPAC's trading policies. As a result, in addition to approval by the Sponsor, CCM and Northland, approval of each of the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals will require the affirmative vote of at least 7,205,001 SPAC Common Shares held by Public Shareholders (or approximately 31.3% of the Public Shares) if all SPAC Common Shares are represented at the Extraordinary General Meeting and cast votes, and the Sponsor would be able to approve the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals alone if only such shares as are required to establish a quorum are represented at the Extraordinary General Meeting and cast votes.

The SPAC Board believes that each of the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals to be presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting are in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders.

THE SPAC BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT SPAC SHAREHOLDERS VOTE "FOR" THE APPROVAL OF EACH OF THE ADVISORY ORGANIZATIONAL DOCUMENTS PROPOSALS.

The existence of financial and personal interests of one or more of SPAC's directors may result in a conflict of interest on such directors(s) between what such director may believe is in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders and what such director may believe is best for themselves in determining to recommend that shareholders vote for the proposals. The Sponsor and SPAC's officers also have interests in the Transactions that may be different from, or in addition to, your interests as a Public Shareholder. See the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions" for a further discussion of these considerations.

THE ADJOURNMENT PROPOSAL

Overview

The Adjournment Proposal allows the SPAC Board to submit a proposal to approve, by ordinary resolution, the adjournment of the Extraordinary General Meeting to a later date or dates, if necessary: (1) to permit further solicitation and vote of proxies in the event that there are insufficient votes for the approval of one or more proposals at the Extraordinary General Meeting; (2) to allow reasonable additional time for the filing or mailing of any supplemental or amended disclosure that SPAC has determined in good faith after consultation with outside legal counsel is required under applicable law and for such supplemental or amended disclosure to be disseminated and reviewed by its shareholders prior to the Extraordinary General Meeting; (3) in order to engage with investors; or (4) if necessary or desirable in the reasonable determination of SPAC.

The purpose of the Adjournment Proposal is to permit further solicitation of proxies and votes and to provide additional time for the Sponsor, SPAC and their members and shareholders, respectively, to make purchases of SPAC Common Shares or other arrangements that would increase the likelihood of obtaining a favorable vote on the proposals to be put to the Extraordinary General Meeting, or otherwise increase the likelihood of closing the Transactions.

Consequences if the Adjournment Proposal is Not Approved

If the Adjournment Proposal is presented to the Extraordinary General Meeting and is not approved by the shareholders, the SPAC Board may not be able to adjourn the Extraordinary General Meeting to a later date (i) if based on the tabulated votes, there are not sufficient votes at the time of the Extraordinary General Meeting to approve the Condition Precedent Proposals, in which event, the Transactions would not be completed, or (ii) in the event that adjourning the Extraordinary General Meeting to a later date would allow for reasonable additional time for (A) the filing or mailing of any supplemental or amended disclosure that SPAC has determined in good faith after consultation with outside legal counsel is required under applicable law and for such supplemental or amended disclosure to be disseminated and reviewed by its shareholders prior to the Extraordinary General Meeting or (B) engaging with investors.

Required Vote and Recommendation of the SPAC Board

The approval of the Adjournment Proposal requires an ordinary resolution, being the affirmative vote of at least a simple majority of the votes cast by the holders of the issued SPAC Common Shares, voting together as a single class, who are present in person (including virtually) or represented by proxy and entitled to vote on the Adjournment Proposal at the Extraordinary General Meeting. Abstentions and broker non-votes, while considered present for the purposes of establishing a quorum, will not count as votes cast at the Extraordinary General Meeting and otherwise will have no effect on a particular proposal.

The Adjournment Proposal is not conditioned on the approval of any other proposal.

As of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus, the Sponsor has agreed to vote the SPAC Common Shares owned by them in favor of the Adjournment Proposal, if presented. As of the Record Date, the Sponsor owns 26.2% of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares. SPAC's officers and directors do not hold any Public Shares, but may purchase Public Shares at any time, subject to compliance with law and SPAC's trading policies. As a result, in addition to approval by the Sponsor, CCM and Northland, approval of the Adjournment Proposal will require the affirmative vote of at least 7,205,001 SPAC Common Shares held by Public Shareholders (or approximately 31.3% of the Public Shares) if all SPAC Common Shares are represented at the Extraordinary General Meeting and cast votes, and the Sponsor would be able to approve the Business Combination Proposal alone if only such shares as are required to establish a quorum are represented at the Extraordinary General Meeting and cast votes.

The SPAC Board believes that the Adjournment Proposal, if presented at the Extraordinary General Meeting, is in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders.

Resolution to be Voted Upon

The full text of the resolution to be passed is as follows:

"RESOLVED, as an ordinary resolution, that the adjournment of the Extraordinary General Meeting to a later date or dates to be determined by the Chairman of the Extraordinary General Meeting, if necessary or desirable: (1) to permit further solicitation and vote of proxies in the event that, based upon the tableted vote at the time of the Extraordinary General Meeting, there are insufficient votes for the approval of one or more proposals at the Extraordinary General Meeting; (2) to allow reasonable additional time for the filing or mailing of any supplemental or amended disclosure that SPAC has determined in good faith after consultation with outside legal counsel is required under applicable law and for such supplemental or amended disclosure to be disseminated and reviewed by its shareholders prior to the Extraordinary General Meeting; or (3) in order to engage with investors, or (4) if necessary or desirable in the reasonable determination of the SPAC, be approved."

THE SPAC BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT SPAC SHAREHOLDERS VOTE "FOR" THE APPROVAL OF THE ADJOURNMENT PROPOSAL.

The existence of financial and personal interests of one or more of SPAC's directors may result in a conflict of interest on such directors(s) between what such director may believe is in the best interests of SPAC and its shareholders and what such director may believe is best for themselves in determining to recommend that shareholders vote for the proposals. The Sponsor and SPAC's officers also have interests in the Transactions that may be different from, or in addition to, your interests as a Public Shareholder. See the section of this proxy statement/prospectus entitled "The Business Combination Proposal—Interests of the Sponsor and SPAC's Directors and Officers in the Transactions" for a further discussion of these considerations.

U.S. FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSIDERATIONS RELATED TO SPAC

The following discussion is a summary of U.S. federal income tax considerations (i) for U.S. Holders and Non-U.S. Holders (each as defined below, and together, "Holders") of the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants (each such share and warrant, a "SPAC Security") of the SPAC Merger, (ii) for Holders of the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants that exercise their redemption rights, in connection with the Transactions, and (iii) for Holders of the ownership and disposition of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants (each, a "Pubco Security"). With respect to the ownership and disposition of Pubco Securities, this discussion is limited to (x) Pubco Securities received in connection with the SPAC Merger, and (y) Pubco Class A Common Stock received upon the exercise of the Pubco Warrants received by a Holder in connection with the SPAC Merger. This section applies only to Holders that hold their SPAC Securities and Pubco Securities as "capital assets" for U.S. federal income tax purposes (generally, property held for investment).

This discussion does not address the U.S. federal income tax consequences (i) to the Sponsor (or any other sponsor), the Company, underwriters or their affiliates, representatives, employees or other stakeholders, or (ii) to any person of holding SPAC Class B Shares (or Founder Shares), SPAC Private Warrants or Company Units. This discussion is limited to U.S. federal income tax considerations and does not address any estate, gift or other U.S. federal non-income tax considerations or considerations arising under the tax laws of any U.S. state or local, non-U.S. or other jurisdiction. This discussion does not describe all of the U.S. federal income tax consequences that may be relevant to a particular investor in light of their particular circumstances, including the alternative minimum tax, the Medicare tax on certain investment income and the different consequences that may apply to investors subject to special rules under U.S. federal income tax law, such as:

(a) banks, financial institutions or financial services entities;

(b) broker-dealers;

(c) taxpayers that are subject to, or who elect to apply, the mark-to-market accounting rules under Section 475 of the Code with respect to the SPAC Securities or Pubco Securities;

(d) tax-exempt entities;

(e) governments or agencies or instrumentalities of such governments or agencies;

(f) insurance companies;

(g) regulated investment companies or real estate investment trusts;

(h) partnerships (including entities or arrangements treated as partnerships for U.S. federal income tax purposes) or other pass-through entities (including S Corporations), or persons that will hold the SPAC Securities or Pubco Securities through such a partnership or other pass-through entity;

(i) U.S. expatriates or former long-term residents of the United States;

(j) except as specifically provided below, persons that actually or constructively own five percent or more (by vote or value) of SPAC's shares or Pubco's shares;

(k) persons that acquired their SPAC Securities or Pubco Securities pursuant to an exercise of employee share options, in connection with employee share incentive plans or otherwise as compensation;

(l) persons that hold or sell their SPAC Securities or Pubco Securities as part of a straddle, constructive sale, hedge, synthetic security, wash sale, conversion or other integrated or similar transaction or risk reduction strategy;

(m) U.S. Holders (as defined below) whose functional currency is not the U.S. dollar;

(n) persons subject to special tax accounting rules as a result of any item of gross income with respect to SPAC Securities or Pubco Securities being taken into account in an "applicable financial statement" (as defined in the Code); or

(o "specified foreign corporations" (including "controlled foreign corporations"), "passive foreign investment companies" or corporations that accumulate earnings to avoid U.S. federal income tax.

If a partnership or other pass-through entity (or any entity or arrangement treated as a partnership or other pass-through entity for U.S. federal income tax purposes) holds SPAC Securities or Pubco Securities, the tax treatment of such partnership or other pass-through entity and a person treated as a partner of such partnership or owner of such other pass-through entity will generally depend on the status of the partner or owner, the activities of the partnership or other pass-through entity, and certain determinations made at the partner or owner level. Partnerships and other pass-through entities holding any SPAC Securities or Pubco Securities and persons that are treated as partners of such partnerships or owners of such other pass-through entities should consult their tax advisors as to the particular U.S. federal income tax consequences to them of the SPAC Domestication and Business Combination, the exercise of redemption rights with respect to SPAC Class A Shares or SPAC Public Warrants and the ownership and disposition of Pubco Securities.

This discussion is based on the Code, Treasury Regulations promulgated under the Code, and judicial and administrative interpretations of the Code, all as of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus. All of the foregoing is subject to change, which change could apply retroactively and could affect the tax considerations described in this proxy statement/prospectus. SPAC has not sought, and does not intend to seek, any rulings from the IRS as to any U.S. federal income tax considerations described in this proxy statement/prospectus. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that the IRS will not take positions inconsistent with the considerations discussed below or that any such positions would not be sustained by a court.

THIS DISCUSSION IS ONLY A SUMMARY OF U.S. FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSIDERATIONS ASSOCIATED WITH THE SPAC DOMESTICATION AND THE BUSINESS COMBINATION, THE EXERCISE OF REDEMPTION RIGHTS WITH RESPECT TO SPAC CLASS A SHARES OR SPAC PUBLIC WARRANTS AND THE OWNERSHIP AND DISPOSITION OF PUBCO SECURITIES RECEIVED IN THE SPAC MERGER OR PUBCO CLASS A STOCK ACQUIRED BY THE EXERCISE OF PUBCO WARRANTS RECEIVED IN THE SPAC MERGER. EACH HOLDER SHOULD CONSULT ITS OWN TAX ADVISORS WITH RESPECT TO THE PARTICULAR TAX CONSEQUENCES TO SUCH HOLDER OF THE SPAC DOMESTICATION, THE SPAC MERGER, THE BUSINESS COMBINATION, THE EXERCISE OF REDEMPTION RIGHTS WITH RESPECT TO SPAC CLASS A SHARES OR SPAC PUBLIC WARRANTS, THE OWNERSHIP AND DISPOSITION OF PUBCO SECURITIES AND THE EXERCISE OF PUBCO WARRANTS RECEIVED BY A HOLDER IN THE SPAC MERGER, INCLUDING THE APPLICABILITY AND EFFECTS OF U.S. FEDERAL, STATE AND LOCAL AND NON-U.S. TAX LAWS.

Because the components of a SPAC Unit are generally separable at the option of the holder, the holder of a SPAC Unit generally should be treated, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, as the owner of the underlying SPAC Class A Share and SPAC Public Warrant components of the SPAC Unit, and the discussion below with respect to actual Holders of SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants also should apply to holders of SPAC Units (as the deemed owners of the underlying SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants that constitute the SPAC Units). Accordingly, the separation of a SPAC Unit into one SPAC Class A Share and the one-half of one SPAC Public Warrant underlying the SPAC Unit generally should not be a taxable event for U.S. federal income tax purposes. This position is not free from doubt, and no assurance can be given that the IRS would not assert, or that a court would not sustain, a contrary position. Holders of SPAC Securities are urged to consult their tax advisors concerning the U.S. federal, state, local and any non-U.S. tax consequences of the transactions contemplated by the Transactions (including the exercise of any redemption rights) with respect to any SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants held through SPAC Units (including alternative characterizations of SPAC Units).

I. TAX TREATMENT OF THE SPAC DOMESTICATION

Subject to the limitations set forth herein under the section entitled "U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations Related to SPAC," and in the opinion included as Exhibit 8.1 of the registration statement of which this proxy statement/prospectus forms a part, it is the opinion of Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati, P.C., United States tax counsel to SPAC, that the SPAC Domestication should qualify as a "reorganization" within the meaning of Section 368(a)(1)(F) of the Code. A transaction qualifies as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a)(1)(F) of the Code if it is a "mere change in identity, form, or place of organization of one corporation, however effected" (an "F Reorganization").

The U.S. federal income tax consequences of the SPAC Domestication to the Holders will depend primarily upon whether the SPAC Domestication qualifies as an F Reorganization. However, due to the absence of direct guidance to a corporation holding only investment-type assets, such as SPAC, these results are not entirely clear. The discussion below and the opinion neither bind the IRS nor preclude it from adopting a contrary position. Furthermore, there can be no assurance that the IRS will not assert, or that a court would not sustain, a position contrary to any position set forth herein or in the opinion. SPAC has not requested, and does not intend to request, a ruling from the IRS as to the U.S. federal income tax consequences of the SPAC Domestication. Accordingly, each Holder of SPAC Securities is urged to consult its tax advisors with respect to the particular tax consequences of the SPAC Domestication to such Holder.

Assuming the SPAC Domestication qualifies as an F Reorganization, the SPAC Domestication should be treated for U.S. federal income tax purposes as if SPAC (i) transferred all of its assets and liabilities to SPAC Delaware in exchange for all of the outstanding stock and securities of SPAC Delaware; and (ii) then distributed such stock and securities to the holders of SPAC Securities in liquidation of SPAC. The taxable year of SPAC will be deemed to end on the date of the SPAC Domestication.

If the SPAC Domestication fails to qualify as an F Reorganization (and does not otherwise qualify as a "reorganization" within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code), a Holder of SPAC Securities generally would be treated for U.S. federal income tax purposes as having exchanged its SPAC Securities in SPAC for SPAC Securities in SPAC Delaware in a taxable transaction.

II. U.S. HOLDERS

As used in this proxy statement/prospectus, a "U.S. Holder" is a beneficial owner of a SPAC Security or a Pubco Security, as applicable, that for U.S. federal income tax purposes is, or is treated as:

(a) an individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States;

(b) a corporation that is created or organized in or under the laws of the United States or any state in the United States or the District of Columbia;

(c) an estate the income of which is subject to U.S. federal income tax regardless of its source; or

(d) a trust if (1) a U.S. court can exercise primary supervision over the administration of such trust and one or more "United States persons" (within the meaning of Section 7701(a)(30) of the Code) have the authority to control all substantial decisions of the trust or (2) it has a valid election in place to be treated as a United States person.

A. U.S. Federal Income Tax Effects of the SPAC Domestication to U.S. Holders

1. Generally

Assuming the SPAC Domestication qualifies as an F Reorganization, U.S. Holders of SPAC Securities in SPAC that are exchanged for SPAC Securities in SPAC Delaware generally should not recognize gain or loss for U.S. federal income tax purposes in connection with the SPAC Domestication, except as provided below under the sections entitled "—3. Effects of Section 367 to U.S. Holders of SPAC Class A Shares" and "—B. PFIC Considerations."

Subject to the discussion below under the section entitled "—B. PFIC Considerations," if the SPAC Domestication fails to qualify as an F Reorganization (and does not otherwise qualify as a "reorganization" within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code), a U.S. Holder of SPAC Securities generally would recognize gain or loss with respect to its SPAC Securities in an amount equal to the difference, if any, between the fair market value of the corresponding SPAC Securities in SPAC Delaware received in the SPAC Domestication and the U.S. Holder's adjusted tax basis in its SPAC Securities in SPAC surrendered.

U.S. Holders exercising redemption rights will be subject to the potential tax consequences of the SPAC Domestication. All U.S. Holders considering exercising redemption rights with respect to SPAC Class A Shares or with respect to the SPAC Public Warrants are urged to consult with their tax advisors with respect to the potential tax consequences to them of the SPAC Domestication and exercise of redemption rights.

2. Basis and Holding Period Considerations

Assuming the SPAC Domestication qualifies as an F Reorganization, subject to the discussion below under the section entitled "—B. PFIC Considerations": (i) the tax basis of a share of SPAC Class A Shares or a SPAC Warrant deemed received by a U.S. Holder in the SPAC Domestication in exchange for SPAC Class A Shares and a SPAC Public Warrant in SPAC will equal the U.S. Holder's tax basis in the SPAC Class A Share or SPAC Public Warrant of SPAC surrendered in exchange therefor, increased by any amount included in the income of such U.S. Holder as a result of Section 367 of the Code (as discussed below) and (ii) the holding period for a SPAC Class A Share in SPAC Delaware or a SPAC Public Warrant in SPAC Delaware received by a U.S. Holder will include such U.S. Holder's holding period for the SPAC Class A Share or SPAC Public Warrant surrendered in exchange therefor.

If the SPAC Domestication fails to qualify as an F Reorganization (and does not otherwise qualify as a "reorganization" within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code), the U.S. Holder's basis in the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Warrants in SPAC Delaware would be equal to the sum of the fair market value of such Class A Shares and SPAC Warrants in SPAC Delaware on the date of the SPAC Domestication, and such U.S. Holder's holding period for such Class A Shares and SPAC Warrants in SPAC Delaware would begin on the day following the date of the SPAC Domestication. Holders who hold different blocks of SPAC Securities (generally, SPAC Securities purchased or acquired on different dates or at different prices) should consult their tax advisors to determine how the above rules apply to them, and the discussion above is general in nature and does not specifically address all of the consequences to U.S. Holders who hold different blocks of SPAC Securities.

3. Effects of Section 367 to U.S. Holders of SPAC Class A Shares

Section 367 of the Code applies to certain transactions involving foreign corporations, including a domestication of a foreign corporation in a transaction that qualifies as an F Reorganization. Subject to the discussion below under the section entitled "—B. PFIC Considerations," Section 367(b) of the Code and the Treasury Regulations promulgated thereunder impose U.S. federal income tax on certain U.S. persons (as defined under Section 7701(a)(30) of the Code) in connection with transactions that would otherwise be tax-deferred. Section 367(b) of the Code will generally apply to U.S. Holders on the date of the SPAC Domestication, including any such U.S. Holders exercising redemption rights.

a. U.S. Holders Who Own Ten Percent or More (By Vote or Value) of SPAC Common Shares

Subject to the discussion below under the section entitled "—B. PFIC Considerations," a U.S. Holder who (actually or constructively) owns 10% or more of SPAC Common Shares by vote or value ("10% U.S. Shareholder") on the date of the SPAC Domestication must include in income as a deemed dividend deemed paid by SPAC the "all earnings and profits amount" attributable to the SPAC Class A Shares such U.S. Holder directly owns within the meaning of Treasury Regulations under Section 367(b) of the Code. A U.S. Holder's ownership of SPAC Warrants will be taken into account in determining whether such U.S. Holder is a 10% U.S. Shareholder. Complex attribution rules apply in determining whether a U.S. Holder is a 10% U.S. Shareholder and all U.S. Holders are urged to consult their tax advisors with respect to these attribution rules.

U.S. Shareholder's "all earnings and profits amount" with respect to such Holder's SPAC Class A Shares is the net positive earnings and profits of SPAC attributable to such SPAC Class A Shares (each as determined under Treasury Regulations under Section 367(b) of the Code) but without regard to any gain that would be realized on a sale or exchange of such SPAC Class A Shares. Treasury Regulations under Section 367(b) of the Code provide that the "all earnings and profits amount" attributable to a shareholder's stock is determined according to the principles of Section 1248 of the Code. In general, Section 1248 of the Code and the Treasury Regulations under the Code provide that the amount of earnings and profits attributable to a block of stock (as defined in Treasury Regulations under Section 1248 of the Code) in a foreign corporation is the ratably allocated portion of the foreign corporation's earnings and profits generated during the period the shareholder held the block of stock.

SPAC does not expect to have significant, if any, cumulative net earnings and profits on the date of the SPAC Domestication. If SPAC's cumulative net earnings and profits through the date of the SPAC Domestication is less than or equal to zero, then a 10% U.S. Shareholder should not be required to include in gross income an "all earnings and profits amount" with respect to its SPAC Class A Shares. However, the determination of earnings and profits is complex and may be impacted by numerous factors (including matters discussed in this proxy statement/prospectus). It is possible that the amount of SPAC's cumulative net earnings and profits could be positive through the date of the SPAC Domestication, in which case a 10% U.S. Shareholder would be required to include its "all earnings and profits amount" in income as a deemed dividend deemed paid by SPAC under Treasury Regulations under Section 367(b) of the Code as a result of the SPAC Domestication. Any such deemed dividend is expected to be treated as foreign-source income for U.S. federal income tax purposes, and is not expected to be eligible for preferential tax rates because SPAC is expected to be treated as a PFIC.

b. U.S. Holders Who Own Less Than Ten Percent (By Vote and Value) of SPAC Common Shares

Subject to the discussion below under the section entitled "—B. PFIC Considerations," a U.S. Holder who, on the date of the SPAC Domestication, is not a 10% U.S. Shareholder and whose SPAC Class A Shares have a fair market value of $50,000 or more on the date of the SPAC Domestication will recognize gain (but not loss) with respect to the SPAC Class A Shares received in the SPAC Domestication or, in the alternative, may elect to recognize the "all earnings and profits" amount attributable to such U.S. Holder's SPAC Class A Shares as described below.

Subject to the discussion below under the section entitled "—B. PFIC Considerations," unless a U.S. Holder makes the "all earnings and profits election" as described below, such U.S. Holder generally must recognize gain (but not loss) with respect to SPAC Class A Shares received in the SPAC Domestication in an amount equal to the excess of the fair market value of such SPAC Class A Shares over the U.S. Holder's adjusted tax basis in the SPAC Class A Shares of SPAC deemed surrendered in exchange therefor. U.S. Holders who hold different blocks of SPAC Class A Shares of SPAC (generally, SPAC Class A Shares of SPAC purchased or acquired on different dates or at different prices) should consult their tax advisors to determine how the above rules apply to them.

In lieu of recognizing any gain as described in the preceding paragraph, a U.S. Holder may elect to include in income as a deemed dividend deemed paid by SPAC the "all earnings and profits amount" attributable to its SPAC Class A Shares under Section 367(b) of the Code. There are, however, strict conditions for making this election. This election must comply with applicable Treasury Regulations and generally must include, among other things:

(i) a statement that the SPAC Domestication is a Section 367(b) exchange (within the meaning of the applicable Treasury Regulations);

(ii) a complete description of the SPAC Domestication;

(iii) a description of any stock, securities or other consideration transferred or received in the SPAC Domestication;

(iv) a statement describing the amounts required to be taken into account for U.S. federal income tax purposes;

(v) a statement that the U.S. Holder is making the election described in Treasury Regulations Section 1.367(b)-3(c)(3), which must include (i) a copy of the information that the U.S. Holder received from SPAC establishing and substantiating the U.S. Holder's "all earnings and profits amount" with respect to the U.S. Holder's SPAC Class A Shares and (ii) a representation that the U.S. Holder has notified SPAC (or Pubco) that the U.S. Holder is making the election described in Treasury Regulations Section 1.367(b)-3(c)(3); and

(vi) certain other information required to be furnished with the U.S. Holder's tax return or otherwise furnished pursuant to the Code or the Treasury Regulations.

The election must be attached by an electing U.S. Holder to such U.S. Holder's timely filed U.S. federal income tax return (including extensions, if any) for the taxable year in which the SPAC Domestication occurs, and the U.S. Holder must send notice of making the election to SPAC or Pubco no later than the date such tax return is filed. In connection with this election, Pubco will endeavor to make available to U.S. Holders of SPAC Class A Shares, upon written request, information regarding SPAC's earnings and profits.

SPAC does not expect to have significant, if any, cumulative earnings and profits through the date of the SPAC Domestication and if that proves to be the case, U.S. Holders who make this election are not expected to have a significant income inclusion under Section 367(b) of the Code, provided that the U.S. Holder properly executes the election and complies with the applicable notice requirements. However, as noted above, if it were determined that SPAC had positive earnings and profits through the date of the SPAC Domestication, a U.S. Holder that makes the election described in this proxy statement/prospectus could have an "all earnings and profits amount" with respect to its SPAC Class A Shares, and thus could be required to include that amount in income as a deemed dividend deemed paid by SPAC under applicable Treasury Regulations as a result of the SPAC Domestication. Any such deemed dividend is expected to be treated as foreign-source income for U.S. federal income tax purposes, and is not expected to be eligible for preferential tax rates because SPAC is expected to be treated as a PFIC.

EACH U.S. HOLDER IS URGED TO CONSULT ITS OWN TAX ADVISORS REGARDING THE CONSEQUENCES TO IT OF MAKING AN ELECTION TO INCLUDE IN INCOME THE "ALL EARNINGS AND PROFITS AMOUNT" ATTRIBUTABLE TO ITS SPAC CLASS A SHARES OF SPAC UNDER SECTION 367(b) OF THE CODE AND THE APPROPRIATE FILING REQUIREMENTS WITH RESPECT TO SUCH AN ELECTION.

A U.S. Holder who, on the date of the SPAC Domestication, is not a 10% U.S. Shareholder and whose SPAC Class A Shares have a fair market value of less than $50,000 on the date of the SPAC Domestication generally should not be required by Section 367(b) of the Code and the Treasury Regulations promulgated thereunder to recognize any gain or loss or include any part of the "all earnings and profits amount" in income in connection with the SPAC Domestication. However, such U.S. Holder may be subject to taxation under the PFIC rules as discussed below under the section entitled "—B. PFIC Considerations" including on subsequent dispositions of its stock or warrants after the SPAC Domestication, if SPAC were a PFIC at any time during the period such U.S. Holder held the SPAC Class A Shares or SPAC Public Warrants and such U.S. Holder is a Non-Electing Shareholder (as defined below).

4. Tax Consequences for U.S. Holders of SPAC Public Warrants

Assuming the SPAC Domestication qualifies as an F Reorganization, subject to the considerations described above under the section entitled "—3. Effects of Section 367 to U.S. Holders of SPAC Class A Shares—a. U.S. Holders Who Own Ten Percent or More (By Vote or Value) of SPAC Common Shares" relating to a U.S. Holder's ownership of SPAC Warrants being taken into account in determining whether such U.S. Holder is a 10% U.S. Shareholder for purposes of Section 367(b) of the Code and the considerations described below under the section entitled "—B. PFIC C*onsiderations*" relating to the PFIC rules, a U.S. Holder of SPAC Public Warrants should not be subject to U.S. federal income tax with respect to the exchange of SPAC Public Warrants of SPAC for SPAC Public Warrants of SPAC Delaware in the SPAC Domestication.

ALL U.S. HOLDERS ARE URGED TO CONSULT THEIR TAX ADVISORS WITH RESPECT TO THE EFFECT OF SECTION 367 OF THE CODE TO THEIR PARTICULAR CIRCUMSTANCES.

B. PFIC Considerations

Regardless of whether the SPAC Domestication qualifies as an F Reorganization (and, if the SPAC Domestication qualifies as an F Reorganization, in addition to the discussion below under the section entitled "3. Effects of Section 367 to U.S. Holders of SPAC Class A Shares") or the SPAC Merger qualifies under Section 351(a) and Section 351(b) of the Code, the SPAC Domestication or SPAC Merger could be a taxable event to U.S. Holders under the PFIC provisions of the Code if SPAC is considered a PFIC.

1. Definition of a PFIC

A foreign (i.e., non-United States) corporation will be classified as a PFIC for U.S. federal income tax purposes if either (i) at least 75% of its gross income in a taxable year, including its pro rata share of the gross income of any corporation in which it is considered to own at least 25% of the shares by value, is passive income or (ii) at least 50% of its assets in a taxable year (generally determined based on fair market value and averaged quarterly over the year), including its pro rata share of the assets of any corporation in which it is considered to own at least 25% of the shares by value, are held for the production of, or produce, passive income. Passive income generally includes dividends, interest, rents and royalties (other than rents or royalties derived from the active conduct of a trade or business received from unrelated persons) and gains from the disposition of passive assets. The determination of whether a foreign corporation is a PFIC is made annually. Pursuant to a "startup exception," a foreign corporation will not be a PFIC for the first taxable year the foreign corporation has gross income (the "startup year") if (1) no predecessor of the foreign corporation was a PFIC; (2) the foreign corporation satisfies the IRS that it will not be a PFIC for either of the first two taxable years following the startup year; and (3) the foreign corporation is not in fact a PFIC for either of those years.

2. PFIC Status of SPAC

Based upon the composition of its income and assets, and upon a review of its financial statements, SPAC believes that it likely will not be eligible for the startup exception and therefore likely has been a PFIC since its first taxable year and will likely be considered a PFIC for each taxable year thereafter, including the taxable year which ends as a result of the SPAC Domestication.

3. Effects of PFIC Rules on the SPAC Domestication

Even if the SPAC Domestication qualifies as an F Reorganization, Section 1291(f) of the Code requires that, to the extent provided in Treasury Regulations, a U.S. person who disposes of stock of a PFIC (including for this purpose, under a proposed Treasury Regulation that generally treats an "option" (which would generally include a SPAC Public Warrant) to acquire the stock of a PFIC as stock of the PFIC, exchanging warrants of a PFIC for newly issued warrants in connection with the SPAC Domestication) recognizes gain notwithstanding any other provision of the Code. No final Treasury Regulations are currently in effect under Section 1291(f) of the Code. However, proposed Treasury Regulations under Section 1291(f) of the Code have been promulgated with a retroactive proposed effective date. If finalized in their current form, those proposed Treasury Regulations would require gain recognition to U.S. Holders of SPAC Class A Shares of SPAC and SPAC Public Warrants of SPAC as a result of the SPAC Domestication if:

(i) SPAC were classified as a PFIC at any time during such U.S. Holder's holding period in such SPAC Class A Shares or SPAC Public Warrants in SPAC; and

(ii) the U.S. Holder had not timely made (i) a QEF Election (as defined below) for the first taxable year in which the U.S. Holder owned such SPAC Class A Shares or in which SPAC was a PFIC, whichever is later (or a QEF Election along with a purging election), or (ii) an MTM Election (as defined below) with respect to such SPAC Class A Shares. Under current law, neither a QEF Election nor an MTM Election can be made with respect to warrants (including SPAC Public Warrants).

The tax on any such recognized gain would be imposed based on a complex set of computational rules designed to offset the tax deferral with respect to the undistributed earnings of SPAC. Under these rules (the "excess distribution regime"):

(i) the U.S. Holder's gain will be allocated ratably over the U.S. Holder's holding period for such U.S. Holder's SPAC Class A Shares or SPAC Public Warrants in SPAC;

(ii) the amount of gain allocated to the U.S. Holder's taxable year in which the U.S. Holder recognized the gain, or to the period in the U.S. Holder's holding period before the first day of the first taxable year in which SPAC was a PFIC, will be taxed as ordinary income;

(iii) the amount of gain allocated to other taxable years (or portions of such taxable years) of the U.S. Holder and included in such U.S. Holder's holding period would be taxed at the highest tax rate in effect for that year and applicable to the U.S. Holder; and

(iv) an additional tax equal to the interest charge generally applicable to underpayments of tax will be imposed on the U.S. Holder in respect of the tax attributable to each such other taxable year (described in the third bullet above) of such U.S. Holder.

The proposed Treasury Regulations provide coordinating rules with Section 367(b) of the Code, whereby, if the gain recognition rule of the proposed Treasury Regulations applied to a disposition of PFIC stock that results from a transfer with respect to which Section 367(b) of the Code requires the U.S. Holder to recognize gain or include an amount in income as a deemed dividend deemed paid by SPAC, the gain realized on the transfer is taxable as an excess distribution under the excess distribution regime, and the excess, if any, of the amount to be included in income under Section 367(b) of the Code over the gain realized under the excess distribution regime is taxable as provided under Section 367(b) of the Code. See the discussion above under the section entitled "—3. Effects of Section 367 to U.S. Holders of SPAC Class A Shares."

It is difficult to predict whether, in what form and with what effective date, final Treasury Regulations under Section 1291(f) of the Code may be adopted or how any such final Treasury Regulations would apply. Therefore, U.S. Holders of SPAC Class A Shares that have not made a timely and effective QEF Election (or a QEF Election along with a purging election) or an MTM Election (each as defined below) may, pursuant to the proposed Treasury Regulations, be subject to taxation under the PFIC rules on the SPAC Domestication with respect to their SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants under the excess distribution regime in the manner set forth above. A U.S. Holder that made a timely and effective QEF Election (or a QEF Election along with a purging election) or an MTM Election with respect to its SPAC Class A Shares is referred to in this proxy statement/prospectus as an "Electing Shareholder" and a U.S. Holder that is not an Electing Shareholder is referred to in this proxy statement/prospectus as a "Non-Electing Shareholder."

As discussed above, proposed Treasury Regulations issued under the PFIC rules generally treats an "option" (which would include a SPAC Public Warrant) to acquire the stock of a PFIC as stock of the PFIC, while final Treasury Regulations issued under the PFIC rules provide that neither a QEF Election nor an MTM Election (as defined below) may be made with respect to options. Therefore, it is possible that the proposed Treasury Regulations, if finalized in their current form, would apply to cause gain recognition on the exchange of SPAC Public Warrants in SPAC for SPAC Public Warrants in SPAC Delaware pursuant to the SPAC Domestication.

Any gain recognized by a Non-Electing Shareholder of SPAC Class A Shares or a U.S. Holder of SPAC Public Warrants in SPAC as a result of the SPAC Domestication pursuant to the PFIC rules may be subject to U.S. federal income taxation to the extent such U.S. Holder's shares have a fair market value in excess of such U.S. Holder's tax basis therein and taxed under the excess distribution regime in the manner set forth above, with no corresponding receipt of cash.

As noted above, if SPAC is considered a PFIC, the SPAC Domestication could be a taxable event under the PFIC rules regardless of whether the SPAC Domestication qualifies as an F Reorganization, and, absent a QEF Election (or a timely QEF Election along with a purging election) or an MTM Election, a U.S. Holder would be taxed under the excess distribution regime in the manner set forth above.

If a U.S. Holder (including a U.S. Holder of SPAC Public Warrants) that did not (or does not) make a timely QEF Election (or a timely QEF Election along with a timely purging election) or an MTM Election with respect to its SPAC Class A Shares and/or SPAC Public Warrants and does not recognize its gain in connection with the SPAC Shares or SPAC Public Warrants, such U.S. Holder may also be subject to Section 1291(f) of the Code (and any Treasury Regulations thereunder) on a subsequent sale or disposition of such stock after the SPAC Domestication in a taxable transaction (including in the redemption) or with respect to the SPAC Merger and therefore be required to recognize gain on the SPAC Merger that is subject to the special tax and interest charge rules treating the gain as an excess distribution, as described herein.

ALL U.S. HOLDERS ARE URGED TO CONSULT THEIR TAX ADVISORS REGARDING THE EFFECTS OF THE PFIC RULES ON THE SPAC DOMESTICATION, INCLUDING THE IMPACT OF ANY PROPOSED OR FINAL TREASURY REGULATIONS.

4. QEF Election and Mark-to-Market Election

The impact of the PFIC rules on a U.S. Holder of SPAC Class A Shares will depend on whether the U.S. Holder has made a timely and effective election to treat SPAC as a "qualified electing fund" under Section 1295 of the Code for the taxable year that is the first year in the U.S. Holder's holding period of SPAC Class A Shares during which SPAC qualified as a PFIC (a "QEF Election") or, if in a later taxable year, the U.S. Holder made a QEF Election along with a purging election. One type of purging election creates a deemed sale of the U.S. Holder's SPAC Class A Shares at their then fair market value and requires the U.S. Holder to recognize gain pursuant to such purging election subject to the excess distribution regime described above. As a result of any such purging election, the U.S. Holder would increase the adjusted tax basis in its SPAC Class A Shares by the amount of the gain recognized and, solely for purposes of the PFIC rules, would have a new holding period in its SPAC Class A Shares. U.S. Holders are urged to consult their tax advisors as to the application of the rules governing purging elections to their particular circumstances.

A U.S. Holder's ability to make a timely and effective QEF Election (or a QEF Election along with a purging election) with respect to its SPAC Class Common A Shares is contingent upon, among other things, the provision by SPAC of a "PFIC Annual Information Statement" to such U.S. Holder. SPAC or Pubco (as applicable) will endeavor to provide a requesting U.S. Holder such information the IRS may require, including a PFIC Annual Information Statement, for making or maintaining a QEF Election (or making a QEF Election along with a purging election) for SPAC's taxable year that ends on the date of the SPAC Domestication (and prior taxable years) but there is no assurance that SPAC or Pubco will timely provide such required information.

As discussed above, a U.S. Holder is not able to make a QEF Election with respect to SPAC Public Warrants under current law. An Electing Shareholder generally would not be subject to the excess distribution regime discussed above with respect to their SPAC Class A Shares. As a result, an Electing Shareholder generally should not recognize gain or loss as a result of the SPAC Domestication or SPAC Merger except to the extent described under "—3. Effects of Section 367 to U.S. Holders of SPAC Class A Shares," and "—C. U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences of the SPAC Merger" and subject to the discussion above under "—A. U.S. Federal Income Tax Effects of the SPAC Domestication to U.S. Holders" and "—C. U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences of the SPAC Merger".

The impact of the PFIC rules on a U.S. Holder of SPAC Class A Shares may also depend on whether the U.S. Holder has made a mark-to-market election under Section 1296 of the Code (an "MTM Election"). U.S. Holders who hold (actually or constructively) stock of a foreign corporation that is classified as a PFIC may elect to mark such stock to its market value each taxable year if such stock is "marketable stock," generally, stock that is regularly traded on a stock exchange that is registered with the SEC, including the NASDAQ. No assurance can be given that SPAC Class A Shares are considered to be marketable stock for purposes of the MTM Election for any taxable year or whether the other requirements of this election are satisfied. If such an election is available and has been made, such Electing Shareholder generally would not be subject to the excess distribution regime discussed above with respect to their SPAC Class A Shares in connection with the SPAC Domestication. Instead, in general, such Electing Shareholder would include as ordinary income each year the excess, if any, of the fair market value of its SPAC Class A Shares of SPAC at the end of its taxable year over its adjusted tax basis in its SPAC Class A Shares. The Electing Shareholder also will recognize an ordinary loss in respect of the excess, if any, of its adjusted tax basis in its SPAC Class A Shares over the fair market value of its SPAC Class A Shares at the end of its taxable year (but only to the extent of the net amount of previously included income as a result of the MTM Election). The Electing Shareholder's tax basis in its SPAC Class A Shares will be adjusted to reflect any such income or loss amounts, and any further gain on a sale or other disposition of its SPAC Class A Shares (including in the redemption or if the SPAC Domestication does not qualify as an F Reorganization) or in the SPAC Merger will be treated as ordinary income (and any further loss recognized on such sale or disposition in excess of the net amount previously included in income as a result of the MTM Election would be capital loss). However, if the MTM Election is not made by a U.S. Holder with respect to the first taxable year of its holding period for the SPAC Class A Shares in which SPAC is a PFIC, then the excess distribution regime discussed above will apply to certain dispositions of, distributions on and other amounts taxable with respect to, SPAC Class A Shares, including in connection with the SPAC Domestication and SPAC Merger. Under current law, an MTM Election is not available with respect to warrants, including the SPAC Public Warrants.

C. U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences of the SPAC Merger

1. Treatment of the SPAC Merger

The parties to the BCA intend that the exchange of SPAC Securities for Pubco Securities pursuant to the SPAC Merger, taken together with the Company Merger and certain other Transaction as part of the Business

Combination, is intended to be treated as an exchange in which no gain or loss is recognized under Section 351(a) of the Code (except in respect of the receipt of Pubco Warrants in the SPAC Merger pursuant to Section 351(b) of the Code, as described below). No ruling has been, or will be, sought from the IRS by SPAC or Pubco with respect to the SPAC Merger, and there can be no assurance that the IRS will not challenge the qualification of the SPAC Merger as an exchange subject to Section 351(a) and Section 351(b) of the Code or that a court would not sustain such a challenge. Qualification as an exchange under Section 351(a) and Section 351(b) of the Code is subject to a number of requirements. Additionally, Section 351(a) and Section 351(b) of the Code are generally inapplicable to transfers to an "investment company", as defined for purposes of Section 351 of the Code. While the parties believe that Pubco should not be treated as an "investment company" for this purpose, there is no authority directly addressing the treatment of XRP tokens in this context. If any requirement for qualification as an exchange under Section 351(a) and Section 351(b) of the Code is not met, then a U.S. Holder of SPAC Securities would recognize gain or loss in the SPAC Merger in an amount equal to the difference, if any, between the fair market value (as of the Closing) of the Pubco Securities (as defined below) received by such U.S. Holder in the SPAC Merger and such U.S. Holder's aggregate tax basis in the SPAC Securities surrendered in exchange therefor.

The remainder of this discussion assumes that the exchange of SPAC Securities for Pubco Securities pursuant to the SPAC Merger will qualify under Section 351(a) and Section 351(b) of the Code.

A U.S. Holder that receives only Pubco Class A Common Stock in exchange for SPAC Class A Shares in the SPAC Merger generally should not recognize any gain or loss on such exchange. In such case, the aggregate adjusted tax basis of the Pubco Class A Common Stock received in the SPAC Merger by a U.S. Holder will be equal to the adjusted tax basis of the SPAC Class A Shares exchanged therefor. The holding period of the Pubco Class A Common Stock will include the holding period during which the SPAC Class A Shares exchanged therefor were held by such U.S. Holder (which, as discussed above, will include the holding period of any SPAC Class A Shares of SPAC surrendered in the SPAC Domestication).

A U.S. Holder that surrenders both SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants in the Business Combination in exchange for both Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants will generally be required to recognize capital gain (but not loss) in an amount equal to the lesser of (i) the amount of gain realized by such U.S. Holder (generally, the excess of (x) the sum of the fair market value of the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Warrants exchanged over (y) such U.S. Holder's aggregate adjusted tax basis in such SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Warrants) and (ii) the fair market value of the Pubco Warrants received by such U.S. Holder in such exchange. As a result of such an exchange, such U.S. Holder will have a tax basis in the Pubco Class A Common Stock equal to the tax basis in the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Warrants surrendered, plus any gain recognized by such U.S. Holder in the exchange, less the fair market value of the Pubco Warrants received. In addition, such U.S. Holder's tax basis in the Pubco Warrants will be equal to the fair market value of such Pubco Warrants, determined on the date of the Business Combination. In addition, the holding period for the Pubco Class A Common Stock will include the period during which the U.S. Holder held its SPAC Class A Shares, and the holding period for the Pubco Warrants will start on the day after the Business Combination.

Any capital gain recognized in the exchange generally will be long-term capital gain if the U.S. Holder's holding period for the SPAC Securities disposed of in the SPAC Merger exceeds one year. Long-term capital gains recognized by non-corporate U.S. Holders generally will be eligible to be taxed at reduced rates. The deductibility of capital losses is subject to limitations.

U.S. Holders who actually or constructively own at least five percent by vote or value of the total outstanding Pubco Common Shares may be subject to special reporting requirements with respect to the SPAC Merger, and such holders should consult with their tax advisors with respect to their reporting requirements.

Each U.S. Holder receiving Pubco Class A Common Stock should consult with such holder's own tax advisors as to the allocation of its tax basis among its shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

2. Holders receiving only PubCo Warrants in the SPAC Merger

Whether or not the exchange of SPAC Securities for Pubco Securities pursuant to the SPAC Merger qualifies under Section 351(a) of the Code, a U.S. Holder that holds only SPAC Public Warrants and exchanges such SPAC Public Warrants for Pubco Warrants pursuant to the SPAC Merger should generally recognize capital gain or loss equal to the difference between the fair market value of the Pubco Warrants received by the U.S. Holder in such exchange and the U.S. Holder's tax basis in the SPAC Public Warrants surrendered.

Any such capital gain or loss generally will be long-term capital gain or loss if the U.S. Holder's holding period for the SPAC Public Warrants disposed of in the SPAC Merger exceeds one year. Long-term capital gains recognized by non-corporate U.S. Holders generally will be eligible to be taxed at reduced rates. The deductibility of capital losses is subject to limitations.

U.S. Holders of SPAC Public Warrants are urged to consult with their tax advisors regarding the treatment of their warrants in connection with the Business Combination.

D. U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations to U.S. Holders of Exercising Redemption Rights

1. Generally

The U.S. federal income tax consequences to a U.S. Holder of SPAC Class A Shares of SPAC Delaware that exercises its redemption rights with respect to such SPAC Class A Shares will depend on whether the redemption qualifies as a sale of under Section 302 of the Code and is subject in its entirety to the discussion of the PFIC rules as discussed above under the section entitled "—B. PFIC Considerations". If the redemption qualifies as a sale of shares by a U.S. Holder, the tax consequences to such U.S. Holder are as described below under the section entitled "—3. Taxation of Redemption Treated as a Sale." If the redemption does not qualify as a sale of shares, a U.S. Holder will be treated as receiving a corporate distribution with the tax consequences to such U.S. Holder as described below under the section entitled "—2. Taxation of Redemption Treated as a Distribution."

Whether a redemption of shares qualifies for sale treatment will depend largely on the total number of shares of SPAC Common Shares treated as held by the redeemed U.S. Holder before and after the redemption (including any shares treated as constructively owned by the U.S. Holder as a result of owning SPAC Warrants and any shares that a U.S. Holder would directly or indirectly acquire pursuant to the Transactions) relative to all of the SPAC Common Shares outstanding both before and after the redemption. For this purpose, it is expected that the disposition of SPAC Common Shares in the SPAC Merger will be taken into account for purposes of determining ownership of SPAC Common Shares after the redemption. The redemption generally will be treated as a sale of shares (rather than as a corporate distribution) if the redemption (1) is "substantially disproportionate" with respect to the U.S. Holder, (2) results in a "complete termination" of the U.S. Holder's interest in SPAC or (3) is "not essentially equivalent to a dividend" with respect to the U.S. Holder. These tests are explained more fully below.

In determining whether any of the foregoing tests result in a redemption qualifying for sale treatment, a U.S. Holder takes into account not only shares actually owned by the U.S. Holder, but also shares that are constructively owned by it under certain attribution rules set forth in the Code. A U.S. Holder may constructively own, in addition to shares owned directly, shares owned by certain related individuals and entities in which the U.S. Holder has an interest or that have an interest in such U.S. Holder, as well as any shares that the holder has a right to acquire by exercise of an option, which would generally include shares which could be acquired pursuant to the exercise of SPAC Public Warrants. Moreover, any shares that a U.S. Holder directly or constructively acquires pursuant to the Transactions generally should be included in determining the U.S. federal income tax treatment of the redemption.

In order to meet the "substantially disproportionate" test, the percentage of SPAC's outstanding voting stock actually and constructively owned by the U.S. Holder immediately following the redemption of shares must, among other requirements, be less than 80% of the percentage of SPAC's outstanding voting stock actually and constructively owned by the U.S. Holder immediately before the redemption (determined based on reduction in voting power, and taking into account redemptions by other holders and possibly the Pubco stock to be issued pursuant to the Transactions). There will be a "complete termination" of a U.S. Holder's interest in SPAC if either (1) all of the shares actually and constructively owned by the U.S. Holder are redeemed or (2) all of the shares actually owned by the U.S. Holder are redeemed and the U.S. Holder is eligible to waive, and effectively waives in accordance with specific rules, the attribution of stock owned by certain family members and the U.S. Holder does not constructively own any other shares (including any stock constructively owned by the U.S. Holder as a result of owning SPAC Warrants). The redemption will not be "essentially equivalent to a dividend" if the redemption results in a "meaningful reduction" of the U.S. Holder's proportionate interest in SPAC. Whether the redemption will result in a meaningful reduction in a U.S. Holder's proportionate interest in SPAC will depend on the particular facts and circumstances. However, the IRS has indicated in a published ruling that even a small reduction in the proportionate interest of a small minority stockholder in a publicly held corporation where such stockholder exercises no control over corporate affairs may constitute such a "meaningful reduction."

If none of the foregoing tests is satisfied, then the redemption of shares generally will be treated as a corporate distribution to the redeemed U.S. Holder and the tax effects to such a U.S. Holder will be as described below under the section entitled "—2. Taxation of Redemption Treated as a Distribution." After the application of those rules, any remaining tax basis of the U.S. Holder in the redeemed shares will be added to the U.S. Holder's adjusted tax basis in its remaining SPAC Common Shares or, if it has none, to the U.S. Holder's adjusted tax basis in its SPAC Public Warrants or possibly in other SPAC Common Shares constructively owned by it.

U.S. Holders exercising redemption rights will be subject to the potential tax consequences of the SPAC Domestication (discussed further above).

U.S. Holders who actually or constructively own at least five percent by vote or value of the total outstanding SPAC Common Shares may be subject to special reporting requirements with respect to a redemption of shares, and such holders should consult with their tax advisors with respect to their reporting requirements.

2. Taxation of Redemption Treated as a Distribution

If the redemption of a U.S. Holder's shares is treated as a corporate distribution, as discussed above under the section entitled "—1. Generally," the amount of cash received in the redemption generally will constitute a dividend for U.S. federal income tax purposes to the extent paid from SPAC's current or accumulated earnings and profits, as determined under U.S. federal income tax principles.

Distributions in excess of SPAC's current and accumulated earnings and profits will constitute a return of capital that will be applied against and reduce (but not below zero) the U.S. Holder's adjusted tax basis in its shares. Any remaining excess will be treated as gain realized on the sale of shares and will be treated as described below under the section entitled "—3. Taxation of Redemption Treated as a Sale."

3. Taxation of Redemption Treated as a Sale

If the redemption of a U.S. Holder's shares is treated as a sale, as discussed above under the section entitled "—1. Generally," a U.S. Holder generally will recognize capital gain or loss in an amount equal to the difference between the amount of cash received in the redemption and the U.S. Holder's adjusted tax basis in the shares redeemed. Any such capital gain or loss generally will be long-term capital gain or loss if the U.S. Holder's holding period for the shares so disposed of exceeds one year. Long-term capital gains recognized by non-corporate U.S. Holders generally will be eligible to be taxed at reduced rates. The deductibility of capital losses is subject to limitations.

U.S. Holders who hold different blocks of shares (including as a result of holding different blocks of SPAC Class A Shares purchased or acquired on different dates or at different prices) should consult their tax advisors to determine how the above rules apply to them.

ALL U.S. HOLDERS ARE URGED TO CONSULT THEIR TAX ADVISORS AS TO THE TAX CONSEQUENCES TO THEM OF AN EXERCISE OF REDEMPTION RIGHTS, INCLUDING ANY POTENTIAL APPLICATION OF THE PFIC RULES.

E. Tax Consequences of Ownership and Disposition of Pubco Securities

1. Taxation of Distributions

In general, distributions of cash or other property to U.S. Holders of Pubco Class A Common Stock (other than certain distributions of Pubco stock or rights to acquire Pubco stock) generally will constitute dividends for U.S. federal income tax purposes to the extent paid from Pubco's current or accumulated earnings and profits, as determined under U.S. federal income tax principles. Distributions in excess of current and accumulated earnings and profits generally will constitute a return of capital that will be applied against and reduce (but not below zero) the U.S. Holder's adjusted tax basis in its Pubco Class A Common Stock. Any remaining excess generally will be treated as gain realized on the sale or other disposition of the Pubco Class A Common Stock, as described below under the section entitled "—2. Gain or Loss on Sale, Taxable Exchange or Other Taxable Disposition of Pubco Securities."

Dividends paid to a U.S. Holder that is classified as a taxable corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes generally will qualify for the dividends received deduction if the requisite holding period is satisfied. With certain exceptions (including dividends treated as investment income for purposes of investment interest deduction limitations), and provided certain holding period requirements are met, dividends paid to a non-corporate U.S. Holder generally will constitute "qualified dividend income" subject to tax at reduced rates applicable to long-term capital gains.

2. Gain or Loss on Sale, Taxable Exchange or Other Taxable Disposition of Pubco Securities

Upon a sale or other taxable disposition of Pubco Securities (which, in general, would include a redemption of Pubco Warrants that is treated as a sale of such warrants as described below), a U.S. Holder generally will recognize capital gain or loss in an amount equal to the difference between the amount realized and the U.S. Holder's adjusted tax basis in the Pubco Securities. Any such capital gain or loss generally will be long-term capital gain or loss if the U.S. Holder's holding period for the Pubco Securities so disposed of exceeds one year. Long-term capital gains recognized by non-corporate U.S. Holders may be eligible to be taxed at reduced rates. The deductibility of capital losses is subject to limitations.

Generally, the amount of gain or loss recognized by a U.S. Holder is an amount equal to the difference between (i) the sum of the amount of cash and the fair market value of any property received in such disposition and (ii) the U.S. Holder's adjusted tax basis in its Pubco Securities so disposed of. See the section entitled "—C. U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences of the SPAC Merger" above for discussion of a U.S. Holder's adjusted tax basis in its Pubco Securities following the SPAC Merger. See the section entitled "—3. Exercise, Lapse or Redemption of Pubco Warrants" below for a discussion regarding a U.S. Holder's tax basis in Pubco Class A Common Stock acquired pursuant to the exercise of a Pubco Warrant.

3. Exercise, Lapse or Redemption of Pubco Warrants

A U.S. Holder generally will not recognize taxable gain or loss on the acquisition of Pubco Class A Common Stock upon exercise of Pubco Warrants for cash. The U.S. Holder's tax basis in the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock received upon exercise of the Pubco Warrants generally will be an amount equal to the sum of the U.S. Holder's tax basis in the Pubco Warrants and the exercise price. It is unclear whether the U.S. Holder's holding period for the Pubco Class A Common Stock received upon exercise of the Pubco Warrants will begin on the date following the date of exercise or on the date of exercise of the Pubco Warrants; in either case, the holding period will not include the period during which the U.S. Holder held the Pubco Warrants. If any Pubco Warrants are allowed to lapse unexercised, a U.S. Holder generally will recognize a capital loss equal to such holder's tax basis in the lapsed Pubco Warrants.

The tax consequences of a cashless exercise of Pubco Warrants are not clear under current tax law. A cashless exercise may not be taxable, either because the exercise is not a realization event or because the exercise is treated as a recapitalization for U.S. federal income tax purposes. If the cashless exercise is not taxable, a U.S. Holder's basis in the Pubco Class A Common Stock received would equal the U.S. Holder's basis in the Pubco Warrants exercised therefor. If the cashless exercise were treated as not being a realization event, it is unclear whether a U.S. Holder's holding period in the Pubco Class A Common Stock would be treated as commencing on the date following the date of exercise or on the date of exercise of the Pubco Warrants; in either case, the holding period would not include the period during which the U.S. Holder held the Pubco Warrants. If the cashless exercise were treated as a recapitalization, the holding period of the Pubco Class A Common Stock would include the holding period of the Pubco Warrants exercised therefor.

It is also possible that a cashless exercise could be treated in part as a taxable exchange in which gain or loss would be recognized. In such event, a U.S. Holder could be deemed to have surrendered a number of Pubco Warrants equal to the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock having a value equal to the exercise price for the total number of Pubco Warrants to be exercised. In such case, the U.S. Holder would recognize capital gain or loss with respect to the Pubco Warrants deemed surrendered in an amount equal to the difference between the fair market value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock that would have been received in a regular exercise of the Pubco Warrants deemed surrendered and the U.S. Holder's tax basis in the Pubco Warrants deemed surrendered. In this case, a U.S. Holder's aggregate tax basis in the Pubco Class A Common Stock received would equal the sum of the U.S. Holder's tax basis in the Pubco Warrants deemed exercised and the aggregate exercise price of such Pubco Warrants. It is unclear whether a U.S. Holder's holding period for the Pubco Class A Common Stock would commence on the date following the date of exercise or on the date of exercise of the Pubco Warrants; in either case, the holding period would not include the period during which the U.S. Holder held the Pubco Warrants.

Due to the absence of authority on the U.S. federal income tax treatment of a cashless exercise, including when a U.S. Holder's holding period would commence with respect to the Pubco Class A Common Stock received, there can be no assurance regarding which, if any, of the alternative tax consequences and holding periods described above would be adopted by the IRS or a court of law. Accordingly, U.S. Holders should consult their tax advisors regarding the tax consequences of a cashless exercise.

If Pubco redeems Pubco Warrants for cash or if it purchases Pubco Warrants in an open market transaction, such redemption or purchase generally will be treated as a taxable disposition to the U.S. Holder, taxed as described above under the section entitled "—2. Gain or Loss on Sale, Taxable Exchange or Other Taxable Disposition of Pubco Securities."

4. Possible Constructive Distributions

Consistent with the SPAC Public Warrants, the terms of each Pubco Warrant will provide for an adjustment to the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock for which the Pubco Warrant may be exercised or to the exercise price of the Pubco Warrant in certain events. An adjustment which has the effect of preventing dilution generally is not taxable. A U.S. Holder of the Pubco Warrants would, however, be treated as receiving a constructive distribution from Pubco if, for example, the adjustment increases the U.S. Holder's proportionate interest in Pubco's assets or earnings and profits (for example, through an increase in the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would be obtained upon exercise or through a decrease in the exercise price of the Pubco Warrant), which adjustment may be made as a result of a distribution of cash or other property, such as other securities, to the holders of shares of Pubco stock, or as a result of the issuance of a stock dividend to holders of shares of Pubco stock, in each case, which is taxable to the holders of such shares as a distribution. Such constructive distributions generally would be subject to tax as described above under the section entitled "—1. Taxation of Distributions" in the same manner as if the U.S. Holders of the Pubco Warrants received a cash distribution from Pubco equal to the fair market value of such increased interest.

F. Information Reporting and Backup Withholding

Payments of dividends on and the proceeds from a sale or other disposition of Pubco Securities will be subject to information reporting to the IRS and U.S. backup withholding on such payments may be possible. Backup withholding will not apply, however, to a U.S. Holder who furnishes a correct taxpayer identification number and makes other required certifications, or who is otherwise exempt from backup withholding and establishes such exempt status.

Backup withholding is not an additional tax. Amounts withheld as backup withholding may be credited against a U.S. Holder's U.S. federal income tax liability, and the U.S. Holder generally may obtain a refund of any excess amounts withheld under the backup withholding rules by timely filing the appropriate claim for refund with the IRS and furnishing any required information.

III. NON-U.S. HOLDERS

As used in this proxy statement/prospectus, a "Non-U.S. Holder" is a beneficial owner of a SPAC Security or Pubco Security, as applicable, who or that for U.S. federal income tax purposes is, or is treated as:

(a) a non-resident alien individual, other than certain former citizens and residents of the United States subject to U.S. tax as expatriates;

(b) a foreign corporation; or

(c) an estate or trust that is not a U.S. Holder.

A. U.S. Federal Income Tax Effects of the SPAC Domestication and the SPAC Merger to Non-U.S. Holders

A Non-U.S. Holder generally will not be subject to U.S. federal income or withholding tax in respect of gain recognized in the SPAC Domestication (i.e., if the SPAC Domestication fails to qualify as an F Reorganization) or the SPAC Merger (i.e., the SPAC Merger fails to qualify under Section 351(a) of the Code or the Non-U.S. Holder owns SPAC Public Warrants), unless:

(a) the gain is effectively connected with the conduct by the Non-U.S. Holder of a trade or business within the United States (and, if required by an applicable income tax treaty, is attributable to a permanent establishment or fixed base that such Non-U.S. Holder maintains in the United States);

(b) such Non-U.S. Holder is an individual who was present in the United States for 183 days or more in the taxable year of such disposition (as such days are calculated pursuant to Section 7701(b)(3) of the Code) and certain other requirements are met; or

(c) in the case of the SPAC Merger, SPAC is or has been a "United States real property holding corporation" for U.S. federal income tax purposes at any time during the shorter of the five-year period ending on the date of disposition or the Non-U.S. Holder's holding period for the applicable SPAC Security being disposed of.

Unless an applicable treaty provides otherwise, gain described in the first bullet point above will be subject to tax at generally applicable U.S. federal income tax rates as if the Non-U.S. Holder were a U.S. resident. Any gains described in the first bullet point above of a Non-U.S. Holder that is treated as a foreign corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes may also be subject to an additional "branch profits tax" imposed at a 30% rate (or a lower applicable income tax treaty rate).

If the second bullet point applies to a Non-U.S. Holder, such Non-U.S. Holder generally will be subject to U.S. tax on such Non-U.S. Holder's net capital gain for such year (including any gain realized in connection with the redemption) at a tax rate of 30% (or a lower applicable tax treaty rate).

If the third bullet point above applies to a Non-U.S. Holder, subject to certain exceptions in the case of interests that are regularly traded on an established market, gain recognized by such holder will be subject to tax at generally applicable U.S. federal income tax rates. Based on the nature of the business and activities of SPAC, it generally is not expected that SPAC would be a U.S. real property holding corporation after the SPAC Domestication.

Non-U.S. Holders will own stock and warrants of a U.S. corporation, i.e., SPAC Delaware, rather than a non-U.S. corporation, i.e., SPAC, after the SPAC Domestication.

Non-U.S. Holders exercising redemption rights after the SPAC Domestication will be subject to the potential tax consequences of the SPAC Domestication. All Non-U.S. Holders considering exercising redemption rights with respect to SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants are urged to consult with their tax advisors with respect to the potential tax consequences to them of the SPAC Domestication and exercise of redemption rights.

B. U.S. Federal Income Tax Effects to Non-U.S. Holders of Exercising Redemption Rights of SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants

The U.S. federal income tax consequences to a Non-U.S. Holder of SPAC Class A Shares that exercises its redemption rights will depend on whether the redemption qualifies as a sale of shares redeemed, as described above under "II. U.S. Holders— D. U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations to U.S. Holders of Exercising Redemption Rights—1. Generally." The U.S. federal income tax consequences to the Non-U.S. Holder will be as described below under "—C. Tax Consequences of Ownership and Disposition of Pubco Securities—2. Sale, Taxable Exchange or Other Taxable Disposition of Pubco Securities." If the redemption does not qualify as a sale of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the Non-U.S. Holder will be treated as receiving a corporate distribution, the U.S. federal income tax consequences of which are described below under "—C. Tax Consequences of Ownership and Disposition of Pubco Securities—1. Taxation of Distributions."

Because it may not be certain at the time a Non-U.S. Holder is redeemed whether such Non-U.S. Holder's redemption will be treated as a sale of shares or a corporate distribution, and because such determination will depend in part on a Non-U.S. Holder's particular circumstances, the applicable withholding agent may not be able to determine whether (or to what extent) a Non-U.S. Holder is treated as receiving a dividend for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Therefore, the applicable withholding agent may withhold tax at a rate of 30% (or such lower rate as may be specified by an applicable income tax treaty) on the gross amount of any consideration paid to a Non-U.S. Holder in redemption of such Non-U.S. Holder's Pubco Class A Common Stock, unless (i) the applicable withholding agent has established special procedures allowing Non-U.S. Holders to certify that they are exempt from such withholding tax and (ii) such Non-U.S. Holders are able to certify that they meet the requirements of such exemption (e.g., because such Non-U.S. Holders are not treated as receiving a dividend under the Section 302 tests described above under the section entitled "II. U.S. Holders— D. U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations to U.S. Holders of Exercising Redemption Rights —1. Generally"). However, there can be no assurance that any applicable withholding agent will establish such special certification procedures. If an applicable withholding agent withholds excess amounts from the amount payable to a Non-U.S. Holder, such Non-U.S. Holder generally may obtain a refund of any such excess amounts by timely filing an appropriate claim for refund with the IRS. Non-U.S. Holders should consult their own tax advisors regarding the application of the foregoing rules in light of their particular facts and circumstances and any applicable procedures or certification requirements.

The U.S. federal income tax consequences to the Non-U.S. Holder of a SPAC Public Warrant will be as described below under "—C. Tax Consequences of Ownership and Disposition of Pubco Securities—2. Sale, Taxable Exchange or Other Taxable Disposition of Pubco Securities."

C. Tax Consequences of Ownership and Disposition of Pubco Securities

1. Taxation of Distributions

In general, any distributions (including constructive distributions, but not including certain distributions of Pubco stock or rights to acquire Pubco stock) made to a Non-U.S. Holder of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, to the extent paid out of Pubco's current or accumulated earnings and profits (as determined under U.S. federal income tax principles), will constitute dividends for U.S. federal income tax purposes and, provided such dividends are not effectively connected with the Non-U.S. Holder's conduct of a trade or business within the United States (and, if required by an applicable income tax treaty, is attributable to a permanent establishment or fixed base that such Non-U.S. Holder maintains in the United States), Pubco (or another applicable withholding agent) will be required to withhold tax from the gross amount of the dividend at a rate of 30%, unless such Non-U.S. Holder is eligible for a reduced rate of withholding tax under an applicable income tax treaty and provides proper certification of its eligibility for such reduced rate (usually on an IRS Form W-8BEN or W-8BEN-E). In the case of any constructive dividend, it is possible that this tax would be withheld from any amount owed to a Non-U.S. Holder by the applicable withholding agent, including cash distributions on other property or sale proceeds from warrants or other property subsequently paid or credited to such Non-U.S. Holder. Any distribution not constituting a dividend will be treated first as reducing (but not below zero) the Non-U.S. Holder's adjusted tax basis in its shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and, to the extent such distribution exceeds the Non-U.S. Holder's adjusted tax basis, as gain realized from the sale or other disposition of the Pubco Class A Common Stock, which will be treated as described below under the section entitled "—2. Sale, Taxable Exchange or Other Taxable Disposition of Pubco Securities." If Pubco determines that it is likely to be classified as a "U.S. real property holding corporation" (see the section entitled "—2. Sale, Taxable Exchange or Other Taxable Disposition of Pubco Securities" below), the applicable withholding agent may be required to withhold 15% of any distribution that exceeds Pubco's current and accumulated earnings and profits. The withholding tax generally does not apply to a Non-U.S. Holder who provides an IRS Form W-8ECI, certifying that the dividends are effectively connected with the Non-U.S. Holder's conduct of a trade or business within the United States. Instead, the effectively connected dividends will be subject to regular U.S. federal income tax as if the Non-U.S. Holder were a U.S. resident, subject to an applicable income tax treaty providing otherwise. A Non-U.S. Holder that is treated as a foreign corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes receiving effectively connected dividends may also be subject to an additional "branch profits tax" imposed at a rate of 30% (or a lower rate provided in an applicable tax treaty).

2. Sale, Taxable Exchange or Other Taxable Disposition of Pubco Securities.

A non-U.S. Holder generally will not be subject to U.S. federal income or withholding tax in respect of gain recognized on a sale, taxable exchange or other taxable disposition of its Pubco Securities, including an expiration or redemption of the Pubco Warrants as described below under the section entitled "—3. Exercise, Lapse or Redemption of Pubco Warrants," or a redemption of Pubco Class A Common Stock that is treated as a sale of shares as described above under the section entitled "—B. U.S. Federal Income Tax Effects to Non-U.S. Holders of Exercising Redemption Rights of SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants," unless:

(a) the gain is effectively connected with the conduct by the Non-U.S. Holder of a trade or business within the United States (and, if required by an applicable income tax treaty, is attributable to a permanent establishment or fixed base that such Non-U.S. Holder maintains in the United States);

(b) such Non-U.S. Holder is an individual who was present in the United States for 183 days or more in the taxable year of such disposition (as such days are calculated pursuant to Section 7701(b)(3) of the Code) and certain other requirements are met; or

(c) Pubco is or has been a "United States real property holding corporation" for U.S. federal income tax purposes at any time during the shorter of the five-year period ending on the date of disposition or the Non-U.S. Holder's holding period for the applicable Pubco Security being disposed of.

Unless an applicable treaty provides otherwise, gain described in the first bullet point above will be subject to tax at generally applicable U.S. federal income tax rates as if the Non-U.S. Holder were a U.S. resident. Any gains described in the first bullet point above of a Non-U.S. Holder that is treated as a foreign corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes may also be subject to an additional "branch profits tax" imposed at a 30% rate (or a lower applicable income tax treaty rate).

If the second bullet point applies to a Non-U.S. Holder, such Non-U.S. Holder generally will be subject to U.S. tax on such Non-U.S. Holder's net capital gain for such year (including any gain realized in connection with the redemption) at a tax rate of 30% (or a lower applicable tax treaty rate).

If the third bullet point above applies to a Non-U.S. Holder, subject to certain exceptions in the case of interests that are regularly traded on an established market, gain recognized by such holder will be subject to tax at generally applicable U.S. federal income tax rates, and a buyer of such Pubco Security or Pubco may be required to withhold U.S. federal income tax at a rate of 15% of the amount realized upon such disposition or redemption. Based on the nature of the business and activities of Pubco, it generally is not expected that Pubco would be a U.S. real property holding corporation after the SPAC Merger or immediately after the Transactions are completed. However, neither SPAC nor Pubco has undertaken a formal analysis of Pubco's possible status as a U.S. real property holding corporation. Such determination is factual in nature and subject to change. Accordingly, no assurance can be provided as to whether Pubco would be treated as a U.S. real property holding corporation in any taxable year.

Non-U.S. Holders should consult their tax advisors regarding the U.S. federal income tax consequences to them in respect of any loss recognized on a sale, taxable exchange or other taxable disposition of its Pubco Securities.

3. Exercise, Lapse or Redemption of Pubco Warrants

A Non-U.S. Holder generally will not recognize taxable gain or loss on the acquisition of Pubco Class A Common Stock upon exercise of Pubco Warrants for cash. The Non-U.S. Holder's tax basis in the share of Pubco Class A Common Stock received upon exercise of Pubco Warrants generally will be an amount equal to the sum of the Non-U.S. Holder's tax basis in such Pubco Warrants and the exercise price. It is unclear whether the Non-U.S. Holder's holding period for the Pubco Class A Common Stock received upon exercise of the Pubco Warrants will begin on the date following the date of exercise or on the date of exercise of the Pubco Warrants; in either case, the holding period will not include the period during which the Non-U.S. Holder held the Pubco Warrants. If any Pubco Warrants are allowed to lapse unexercised, a Non-U.S. Holder generally will recognize a capital loss equal to such holder's tax basis in such lapsed Pubco Warrants and generally will be taxed as described above under "—2. Sale, Taxable Exchange or Other Taxable Disposition of Pubco Securities."

Consistent with the SPAC Public Warrants, the Pubco Warrants may be exercised on a cashless basis in certain circumstances. The U.S. federal income tax characterization of a cashless exercise of Pubco Warrants are not clear under current tax law. A cashless exercise may not be a taxable exchange, either because the exercise is not a realization event or because the exercise is treated as a recapitalization for U.S. federal income tax purposes. If the cashless exercise is not taxable, a Non-U.S. Holder's tax basis in the Pubco Class A Common Stock received would equal the Non-U.S. Holder's tax basis in the Pubco Warrants exercised therefor. If the cashless exercise were treated as not being a realization event, it is unclear whether a Non-U.S. Holder's holding period in the Pubco Class A Common Stock would be treated as commencing on the date following the date of exercise or on the date of exercise of the Pubco Warrants; in either case, the holding period would not include the Non-U.S. Holder's holding period for the Pubco Warrants exercised therefor.

If the cashless exercise were treated as a recapitalization, the holding period of the Pubco Class A Common Stock would include the holding period of the Pubco Warrants exercised therefor.

It is also possible that a cashless exercise could be treated in part as a taxable exchange in which gain or loss would be recognized. In such event, a Non-U.S. Holder could be deemed to have surrendered a number of Pubco Warrants equal to the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock having a value equal to the exercise price for the total number of Pubco Warrants to be exercised. In such case, the Non-U.S. Holder would recognize capital gain or loss with respect to the Pubco Warrants deemed surrendered in an amount equal to the difference between the fair market value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock that would have been received in a regular exercise of the Pubco Warrants deemed surrendered and the Non-U.S. Holder's tax basis in the Pubco Warrants deemed surrendered. Any gain or loss recognized by a Non-U.S. Holder generally will be taxed as described above in "—2. Sale, Taxable Exchange or Other Taxable Disposition of Pubco Securities." It is unclear whether a Non-U.S. Holder's holding period for the Pubco Class A Common Stock would commence on the date following the date of exercise or on the date of exercise of the Pubco Warrants; in either case, the holding period would not include the Non-U.S. Holder's holding period for the Pubco Warrants exercised therefor.

Due to the absence of authority on the U.S. federal income tax treatment of a cashless exercise, including when a Non-U.S. Holder's holding period would commence with respect to the Pubco Class A Common Stock received, there can be no assurance regarding which, if any, of the alternative tax consequences and holding periods described above would be adopted by the IRS or a court of law. Accordingly, Non-U.S. Holders should consult their tax advisors regarding the tax consequences of a cashless exercise.

If Pubco redeems Pubco Warrants for cash or if Pubco purchases Pubco Warrants in an open market transaction, such redemption or purchase generally will be treated as a taxable disposition to the Non-U.S. Holder, taxed as described above under "—2. Sale, Taxable Exchange or Other Taxable Disposition of Pubco Securities."

Non-U.S. Holders should consult their tax advisors regarding the tax consequences of the exercise, lapse, or redemption of Pubco Warrants.

4. Possible Constructive Distributions

Similar with the SPAC Public Warrants, the terms of each Pubco Warrant will provide for an adjustment to the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock for which the Pubco Warrant may be exercised or to the exercise price of the Pubco Warrant in certain events. An adjustment which has the effect of preventing dilution generally is not a taxable event. A Non-U.S. Holder of the Pubco Warrants would, however, be treated as receiving a constructive distribution from Pubco if, for example, the adjustment increases the Non-U.S. Holder's proportionate interest in Pubco's assets or earnings and profits (for example, through an increase in the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would be obtained upon exercise or through a decrease in the exercise price of the Pubco Warrant), which adjustment may be made as a result of a distribution of cash or other property, such as other securities, to the holders of shares of Pubco stock, or as a result of the issuance of a stock dividend to holders of shares of Pubco stock, in each case, which is taxable to the holders of such stock as a distribution. Any constructive distribution treated as received by a Non-U.S. Holder generally would be subject to U.S. federal income tax (including any applicable withholding) in the same manner as if such Non-U.S. Holder received a corporate distribution from Pubco equal to the fair market value of such increased interest without any corresponding receipt of cash, the U.S. federal income tax consequences of which are described above under "—C. Tax Consequences of Ownership and Disposition of Pubco Securities—1. Taxation of Distributions."

D. Information Reporting and Backup Withholding

Information returns will be filed with the IRS in connection with payments of distributions and the proceeds from a sale or other disposition of Pubco Securities. A Non-U.S. Holder may have to comply with certification procedures to establish that it is not a U.S. person in order to avoid information reporting and backup withholding requirements. The certification procedures required to claim a reduced rate of withholding under a treaty generally will satisfy the certification requirements necessary to avoid the backup withholding as well.

Backup withholding is not an additional tax. The amount of any backup withholding from a payment to a Non-U.S. Holder generally will be allowed as a credit against such Non-U.S. Holder's U.S. federal income tax liability and may entitle such Non-U.S. Holder to a refund, provided that the required information is timely furnished to the IRS.

UNAUDITED PRO FORMA CONDENSED COMBINED FINANCIAL INFORMATION

Introduction

The following unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial statements present the combination of financial information of Pubco, SPAC and the Company, adjusted to give effect to the Transactions.

The following unaudited pro forma condensed combined balance sheet as of June 30, 2026 combines the historical unaudited balance sheet of Pubco as of June 30, 2026, the historical unaudited balance sheet of the Company as of June 30, 2026, the historical unaudited balance sheet of SPAC as of June 30, 2026, giving pro forma effect to the Transactions as if they had occurred as of June 30, 2026.

The following contains two unaudited pro forma condensed combined statement of operations of Pubco.

- First, an unaudited pro forma condensed combined statement of operations of Pubco presents (i) the historical audited statement of operations of Pubco for the period from August 29, 2025 (inception) to December 31, 2025, (ii) the historical audited statement of operations of the Company for the period from July 18, 2025 (inception) to December 31, 2025, and (iii) the historical unaudited statement of operations of the SPAC for the period from July 1, 2025 to December 31, 2025 on a pro forma basis as if the Transactions had occurred on July 18, 2025. The Company and Pubco were incorporated on July 18, 2025 and August 29, 2025, respectively.
- In addition, a separate unaudited pro forma condensed combined statement of operations for the six months ended June 30, 2026 is included, which presents (i) the historical unaudited statement of operations of the relevant entities for the six-month period, adjusted to reflect the combined results on a pro forma basis, and (ii) pro forma adjustments giving effect to the Transactions as if they had occurred on July 18, 2025.

The unaudited pro forma condensed combined balance sheet as of June 30, 2026 has been derived from:

- the historical unaudited financial statements of SPAC as of June 30, 2026, and the related notes thereto included elsewhere in this proxy statement / prospectus; and
- the historical unaudited financial statements of the Company as of June 30, 2026, and the related notes thereto included elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus.
- the historical unaudited financial statements of Pubco as of June 30, 2026, and the related notes thereto included elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus.

The unaudited pro forma condensed combined statement of operations for the period from July 18, 2025 (inception) to December 31, 2025 has been derived from:

- Pubco was incorporated on August 29, 2025, therefore, the historical statement of operations for the period ended December 31, 2025 included in the unaudited pro forma condensed combined statement of operations, is derived from Pubco's historical audited financial statements for the period from August 29, 2025 through December 31, 2025.
- The Company was incorporated on July 18, 2025, therefore, the historical statement of operations for the period ended December 31, 2025 included in the unaudited pro forma condensed combined statement of operations, is derived from the Company's historical audited financial statements for the period from July 18, 2025 through December 31, 2025.
- The historical financial statements of SPAC for the period from July 1, 2025 to December 31, 2025, and the related notes thereto, which were derived from SPAC's audited financial statements as of and for the year ended September 30, 2025, SPAC's unaudited interim financial statements as of and for the period ended June 30, 2025, SPAC's unaudited financial statements as of and for the period ended December 31, 2025, and SPAC's unaudited financial statements as of and for the period ended

December 31, 2025, included elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus. Management has determined that the results of operations of SPAC for the period from July 1, 2025 through July 17, 2025 were not material and, accordingly, no separate adjustment has been reflected for such period.

The unaudited pro forma condensed combined statement of operations for the period from January 1, 2026 to June 30, 2026 has been derived from:

- The historical unaudited financial statements of Pubco for the period from January 1, 2026 to June 30, 2026.
- The historical unaudited financial statements of the Company for the period from January 1, 2026 to June 30, 2026.
- The historical unaudited financial statements of SPAC for the period from January 1, 2026 to June 30, 2026, and the related notes thereto, which were derived from SPAC's unaudited interim financial statements as of and for the three-month period ended March 31, 2026 and SPAC's unaudited interim financial statements as of and for the three-month period ended June 30, 2026, included elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus.

The following unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information has been prepared in accordance with Article 11 of Regulation S-X as in effect on the date of this proxy statement/prospectus which incorporates transaction accounting adjustments. Pubco, the Company and SPAC have elected not to present any estimates related to potential synergies and other transaction effects that are reasonably expected to occur or have already occurred and will only be presenting transaction accounting adjustments in the unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information. The accompanying notes are an integral part of the pro forma condensed combined financial information. Such notes describe the assumptions and estimates related to the unaudited adjustments to the pro forma condensed combined financial information.

The unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information has been prepared to give effect to the Transactions as if they had occurred (i) on June 30, 2026 for the pro forma condensed combined balance sheet and (ii) July 18, 2025 for the pro forma condensed combined statement of operations for the period from July 18, 2025 to December 31, 2025 and for the six months ended June 30, 2026. Upon consummation of the Transactions, the Company and Pubco will be related parties to Ripple Labs, Inc. (Ripple Labs) and will no longer be wholly-owned subsidiaries of, or consolidated by, Ripple Labs. As a result of the change in ownership structure, management reassessed the applicability of ASU 2023-08 and determined that the Company's and Pubco's XRP holdings do not meet the scoping criteria of ASC 350-60-15-1f. Accordingly, the XRP holdings continue to be accounted for as indefinite-lived intangible assets under ASC 350-30, measured at historical cost less accumulated impairment. For US GAAP purposes, the Company's and Pubco's XRP holdings remain subject to the historical cost less accumulated impairment model upon consummation of the Transactions. During the period July 1, 2026 to August 5, 2026, the lowest observable price of XRP from Coinbase was $1.02, resulting in no additional impairment. Using the August 5 price of $1.06 per Coinbase and including the amendments to the Sponsor Support Agreement, the Contribution Agreement, the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, the Series C Subscription Agreement and the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, which revised the exchange economics and reduced the number of shares issuable to investors upon consummation of the Transactions to remeasure the refundable investor advance liability results in the amount ultimately payable to investors being lower than the carrying amount of the liability as of June 30, 2026. Accordingly, the refundable investor advance liability would be hypothetically reduced by approximately $322 million, resulting in a corresponding gain.

This information should be read together with the financial statements and related notes, as applicable, of each of the Company and SPAC included in this proxy statement/prospectus and the sections "The Company's Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations" and "SPAC's Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations" and other financial information included elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus.

The unaudited pro forma adjustments are based on information currently available, assumptions, and estimates underlying the pro forma adjustments and are described in the accompanying notes. Actual results may differ materially from the assumptions used to present the accompanying unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial statements.

NOTES TO UNAUDITED PRO FORMA CONDENSED COMBINED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

Note 1—Description of the Proposed Transactions in the Business Combination Agreement

On October 19, 2025, SPAC, Pubco, SPAC Merger Sub, the Company, Company Merger Sub and Ripple entered into the Business Combination Agreement. Pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement, following the SPAC Domestication and upon Closing, (a) Company Merger Sub will merge with and into the Company, with the Company continuing as the surviving company, with Ripple receiving one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each Company Unit held by Ripple and exchanged subject to certain limitations on the initial holdings of Ripple and certain related entities included in the Business Combination Agreement, and (b) simultaneously with the Company Merger, SPAC Merger Sub will merge with and into SPAC Delaware, with SPAC Delaware continuing as the surviving entity, with (x) stockholders of SPAC Delaware receiving one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each SPAC Class A Share of SPAC Delaware held by such stockholder, and (y) warrant holders of SPAC Delaware receiving one warrant to purchase Pubco Class A Common Stock for each warrant to purchase SPAC Class A Shares held by such warrant holders.

On August 12, 2026, the parties amended the Sponsor Support Agreement, the Contribution Agreement, the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, the Series C Subscription Agreement and the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of equity interests issuable in respect of XRP-denominated contributions and investments . As originally executed, those agreements fixed the initial calculation at the Signing XRP Price of $2.36609, with an upward adjustment only if the Closing XRP Price exceeded that amount. As amended, the initial calculation is also subject to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, XRP-denominated contributions and investments would be measured using the lower Closing XRP Price. For purposes of this unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information, the Closing XRP Price is assumed to be $1.04119, the closing price of XRP reported by the CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate – New York Variant benchmark price on June 30, 2026. The specific mechanics applicable to each agreement are described below.

The Sponsor Support Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, SPAC entered into the Sponsor Support Agreement, pursuant to which, among other things, the Sponsor agreed to (a) vote its SPAC Common Shares in favor of the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions and each of the proposals to be approved by SPAC shareholders at the Extraordinary General Meeting, (b) vote its SPAC Common Shares against (i) any Acquisition Proposal or Alternative Transaction, (ii) any merger, consolidation, combination, sale of substantial assets, reorganization, recapitalization, dissolution, liquidation or winding up of or by SPAC (other than the Transactions), (iii) any change in the business of SPAC, and (iv) any proposal, action or agreement involving SPAC that would or would reasonably be expected to impede, frustrate, prevent or nullify the Business Combination Agreement or any Ancillary Agreement, (c) during the Interim Period, comply with the restrictions imposed by the Insider Letter, including the restrictions on redeeming SPAC Common Shares in connection with the Transactions and complying with the transfer restrictions with respect to its SPAC Common Shares and SPAC Private Warrants, (d) subject to and conditioned upon the Closing, waive any anti-dilution rights in connection with the Transactions that would otherwise result in the SPAC Class B Shares converting into SPAC Class A Shares on a greater than one-for-one basis, (e) subject to and conditioned upon the Closing, effective as of the Closing, waive and forever discharge all Claims (as defined below) against the SPAC, Pubco, the Company and each of their respective and each of its and their past and present directors, officers, employees, agents, predecessors, successors, assigns, Affiliates and Subsidiaries, provided that nothing releases, waives or discharges any claim for fraud or the specific categories of claims expressly preserved in the Sponsor Support Agreement (including claims under the Sponsor Support Agreement or any other Ancillary Agreement, rights to receive Pubco securities thereunder, and indemnification rights) and (f) immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit for no consideration 120,000 SPAC Class A Shares, 2,364,000 SPAC Class B Shares and 60,000 SPAC Private Warrants.

On August 12, 2026, SPAC, Pubco and Sponsor entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Sponsor Support Agreement for purposes of adjusting the number of SPAC Class A Shares, SPAC Class B Shares and Private Placement Warrants that will be forfeited by Sponsor at the Company Merger Effective Time. Specifically, Amendment No. 1 to the Sponsor Support Agreement provides that Sponsor will forfeit to SPAC for cancellation and for no consideration the Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares, the Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares and the Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants.

For the purposes of the preceding paragraph, "Claims" mean all past or present claims, demands, damages, debts, judgments, causes of action and liabilities of any nature whatsoever, whether or not known, suspected or claimed, arising directly or indirectly from any act, omission, event or transaction occurring (or any circumstances existing) at or prior to the Closing.

A copy of the Sponsor Support Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex J.

Contribution Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Ripple, Pubco and the Company entered into the Contribution Agreement, pursuant to which Ripple contributed to the Company 126,791,458 XRP tokens in a private placement, in exchange for the Contributor Subscribed Units equal to the sum of (a) the Contributor Initial Subscribed Units and (b) the Contributor Adjustment Units, if any. A copy of the Contribution Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex K.

On August 12, 2026, Ripple, Pubco and the Company entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Contribution Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Contributor Subscribed Units. The amendment subjects the initial unit calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-unit adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. A copy of Amendment No. 1 to the Contribution Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex W.

Advance Funding Subscription Agreements

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements with certain Advance Funding Subscribers, pursuant to which the Advance Funding Subscribers agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, the Advance Funding Shares for $214.05 million in cash and a contribution of 600,000 XRP tokens, in a private placement, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and each Advance Funding Subscriber entered into Amendment No. 1 to the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Advance Funding Shares. Under the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, as amended, each Advance Funding Subscriber will receive a number of Advance Funding Shares at the closing of the Advance Funding equal to the sum of (a) the Advance Funding Initial Subscribed Shares and (b) the Advance Funding Adjustment Shares, if any. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial share calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-share adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price.

In addition to the changes reflected by Amendment No. 1 above, on August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and each of the SBI Stockholders further amended the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreements. The purpose of each SBI Entity Amendment is to apply a 39.9% ownership limitation to the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable in respect of SBI's Advance Funding Subscription. At the Transaction Closing, Pubco will issue in respect of SBI's subscription (i) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would cause the Subscriber Group Ownership Percentage (as defined in the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreement, as amended) to equal 39.9% and (ii) the balance of the Subscribed Shares as shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock. This allocation will not change the aggregate number of Subscribed Shares, the aggregate Subscription Price or the Per Share Price, which will be identical for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock. The shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock will be convertible into shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock in accordance with the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter.

The closing of each Advance Funding Subscription is conditioned on the satisfaction or waiver by each such Advance Funding Subscriber of the additional condition that, on the date of each such agreement, no other Advance Funding Subscription Agreement (or other agreements or understandings (including side letters) entered into in connection therewith or in connection with the sale of the other Advance Funding Shares) shall have been amended, modified or waived in any manner that benefits any other Advance Funding Subscriber unless such Advance Funding Subscriber shall have been offered in writing the same benefits (other than terms particular to the legal or regulatory requirements of such other Advance Funding Subscriber or its affiliates or related persons). For more information about the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Advance Funding Subscription Agreements." Copies of the forms of Advance Funding Subscription Agreements are attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex M and Annex N. Copies of Amendments No. 1 to the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements are attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex X and Annex Y, respectively.

Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements with the Delayed Funding Subscribers, pursuant to which the Delayed Funding Subscribers agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, the Delayed Funding Shares for $10.5 million in cash and a contribution of 200,000 XRP tokens, in a private placement, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. Delayed Funding Subscribers will receive a number of Delayed Funding Shares at the closing of the Delayed Funding equal to the quotient of (i) the Delayed Funding Subscription Price and (ii) $10.00. The closing of each Delayed Funding Subscription is conditioned on, among other things, the satisfaction or waiver of all closing conditions to the consummation of the Business Combination; the Delayed Funding Subscribers' consent to any amendments, modifications or waivers to the terms of the Business Combination Agreement that would reasonably be expected to materially and adversely affect the economic benefits to the Delayed Funding Subscribers; and the additional condition that, on the date of each such agreement, no other Delayed Funding Subscription Agreement (or other agreements or understandings (including side letters) entered into in connection therewith or in connection with the sale of the other Delayed Funding Shares) shall have been amended, modified or waived in any manner that benefits any other Delayed Funding Subscriber unless such Delayed Funding Subscriber shall have been offered in writing the same benefits (other than terms particular to the legal or regulatory requirements of such other Delayed Funding Subscriber or its affiliates or related persons). For more information about the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements." Copies of the forms of Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements are attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex O and Annex P.

Series C Subscription Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into the Series C Subscription Agreement with the Sponsor, pursuant to which the Sponsor agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, Series C Subscribed Shares for 211,319,096.061435 XRP tokens, in a private placement, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and the Sponsor entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Series C Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Series C Subscribed Shares. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial share calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-share adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. The Sponsor will receive (i) a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would result in the Series C DQ Persons owning, immediately after the Transaction

Closing and the other related transactions, a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would cause the Series C DQ Persons to be the beneficial owners (as defined in Rule 13d-3 or 13d-5 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act"), or any successor statute or regulation) of capital stock of Pubco such that the Series C Attributed Ownership Percentage (as defined below) equals 19.9% and (ii) a number of shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock equal to the number of Series C Subscribed Shares minus the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issued to the Sponsor pursuant to clause (i). Under the Series C Subscription Agreement, as amended, the total Series C Subscribed Shares will equal the sum of (a) the Series C Initial Subscribed Shares and (b) the Series C Adjustment Shares, if any. For more information about the Series C Subscription Agreement, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Series C Subscription Agreement." A copy of the Series C Subscription Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex L. A copy of Amendment No. 1 to the Series C Subscription Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex Z.

Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement with the Contributor Related Party Entity, pursuant to which the Contributor Related Party Entity purchased and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests for an aggregate contribution of 50 million XRP tokens in a private placement, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and the Contributor Related Party Entity entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial equity-interest calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-equity-interest adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. The Contributor Related Party Entity will not receive a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would result in the Contributor Group Holders collectively owning, immediately after the Transaction Closing and the other related transactions, a number of shares that would cause the Contributor Group Ownership Percentage (as defined below) to exceed 9.9% and, to the extent the number of shares issued to the Contributor Group Holders is reduced as a result of the foregoing, the Contributor Related Party Entity will receive a number of Company Units equal to the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests minus the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Shares. Under the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, as amended, the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests will equal the sum of (a) the Contributor Related Party Entity Initial Subscribed Equity Interests and (b) the Contributor Related Party Entity Adjustment Equity Interests, if any. Prior to and effective upon closing, Pubco, Ripple and the Contributor Related Party Entity will enter into the Company A&R LLCA. For more information about the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement." A copy of the form of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex Q. A copy of Amendment No. 1 to the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex AA.

Equity Interest Variability

The number of equity interests issuable by Pubco or the Company under the Private Placement Subscription Agreements varies based on the price of XRP. More specifically, Private Placement Investors that subscribed for Pubco Stock or Company Units pursuant to any of the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements, the Series C Subscription Agreement or the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, and Ripple, in connection with its contribution pursuant to the Contribution Agreement, will have their respective XRP contributions or investments valued at the Closing XRP Price.

Tax Receivable Agreement

Concurrently with the Closing, TRA Parties will enter into a Tax Receivable Agreement, which will provide for, among other things, payment by Pubco to the TRA Parties of 85% of the U.S. federal, state and local income tax savings realized or deemed to be realized by Pubco as a result of the increases in tax basis and certain other tax benefits related to the transactions contemplated under the Business Combination Agreement and the exchange of units of the Company Surviving Subsidiary for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (as more fully described in the Tax Receivable Agreement).

Although the Tax Receivable Agreement will be entered into in connection with the consummation of the Business Combination, no liability has been recorded related to the Tax Receivable Agreement in the unaudited pro forma condensed combined balance sheet. As of the pro forma balance sheet date, no payment obligation under the Tax Receivable Agreement has been triggered, and the Business Combination, in and of itself, does not give rise to an obligation to make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement.

Payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement would arise upon the future realization of certain tax benefits in connection with or related to subsequent exchanges of units of the Company Surviving Subsidiary for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and upon certain other triggering events (as more fully described in the Tax Receivable Agreement). Management has determined that no such triggering events have occurred as of the pro forma balance sheet date and that any future payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement are not considered probable. Accordingly, no liability related to the Tax Receivable Agreement is reflected in the unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information.

Merger Consideration

As consideration for the Company Merger:

(1) Ripple will be entitled to receive one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each Company Unit held by Ripple immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, subject to certain limitations imposed on the Contributor Group Holders; and

(2) All of the Company Merger Sub Units issued and outstanding immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time will be converted into a number of units of the Company Surviving Subsidiary equal to the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock immediately following the Company Merger Effective Time.

By virtue of the SPAC Merger:

(1) each issued and outstanding SPAC Class A Share (other than (x) treasury shares and (y) shares of holders of SPAC Class A Shares who have exercised their rights of redemption) will be automatically converted into one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock; and

(2) each issued and outstanding SPAC Class B Share (other than treasury shares) will be automatically converted into one SPAC Class A Share in accordance with the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation.

The Sponsor also agreed to forfeit, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor. The Sponsor will exchange its remaining SPAC Private Warrants for Pubco Warrants. The Pubco Warrants will have substantially the same terms as the SPAC Private Warrants.

Note 2—Basis of Presentation and Accounting Policies

The unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information is for illustrative purposes only. The financial results may have been different had the companies always been combined. You should not rely on the unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information as being indicative of the historical results that would have been achieved had the companies always been combined or the future results that Pubco will experience. The Company and SPAC did not have any historical relationship prior to the Business Combination. Pubco and SPAC did not have any historical relationship prior to the Business Combination, other than customary arm's-length discussions and negotiations in connection with the evaluation and execution of the Business Combination. Accordingly, no pro forma adjustments were required to eliminate activities between the Company and SPAC, as well as between Pubco and SPAC. The Company and Pubco are both wholly-owned subsidiaries of Ripple prior to the Business Combination. Accordingly, pro forma adjustments were required to eliminate certain intra-entity activities between the Company and Pubco.

The following unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information has been prepared in accordance with Article 11 of Regulation S-X as amended by the final rule, Release No. 33-10786 "Amendments to Financial Disclosures about Acquired and Disposed Businesses." Release No. 33-10786 replaces the existing pro forma adjustment criteria with simplified transaction accounting adjustments and presents management's adjustments. Pubco has elected not to present management's adjustments and will only be presenting transaction accounting adjustments in the following unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information.

SPAC does not meet the definition of a "business" pursuant to ASC 805-10-55 as it is an empty listed shell holding only cash raised as part of its original equity issuance. The Company and Pubco do not meet the definition of a "business" pursuant to ASC 805-10-55. As a result, the Business Combination does not qualify as a "business combination" within the meaning of ASC 805, Business Combinations; rather, the Business Combination will be accounted for as a recapitalization in accordance with U.S. GAAP. See Note 3—Accounting for the Business Combination for more details.

The historical financial statements of Pubco and the Company have been prepared in accordance with U.S. GAAP. The historical financial statements of SPAC have been prepared in accordance with U.S. GAAP. The unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information reflects U.S. GAAP, the basis of accounting used by the Company.

Pubco has elected to provide the unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information under two different redemption scenarios of Public Shares into cash as more fully described below:

- Scenario 1—Assuming No Redemptions: This presentation assumes that no Public Shareholders exercise redemption rights with respect to their Public Shares upon consummation of the Business Combination.
- Scenario 2—Assuming Maximum Redemptions: This presentation assumes that Public Shareholders holding 23,000,000 Public Shares exercise their redemption rights for $241.2 million in the aggregate upon consummation of the Business Combination at a redemption price of approximately $10.49 per share as of June 30, 2026. The Maximum Redemptions scenario reflects the maximum number of Public Shares that can be redeemed and includes all adjustments contained in the No Redemptions scenario and presents additional adjustments to reflect the effect of the Maximum Redemptions scenario.

Both scenarios assume, among other things, that (a) neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, (b) Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, (c) all Private Placement Investors fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, (d) the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, (e) no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the Incentive Plan, and (f) neither Ripple nor the Sponsor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market. In addition to the assumptions above, the table below assumes a Closing XRP Price as reported by Coinbase, our principal market, of $1.04 (which was the closing price for XRP reported by Coinbase as of June 30, 2026).

	No Redemptions					Maximum Redemptions

(1) Includes (i) 15,120,318 shares of Pubco Stock that the Sponsor is expected to receive in connection with the Series C Subscription Agreement in the No Redemptions scenario and 23,440,528 shares of Pubco Stock in the Maximum Redemptions scenario, and (ii) the forfeiture of a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor under each the No Redemptions and Maximum Redemptions scenarios.

Upon consummation of the Business Combination, management will perform a comprehensive review of the three entities' accounting policies.

As a result of the review, management may identify differences between the accounting policies of the three entities which, when conformed, could have a material impact on the financial statements of Pubco. Management reviewed the digital asset accounting policies of the three entities and determined they are consistent. Upon consummation of the Transactions, the Company and Pubco will be related parties to Ripple Labs and will no longer be wholly-owned subsidiaries of or controlled by Ripple Labs. Management reassessed the applicability of ASU 2023-08, Intangibles – Goodwill and Other – Crypto Assets (Subtopic 350-60), and determined that the XRP holdings do not meet the scoping criteria of ASC 350-60- 15-1f. As such, the XRP holdings are excluded from the scope of ASC 350-60 and continue to be accounted for as indefinite-lived intangible assets, measured at historical cost less accumulated impairment. Accordingly, no pro forma adjustment has been reflected to measure XRP holdings at fair value.

Except for the accounting policy differences described above, the unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information does not assume any additional differences in accounting policies.

Note 3—Accounting for the Business Combination

Company Merger

The Company Merger whereby Company Merger Sub (a subsidiary of Pubco) will merge with and into the Company, with the Company continuing as a surviving company as a subsidiary of Pubco, is anticipated to be accounted for as a transaction between entities under common control in accordance with U.S. GAAP. Under ASC 805-50, "Transactions Between Entities Under Common Control," transfers of net assets or exchanges of equity interests between entities under common control are accounted for in a manner similar to a pooling of interests. Accordingly, the assets and liabilities transferred as part of the Company Merger will be recognized by Pubco at their historical carrying amounts as reflected in the accounts of the Company immediately prior to the transaction. No new goodwill or step-up in basis will be recognized as a result of the Company Merger.

SPAC Merger

The SPAC Merger, whereby SPAC Merger Sub (a subsidiary of Pubco) will merge with and into SPAC Delaware, with SPAC Delaware continuing as the surviving entity as a subsidiary of Pubco, will be accounted for as a recapitalization in accordance with U.S. GAAP where Pubco issues shares in exchange for the net assets of the SPAC. It was determined that the SPAC, Pubco and the Company were not considered to be businesses in accordance with U.S. GAAP and therefore the SPAC Merger, which is a combination of assets from the various parties, is akin to a recapitalization and the ultimate equity structure will be that of Pubco as the successor entity to the Company Merger and the SPAC Merger. Under this method of accounting, SPAC will be treated as the "acquired" company for financial reporting purposes. Accordingly, for accounting purposes, the Transactions would be treated as Pubco issuing shares for the net assets of the SPAC, accompanied by the common control recapitalization above. The net assets of SPAC would be stated at fair value, with no goodwill recorded. As a result, any transaction costs incurred to effect the recapitalization represent costs related to issuing equity and raising capital that are recognized as a reduction to the total amount of equity raised rather than an expense recorded as incurred. Any activities prior to the Transactions will be those of Pubco and its common control entity, the Company, with Pubco as the reporting legal entity.

Note 4—Adjustments to Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Combined Balance Sheet as of June 30, 2026. The pro forma adjustments to the unaudited pro forma condensed combined balance sheet as of June 30, 2026, are as follows:

(a) Represents the liquidation and reclassification of funds held in the Trust Account to cash that becomes available following the Business Combination in the amount of $241.2 million as of June 30, 2026 and reclassification of the Armada Acquisition Corp. II's Class A ordinary shares subject to possible redemption representing 23,000,000 public shares at an assumed redemption value of approximately $10.49 per share to Pubco additional paid-in capital. The additional paid-in capital was calculated as $241,164,305 Class A ordinary shares subject to redemption as presented by Armada Acquisition Corp. II less $23,000 par value as described in (b) herein, less $2,001, which represents net reductions in additional paid-in capital for par values of the recapitalized shares including i) $2,427 based on 2,427,297 Pubco Class A common stock with par value of $0.001 as described in (c), ii) $123 based on 123,213 Pubco Class A common stock with par value of $0.001 to be retained by Sponsor from previously held SPAC Class A ordinary shares, iii) $310 based on 310,000 Pubco Class A common stock with par value of $0.001 to be retained by parties other than Sponsor from previously held SPAC Class A ordinary shares, net of $788 increase in additional paid-in capital resulting from 7,880,000 at $0.0001 as described in (c) for SPAC Class B shares whose SPAC par value is being eliminated and also net of $28 increase in additional paid-in capital resulting from forfeiture by Sponsor of 276,787 shares equal to (x) all SPAC Class A Shares that Sponsor holds multiplied by (y) the Adjustment Factor as determined as of June 30, 2026, at SPAC par value of $0.0001. Furthermore, contained within the $2,001 net reduction of Pubco additional paid-in capital is an increase of $12 and $31 of Pubco additional paid-in capital, which corresponds to the reductions of SPAC par values at $0.0001 for 123,213 and 310,000 SPAC Class A ordinary shares which become Pubco Class A common stock shares retained by Sponsor and other parties. The public shareholders also hold warrants, which were classified as equity within additional paid-in capital of Armada Acquisition Corp. II. Upon consummation of the Business Combination such warrants will become Pubco warrants under the same terms. No transaction adjustment is reflected for the warrants as they would remain equity classified within additional paid-in capital of the combined company.

(b) Reflects the issuance of 23,000,000 shares of Pubco Class A common stock, with an aggregate par value of $23,000 based on $0.001 per share, in exchange Armada Acquisition Corp. II's Class A ordinary shares subject to possible redemption.

(c) Reflects the conversion of SPAC Class B ordinary shares into Class A Common Stock shares of Pubco on a one-for-one basis, attributable to the Sponsor, where 7,880,000 Class B shares were outstanding and 5,452,703 shares, equal to (x) all SPAC Class B Shares that Sponsor holds multiplied by (y) the Adjustment Factor, as determined as of June 30, 2026, were forfeited, and the elimination of the historical par value of such shares of $788. Additionally, reflects conversion of 400,000 SPAC Class A ordinary shares on a one-for-one basis, of which 276,787 shares, equal to (x) all SPAC Class A Shares that Sponsor holds multiplied by (y) the Adjustment Factor as determined as of June 30, 2026, were forfeited by the Sponsor, and the elimination of the historical par value of such shares of $71, resulting in 2,550,510 Class A Common Stock shares of Pubco initially issuable to the Sponsor. The converted shares are reflected at an implied $10.00 per share, consistent with the per-share reference amount used for other equity issuances, with amounts allocated between Class A common stock and additional paid-in capital accordingly. Pursuant to Sponsor agreeing to a voting ownership cap of 19.9% of Pubco's total voting power, the Sponsor's shares issuable in the No Redemptions scenario were reduced to 979,836 Class A Common Stock shares of Pubco with the excess number of Sponsor's shares of 1,570,675 above the 19.9% voting ownership cap reflected as Class C Common Stock of Pubco, with the related reclassification reflected within equity including amounts of $9,433 and $15,121 reflected in additional paid-in capital.

Also, reflects the Series C Subscription Agreement dated October 19, 2025, pursuant to which on the closing date the Sponsor will purchase Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock shares for 211,319,096 XRP. The transaction adjustment reflects the release of the refundable investor advances upon release of the XRP from escrow upon consummation of the Business Combination and its reclassification to additional paid-in capital including the elimination of refundable investor advances of $413,145,235 calculated as pro rata for the Sponsor's portion of the fair value of the refundable investor advances, the related par value of the shares issuable of $8,453 for Pubco Class A Common Stock and $13,550 Pubco Class C common stock, respectively, and the related recognition of additional paid-in capital of $220,001,327, and the change in fair value of the refundable investor advances through June 30, 2026 of $193,121,905, representing the difference between the refundable investor advances and amounts recorded in additional paid-in capital is reflected within accumulated deficit. The par value of Pubco Class A Common Stock was calculated based on 8,452,688 shares at $0.001 par value per share and par value of Pubco Class C Common Stock was calculated based on 13,549,644 shares at $0.001 par value per share.

The 8,452,688 shares were calculated based on the XRP closing date as of June 30, 2026 token VWAP of $1.04119 multiplied by the 211,319,096 XRP contributed to render 22,002,332 shares prior to the beneficial ownership cap by utilizing the implied $10.00 per share, which resulted in 8,452,688 after applying the 19.9% ownership cap. Such excess between 22,002,332 and 8,452,688 being 13,549,644 pursuant to the Series C Subscription agreement is issuable in Pubco Class C Common Stock. The Class A Common Stock shares and Class C Common stock shares issuable were calculated utilizing the CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant benchmark price on the June 30, 2026 date, which was $1.04119 as contractually stipulated in Amendment No. 1 to the Series C Subscription Agreement. No Series C Adjustment Shares were issuable, as the calculation utilizing the CME CF XRP Dollar Reference Rate – New York Variant benchmark price pursuant to the contractual provision of the Series C Subscription Agreement as of the assumed Closing Date of June 30, 2026 of $1.04119, compared to the signing date XRP token VWAP of $2.36609. The Pubco Class A and Class C shares of the Combined Company's ordinary shares have a par value of $0.001 per share and the excess over par value is reflected as additional paid-in capital.

(d) Other SPAC Class A ordinary shares retained in full by Public Shareholders totaled 310,000 shares and were converted into the same number of Pubco Class A Common Stock on a one-for-one basis under both No Redemptions and Maximum Redemptions scenarios.

(e) Reflects the par value of Pubco Class A Common Stock shares issuable to Ripple in connection with their contribution of 126,791,458 XRP tokens in a private placement under an agreement dated October 19, 2025 as amended by Amendment No. 1. The contribution is initially exchange for 30,000,000 Company Units, whereby at closing these units will be automatically cancelled in exchange for the right to receive one Pubco Class A Common Stock shares for each Company Unit, subject to the Contributor Group Ownership Percentage of 9.9%, with any excess to remain as Company Units.

Subsequent to the Amendment No. 1, the contribution is in exchange for 13,201,399 Company Units, equal to (x) 30,000,000 Company Units referenced above and (y) the Adjustment Factor as determined as of June 30, 2026. In the No Redemptions scenario the conversion of Company Units is reflected as 3,365,416 Pubco Class A Common Stock shares issuable to Ripple with an aggregate par value of $3,365 based on $0.001 per share. No Adjustment Units of Company Units were issuable in both scenarios of redemption. In both scenarios, the Adjustment Units were calculated under the terms of Amendment No. 1 of the Ripple Contribution Agreement, which are as same as these described in (c) above. In both scenarios non-controlling interest was accreted to redemption value through accumulated deficit. Such non-controlling interest was based on 9,835,983 and 12,804,538 Company Units at $10 accretion value in the No Redemptions and Maximum Redemptions scenario, respectively.

(f) Reflects a subscription agreement entered on October 19, 2025, and as amended, with the Ripple Party Entity for 50,000,000 XRP tokens, to be settled at closing whereby the Ripple Party Entity will receive Pubco's Class A Common Stock shares, structured to ensure Ripple and the Ripple Party Entity do not exceed the 9.9% ownership cap in Pubco immediately following the closing. Any excess equity interests are issuable and reflected in the form of Company Units. The total equity interests issuable for this agreement are 5,205,950 shares, which were calculated utilizing the signing CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate – New York Variant benchmark price on the June 30, 2026 date, which was $1.04119 as contractually stipulated in the Amendment No. 1 to the Subscription Agreement, and the quantity of equity interests issuable represent the quotient of such contributed value and $10.00 per Pubco Class A Common Stock share or Company Unit, as applicable.

In the No Redemption Scenario, the 9.9% ownership cap represents 4,692,562 shares ("No Redemption Ownership Cap Shares") that would be issued to Ripple and the Ripple Party Entity. 1,327,146 Pubco Class A Common Stock shares represents the pro rata portion of No Redemption Ownership Cap Shares attributed to this subscription agreement which are issuable to the Ripple Party Entity with an aggregate par value of $1,327. The remaining excess equity interests of 3,878,804 are issued as Company Units, which are reflected as redeemable non-controlling interest in the amount of $38,788,040, recorded at $10.00 per unit. As of June 30, 2026, Pubco Class A common stock was not publicly traded; therefore, the redemption provisions that provide for settlement based on the volume weighted average market price of Pubco Class A common stock were not yet operative and the fair value used to calculate the redemption value could not be determined therefore a price of $10 per unit was utilized which reflects the contractually established per-unit price under the initial terms of the Contribution Agreement and the Ripple Party Entities Subscription Agreement pursuant to which Company Units were issued at a per unit price of $10.00. Once Pubco Class A common stock becomes publicly traded and the volume-weighted average market price becomes observable, the redemption value of the Company Units is expected to be determined based on the applicable market-price-based settlement provisions. A hypothetical $1.00 increase to the $10 unit-price would result in a corresponding increase in the redemption value of the Company Units of $3,878,804,, based on 3,878,804 Company Units outstanding in the No Redemption Scenario. A hypothetical decrease of $1 in the redemption value would have no impact on the current carrying value, as the redemption value would not be recorded below its initial carrying value of $10 per unit.

In Maximum Redemption Scenario, the 9.9% ownership cap represents 553,362 shares ("Maximum Redemption Ownership Cap Shares") that would be issued to Ripple and Ripple Party Entity. 156,501 Pubco Class A Common Stock shares represents the pro rata portion of Maximum Redemption Ownership Cap Shares attributed to this subscription agreement which are issuable to the Ripple Party Entity with a par value of $156. The remaining excess equity interests of 5,049,449 are issued as Company Units, which are reflected as redeemable non-controlling interest in the amount of $50,494,487, measured at $10.00 per unit. A hypothetical $1.00 increase to the $10 unit-price would result in a corresponding increase in the redemption value of the Company Units of $5,049,449, based on 5,049,449 Company Units outstanding in the Maximum Redemption Scenario. A hypothetical decrease of $1 in the redemption value would have no impact on the current carrying value, as the redemption value would not be recorded below its initial carrying value of $10 per unit.

In both scenarios, the digital assets were initially valued utilizing the quoted closing price on Coinbase upon receipt to the digital wallet $2.49600 on October 20, 2025 resulting in initial value of $124.8 million. The transaction adjustment reflects the recognition of XRP contribution and the related equity issuance, including a reduction to refundable investor advances of $97,753,881, an increase to additional paid-in capital of $13,266,767 representing the 1,327,146 shares held by the Ripple Party Entity in Pubco Class A Common Stock shares at $10 a share less par value, and a net decrease to accumulated deficit of $45,694,381 which is calculated as the difference between the pro rata portion of the refundable investor advances of $97,753,881 and the amount recognized in additional paid-in capital of $13,266,767, the amount recognized in redeemable non-controlling interest of $38,788,040 and the $4,693 related to the par value of the Class A units from the Ripple and Ripple-related entity, and is reflected within accumulated deficit due to the extinguishment of the liability.

The equity interests issuable were calculated utilizing the June 30, 2026 closing date XRP token price, which was $1.04119 and the quantity of equity interests issuable represent the quotient of such contributed value and $10.00 per Pubco Class A Common Stock share or Company Unit, as applicable. In both scenarios, the Contributor Related Party Adjustment Equity Interests, if any, are calculated utilizing the quotient of the closing date XRP token VWAP and the signing date XRP token VWAP as defined in the subscription agreement, whereas the former was $1.04119 per the CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant benchmark as of June 30, 2026, the assumed closing date, and such amount was compared to the signing date XRP token VWAP of $2.36609 utilizing the CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant benchmark. Neither scenario resulted in Adjustment Equity Interests.

(g) Reflects advance funding of $214,000,000 in cash and 600,000 XRP tokens in a private placement. Investors are to be issued Pubco Class A Common Stock shares at $10.00 per share, where the number of shares for investors funding in the form of XRP tokens are determined based on the XRP price at closing. In both No Redemptions and Maximum Redemptions the digital assets recognized from the investor's subscription funded in XRP were valued at $1.0383 per XRP token per Coinbase on the assumed closing date June 30, 2026. XRP is held in escrow for investors. The advance funding subscribed in cash was used to purchase 84,365,876 XRP tokens, which are reflected at fair value as of June 30, 2026. The transaction adjustment reflects the reduction of refundable investor advances of $176,144,884 and the issuance of Pubco Class A Common Stock with an aggregate par value of $9,481 (based on 9,481,664 shares at $0.001 par value per share), with the excess over par value recorded as additional paid-in capital in the amount of $94,757,225. The transaction adjustment also reflects the change in fair value of the refundable investor advances of $81,378,178 through June 30, 2026 which is calculated as the difference between the pro rata portion of the refundable investor advances of $176,144,884 and the amount recognized in additional paid-in capital of $94,757,225, which is reflected within accumulated deficit due to the extinguishment of the liability.

Pubco Class A Common Stock shares issuable under the advance funding agreements is 9,481,664 shares in the No Redemptions scenario and 3,130,974 shares in the Maximum Redemption scenarios, with the excess over par value recorded as additional paid-in capital. The advanced and delayed funding agreements provide for adjustment shares issuable as Pubco Class A Common Stock. Such adjustment Shares were calculated utilizing the CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant benchmark on June 30, 2026 of $1.04119 and using the signing date XRP value, which was $2.36609 pursuant to the contractual provision of the Series C Subscription Agreement as amended. No adjustment shares were issuable in either scenarios.

(h) Reflects $10,500,000 in cash and 200,000 XRP tokens received from the delayed subscription agreements at closing under similar terms. In both the No Redemptions and Maximum Redemption scenarios, the digital assets recognized from the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements funded in XRP were valued at $1.04119 per XRP token (the closing price per the CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate) on the assumed closing date of June 30, 2026, resulting in the recognition of $208,238 of digital assets. Cash and XRP contributed from the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements totaled $10,708,238.

In total, from cash and XRP contributed, Pubco Class A Common Stock shares issuable under the delayed funding agreements is 482,870 shares in each of the No Redemptions scenario and Maximum Redemption scenarios, reflected as an increase to Pubco Class A Common Stock with an aggregate par value of $483 based on a $0.001 per share), with the excess over par value recorded as additional paid-in capital in the amount of $10,707,755.

(i) Reflects reclassification to additional paid-in capital of $6,976,443 previously capitalized deferred transaction costs and the cash payment of $4,120,000 related to transaction costs incurred by Pubco, net of expected expense reimbursements, including but not limited to, advisory fees, legal fees, and accounting fees in connection with the consummation of the Business Combination. The SPAC's estimated transaction costs amount to $11,020,000 and include the deferred underwriting fee of $9,200,000, net of $2,300,000 in expense reimbursements. Of the total estimated transaction costs, $5,283,977 were accrued in the SPAC's historical financial statements. The deferred underwriting fee was already recorded as Class A ordinary shares subject to possible redemption in the SPAC's historical financial statements. Additional transaction expenses of the SPAC are expensed as incurred.

(j) Reflects the elimination of historical accumulated deficit of Armada Acquisition Corp. II in the amount of $14,528,687, with a corresponding decrease to additional paid-in capital of $14,528,687, upon consummation of the Business Combination.

(k) The transaction accounting adjustments presented under the Maximum Redemption scenario reflect only the incremental changes from the Minimum Redemption scenario. As redemptions increase, fewer shares of Pubco common stock are outstanding, resulting in a greater portion of the equity interests otherwise issuable to Ripple and the Ripple Party Entity exceeding the 9.9% ownership limitation applicable to Pubco common stock. As a result, additional equity interests are issued as Company Units of Pathfinder Digital Assets LLC rather than Pubco common stock. Under the Maximum Redemption scenario, Ripple and the Ripple Party Entity collectively hold an additional 4,139,200 Company Units compared to the Minimum Redemption scenario, which are reflected as redeemable non-controlling interest. Of these, the adjustment in (k) reflects 1,170,645 additional units to be held by the Ripple Party Entity in the Maximum Redemption over the Minimum Redemption units held, which increase is reflected as an increase in non-controlling interest of $11,706,447 and a corresponding decrease in additional paid-in capital of $11,702,307 and decrease in Pubco Class A Common Stock par value of $1,171 based on $0.001 par value per share. The increase in non-controlling interest is measured at $10.00 per unit. A hypothetical $1.00 increase to the $10 unit-price would result in a corresponding increase in the redemption value of the Company Units of $1,170,645, based on 1,170,645 Company Units that would incrementally be issued in the Maximum Redemption Scenario. A hypothetical decrease of $1 in the redemption value would have no impact on the current carrying value, as the redemption value would not be recorded below its initial carrying value of $10 per unit.

The remaining 2,968,555 units related to the Ripple contribution, which Ripple will receive in the Maximum Redemption scenario additional to its units in the Minimum Redemption scenario are reflected in the adjustment in (s) with the exception of the Pubco Class A Common Stock par value of $2,969 based on $0.001 par value per share, which would be a reduction of Pubco Class A Common Stock as the 2,968,555 units will be issued as Company Units and not Pubco Class A Common Stock.

(l) Reflects a reallocation of the par value of the Sponsor's shares exchanged from the SPAC Class A Common Stock shares, factoring in the ownership limitation, under the Maximum Redemptions scenario. Pubco Class C Common Stock shares increased by 864,290 shares with a corresponding decrease in Pubco Class A Common Stock shares. There is no change in additional paid-in capital.

Also, reflects a reallocation of the par value for the Series C Subscription Agreement due to the change in the number of shares issuable between Pubco Class A Common Stock and Class C Common Stock, factoring in the ownership limitation, under the Maximum Redemptions scenario.

In the Maximum Redemptions scenario, Sponsor has 996,769 Class A Common Stock shares issuable, with the excess being 21,005,563 shares reflected as Pubco Class C Common Stock. In addition, in the Maximum Redemptions scenario, SBI has 2,230,219 has Class A Common Stock shares issuable, with the excess being 6,350,690 shares reflected as Pubco Class C Common Stock. Such excess shares par value along with the 864,290 abovementioned decrease adjustments reflect a total decrease to Pubco Class A Common Stock par value of $14,670 and a corresponding increase to Pubco Class C Common Stock par value of $14,670 based on $0.001 par value per share, with no impact to additional paid-in capital.

(m) Reflects the redemption of all 23,000,000 SPAC Class A ordinary shares subject to possible redemption of Armada Acquisition Corp. II under the Maximum Redemption scenario at a redemption value of $10.49 per share, resulting in a cash outflow of $241,164,305 reflected as a decrease to cash of $241,164,305, and the reversal of the related equity reclassification reflected as a decrease to Pubco Class A Common Stock par value of $23,000 and a decrease to additional paid-in capital of $241,141,305.

The Maximum Redemption scenario has been presented solely for illustrative purposes and assumes the hypothetical redemption of all public shares. Notwithstanding this presentation, the SPAC is subject to a requirement in the Business Combination Agreement that it maintain net tangible assets of at least $5,000,001 immediately prior to or upon consummation of the Business Combination, in order to avoid application of the "penny stock" rules under Rule 3a51-1(g)(1) of the Exchange Act. Accordingly, the actual number of shares that may be redeemed in connection with the Business Combination is limited such that this minimum net tangible asset requirement is satisfied. To the extent that redemptions would cause net tangible assets to fall below $5,000,001, the Business Combination would not be consummated unless the SPAC obtains additional financing or enters into a backstop or similar arrangement, or unless such condition to closing is waived by all parties pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement. As such, this scenario should not be viewed as a representation of a permitted or achievable redemption level absent such actions.

(n) Reflects the payment of the deferred underwriting fee accrued by Armada Acquisition Corp. II as of June 30, 2026 upon closing of the Business Combination and receipt of the associated reimbursement of $2,300,000 related to public shareholders who did not exercise their redemption rights under the No Redemption scenario which is recorded as additional paid-in capital.

Under the Maximum Redemptions scenario reflects the adjustments to the $9,200,000 deferred underwriting fee and the expenses reimbursement of $2,300,000 for a net amount of $6,900,000 reflected as an increase to cash and additional paid-in capital as both the fee and expense reimbursement are to be reduced by $0.40 and $0.10, respectively for each public share redeemed.

(o) In both the No Redemption and Maximum Redemption scenarios, no net deferred tax asset or deferred tax liability is reflected in the pro forma balance sheet as the deferred tax assets are fully offset by a corresponding valuation allowance.

In the No Redemption scenario, the pro forma balance sheet reflects a gross deferred tax asset of $3,588,556, primarily associated with deductible temporary differences arising from Pubco's investment in the Company following its contribution of net assets at June 30, 2026, measured in accordance with ASC 740 using enacted statutory tax rates. Based on management's assessment of the realizability of the deferred tax asset, a full valuation allowance of $3,588,556 has been recorded against the deferred tax asset. As a result, no net deferred tax asset or deferred tax liability is recognized in the pro forma balance sheet. While the related deferred tax effects associated with the contribution of assets would otherwise be reflected as an adjustment to additional paid-in capital under GAAP, no corresponding adjustment to additional paid-in capital is recorded because the deferred tax asset is fully offset by the valuation allowance.

In the Maximum Redemption scenario, the pro forma balance sheet reflects a gross deferred tax asset of $14,001,229, which is also fully offset by a corresponding valuation allowance of $14,001,229. Accordingly, no net deferred tax asset or deferred tax liability is recognized in the pro forma balance sheet. As a result, no net deferred tax asset, deferred tax liability, or related adjustment to additional paid-in capital is recognized in the pro forma balance sheet.

(p) Reflects the elimination of related party receivable and payable balances of $3,115,890 between Pubco and the Company upon the Company Merger.

(q) Reflects release of contributed XRP from escrow to effect the Business Combination at closing and purchase of XRP with the remaining $49,995 of cash.

(r) Reflects D&O tail policy with a term of six years at a premium of $250,000, reflected as a decrease to cash of $250,000 and the recognition of prepaid insurance of $41,667 (current) and $208,333 (long-term).

(s) In the No Redemption scenario this adjustment reflects the accretion to redemption value of as an increase to non-controlling interest held by Ripple and an adjustment to accumulated deficit of $98,359,836 associated with 9,835,983 Pathfinder units held by Ripple, after consideration of the historical carrying amount. Accretion is calculated separately under each redemption scenario as the difference between (i) the redemption value of Ripple's non-controlling interest in Pathfinder and (ii) the historical carrying amount of such non-controlling interest, which is zero. The redemption value is determined by multiplying the number of Pathfinder units held by Ripple that are subject to redemption by the $10.00 per-unit. A hypothetical $1.00 increase or decrease to the unit price would result in a corresponding increase or decrease in the redemption value of the Company Units of $9,835,983, based on 9,835,983 Company Units outstanding in the No Redemption Scenario.

The Maximum Redemption adjustment reflects recognition of such 2,968,555 units and their associated accretion to redemption value as an increase to non-controlling interest held by Ripple and an adjustment to accumulated deficit of $29,685,553.

The non-controlling interest arises from units held by Ripple and the Ripple Party Entity in Pathfinder that are subject to redemption outside the control of Pubco and therefore are classified as redeemable non-controlling interest.

(t) Reflects payment of the note payable to a related party reflected as a decrease to cash of $6,554,788 and a corresponding decrease to note payable, related party of $6,554,788, which is repayable within five business days of the earliest of (i) lender demand, (ii) closing of the Proposed Business Combination, or (iii) termination of BCA.

Note 5—Adjustments and Reclassifications to Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Combined Statement of Operations for the period from July 18, 2025 (inception) to December 31, 2025

The pro forma adjustments included in the unaudited pro forma condensed combined statement of operations for the period from July 18, 2025 (inception) to December 31, 2025, are as follows:

(aa) Reflects the elimination of $4,797,110 in interest income generated from the investments held in the Trust Account after giving effect to the Business Combination as if it had occurred on January 1, 2025.

(bb) No income tax expense or benefit has been recorded as the Company does not anticipate the pre-tax book loss will result in income tax expense or benefit due to the full valuation allowance that will be recorded against the deferred tax assets.

(cc) Reflects the elimination of $15,400 in administrative service fees that will cease to be paid upon the Closing.

(dd) Reflects the amortization of $18,950 in prepaid D&O tail insurance as described in Adjustment (r) above.

(ee) Reflects the attribution of the Company's net loss to non-controlling interest through the ownership interest method in the amounts of $203,611 (No Redemptions) and $690,983 (Maximum Redemptions).

(ff) Reflects the reversal of the historical change in fair value of refundable investor advances in the amount of $82,054,043, as there would be no liability assuming the Transactions close.

(gg) Reflects the reversal of interest expense and interest income of $11,495 and $5,463, respectively.

Note 6—Adjustments and Reclassifications to Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Combined Statement of Operations for the period from January 1, 2026 to June 30, 2026

The pro forma adjustments included in the unaudited pro forma condensed combined statement of operations for the period from January 1, 2026 to June 30, 2026, are as follows:

(hh) Reflects the elimination of $4,234,250 in interest income generated from the investments held in the Trust Account after giving effect to the Business Combination as if it had occurred on January 1, 2025.

(ii) No income tax expense or benefit has been recorded as the pre-tax book loss will not result in income tax expense or benefit due to the full valuation allowance recorded against the deferred tax assets.

(jj) Reflects the amortization of $20,548 in prepaid D&O tail insurance as described in Adjustment (r) above.

(kk) Reflects the attribution of the Company's net loss to non-controlling interest through the ownership interest method in the amounts of $497,790 (No Redemptions) and $1,689,324 (Maximum Redemptions).

(ll) Reflects the reversal of the historical change in fair value of refundable investor advances in the amount of $77,477,000, as there would be no liability assuming the Transactions close.

(mm) Reflects the reversal of interest expense and interest income of $105,006 and $18,009, respectively.

Note 7—Net Income (Loss) per Share July 18, 2025 (Inception) through December 31, 2025

Represents the loss per share calculated using the historical weighted average shares outstanding and the issuance of additional shares in connection with the Transactions, assuming the shares were outstanding since July 18, 2025. As the Transactions are being reflected as if they had occurred at the beginning of the period presented, the calculation of weighted average shares outstanding for basic and diluted earnings per share assumes that the shares issued in connection with the Transactions have been outstanding for the entire period presented. If the number of public shares described under the "Assuming Maximum Redemptions" scenario described above are redeemed, this calculation is retroactively adjusted to eliminate such shares for the entire period.

The unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information has been prepared assuming two alternative levels of redemption of Public Shares:

INFORMATION ABOUT SPAC

General

SPAC is a blank check company incorporated as an exempted company in the Cayman Islands on October 3, 2024, for the purpose of effecting a merger, share exchange, asset acquisition, share purchase, reorganization or similar business combination with one or more businesses or entities. SPAC also has neither engaged in any operations nor generated any revenue to date. Based on its business activities, SPAC is a "shell company" as defined under the Exchange Act because it has no operations and nominal assets consisting almost entirely of cash except proceeds from the IPO that is held in the Trust Account and invested mainly in U.S. Treasury Bills.

SPAC's IPO

On November 7, 2024, SPAC issued an aggregate of 7,880,000 Founder Shares to the Original Sponsor, for an aggregate purchase price of $25,000.

The registration statement on Form S-1 (File No. 333- 286110) for the IPO was declared effective by the SEC on May 20, 2025. On May 22, 2025, SPAC consummated the IPO of 23,000,000 SPAC Units, including 3,000,000 SPAC Units as a result of the underwriters' full exercise of their overallotment option, at an offering price of $10.00 per Unit. The gross proceeds to SPAC from the IPO were $230,000,000 in the aggregate. Each SPAC Unit consists of one SPAC Class A Share and one-half of one SPAC Public Warrants at an exercise price of $11.50 per share, subject to adjustment.

In connection with the IPO and the issuance and sale of the Units, on May 22, 2025, SPAC completed the private placement of an aggregate of 710,000 private placement units (the "Private Placement Units") at a price of $10.00 per Private Placement Unit, with the underwriter's over-allotment option being fully exercised, generating gross proceeds of $7,100,000, as follows: (A) 400,000 Private Placement Units ($4,000,000 in the aggregate) with the Sponsor, (B) 155,000 Private Placement Units ($1,550,000 in the aggregate) with CCM and (C) 155,000 Private Placement Units ($1,550,000 in the aggregate) with Northland Securities, Inc. ("Northland") (collectively, the "Private Placement"). The Private Placement Units, which were purchased by the Sponsor, CCM and Northland, are identical to the Units, except that, they (including the underlying securities) are (i) subject to certain limited exceptions, subject to transfer restrictions until 180 days following the consummation of the Company's initial business combination and (ii) entitled to registration rights.

A total of $231,150,000 of the net proceeds (including the underwriter's deferred discount of up to $4,600,000) of IPO and Private Placement, were placed in the Trust Account. Transaction costs amounted to approximately $14,413,386, consisting of $4,600,000 of cash underwriting fees, $9,200,000 of deferred underwriting fees and approximately $613,386 of other offering costs.

The balance of the funds held outside of the Trust Account was intended to be used primarily to identify and evaluate target businesses, perform business due diligence on prospective target businesses, travel to and from the offices, plants or similar locations of prospective target businesses or their representatives or owners, review corporate documents and material agreements of prospective target businesses, and structure, negotiate and complete a business combination. A portion of interest income on the funds held in the Trust Account have been, and may in the future be, released to SPAC as permitted withdrawals to fund its working capital requirements (subject to an annual limit of 10% of interest earned on funds held in the Trust Account), and to pay tax obligations. As of June 30, 2026, funds held in the Trust Account totaled $241,164,305.

The SPAC Units began trading on May 22, 2025 on Nasdaq under the symbol "AACIU." On October 30, 2025, the SPAC Units trading symbol was changed to "XRPNU." On June 17, 2025, SPAC announced that the holders of the SPAC Units may elect to separately trade the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants included in the SPAC Units commencing on June 24, 2025. Each SPAC Unit consists of one SPAC Class A Share and one-half of a SPAC Public Warrant. Any SPAC Units not separated continued to trade on the Nasdaq under the symbol "XRPNU." SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants that have been separated from a SPAC Unit traded on Nasdaq under the symbols "AACI" and "AACIW," respectively. On October 30, 2025, the trading symbol for the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants was changed to "XRPN" and "XRPNW," respectively.

Sponsor Purchase

On August 12, 2025, SPAC entered into the Purchase Agreement with the Sponsor and the Original Sponsor, pursuant to which the Original Sponsor agreed to sell to the Sponsor, and the Sponsor agreed to purchase from the Original Sponsor, an aggregate of 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares, and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants for an aggregate purchase price of $6,600,000 and the Sponsor received a limited, revocable license to the Original Sponsor branding for a period of time that expires not later than November 22, 2026 (unless the termination date of the Company is extended to a later date). On August 28, 2025, the New Sponsor Purchase was completed pursuant to the terms of the Purchase Agreement, and the Sponsor owns all of the equity interests of SPAC held by the Original Sponsor, including 100% of the SPAC Class B Shares, and has the power to appoint all members of the SPAC Board.

Roles and Responsibilities of the Sponsor

The material roles and responsibilities of the Sponsor, its affiliates, and any promoters in directing and managing SPAC's activity include providing strategic guidance and support to SPAC's management team and board of directors and assisting with the evaluation and negotiation of the initial business combination. In addition, the Sponsor and its affiliates have been involved in participating in discussions regarding potential financial arrangements and other transaction terms in connection with the initial business combination and supporting SPAC in its efforts to satisfy conditions to consummate the initial business combination. The Sponsor may also provide input with respect to governance and operational matters, including regarding director and officer appointments and the oversight of matters relating to the Trust Account. The Sponsor participated in the evaluation of the target of the initial business combination, the negotiation of the LOI received on August 21, 2025, and subsequent discussions regarding the key commercial terms of the proposed initial business combination.

Experience with Other SPACs

The Sponsor and its affiliates have significant experience investing and operating companies through business combinations, spin-outs and public offerings:

- Taryn Naidu, SPAC's Chief Executive Officer and a Director of the SPAC, previously served as the chief operating officer of a target company that completed a business combination with a special purpose acquisition company.
- Kyle Horton, SPAC's Chief Financial Officer, has experience managing a target company through a business combination with a special purpose acquisition company.
- Richard Danis, a Director on the SPAC Board, served as general counsel of a target company through a business combination with a special purpose acquisition company.

Other than their involvement discussed above, none of SPAC's officers or directors, the Sponsor, nor any of its affiliates, have had previous management experience with blank check companies or special purpose acquisition companies.

Transfer Restrictions

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, the Sponsor, SPAC and Pubco, entered into the Sponsor Support Agreement, pursuant to which, among other things, the Sponsor (i) subject to and conditioned upon the Closing, waived its anti-dilution protections contained within SPAC Charter and any dissenters' rights it has under Section 238 of the Cayman Companies Act (as amended) of the Cayman Islands, (ii) agreed to a waiver and release of certain claims against Pubco, the Company and SPAC, (iii) agreed to vote in favor of the Transactions and against any alterations to the business of SPAC or impediments to the Business Combination Agreement, (iv) agreed to (a) forfeit a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, and (b) forfeit certain warrants of SPAC for issuance in SPAC Merger, and accept the issuance of certain warrants in Pubco as consideration therefor, and (v) to comply with the restrictions imposed by the Insider Letter, including the restrictions on transfer and redemption of SPAC Common Shares in connection with the Transactions.

Pursuant to the Insider Letter, the Sponsor is currently restricted in its ability to transfer, assign, or sell its securities, as summarized in the table below:

Subject Securities	Expiration Date	Natural Persons and Entities Subject to Restrictions	Exceptions to Transfer Restrictions
Founder Shares	The earlier of (A) 180 days after the completion of the Company's initial Business Combination and (B) subsequent to the Business Combination, (x) if the last reported sale price of the Ordinary Shares equals or exceeds $11.50 per share (as adjusted for share sub-divisions, share capitalizations, rights issuances, reorganizations, recapitalizations and the like) for any 20 trading days within any 30-trading day period commencing after the Company's initial Business Combination or (y) the date following the completion of the Company's initial Business Combination on which the Company completes a liquidation, merger, share exchange, reorganization or other similar transaction that results in all of the Company's stockholders having the right to exchange their Ordinary Shares for cash, securities or other property.	Sponsor	Transfers permitted: (i) to (1) the Sponsors' members, (2) the directors or officers of the Company, the Sponsors, the Sponsors' members or the underwriters, (3) any affiliates or family members of the directors or officers of the Company, the Sponsors, the Sponsors' members or the underwriters, (4) any members or partners of the Sponsors, the Sponsors' members, The underwriters or their respective affiliates, or any affiliates of the Sponsors, the Sponsors' members, the underwriters, or any employees of such affiliates; (ii) in the case of an individual, by gift to a member of the individual's immediate family, or to a trust, the beneficiary of which is a member of the individual's immediate family, an affiliate of such person, or to a charitable organization; (iii) in the case of an individual, by virtue of laws of descent and distribution upon death of the individual; (iv) in the case of an individual, pursuant to a qualified domestic relations order; (v) in the case of a trust by distribution to one or more permissible beneficiaries of such

			trust; (vi) by private sales or transfers made in connection with any forward purchase agreement or similar arrangement or in connection with the consummation of the Company's Business Combination at prices no greater than the price at which the securities were originally purchased; (vii) to the Company for no value for cancellation in connection with the consummation of its initial Business Combination; (viii) in the event of the Company's liquidation prior to the Company's completion of its initial Business Combination; (ix) by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, a Sponsor's limited liability company agreement, upon dissolution of such Sponsor, or the organizational documents of the underwriters upon dissolution of the underwriters; and (x) in the event of the Company's completion of a liquidation, merger, share exchange, reorganization or other similar transaction which results in all of the Company's shareholders having the right to exchange their Ordinary Shares for cash, securities or other property subsequent to the completion of the Company's initial Business Combination.
SPAC Private Warrants	30 days after the completion of a business combination.	Same as above	Same as above

If the Closing occurs, the transfer restrictions in the Insider Letter will be replaced with the transfer restrictions in the Lock-Up Agreements. Under the Lock-Up Agreements, the Restricted Securities will be locked up until the earlier of (a) the Anniversary Release; and (b) the date on which Pubco consummates a liquidation, merger, capital stock exchange, reorganization or other similar transaction after the Closing which results in all of Pubco's stockholders having the right to exchange their shares of Pubco common stock for cash, securities or other property. The Lock-Up Agreements include customary exceptions to the transfer restrictions, including transfers to affiliates, family members, charitable organizations, and in connection with certain tax or estate planning transactions, provided that the transferee agrees to be bound by the same restrictions for the remainder of the lock-up period. For more information about the Lock-Up Agreements, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Other Transaction Agreements—Lock-Up Agreements."

Fair Market Value of Target Business

The target business or businesses that SPAC acquires must collectively have a fair market value equal to at least 80% of the net assets held in the Trust Account (excluding the deferred underwriting commissions, and taxes payable on, the interest earned on the Trust Account) at the time of the execution of a definitive agreement for SPAC's initial business combination. The SPAC Board has determined that the proposed Transactions with the Company meets the 80% test.

Redemption Rights in Connection with Shareholder Approval of the Transactions

Under the SPAC Charter, if SPAC is required by law or elects to seek shareholder approval of its initial business combination, Public Shareholders must be given the opportunity to have their Public Shares redeemed in connection with the proxy solicitation for the applicable shareholder meeting, regardless of whether they vote for or against the Business Combination, subject to the limitations described in the prospectus for SPAC's initial public offering. Accordingly, in connection with the Transactions, Public Shareholders may seek to have their Public Shares redeemed in accordance with the procedures set forth in this proxy statement/prospectus.

Voting Obligations in Connection with the Extraordinary General Meeting

Pursuant to the Sponsor Support Agreement, the Sponsor has agreed to vote all of SPAC securities held by it in favor of the Business Combination Proposal and the other shareholder proposals and not to seek to have any shares redeemed in connection with the Transactions.

Redemption of SPAC's Public Shares and Liquidation if No Initial Transactions

The SPAC Charter provides that SPAC will have only the duration of the Combination Period to complete its initial business combination. If SPAC has not completed its initial business combination within the Combination Period, SPAC will (i) cease all operations except for the purpose of winding up, (ii) as promptly as reasonably possible but not more than 10 Business Days thereafter, subject to lawfully available funds, redeem the Public Shares, at a per-share price, payable in cash, equal to the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account, including interest earned on the funds held in the Trust Account (which interest shall be net of taxes payable and up to $100,000 of interest to pay dissolution expenses), divided by the number of then issued and outstanding Public Shares, which redemption will completely extinguish Public Shareholders' rights as shareholders (including the right to receive further liquidating distributions, if any), subject to applicable law, and (iii) as promptly as reasonably possible following such redemption, subject to the approval of SPAC's remaining shareholders and directors, liquidate and dissolve, subject in each case to SPAC's obligations under Cayman Islands law to provide for claims of creditors and subject to the other requirements of applicable law. There will be no redemption rights or liquidating distributions with respect to its warrants, which will expire worthless if SPAC fails to complete its initial business combination within the Combination Period.

The Sponsor, SPAC's officers and its directors have entered into a letter agreement with SPAC, pursuant to which they have waived their rights to liquidating distributions from the Trust Account with respect to any Founder Shares held by them if SPAC fails to complete its initial business combination within the Combination Period, although they will entitled to liquidating distributions from assets outside the Trust Account. However, if the Sponsor or management team acquired Public Shares in or after the SPAC IPO, they will be entitled to liquidating distributions from the Trust Account with respect to such Public Shares if SPAC fails to complete its initial business combination within the allotted Combination Period.

The Sponsor, SPAC's officers and its directors have agreed, pursuant to a written agreement with SPAC, that they will not propose any amendment to the SPAC Charter (A) to modify the substance or timing of its obligation to allow redemption in connection with its initial business combination or to redeem 100% of its Public Shares if SPAC does not complete its initial business combination within the Combination Period or (B) with respect to any other material provisions relating to shareholders' rights or pre-initial business combination activity, in each case unless SPAC provides its Public Shareholders with the opportunity to redeem their Public Shares upon approval of any such amendment at a per-share price, payable in cash, equal to the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account, including interest earned on the funds held in the Trust Account (net of taxes payable) and not previously released to SPAC pursuant to permitted withdrawals, divided by the number of then outstanding Public Shares.

SPAC expects that all costs and expenses associated with implementing its plan of dissolution, as well as payments to any creditors, will be funded from proceeds held outside the Trust Account, although SPAC cannot assure you that there will be sufficient funds for such purpose. However, if those funds are not sufficient to cover the costs and expenses associated with implementing its plan of dissolution, to the extent that there is any interest accrued in the Trust Account not required to pay income taxes on interest income earned on the Trust Account balance, SPAC may request the trustee to release to it an additional amount of up to $100,000 of such accrued interest to pay those costs and expenses.

If we were to expend all of the net proceeds of the IPO and the sale of the SPAC Private Warrants, other than the proceeds deposited in the Trust Account, and without taking into account interest, if any, earned on the Trust Account, the per-share redemption amount received by Public Shareholders upon SPAC's dissolution would be approximately $10.05. The proceeds deposited in the Trust Account could, however, become subject to the claims of SPAC's creditors who would have higher priority than the claims of public shareholders. SPAC cannot assure you that the actual per-share redemption amount received by Public Shareholders will not be substantially less than $10.05. While SPAC intends to pay such amounts, if any, SPAC cannot assure you that SPAC will have funds sufficient to pay or provide for all creditors' claims.

Although SPAC will seek to have all vendors, service providers, prospective target businesses and other entities with which SPAC does business execute agreements with SPAC waiving any right, title, interest or claim of any kind in or to any monies held in the Trust Account for the benefit of the Public Shareholders, such parties may not execute such agreements, or even if they execute such agreements they may not be prevented from bringing claims against the Trust Account, including, but not limited to, fraudulent inducement, breach of fiduciary responsibility or other similar claims, as well as claims challenging the enforceability of the waiver, in each case in order to gain advantage with respect to a claim against its assets, including the funds held in the Trust Account. If any third party refuses to execute an agreement waiving such claims to the monies held in the Trust Account, SPAC management will consider whether competitive alternatives are reasonably available to SPAC and will only enter into an agreement with such third party if management believes that such third party's engagement would be in the best interests of SPAC under the circumstances. CBIZ CPAS P.C., SPAC's independent registered public accounting firm, and the underwriters of the IPO will not execute agreements with SPAC waiving such claims to the monies held in the Trust Account.

Examples of possible instances where SPAC may engage a third party that refuses to execute a waiver include the engagement of a third-party consultant whose particular expertise or skills are believed by management to be significantly superior to those of other consultants that would agree to execute a waiver or in cases where management is unable to find a service provider willing to execute a waiver. In addition, there is no guarantee that such entities will agree to waive any claims they may have in the future as a result of, or arising out of, any negotiations, contracts or agreements with SPAC and will not seek recourse against the Trust Account for any reason.

Upon redemption of its Public Shares, if SPAC is unable to complete an initial business combination within the Combination Period, or upon the exercise of a redemption right in connection with an initial business combination, including the Transactions, SPAC will be required to provide for payment of claims of creditors that were not waived that may be brought against SPAC within the 10 years following redemption. Accordingly, the per-share redemption amount received by Public Shareholders could be less than the $10.00 per Public Share initially held in the Trust Account, due to claims of such creditors. Pursuant to the Insider Letter, the Sponsor has agreed that it will be liable to SPAC if and to the extent any claims by a third party for services rendered or products sold to SPAC, or a prospective target business with which SPAC has entered into a written letter of intent, confidentiality or other similar agreement or business combination agreement (except for SPAC's independent registered public accounting firm), reduce the amount of funds in the Trust Account to below (i) $10.05 per Public Share or (ii) such lesser amount per Public Share held in the Trust Account as of the date of the liquidation of the Trust Account due to reductions in the value of the trust assets, in each case, net of the amount of interest earned on the property in the Trust Account which may be withdrawn to pay taxes, provided that such liability will not apply to any claims by a third party who executed a waiver of any and all rights to seek access to the Trust Account nor will it apply to any claims under SPAC's indemnity of the underwriters of the SPAC IPO against certain liabilities, including liabilities under the Securities Act. This liability shall apply in the event that SPAC is unable to complete an initial business combination within the Combination Period. However, SPAC has not asked the Sponsor to reserve for such indemnification obligations, nor has SPAC independently verified whether the Sponsor has sufficient funds to satisfy its indemnity obligations and SPAC believes that the Sponsor's only assets are securities of SPAC. Therefore, SPAC cannot assure that the Sponsor would be able to satisfy those obligations. As a result, if any such claims were successfully made against the Trust Account, the funds available for an initial business combination and redemptions could be reduced to less than $10.52 per Public Share.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, a Public Shareholder, together with any affiliate of such Public Shareholder or any other person with whom such Public Shareholder is acting in concert or as a "group" (as defined in Section 13(d)(3) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended), will be restricted from having its Public Shares redeemed with respect to more than an aggregate of 20% of the Public Shares. Accordingly, if a Public Shareholder, alone or acting in concert or as a group, seeks redemption of more than 20% of the Public Shares, then any such shares in excess of that 20% limit would not be redeemed for cash.

Facilities

SPAC currently maintains its executive offices at 382 NE 191st St., Suite 602, Miami, FL 33179-3899. The Sponsor pays the cost for this space without reimbursement. SPAC considers its current office space adequate for its current operations.

Legal Proceedings

From time to time, SPAC, its executive officers, directors, the Sponsor and its respective affiliates and/or any of their respective principals and employees may be subject to legal proceedings, and as a result, may incur significant costs and expenses in connection with such legal proceedings.

Human Capital Resources

SPAC has two executive officers. The amount of time they will devote in any time period will vary based on whether a target business has been selected for the business combination and the stage of the business combination process the Company is in. Accordingly, once a suitable target business to acquire has been located, management will spend more time investigating such target business and negotiating and processing the business combination (and consequently spend more time on our affairs) than had been spent prior to locating a suitable target business. We presently expect our executive officers to devote such amount of time as they reasonably believe is necessary to our business. SPAC does not intend to have any full-time employees prior to the consummation of the Business Combination.

The Merger Subs

Company Merger Sub, a Delaware limited liability company, and SPAC Merger Sub, a Delaware corporation, and direct, wholly owned subsidiaries of Pubco, were both incorporated on October 15, 2025 solely for the purpose of effectuating the Transactions and do not own any material assets or operate any business.

Directors, Executive Officers and Corporate Governance

SPAC's directors and officers are as follows:

Name	Age	Title
Taryn Naidu	48	Chief Executive Officer and Director
Kyle Horton	38	Chief Financial Officer
J. Michael Arrington	56	Director
Richard Danis	57	Director
Lindy Key	44	Director
Ronald Palmeri	62	Director

J. Michael Arrington has served as Chairman and a Director of the SPAC since August 2025. He was the founder of and has been a Managing Member at Arrington Capital Management, LLC, a web3 multi-strategy hedge fund, since December 2017 and at Arrington Capital Investment Management, LLC, an affiliate of SPAC, since August 2021. Mr. Arrington founded TechCrunch, a leading technology news site launched in 2005. Mr. Arrington previously practiced corporate law, co-founded several startups, and later established the venture firm CrunchFund, prior to focusing on cryptocurrency and web3 investments. Mr. Arrington received a Bachelor of Arts in Economics from Claremont McKenna College and a Juris Doctor from Stanford Law School. The Company believes that Mr. Arrington is qualified to serve on the SPAC Board because of his senior management, business development, and industry experience (including web3 and venture experience).

Taryn Naidu has served as the Chief Executive Officer of SPAC and a Director of the SPAC since August 2025. He has served as a Partner and Chief Operating Officer at Arrington Capital Investment Management, LLC, an affiliate of SPAC, since June 2023. Mr. Naidu also serves as a director at System1, Inc. (Nasdaq: SST). From March 2019 to April 2022, Mr. Naidu served as the Chief Operating Officer at Rigetti Computing, Inc., where he was instrumental in the business operations and led multiple financing rounds for such company, including its public offering through a deSPAC merger. From August 2014 to August 2017, Mr. Naidu was the Chief Executive Officer and a member of the Board of Directors of Rightside Group Ltd. after its business separation from Leaf Group Ltd. in 2014, where he led one of the leading domain services companies, until its sale to Identity Digital in 2017. Mr. Naidu received a Bachelor of Computer Science from the University of Regina. The Company believes Mr. Naidu is qualified to serve on the SPAC Board because of his technical background, his experience with public company boards, and his strategic planning and industry experience.

Kyle Horton has served as the Chief Financial Officer of SPAC since August 2025. He started his career as an Engineering Officer in the United States Air Force serving in both the US and Afghanistan. Mr. Horton has worked in Finance and Operations at large public companies, Apple and Wayfair, as well as several early-stage technology startups. As Senior Vice President of Strategy, Finance and Operations at Rigetti Computing (Nasdaq: RGTI) from August 2020 to April 2023. Mr. Horton served as Vice President, Operations at Invisible AI from August 2023 to December 2023. Mr. Horton was instrumental in taking Rigetti Computing public through a SPAC transaction in 2022. Mr. Horton has served as the Vice President, Finance and Operations at Arrington Capital Investment Management, LLC, an affiliate of SPAC, since January 2024, a web3 multi-strategy hedge fund. Mr. Horton received a Bachelor of Science from the University of Virginia and a Master of Business Administration from Cornell University.

Richard Danis has served on the SPAC Board since August 2025. He served as the General Counsel for Bluetooth SIG, Inc. from December 2024 to April 2025, and as the General Counsel and Corporate Secretary at Rigetti Computing, Inc. (Nasdaq: from July 2019 to December 2024. From January 2020 to December 2022, Mr. Danis served as a Director on the board of F3 Nation, Inc. Mr. Danis received a Bachelor of Art in Accounting from Ohio University and a Juris Doctor from DePaul University College of Law. The Company believes that Mr. Danis is qualified to serve on the SPAC Board because of his senior management experience and his experience with risk assessment, international business, and board governance.

Ronald Palmeri has served on the SPAC Board since August 2025. He served as Chief Executive Officer and director at Trainspot, Inc. from August 2023 to July 2024. From June 2019 to February 2022, Mr. Palmeri served as a Partner at Arrington Capital Management, LLC, an affiliate of SPAC, where he worked with entrepreneurs creating new rails for data, finance, and ownership. Prior to joining Arrington Capital Management, LLC, Mr. Palmeri founded several startups and MkII Ventures. Mr. Palmeri received a Bachelor of Arts in History and French from Middlebury College and attended Sciences Po in Paris. He has written and spoken widely on user-driven product development and the craft of venture company-building. The Company believes that Mr. Palmeri is qualified to serve on the SPAC Board because of his senior management, business development, and industry experience (including web3 and venture experience) and his knowledge of and perspective on building and operating companies.

Lindy Key has served on the SPAC Board since August 2025. She was the founder and has been the Principal of WNC Consulting Group, LLC since February 2020, providing accounting and finance consulting services to companies. From October 2015 to February 2020, Ms. Key served as the Assistant Controller and later Controller at Porch Group Inc., and as Director of Accounting at Leaf Group Ltd. Ms. Key holds an undergraduate degree in Business Administration from the University of Washington and a Certificate in Accounting from the University of Washington Foster School of Business. The Company believes Ms. Key is qualified to serve on the SPAC Board because of her technical background, her accounting and auditing experience, and her international business experience.

Corporate Governance

Number and Terms of Office of Officers and Directors

The SPAC Board consists of five members. Prior to the closing of SPAC's initial business combination, only holders of the SPAC Class B Shares will be entitled to vote on the appointment and removal of directors or continuing SPAC to a jurisdiction outside the Cayman Islands (including any special resolution required to amend its constitutional documents or to adopt new constitutional documents, in each case, as a result of its approving a transfer by way of continuation to a jurisdiction outside the Cayman Islands). Holders of the Public Shares will not be entitled to vote on such matters during such time. These provisions of the SPAC Charter relating to these rights of holders of SPAC Class B Shares may be amended by a special resolution passed by the affirmative vote of at least 90% (or, where such amendment is proposed in respect of the consummation of SPAC's initial business combination, two-thirds) of the votes cast by such shareholders as, being entitled to do so, vote in person or, where proxies are allowed, by proxy at the applicable general meeting of SPAC. In accordance with Nasdaq corporate governance requirements, SPAC is not required to hold an annual general meeting until one year after its first fiscal year end following its listing on Nasdaq.

SPAC's officers are appointed by the SPAC Board and serve at the discretion of the board, rather than for specific terms of office. The SPAC Board is authorized to appoint officers as it deems appropriate pursuant to the SPAC Charter.

Director Independence

Nasdaq listing standards require that a majority of the SPAC Board be independent. The SPAC Board has determined that Mr. Richard Danis, Ms. Lindy Key and Mr. Ronald Palmeri are "independent directors" as defined in the Nasdaq listing standards. SPAC's independent directors have regularly scheduled meetings at which only independent directors are present.

Committees of the Board of Directors

The SPAC Board has three standing committees: an audit committee, a compensation committee and a nominating and corporate governance committee. The rules of Nasdaq and Rule 10A-3 of the Exchange Act require that the audit committee of a listed company be comprised solely of independent directors. Each committee operates under a charter that has been approved by the SPAC Board and has the composition and responsibilities described below. The charter of each committee is available on SPAC's website.

Audit Committee

Mr. Richard Danis, Ms. Lindy Key and Mr. Ronald Palmeri serve as the members of SPAC's audit committee. Under the Nasdaq listing standards and applicable SEC rules, SPAC is required to have three members of the audit committee, all of whom must be independent. Mr. Richard Danis, Ms. Lindy Key and Mr. Ronald Palmeri are each independent.

Ms. Lindy Key serves as the chairman of the audit committee. Each member of the audit committee is financially literate and the SPAC Board have determined that all members qualify as "audit committee financial experts" as defined in applicable SEC rules.

SPAC has adopted an audit committee charter, which details the principal functions of the audit committee, including:

- assisting board oversight of (1) the accounting and financial reporting processes of the SPAC and the audits of the financial statements of the SPAC, (2) the preparation and integrity of the financial statements of the SPAC, (3) the compliance by the SPAC with financial statement and regulatory requirements, (4) the performance of the SPAC's internal finance and accounting personnel and its independent registered public accounting firms, and (5) the qualifications and independence of the SPAC's independent registered public accounting firms;
- reviewing with each of the internal and independent registered public accounting firms the overall scope and plans for audits, including authority and organizational reporting lines and adequacy of staffing and compensation;
- reviewing and discussing with management and internal auditors the SPAC's system of internal control and discussing with the independent registered public accounting firm any significant matters regarding internal controls over financial reporting that have come to its attention during the conduct of its audit;
- reviewing and discussing with management, internal auditors and the independent registered public accounting firm the SPAC's financial and critical accounting practices, and policies relating to risk assessment and management;
- reviewing reports of the independent registered public accounting firm and discussing 1) all critical accounting policies and practices to be used in the firm's audit of the SPAC's financial statements, 2) all alternative treatments of financial information within GAAP that have been discussed with management, ramifications of the use of such alternative disclosures and treatments, and the treatment preferred by the independent registered public accounting firm, and 3) other material written communications between the independent registered public accounting firm and management, such as any management letter or schedule of unadjusted differences;
- reviewing and discussing with management and the independent registered public accounting firm the annual and quarterly financial statements and section entitled "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations" of the SPAC prior to the filing of the SPAC's Annual Report on Form 10-K and Quarterly Reports on Form 10-Q;
- reviewing, or establishing, standards for the type of information and the type of presentation of such information to be included in, earnings press releases and earnings guidance provided to analysts and rating agencies;
- discussing with management and the independent registered public accounting firm any changes in the SPAC's critical accounting principles and the effects of alternative GAAP methods, off-balance sheet structures and regulatory and accounting initiatives;

- reviewing material pending legal proceedings involving the Company and other contingent liabilities;
- meeting periodically with the Chief Executive Officer, Chief Financial Officer, the senior internal auditing executive and the independent registered public accounting firm in separate executive sessions to discuss results of examinations;
- reviewing and approving all transactions between the SPAC and related parties or affiliates of the officers of the SPAC requiring disclosure under Item 404 of Regulation S-K prior to the SPAC entering into such transactions;
- establishing procedures for the receipt, retention and treatment of complaints received by the SPAC regarding accounting, internal accounting controls or auditing matters, and the confidential, anonymous submissions by employees or contractors of concerns regarding questionable accounting or accounting matters; with the SPAC's management, independent registered public accounting firm and outside legal counsel (i) legal and regulatory matters which may have a material effect on the financial statements, and (ii) corporate compliance policies or codes of conduct, including any correspondence with regulators or government agencies and any employee complaints or published reports that raise material issues regarding the Company's financial statements or accounting policies and any significant changes in accounting standards or rules promulgated by the Financial Accounting Standards Board, the SEC or other regulatory authorities; and

- establishing policies for the hiring of employees and former employees of the independent registered public accounting firm.

Compensation Committee

The members of SPAC's compensation committee are Mr. Richard Danis, Ms. Lindy Key and Mr. Ronald Palmeri, who serves as chair of the compensation committee. Under the Nasdaq listing standards and applicable SEC rules, SPAC is required to have a compensation committee of at least two members, all of whom must be independent. Mr. Richard Danis, Ms. Lindy Key and Mr. Ronald Palmeri are each independent. SPAC has adopted a compensation committee charter, which details the principal functions of the compensation committee, including:

- reviewing the performance of the Chief Executive Officer and executive management;
- assisting the SPAC Board in developing and evaluating potential candidates for executive positions (including Chief Executive Officer);
- reviewing and approving goals and objectives relevant to the Chief Executive Officer and other executive officer compensation, evaluating the Chief Executive Officer's and other executive officers' performance in light of these corporate goals and objectives, and setting the Chief Executive Officer and other executive officer compensation levels consistent with its evaluation and the SPAC philosophy;
- approving the salaries, bonus and other compensation for all executive officers;
- reviewing and approving compensation packages for new corporate officers and termination packages for corporate officers as requested by management;
- reviewing and discussing with the SPAC Board and senior officers plans for officer development and corporate succession plans for the Chief Executive Officer and other senior officers;
- reviewing and making recommendations concerning executive compensation policies and plans;
- reviewing and recommending to the SPAC Board the adoption of or changes to the compensation of the SPAC's directors;

- reviewing and approving the awards made under any executive officer bonus plan, and providing an appropriate report to the SPAC Board;
- reviewing and making recommendations concerning long-term incentive compensation plans, including the use of stock options and other equity-based plans, and, except as otherwise delegated by the SPAC Board, acting as the "Plan Administrator" for equity-based and employee benefit plans;
- approving all special perquisites, special cash payments and other special compensation and benefit arrangements for the SPAC's executive officers and employees;
- reviewing periodic reports from management on matters relating to the SPAC's personnel appointments and practices;
- assisting management in complying with the SPAC's proxy statement and annual report disclosure requirements;
- annual Report of the Compensation Committee on Executive Compensation for the SPAC's annual proxy statement in compliance with applicable SEC rules and regulations;
- annually evaluating the committee's performance and the compensation committee's charter and recommending to the SPAC Board any proposed changes to the compensation committee charter or the compensation committee; and
- undertaking all further actions and discharge all further responsibilities imposed upon the compensation committee from time to time by the SPAC Board, the federal securities laws or the rules and regulations of the SEC.

The charter also provides that the compensation committee may, in its sole discretion, retain or obtain the advice of a compensation consultant, legal counsel or other adviser and will be directly responsible for the appointment, compensation and oversight of the work of any such adviser. However, before engaging or receiving advice from a compensation consultant, external legal counsel or any other adviser, the compensation committee will consider the independence of each such adviser, including the factors required by Nasdaq and the SEC.

Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee

The members of SPAC's nominating and corporate governance committee are Ms. Lindy Key, Mr. Ronald Palmeri and Mr. Richard Danis, who serves as chair of the nominating and corporate governance committee. Under the Nasdaq listing standards and applicable SEC rules, all nominating and corporate governance committee members must be independent. Mr. Richard Danis, Ms. Lindy Key and Mr. Ronald Palmeri are each independent. SPAC has adopted a nominating and corporate governance committee charter, which details the principal functions of the nominating and corporate governance committee, including:

- identifying, screening and reviewing individuals qualified to serve as directors, consistent with criteria approved by the SPAC Board, and recommending to the SPAC Board candidates for nomination for election at the annual meeting of shareholders or to fill vacancies on the SPAC Board;
- developing and recommending to the SPAC Board and overseeing implementation of SPAC's corporate governance guidelines;
- coordinating and overseeing the annual self-evaluation of the SPAC Board, its committees, individual directors and management in the governance of the company; and
- reviewing on a regular basis SPAC's overall corporate governance and recommending improvements as and when necessary.

The charter also provides that the nominating and corporate governance committee may, in its sole discretion, retain or obtain the advice of, and terminate, any search firm to be used to identify director candidates, and will be directly responsible for approving the search firm's fees and other retention terms.

Code of Business Conduct

SPAC has adopted a Code of Business Conduct applicable to its directors, officers and employees. SPAC has filed a copy of its Code of Business Conduct as an exhibit to its registration statement on Form S-1/A, as filed with the Commission on May 14, 2025. If SPAC makes any amendments to its Code of Business Conduct, will disclose the nature of such amendment or waiver in a Current Report on Form 8-K.

Insider Trading Policy

SPAC has adopted an insider trading policy (the "Insider Trading Policy") governing the purchase, sale and other dispositions of SPAC securities by SPAC directors, officers and employees that is designed to promote compliance with insider trading laws, rules and regulations. The Insider Trading Policy requires insiders to (1) refrain from purchasing securities during certain blackout periods and when they are in possession of any material non-public information and (2) clear certain trades prior to execution. SPAC cannot currently determine whether SPAC insiders will make such purchases pursuant to a Rule 10b5-1 plan, as it will be dependent upon several factors, including but not limited to, the timing and size of such purchases. In addition, with regard to SPAC's trading in its own securities, it is SPAC's policy to comply with all applicable insider trading laws, rules, and regulations. SPAC's Insider Trading Policy was filed with its Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended September 30, 2025.

Conflicts of Interest

Under Cayman Islands law, directors and officers owe the following fiduciary duties:

- duty to act in good faith in what the director or officer believes to be in the best interests of the company as a whole;
- duty to exercise powers for the purposes for which those powers were conferred and not for a collateral purpose;
- directors should not improperly fetter the exercise of future discretion;
- duty to exercise authority for the purpose for which it is conferred and a duty to exercise powers fairly as between different sections of shareholders;
- duty not to put themselves in a position in which there is a conflict between their duty to the company and their personal interests; and
- duty to exercise independent judgment.

In addition to the above, directors also owe a duty of care which is not fiduciary in nature. This duty has been defined as a requirement to act as a reasonably diligent person having both the general knowledge, skill and experience that may reasonably be expected of a person carrying out the same functions as are carried out by that director in relation to the company and the general knowledge, skill and experience of that director.

As set out above, directors have a duty not to put themselves in a position of conflict and this includes a duty not to engage in self-dealing, or to otherwise benefit as a result of their position at the expense of SPAC. However, in some instances what would otherwise be a breach of this duty can be forgiven and/or authorized in advance by the shareholders provided that there is full disclosure by the directors. This can be done by way of permission granted in the SPAC Charter or alternatively by shareholder approval at general meetings. Each of SPAC's officers and directors presently has, and any of them in the future may have additional, fiduciary, contractual or other obligations or duties to one or more other entities pursuant to which such officer or director is or will be required to present a business combination opportunity to such entities. Accordingly, if any of its officers or directors becomes aware of a business combination opportunity which is suitable for an entity to which he or she has then current fiduciary or contractual obligations, he or she will honor his or her fiduciary or contractual obligations to present such business combination opportunity to such other entity, subject to their fiduciary duties under Cayman Islands law. The SPAC Charter provides that, to the fullest extent permitted by law: (i) none of the Sponsor or any individual serving as a director or an officer shall have any duty, except and to the extent expressly assumed by contract, to refrain from engaging directly or indirectly in the same or similar business activities or lines of business as SPAC, (ii) SPAC renounces any interest or expectancy in, or in being offered an opportunity to participate in, any potential transaction or matter which (a) may be a corporate opportunity for the Sponsor or any director or officer, on the one hand, and SPAC, on the other or (b) the presentation of which would breach an existing legal obligation of the Sponsor or any director or officer to any other entity; and (iii) except to the extent expressly assumed by contract, none of the Sponsor or any director or officer will have any duty to communicate or offer any such corporate opportunity to SPAC and shall not be liable to SPAC or its shareholders for breach of any fiduciary duty as a shareholder, director and/or officer solely by reason of the fact that such party pursues or acquires such corporate opportunity for itself, himself or herself, directs such corporate opportunity to another person, or does not communicate information regarding such corporate opportunity to SPAC. SPAC does not believe, however, that the fiduciary duties or contractual obligations of its officers or directors will materially affect its ability to complete a business combination, because the entities to which its officers and directors owe fiduciary duties or contractual obligations (as described below) are not themselves in the business of engaging in business combinations.

Below is a table summarizing the entities to which SPAC's officers and directors currently have fiduciary duties or contractual obligations:

Individual[(1)]	Entity	Entity's Business	Affiliation
Taryn Naidu	Arrington Capital Investment Management, LLC	Asset Management, Digital Assets	Partner and Chief Operating Officer, Chief Financial Officer, Chief Compliance Officer
Kyle Horton	Arrington Capital Investment Management, LLC	Asset Management, Digital Assets	Vice President, Finance and Operations
J. Michael Arrington	Arrington Capital Investment Management, LLC; Arrington Capital Management, LLC	Asset Management, Digital Assets	Founder and Managing Member
Richard Danis	N/A	N/A	N/A
Lindy Key	WNC Consulting Group, LLC	Accounting Services	Owner; Accounting and Finance Consulting Services
Ronald Palmeri	N/A	N/A	N/A

(1) Each individual listed has a fiduciary duty with respect to each of the listed entities opposite from his/her name.

Potential investors should also be aware of the following other potential conflicts of interest:

The Sponsor purchased from the Original Sponsor for an aggregate of $6,600,000, 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants. Certain of SPAC's officers and directors have an indirect economic interest in such shares and warrants through their membership interest in the Sponsor. Assuming a trading price of $10.50 per Founder Share and $0.801 per SPAC Private Warrant (based upon the respective closing prices of the SPAC Class A Shares and the SPAC Public Warrants on Nasdaq on August 20, 2026, the most recent practicable date prior to the date of this proxy statement/prospectus), the 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants, in each case if unrestricted and freely tradable, would have an implied aggregate market value of $87.1 million. However, given the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that will be received in exchange for such Founder Shares or upon exercise of the Pubco Warrants will be subject to lockup restrictions, SPAC believes such shares have less value. Even if the trading price of the Public Shares were as low as approximately $1.1965 per share, the aggregate market value of the Founder Shares alone (without taking into account the value of the SPAC Private Warrants) would be approximately equal to the initial investment in SPAC by the Sponsor.

- In addition, the Sponsor agreed to, immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit a number of shares equal to (x) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor, (y) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares multiplied by the Adjustment Factor and (z) 200,000 Private Placement Warrants multiplied by the Adjustment Factor. After the Sponsor's remaining SPAC Class B Shares are automatically converted to SPAC Class A Shares immediately prior to the SPAC Merger Effective Time, the Sponsor's remaining SPAC Class A Shares will automatically convert into Pubco Class A Common Stock and its remaining SPAC Private Warrants into Pubco Warrants at the SPAC Merger Effective Time. Accordingly, following the Closing, Sponsor will hold no more than (x) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, on an as converted basis, equal to the sum of (A) 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares and (B) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares less the Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares, and (y) the number of Pubco Warrants, on an as converted basis, equal to 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants less the Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants. As a result, if the Transactions are completed and the Sponsor forfeits the minimum number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, even if the trading price of the Pubco Class A Common Stock were as low as approximately $1.1965 per share, the aggregate market value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock received in exchange for the Founder Shares and not forfeited, alone (without taking into account the value of the Private Placement Units), would be approximately equal to the initial investment in SPAC by the Sponsor. If the trading price is greater than approximately $1.1965, the Sponsor is likely to be able to make a substantial profit on its investment in SPAC at a time when the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Public Warrants have lost significant value. On the other hand, if the Transactions are not approved and SPAC is unable to complete another business combination within the Combination Period, the 7,880,000 Founder Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants purchased by the Sponsor for an aggregate amount of $6,600,000 will be worthless, and Sponsor will lose its entire investment in SPAC. Accordingly, the economic interests of the Sponsor diverge from the economic interests of holders of the Public Shares.
- As of the date hereof, the Sponsor is the record holder of 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants. J. Michael Arrington, a member of the SPAC Board, is the sole managing member of Arrington Capital Management, LLC, which is the general partner of the Sponsor. As of the date hereof, J. Michael Arrington is deemed to hold voting and dispositive control over the securities held directly by the Sponsor. J. Michael Arrington disclaims any beneficial ownership of the reported shares other than to the extent of any pecuniary interest he may have therein, directly or indirectly. Each of Mr. Arrington, Taryn Naidu, Chief Executive Officer of SPAC and member of the SPAC Board, Kyle Horton, Chief Financial Officer of SPAC, and Ronald Palmeri, a member of the SPAC Board, owns limited partner interests in the Sponsor and through them has an indirect interest in the Founder Shares, the SPAC Class A Shares and the SPAC Private Warrants and compensation the Sponsor receives in connection with the Transactions. In addition, the Sponsor is expected to transfer 10,000 SPAC Class B Shares to each of Richard Danis, Lindy Key, and Ronald Palmeri, each members of the SPAC Board, prior to the closing of the Business Combination.
- In addition to the compensation to be received by the Sponsor and its affiliates referred to above, RippleWorks made the RippleWorks Investment that is subject to the Sponsor's obligation to invest all of the RippleWorks Token Investment in shares of Pubco pursuant to the Series C Subscription Agreement. RippleWorks may withdraw the RippleWorks Investment if the Business Combination is not consummated. The Sponsor will receive a customary annual management fee in connection with its management of the RippleWorks Investment. RippleWorks is a limited partner in the Sponsor and, prior to the RippleWorks Investment held, and after the execution of the Business Combination Agreement holds, a majority of the limited partner interests in the Sponsor. Prior to the RippleWorks Investment, RippleWorks was entitled to only customary limited partner information and approval rights in the Sponsor. In connection with the RippleWorks Investment, the Sponsor and RippleWorks entered into a letter agreement dated October 17, 2025 pursuant to which Sponsor agreed to consult with RippleWorks on any decisions directly related to the disposition or voting of Pubco Stock purchased under the Series C Subscription Agreement and to vote such shares as directed by RippleWorks. Chris Larsen, co-founder and Executive Chairman of Ripple, is also a co-founder and member of the board of directors of RippleWorks.

- The Sponsor and SPAC's directors and officers shall not redeem any of the SPAC Common Shares held by them pursuant to the SPAC Charter.
- The Sponsor and SPAC's officers and directors have agreed to waive their rights to liquidating distributions from the Trust Account with respect to the SPAC Common Shares (other than Public Shares) held by them if SPAC fails to consummate an initial business combination within the Combination Period.
- The Sponsor and SPAC's officers and certain directors may lose their entire investment in SPAC if a business combination is not consummated within the Combination Period.
- The Sponsor has agreed that it will be liable to SPAC if and to the extent any claims by a third party for services rendered or products sold to SPAC, or a prospective target business with which SPAC has entered into a written letter of intent, confidentiality or other similar agreement or business combination agreement (except for SPAC's independent registered public accounting firm), reduce the amount of funds in the Trust Account to below (i) 10.05 per Public Share or (ii) such lesser amount per Public Share held in the Trust Account as of the date of the liquidation of the Trust Account due to reductions in the value of the trust assets, in each case, net of the amount of interest earned on the property in the Trust Account which may be withdrawn to pay taxes, provided that such liability will not apply to any claims by a third party who executed a waiver of any and all rights to seek access to the Trust Account nor will it apply to any claims under SPAC's indemnity of the underwriters of the SPAC IPO against certain liabilities, including liabilities under the Securities Act.
- SPAC's existing officers and directors will be eligible for continued indemnification and continued coverage under a tail directors' and officers' liability insurance policy for up to a six-year period from and after the Closing for events occurring prior to the Closing, which tail policy is to be paid for by Pubco at the Closing pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement. If the Transactions do not close, SPAC's officers and directors may not receive this tail insurance coverage.
- Pursuant to the A&R Registration Rights Agreement, the Sponsor will have customary registration rights, including demand and piggy-back rights, subject to cooperation and cut-back provisions with respect to the Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants held by it following the consummation of the Business Combination.
- The SPAC Charter provides that, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law: (i) none of the Sponsor or any individual serving as a director or an officer shall have any duty, except and to the extent expressly assumed by contract, to refrain from engaging directly or indirectly in the same or similar business activities or lines of business as SPAC; (ii) SPAC renounces any interest or expectancy in, or in being offered an opportunity to participate in, any potential transaction or matter which (a) may be a corporate opportunity for the Sponsor or any director or officer, on the one hand, and SPAC, on the other or (b) the presentation of which would breach an existing legal obligation of the Sponsor or any director or officer to any other entity; and (iii) except to the extent expressly assumed by contract, none of the Sponsor or any director or officer will have any duty to communicate or offer any such corporate opportunity to SPAC and shall not be liable to SPAC or its shareholders for breach of any fiduciary duty as a shareholder, director and/or officer solely by reason of the fact that such party pursues or acquires such corporate opportunity for itself, himself or herself, directs such corporate opportunity to another person, or does not communicate information regarding such corporate opportunity to SPAC. In the course of their other business activities, SPAC's officers and directors may have, or may become aware of, other investment and business opportunities which may be appropriate for presentation to SPAC as well as the other entities with which they are affiliated. SPAC's management has pre-existing fiduciary duties and contractual obligations and if there is a conflict of interest in determining to which entity a particular business combination opportunity should be presented, any pre-existing fiduciary obligation will be presented the business combination opportunity before SPAC is presented with it. SPAC does not believe that the pre-existing fiduciary duties or contractual obligations of its officers and directors materially impacted its search for an acquisition target.

The Sponsor agreed that the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Warrants received by it in connection with the SPAC Merger, and any shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon the exercise of Pubco Warrants, will be locked-up and subject to transfer restrictions, until the earlier of (i) the Anniversary Release and (ii) the date on which Pubco consummates a liquidation, merger, capital stock exchange, reorganization or other similar transaction that results in all Pubco stockholders having the right to exchange their shares of Pubco common stock for cash, securities or other property. The Lock-Up Agreements include customary exceptions to the transfer restrictions, including transfers to affiliates, family members, charitable organizations, and in connection with certain tax or estate planning transactions, provided that the transferee agrees to be bound by the same restrictions for the remainder of the lock-up period.

- On October 19, 2025, concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, the Sponsor entered into the Series C Subscription Agreement (as amended on August 12, 2026), as detailed in the section entitled "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—SPAC's Relationships and Related Party Transactions." As a result, if the Transactions are completed, the Sponsor will receive Pubco Class A Common Stock in exchange for their investments, which may increase in value following the completion of the Transactions. On the other hand, if the Transactions are not approved or, notwithstanding approval, are not completed, the Series C Subscription Agreement will terminate in accordance with its terms, the cash or contributed XRP will be returned in the manner prescribed by the applicable Series C Subscription Agreement, and the Sponsor will not receive Pubco Class A Common Stock or the potential upside benefits of ownership thereof.

Prior to or in connection with the completion of its initial business combination, there may be other payments by SPAC to its officers, independent directors, advisors, or their respective affiliates, of a finder's fee, advisory fee, consulting fee or success fee for any services they render in order to effectuate the completion of its initial business, which, if made prior to the completion of its initial business combination, will be paid from funds held outside the Trust Account, including permitted withdrawals from the Trust Account.

SPAC cannot assure you that any of the above-mentioned conflicts will be resolved in its favor.

Limitation on Liability and Indemnification of Officers and Directors

Cayman Islands law does not limit the extent to which a company's memorandum and articles of association may provide for indemnification of officers and directors, except to the extent any such provision may be held by the Cayman Islands courts to be contrary to public policy, such as to provide indemnification against willful default, willful neglect, actual fraud or the consequences of committing a crime. The SPAC Charter provides that SPAC's officers and directors will be indemnified by SPAC to the fullest extent permitted by law, as it now exists or may in the future be amended, including for any liability incurred in their capacities as such, except through their own actual fraud, willful default or willful neglect. SPAC has purchased a policy of directors' and officers' liability insurance that insures its officers and directors against the cost of defense, settlement or payment of a judgment in some circumstances and insures it against its obligations to indemnify its officers and directors, up to a limit of $5 million.

SPAC's officers and directors have agreed, and any persons who may become officers or directors prior to the initial business combination will agree, to waive any right, title, interest or claim of any kind in or to any monies in the Trust Account, and to waive any right, title, interest or claim of any kind they may have in the future as a result of, or arising out of, any services provided to SPAC and will not seek recourse against the Trust Account for any reason whatsoever (except to the extent they are entitled to funds from the Trust Account due to their ownership of Public Shares). Accordingly, any indemnification provided will only be able to be satisfied by SPAC if (i) SPAC has sufficient funds outside of the Trust Account or (ii) SPAC consummates an initial business combination.

SPAC's indemnification obligations may discourage shareholders from bringing a lawsuit against its officers or directors for breach of their fiduciary duty. These provisions also may have the effect of reducing the likelihood of derivative litigation against its officers and directors, even though such an action, if successful, might otherwise benefit SPAC and its shareholders. Furthermore, a shareholder's investment may be adversely affected to the extent SPAC pays the costs of settlement and damage awards against its officers and directors pursuant to these indemnification provisions.

SPAC believes that these provisions, the insurance and the indemnity agreements are necessary to attract and retain talented and experienced officers and directors.

SPAC'S MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

References in this section to "management" refer to SPAC's officers and directors. The following discussion and analysis provides information which SPAC's management believes is relevant to an assessment and understanding of its results of operations and financial condition. This discussion and analysis should be read together with the sections of the proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Information About SPAC," and SPAC's audited and unaudited financial statements and related notes thereto that are included elsewhere in the proxy statement/prospectus.

In addition to historical financial information, this discussion and analysis contains forward-looking statements based upon current expectations that involve risks, uncertainties and assumptions. See the section entitled "Cautionary Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements." Actual results and timing of selected events may differ materially from those anticipated in these forward-looking statements as a result of various factors, including those set forth under "Risk Factors" or elsewhere in the proxy statement/prospectus. Unless otherwise indicated or the context otherwise requires, references in this section of the proxy statement/prospectus to the "SPAC," "we," "us" "our," and other similar terms refer to Armada Acquisition Corp. II, a Cayman Islands exempted company.

Overview

SPAC is a blank check company incorporated on October 3, 2024 as a Cayman Islands exempted company for the purpose of effecting a merger, share exchange, asset acquisition, share purchase, recapitalization, reorganization or similar business combination with one or more businesses that we have not yet selected. SPAC may pursue a Business Combination in any industry or sector. For the period from October 3, 2024 (date of inception) through August 28, 2025, SPAC's sponsor was Armada Sponsor II LLC. On August 12, 2025, SPAC entered into the Purchase Agreement, pursuant to which the Original Sponsor agreed to sell to Sponsor, and Sponsor agreed to purchase from Original Sponsor, an aggregate of 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares, par value $0.0001 per share, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares, par value $0.0001 per share, and 200,000 private placement warrants of SPAC for an aggregate purchase price of $6,600,000. Effective August 28, 2025, the purchase was completed and the Original Sponsor ceased to control SPAC. Following the completion, Sponsor owns all of SPAC's equity interests held by the Original Sponsor, including 100% of SPAC's Class B ordinary shares, has the power to appoint all members of the SPAC Board, and may therefore be deemed to control SPAC.

The registration statement for the SPAC IPO was declared effective on May 20, 2025. On May 22, 2025, SPAC consummated the SPAC IPO of 23,000,000 SPAC Units, including the issuance of 3,000,000 SPAC Units as a result of the underwriters' exercise of their over-allotment option, at $10.00 per SPAC Unit, generating gross proceeds of $230,000,000.

Simultaneously with the closing of the SPAC IPO, SPAC consummated the private placement (the "Private Placement") of an aggregate of 710,000 Private Placement Units, at a price of $10.00 per unit, in a private placement to Original Sponsor, CCM and Northland, generating gross proceeds to the SPAC of $7,100,000.

Transaction costs amounted to $14,413,386, consisting of $4,600,000 of cash underwriting fee, $9,200,000 of deferred underwriting fee, and $613,386 of other offering costs.

Upon the closing of the SPAC IPO and the Private Placement, $231,150,000 of the net proceeds of the SPAC IPO and the sale of the Private Placement Units were placed in the Trust Account, located in the United States, with Continental Stock Transfer & Trust Company acting as trustee, and invested in United States "government securities" within the meaning of Section 2(a)(16) of the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended, or the Investment Company Act, having a maturity of 185 days or less or in money market funds meeting certain conditions under Rule 2a-7 promulgated under the Investment Company Act which invest only in direct U.S. government treasury obligations, as determined by SPAC, until the earlier of: (i) the completion of a Business Combination and (ii) the distribution of the Trust Account.

If SPAC is unable to complete a Business Combination within the Combination Period, SPAC will (i) cease all operations except for the purpose of winding up, (ii) as promptly as reasonably possible but not more than 10 business days thereafter, redeem the Public Shares, subject to lawfully available funds, at a per-share price, payable in cash, equal to the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account, including interest earned on the funds held in the Trust Account (which interest shall be net of taxes payable and up to $100,000 of interest to pay dissolution expenses), divided by the number of then issued and outstanding Public Shares, which redemption will completely extinguish public shareholders' rights as shareholders (including the right to receive further liquidating distributions, if any), subject to applicable law; and (iii) as promptly as reasonably possible following such redemption, subject to the approval of SPAC's remaining shareholders and the SPAC Board, liquidate and dissolve, subject in each case to our obligations under Cayman Islands law to provide for claims of creditors and the requirements of other applicable law.

Commencing on June 24, 2025, the holders of the SPAC Units may elect to trade ordinary shares and the warrants comprising the SPAC Units separately.

Proposed Transactions

On October 19, 2025, SPAC entered into the Business Combination Agreement with (a) Pubco, (b) SPAC Merger Sub, (c) the Company, (d) Company Merger Sub, and (e) Ripple.

The Business Combination Agreement provides that, among other things, following the SPAC Domestication and upon the Closing and upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein, among other things, (i) SPAC Delaware will merge with and into SPAC Merger Sub, with SPAC Delaware continuing as the surviving company of the SPAC Merger, and (ii) at least two hours after the SPAC Merger, Company Merger Sub will merge with and into the Company, with the Company continuing as the surviving company of the Company Merger. As a result of the Mergers and the other transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco will become a publicly traded company, all upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Business Combination Agreement and in accordance with applicable law.

For more information about the Business Combination Agreement and the proposed Transactions, see the sections entitled "The Business Combination Proposal" and "The Transactions."

Results of Operations

SPAC has neither engaged in any operations nor generated any revenues to date. SPAC's activities from October 3, 2024 (inception) through June 30, 2026, were organizational activities, those necessary to prepare for the initial public offering, described below, and identifying a target company for an initial business combination. SPAC does not expect to generate any operating revenues until after the completion of its initial business combination. SPAC generates non-operating income in the form of dividends earned on investments held in the Trust Account. SPAC incurs expenses as a result of being a public company (for legal, financial reporting, accounting and auditing compliance), as well as for due diligence expenses.

For the three months ended June 30, 2026, SPAC had a net income of $1,625,327, which consisted of interest earned on cash and marketable securities held in Trust Account of $2,129,189, offset by general and administrative costs of $503,862 which mainly consisted of accounting and legal fees for the services performed in relation to review of business combinations agreements.

For the nine months ended June 30, 2026, SPAC had a net income of $2,152,880, which consisted of $6,536,139 in interest earned on cash and marketable securities held in Trust Account, offset by general and administrative costs of $4,383,259 which mainly consisted of accounting and legal fees for the services performed in relation to review of business combinations agreements.

For the three months ended June 30, 2025, SPAC had a net income of $887,146, which consisted of interest earned on cash and marketable securities held in Trust Account of $982,945, offset by general and administrative costs of $95,799.

For the period from October 3, 2024 (inception) through June 30, 2025, SPAC had a net income of $840,656, which consisted of interest earned on marketable securities held in the Trust Account of $982,945, offset by general and administrative costs of $142,289.

For the period from October 3, 2024 (inception) through September 30, 2025, SPAC had a net income of $1,771,983, which consisted of interest earned on marketable securities held in the Trust Account of $3,478,166, offset by general and administrative costs of $1,706,183.

Liquidity, Going Concern and Capital Resources

On May 22, 2025, SPAC consummated the initial public offering of 23,000,000 SPAC Units, at $10.00 per SPAC Unit, which included the full exercise of the over-allotment option of 3,000,000 SPAC Units, by the underwriters, generating gross proceeds of $230,000,000. Simultaneously with the closing of the IPO, SPAC consummated the sale of 710,000 SPAC Units at a price of $10.00 per private placement warrant to the sponsor, generating gross proceeds of $7,100,000.

Following the SPAC IPO, including the full exercise of the over-allotment option, and the Private Placement, a total of $231,150,000 ($10.05 per Unit) was placed in the Trust Account.

SPAC incurred transaction costs of $14,413,386, which consisted of $4,600,000 of a cash underwriting fee, $9,200,000 of deferred underwriting fees, and $613,386 of other offering costs.

For the nine months ended June 30, 2026, cash used in operating activities was $306,602. Net income of $2,152,880 was affected by interest earned on cash and marketable securities held in the Trust Account of $6,536,139. Changes in operating assets and liabilities provided $4,076,657 of cash for operating activities.

For the period from October 3, 2024 (inception) through June 30, 2025, cash used in operating activities was $282,830. Net income of $840,656 was affected by interest earned on cash and marketable securities held in the Trust Account of $982,945 and an adjustment to accrued offering costs of $5,000, offset by the payment of operating costs through the issuance of Class B ordinary shares of $25,000, payment of formation and operating costs through promissory note – related party of $4,614 and $870, respectively, and payment of operating costs through advances from related parties of $808. Changes in operating assets and liabilities provided $166,833 of cash for operating activities.

For the period from October 3, 2024 (inception) through September 30, 2025, cash used in operating activities was $349,425. Net income of $1,771,983 was affected by interest earned on cash and marketable securities held in the Trust Account of $3,478,166 and an adjustment to accrued offering costs of $5,000, offset by the payment of operating costs through the issuance of Class B ordinary shares of $25,000, payment of formation and operating costs through promissory note – related party of $4,614 and $870, respectively. Changes in operating assets and liabilities provided $1,331,274 of cash for operating activities. As of September 30, 2025, SPAC had cash and marketable securities held in the Trust Account of $234,628,166 (including approximately $3,478,166 of interest income) consisting of U.S. Treasury Bills with a maturity of 185 days or less. SPAC may withdraw interest from the Trust Account to pay taxes, if any. SPAC intends to use substantially all of the funds held in the Trust Account, including any amounts representing interest earned on the Trust Account (less income taxes payable, if any), to complete our Business Combination. To the extent that the share capital or debt is used, in whole or in part, as consideration to complete our Business Combination, the remaining proceeds held in the Trust Account will be used as working capital to finance the operations of the target business or businesses, make other acquisitions and pursue our growth strategies.

As of June 30, 2026, SPAC had marketable securities held in the Trust Account of $241,164,305 (including approximately $6,536,139 of interest income) consisting of money market funds which invests in U.S. Treasury securities with a maturity of 185 days or less. SPAC may withdraw interest from the Trust Account to pay taxes, if any. SPAC intends to use substantially all of the funds held in the Trust Account, including any amounts representing interest earned on the Trust Account (less income taxes payable, if any), to complete our Business Combination. To the extent that our share capital or debt is used, in whole or in part, as consideration to complete our Business Combination, the remaining proceeds held in the Trust Account will be used as working capital to finance the operations of the target business or businesses, make other acquisitions and pursue our growth strategies.

As of June 30, 2026, SPAC had cash of $54,503. SPAC intends to use the funds held outside the Trust Account primarily to identify and evaluate target businesses, perform business due diligence on prospective target businesses, travel to and from the offices, plants or similar locations of prospective target businesses or their representatives or owners, review corporate documents and material agreements of prospective target businesses, structure, negotiate and complete a Business Combination.

In order to fund working capital deficiencies or finance transaction costs in connection with a Business Combination, the Sponsor, or certain of our officers and directors or their affiliates may, but are not obligated to, loan us funds as may be required. If we complete a Business Combination, SPAC would repay such loaned amounts. In the event that a Business Combination does not close, we may use a portion of the working capital held outside the Trust Account to repay such loaned amounts but no proceeds from our Trust Account would be used for such repayment. A portion of such Working Capital Loans may be convertible into private placement units of the post Business Combination entity at the option of the lender. The units would be identical to the private placement units.

SPAC may need to obtain additional financing either to complete the Business Combination or because SPAC becomes obligated to redeem a significant number of Public Shares upon completion of the Business Combination, in which case SPAC may issue additional securities or incur debt in connection with such Business Combination. If SPAC is unable to raise additional capital, SPAC may be required to take additional measures to conserve liquidity, which could include, but not necessarily be limited to, curtailing operations, suspending the pursuit of a potential transaction, and reducing overhead expenses. SPAC cannot provide any assurance that new financing will be available to it on commercially acceptable terms, if at all.

SPAC has until the end of the Combination Period to consummate an initial Business Combination. It is uncertain that SPAC will be able to consummate an initial business combination by November 22, 2026. If an initial Business Combination is not consummated within the Combination Period, there will be mandatory liquidation and subsequent dissolution. SPAC's management has determined that the liquidity condition and mandatory liquidation, should an initial Business Combination not occur, and potential subsequent dissolution raises substantial doubt about SPAC's ability to continue as a going concern. No adjustments have been made to the carrying amounts of assets or liabilities should SPAC be required to liquidate after November 22, 2026. On July 27, 2026, SPAC entered into an unsecured promissory note with Arrington XRP Capital Fund, LP. As of the date these financial statements were issued, aggregate borrowings of $135,000 were outstanding under the note, excluding accrued interest.

Off-Balance Sheet Arrangements

SPAC has no obligations, assets or liabilities, which would be considered off-balance sheet arrangements as of June 30, 2026.

Contractual Obligations

SPAC does not have any long-term debt obligations, capital lease obligations, operating lease obligations, purchase obligations or other long-term liabilities, other than an agreement to pay the Original Sponsor $12,000 per month for office space, administrative and support services, and an agreement to pay the Fairness Opinion

Fee. These monthly fees will cease upon the completion of the initial Business Combination or the liquidation of the Company. The administrative services agreement with the Original Sponsor was terminated on August 28, 2025; all outstanding fees were paid through this date. No agreement for administrative service fees has been entered into with the Sponsor.

SPAC granted the underwriters a 45-day option to purchase up to 3,000,000 additional SPAC Units to cover any over-allotments, at the SPAC IPO price less the underwriting discounts. On May 22, 2025, simultaneously with the closing of the SPAC IPO, the underwriters elected to fully exercise the over-allotment option to purchase the additional 3,000,000 SPAC Units at a price of $10.00 per SPAC Unit.

Additionally, the underwriters are entitled to $0.40 per SPAC Unit sold in the offering, $9,200,000 in the aggregate, and is payable to the underwriters based on the percentage of funds remaining in the Trust Account after redemptions of public shares, for deferred underwriting commissions to be placed in a Trust Account located in the United States and released to the underwriters only upon the completion of an initial Business Combination. On September 9, 2025, SPAC entered into a letter agreement with the underwriters that the underwriters shall, severally and not jointly, on the terms and conditions set forth in the letter agreement, and contingent upon the occurrence of a specified event that relates to a digital asset treasury transaction, reimburse a portion of SPAC's bona fide documented fees and expenses incurred in connection with the SPAC IPO in the amount of $2,300,000, with such amount decreased by $0.10 for every SPAC Common Share for which a SPAC public shareholder exercises its redemption rights in connection with or prior to the specified event. As of June 30, 2026, no reimbursements have been recorded under such agreement.

SPAC entered into an agreement with an advisor, Northland, a cash transaction fee equal to a cash transaction fee equal to 1.0% of the consideration in the event that this advisor introduces the Company to the target with which we complete an initial Business Combination which is payable only upon and subject to the closing of the initial Business Combination. SPAC has also agreed to pay Northland up to $20,000 in reimbursable out-of-pocket expenses. No amounts were incurred under this agreement from the period from October 3, 2024 (inception) through June 30, 2026.

SPAC entered into an agreement with an investor relations advisor, Bishop IR ("Bishop") for the period from May 19, 2025 through May 18, 2026 with a monthly fee of $8,500, payable only upon and subject to the closing of the initial Business Combination. Upon completion of the initial Business Combination, Bishop will be entitled to a success fee of $100,000 payable only upon and subject to the closing of the initial Business Combination. Bishop shall also be reimbursed for all reasonable expenses and disbursements incurred on our behalf provided they do not exceed $300 without our prior consent. As of June 30, 2026, there were no expenses recognized in connection with this agreement. The agreement with Bishop was terminated effective September 3, 2025 by the Sponsor, and upon termination of the agreement, SPAC recognized $37,564 of expenses which are included in deferred professional fees in SPAC's balance sheet as of June 30, 2026.

On October 19, 2025, SPAC retained CCM to provide an opinion to the SPAC Board as to the fairness of the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness Opinion) in connection with the proposed Business Combination Agreement. Pursuant to the terms of its engagement, CCM became entitled to a fee of $450,000 in consideration for the fairness opinion. The Fairness Opinion Fee is due and payable to CCM as follows: (i) up to $100,000 became due to CCM upon informing the SPAC Board that it was prepared to render and deliver the fairness opinion; and (ii) the balance of the Fairness Opinion Fee is due upon the earlier of the closing of the proposed Business Combination or the termination of the merger agreement entered into by SPAC with respect to the proposed Business Combination. SPAC has also agreed to reimburse CCM's reasonable expenses up to an aggregate amount of $125,000 and to indemnify CCM against liabilities arising out of or in connection with the services rendered and to be rendered by CCM under its engagement with SPAC.

Critical Accounting Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities, disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the condensed financial statements, and income and expenses during the periods reported. Making estimates requires management to exercise significant judgement. It is at least reasonably possible that the estimate of the effect of a condition, situation or set of circumstances that existed at the date of the condensed financial statements, which management considered in formulating its estimate, could change in the near term due to one or more future confirming events. Accordingly, actual results could materially differ from those estimates. As of June 30, 2026, we did not have any critical accounting estimates to be disclosed.

Recent Accounting Pronouncements

In November 2023, the FASB issued ASU 2023-07, "Segment Reporting (Topic 280): Improvements to Reportable Segment Disclosures". The amendments in this ASU require disclosures, on an annual and interim basis, of significant segment expenses that are regularly provided to the chief operating decision maker ("CODM"), as well as the aggregate amount of other segment items included in the reported measure of segment profit or loss. The ASU requires that a public entity disclose the title and position of the CODM and an explanation of how the CODM uses the reported measure(s) of segment profit or loss in assessing segment performance and deciding how to allocate resources. Public entities will be required to provide all annual disclosures currently required by Topic 280 in interim periods, and entities with a single reportable segment are required to provide all the disclosures required by the amendments in this ASU and existing segment disclosures in Topic 280. This ASU is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2023, and interim periods within fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2024, with early adoption permitted. We have adopted ASU 2023-07 on October 3, 2024, the date of our incorporation.

In December 2023, the FASB issued ASU 2023-09, "Income Taxes (Topic 740): Improvements to Income Tax Disclosures." The amendments require enhanced annual disclosures related to income taxes, including the rate reconciliation and income taxes paid by jurisdiction. This ASU is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2024, with early adoption permitted. The adoption of this ASU is not expected to have a material impact on our condensed financial statements.

In November 2024, the FASB issued ASU 2024-03, "Income Statement—Reporting Comprehensive Income—Expense Disaggregation Disclosures (Subtopic 220-40)." This ASU requires public entities to provide additional disclosures about the disaggregation of certain expense categories within the income statement. The ASU is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2026, and interim periods within fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2027, with early adoption permitted. The adoption of this ASU is not expected to have a material impact on our condensed financial statements.

Management does not believe that any recently issued, but not yet effective, accounting standards, if currently adopted, would have a material effect on our condensed financial statements.

INFORMATION RELATED TO THE COMPANY

Unless otherwise indicated or the context otherwise requires, references in this section of the proxy statement/prospectus to "Evernorth," the "Company," "we," "us," "our," and other similar terms refer to the Company prior to the Transactions and Pubco and its consolidated subsidiaries, including the Company, after giving effect to the Transactions.

Overview

Evernorth is a purpose-built vehicle for investment into XRP through public equity markets and will provide pure play access to XRP for institutional investors through a scalable, liquid, and regulated vehicle. Evernorth will operate as an active manager of our XRP assets striving to maximize shareholder value through sophisticated asset management techniques, including efficient acquisition of XRP, active portfolio management, diversified yield generation strategies and strategic geographic expansion. Evernorth seeks to capitalize on the momentum of XRP and the XRP Ledger, which were purposely built to be an incredibly effective and efficient method to bring a broad swath of financial infrastructure onto a public blockchain, resulting in faster, cheaper and capital efficient transactions.

Evernorth will leverage its experienced management team to actively manage our XRP assets, raise additional capital, and generate yield on a portion of our XRP assets with the goal of effectively managing operational, reputational and market risks by partnering with top-tier providers, utilizing careful portfolio construction, and implementing risk management controls designed to be strong.

Our Business Strategies

Overview

Our business strategy consists of four key pillars:

- Efficiently acquire XRP, utilizing innovative financial products with optimal capital structure to maximize shareholder value;
- Actively manage XRP assets through sophisticated investment strategies and risk management techniques;
- Earn diversified yield by deploying a portion of our XRP assets for risk-mitigated yield generation in both traditional and decentralized finance ("Defi") opportunities; and
- International expansion, including initial focus geographies of Japan and South Korea.

The overriding goal of our strategies will be to maximize shareholder value with respect to the XRP we hold. We will continuously monitor the value of our XRP holdings and intend to utilize the strategies below in order to optimize results over time.

Evernorth will own a portfolio of actively managed XRP assets. Although we will strive to align performance with the performance of XRP, from time to time we may use risk management strategies including derivative instruments in a manner that is intended to enhance performance and/or mitigate risk. The decision to deploy these types of strategies will vary based on treasury performance, market conditions, capital raising timing, geo-political factors and other applicable XRP performance drivers which may apply from time to time.

Efficiently Acquire XRP

Our core strategy begins with our efforts to acquire, hold, and actively manage a treasury focused on XRP, in addition to other XRP assets. We intend to do so by raising capital using a variety of structures determined by market conditions, and once completed, we will efficiently purchase XRP with the proceeds of any such capital raises through trading protocols to minimize slippage, with a goal of maximizing shareholder value. We believe the combination of our management team's deep experience in both traditional finance and the digital assets industry, including extensive experience with XRP, the XRP Ledger, and RLUSD, uniquely positions us to excel at both of these endeavors.

Our initial treasury capital will be funded by the proceeds of the Private Placement Investments and the Contribution Agreement, as well as any cash remaining in the Trust Account of the SPAC following the consummation of the Business Combination. We will aim to raise additional capital from time to time, when we believe that it will be accretive to shareholders. Generally, those opportunities will arise if and when Pubco's stock price is trading at a premium to the net asset value of its XRP assets. The form of capital raising we employ will vary depending upon market conditions. For example, in times of high XRP volatility, the embedded option in a convertible note becomes more valuable, which could allow the Company to secure more attractive debt terms from investors if it were to issue convertible debt. Additional capital raising strategies, including but not limited to issuing Pubco common stock, debt or preferred stock, may be employed if market conditions allow. Proceeds earned from our yield strategies (described below) will also be utilized to acquire additional XRP.

The Company will calculate the net asset value of its XRP holdings by reference to the closing price of XRP on each trading day as reported by a principal market pricing source. The Company anticipates using pricing data from recognized cryptocurrency data aggregators that calculate volume-weighted average prices across major trading venues. The net asset value calculation will reflect the fair market value of the Company's XRP holdings, plus the value of other assets (including cash, stablecoins, and other digital assets), less any liabilities. The Company will provide periodic disclosure of its XRP holdings and net asset value to enable shareholders to evaluate the relationship between the Company's stock price and the underlying value of its XRP assets.

Actively Manage XRP Assets

The Company does not anticipate engaging in material XRP ecosystem deployment activities before the fourth quarter of 2026, as the Company will prioritize establishing its core treasury operations and compliance infrastructure before expanding into ecosystem participation. However, in the long term, the Company intends to operate as an active manager of its portfolio focused on proprietary XRP-based investment strategies. This may include developing and managing private investment vehicles, implementing sophisticated trading and risk management strategies, and creating or investing in XRP-Ledger-based financial products and services. The Company may establish or support other investment vehicles to pursue specialized strategies; however, Evernorth will not manage assets on behalf of clients. The Company intends to implement these strategies promptly following the closing of the Business Combination, subject to market conditions and counterparty availability. The Company anticipates engaging with institutional digital asset trading firms and market makers. Counterparty selection will be based on creditworthiness, execution capabilities, and competitive pricing. The Company intends to employ the following yield-generating strategies:

- Covered Calls: The Company may sell call options on a portion of its XRP holdings at strike prices above current market levels (e.g., 20-30% out-of-the-money). This strategy generates premium income while capping upside participation above the strike price and will allow the Company to enhance yield and manage risk on XRP holdings via structured derivative overlays implemented on a monthly tenor. If the call expires unexercised, the Company retains the premium and may roll into a new position. Positions will typically be rolled monthly to maintain exposure.
- Cash-Secured Puts: The Company may sell put options secured by cash or stablecoin holdings, generating premium income while committing to purchase XRP at the strike price if exercised. Positions are fully collateralized in USD or stablecoins, allowing disciplined entry and yield generation. This strategy allows the Company to accumulate XRP at favorable prices while earning income as well as enhances average entry price and exploits elevated volatility in XRP options markets.

- Premium Collars: The Company may implement collar strategies combining the purchase of protective put options with the sale of covered calls. This structure limits both downside risk and upside participation within a defined range.
- Structured Products (e.g., TAURUS/SHIELD): The Company may participate in structured yield products offering fixed returns with variable upside or downside participation based on XRP price performance. These products typically offer a guaranteed minimum APY (e.g., 1%) with enhanced returns if XRP reaches specified price thresholds.

To engage in these strategies, the Company anticipates that it will: (i) execute trading agreements with qualified counterparties; (ii) establish credit lines or collateral arrangements as required; (iii) implement risk monitoring and position management procedures; and (iv) ensure appropriate accounting and disclosure treatment.

Moreover, the Company intends to be opportunistic and dynamic with respect to its XRP acquisition and monetization activities. The Company may acquire additional XRP when management believes market conditions are favorable and such acquisitions would be accretive to shareholders over the long term. The Company may monetize XRP holdings to fund operating expenses, pursue strategic opportunities, or manage liquidity requirements. Decisions regarding the timing and magnitude of XRP acquisitions and monetizations will be made by management in its discretion based on market conditions, the Company's liquidity position, and the best interests of shareholders. The Company does not intend to adopt rigid policies that would constrain management's ability to respond to dynamic market conditions or that could be exploited by market participants.

Earn Diversified Yield

We believe that there are scaled opportunities to earn yield from our XRP assets in the traditional finance space, including lending, basis trading, and derivatives. The percentage of our treasury utilized for yield generation will be dynamic and actively managed depending upon market conditions, available yield earning opportunities, and ongoing capital raising efforts.

Defi opportunities will initially be limited, but we believe that over time they will become a more important and larger part of our yield strategy. The XRP Ledger is a scalable blockchain purpose-built to provide a strong foundation for stablecoins and institutional-grade DeFi due to its proven reliability, efficiency, and security. Since 2012, the XRP Ledger has processed over 3.3 billion transactions without failure or security breach while supporting over five million active wallets with a network of over 200 validators.

The XRP Ledger's native capabilities, such as a decentralized exchange and auto-bridging feature, leverage XRP as an essential bridge currency, facilitating efficient trading with RLUSD, USDC and other stablecoins. With low transaction costs and quick global settlements, the XRP Ledger is well-suited to support an abundance of use cases, making it an ideal blockchain for businesses and developers to leverage. We will evaluate performance on our yield strategies by monitoring our XRP generation per deployed token as our KPIs. See "The Company's Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations—Key Performance Indicators" for more information on our KPIs. Yield strategies will not commence until after the closing of the Business Combination.

We intend to maintain a concentrated position in XRP for the foreseeable future, supplemented by holdings in high-quality liquid assets including U.S. dollar-denominated stablecoins.

- Traditional Yield Opportunities: the Company intends to generate yield through traditional financial instruments and strategies, including:
  - lending XRP to qualified institutional counterparties in exchange for interest income; and
  - executing covered call strategies to generate premium income while maintaining XRP exposure, and basis trades to capture pricing differentials between spot and derivative markets.

- Decentralized Yield Opportunities: the Company intends to generate yield through participation in decentralized finance protocols, including:
    - supplying XRP to decentralized lending protocols to earn interest; and
    - contributing liquidity to automated market maker pools to earn trading fees and liquidity provider rewards.

The Company's risk mitigation approach focuses on counterparty selection, position sizing, and strategy selection rather than asset diversification. The Company acknowledges that its concentrated XRP holdings limit the risk mitigation benefits that could be achieved through a more diversified portfolio of treasury assets.

Moreover, to leverage Ripple's RLUSD stablecoin, Pubco intends to utilize RLUSD as a stable-value asset within XRP-based decentralized finance activities, including providing liquidity to RLUSD/XRP AMM pools. This strategy ensures that Pubco is designed not only to accumulate XRP as a reserve asset but also to act as a long-term catalyst for the adoption and institutionalization of the XRP Ledger. Pubco does not anticipate engaging in material XRP ecosystem deployment activities before the fourth quarter of 2026. Pubco will prioritize establishing its core treasury operations and compliance infrastructure before expanding into ecosystem participation. Pubco does not currently plan to invest cash capital directly into XRP ecosystem projects. Rather, Pubco intends to deploy a portion of its existing XRP holdings within decentralized protocols to generate yield and support ecosystem liquidity. Pubco does not anticipate DeFi protocol participation will occur prior to the closing of the Transactions. Pubco may provide liquidity to and participate in projects that expand XRP's utility across payments, capital markets, and tokenized assets. Pubco will evaluate such opportunities on a case-by-case basis and does not currently have commitments to specific projects.

International Expansion

With XRP as one of the most liquid cryptocurrencies globally, we believe there is significant opportunity to leverage Evernorth's infrastructure, brand, and expertise for geographic expansion. Over time, the Evernorth platform will explore expanding into a variety of geographies, but initial focus jurisdictions will include Japan and South Korea. XRP is one of most highly traded cryptocurrencies in these regions, and a combination of local tax regulations and other structural considerations make an XRP digital asset treasury structure attractive to local investors in those regions. South Korea represents one of the largest markets for XRP trading globally, with XRP trading volume on Upbit (a leading Korean cryptocurrency exchange) exceeding Bitcoin trading volume at certain periods. South Korea has a higher per-capita trading volume than the United States and is third in the world in crypto trading volume. Korea also represents 18-22% of global XRP volume, making it the largest XRP market in the world, even though it is only 0.6% of the global population. However, Korean corporations face regulatory restrictions that prohibit direct holdings of cryptocurrency assets, while they are permitted to hold U.S.-listed equity securities. Additionally, Korea has proposed a 20% tax on cryptocurrency sales gains, compared to 0% tax on equity investments. These structural factors create demand among Korean institutional and retail investors for U.S.-listed equity securities that provide exposure to XRP without the regulatory and tax disadvantages of direct cryptocurrency ownership.

Japan is uniquely attractive for Pubco due to deep pools of capital, a clear and pragmatic regulatory framework for digital assets, and persistent yield scarcity across traditional assets. As institutional and corporate investors seek compliant ways to gain exposure to XRP and XRP-based treasury strategies, Pubco is positioned to scale in a market that is both structurally ready and strategically aligned. SBI Holdings, Pubco's strategic investor, sits at the center of Japan's digital-asset ecosystem, combining regulatory trust, mass-market distribution, and long-standing strategic alignment with Ripple and XRP. SBI and Ripple jointly operate SBI Ripple Asia and have publicly positioned XRP as a standard for cross-border payments. Japan has approximately 11.8 million crypto accounts and over 5 trillion yen (approximately $33 billion USD) in crypto holdings, with crypto ownership exceeding FX and corporate bond ownership among active investors. An FSA investor survey showed that 7.3% of Japanese individual investors with investment experience hold cryptoassets. In August 2024, XRP was the most traded cryptocurrency in Japan by spot trading volume, with approximately 837 million units traded that month, significantly exceeding Bitcoin's approximately 131 thousand units. The success of Metaplanet, a Japan-based company that has adopted a Bitcoin treasury strategy, demonstrates investor appetite for equity-based exposure to digital assets in the Japanese market.

Custody Arrangements

Overview

We currently hold all of our XRP through BitGo Bank & Trust, National Association (f/k/a BitGo Trust Company, Inc.) ("BitGo" or "BitGo Trust"), which serves as our primary custodian pursuant to (i) a custody services agreement between Pubco and BitGo Trust (the "Pubco Custody Agreement") and (ii) a custody services agreement between the Company and BitGo Trust (the "Company Custody Agreement," and together with the Pubco Custody Agreement, the "Custody Agreements"). BitGo Trust is an OCC chartered, non depository public trust company that provides custodial services on a fiduciary basis and is a "qualified custodian" for purposes of Rule 206(4)-2 under the U.S. Investment Advisers Act of 1940. BitGo Trust is an institutional grade custodian with a demonstrated record of regulatory compliance, financial soundness, and information security.

The Custody Agreements have been filed as exhibits to the registration statement of which this prospectus forms a part. The foregoing description of our custody arrangements is only a summary and is qualified in its entirety by reference to the Custody Agreements, which set forth the complete terms and conditions governing the parties' respective rights and obligations.

Scope of Services

Each of the Custody Agreements authorizes BitGo Trust to establish and maintain one or more custody accounts on its books for the receipt, safekeeping and maintenance of our XRP. Under the Custody Agreements, we may deposit XRP to, and withdraw XRP from, our custody account(s) pursuant to instructions submitted through BitGo Trust's user interface. The Custody Agreements provide that BitGo Trust may refuse to process or may cancel a pending custody transaction if required by applicable law, to enforce transaction thresholds and other limits or conditions, or if it reasonably believes the custody transaction may violate or facilitate the violation of applicable law. BitGo Trust generally cannot reverse a custody transaction once it has been broadcast to the applicable digital asset network and, to the extent permitted by applicable law, is required to promptly notify us of the reasons for any withholding, delay or refusal.

As of the date of this prospectus, 100% of our XRP is maintained in offline, or "cold," storage. BitGo Trust's custody system employs multi signature key management and hardware security modules, with client assets secured in bank grade vaults designed to provide physical and digital protection against unauthorized access. The custodian also offers limited operational wallets, which may be used to facilitate transfers and related activities, subject to defined internal approval processes, access controls, and withdrawal restrictions. BitGo Trust operates additional institutional grade services, including settlement and liquidity solutions, which we may consider using in the future if operational needs warrant.

Insurance

BitGo Trust maintains insurance coverage designed to mitigate certain losses directly related to its custody of private keys. According to BitGo, such insurance coverage is maintained at the custodian level and is shared among BitGo Trust's clients, rather than being maintained on a client-by-client or account-specific basis. As a result, any recovery under such insurance policies would be subject to the terms, limits, deductibles and allocation mechanics of the applicable policies and may be affected by claims made by other clients of BitGo Trust.

According to BitGo, its cold storage wallets are supported by an aggregate insurance policy with coverage limits of approximately US$250 million, which is shared among all BitGo clients whose private keys are held entirely by BitGo, and is not dedicated exclusively to the Company's assets. Based on an assumed Closing XRP Price of $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026), such aggregate coverage limits would represent approximately 34.9% of the value of our expected XRP holdings assuming no redemptions and approximately 51.9% of the value of our expected XRP holdings assuming full redemptions, in each case after giving effect to the Transactions. There can be no assurance that such insurance coverage would be sufficient to cover the full amount of our losses in the event of a theft, loss, or compromise of private keys, particularly if multiple claims are made under the policy at the same time or if losses exceed applicable coverage limits.

Security and Due Diligence

We intend to conduct and maintain a due diligence process to evaluate BitGo Trust's operational resilience, information security, financial condition, and regulatory compliance. This process will include review of materials that BitGo makes available to clients upon request, including its Service Organization Controls (SOC 1 and SOC 2 Type II) reports, summaries of penetration testing, cybersecurity and incident response policies, disaster recovery and business continuity programs, and governance framework. On an annual basis, BitGo engages an independent third-party vendor to conduct external security assessments, including penetration testing, and addresses findings based on a risk-based approach. On an ongoing basis, we receive periodic attestations, incident notifications, and reconciliation reports and retain audit and inspection rights under the Custody Agreements. BitGo Trust is subject to examination and supervision by the South Dakota Division of Banking.

To mitigate counterparty, operational, and cybersecurity risks, we maintain multi-person approval workflows, strict role-based access controls, out-of-band confirmations, video authorizations and independent on chain reconciliations. We also require our custodian to employ segregated wallets and robust key management controls, including multi-signature authorization, geographically distributed key shards, and periodic key rotation. Our internal controls are designed to complement those of BitGo Trust, and in the event of an incident, we would follow an incident response plan that would involve the custodian and law enforcement. We have committed to not permitting BitGo Trust or its affiliates to pledge, lend, or otherwise use our XRP to the extent not expressly directed to do so as part of our yield generation strategies.

Our principal counterparty risk with respect to XRP is the obligation of BitGo Trust to safekeep and return our assets in accordance with the terms of the Custody Agreements. According to BitGo, under South Dakota law, a public trust company such as BitGo Trust provides custodial services on a fiduciary basis. The Custody Agreements specify that our XRP are held for our benefit in segregated accounts and are not the property of the custodian. Based on existing law and our contractual arrangements, we believe that the XRP held by BitGo Trust on our behalf would not be available to satisfy the custodian's creditors in the event of its receivership or bankruptcy. Nevertheless, the legal framework governing digital asset custody is evolving, and judicial or regulatory developments could alter this analysis. See "Risk Factors—Risks Related to the Business and Strategy of Pubco—If the Company or its third-party service providers experience a security breach or cyberattack and unauthorized parties obtain access to the Company's XRP, or if the Company's private XRP keys are lost or destroyed, or other similar circumstances or events occur, including the ability to reverse engineer private keys, the Company may lose some or all of its XRP and the Company's financial condition and results of operations could be materially adversely affected." We plan, in the future, to engage one or more additional custodians to diversify counterparty and operational exposures or to support evolving business needs, provided that any such additional custodians will be subject to comparable due diligence, contractual, and regulatory standards.

Term and Termination

Each of the Custody Agreements commences on its effective date and continues until terminated in accordance with its terms. Under each of the Custody Agreements, we may terminate the applicable Custody Agreement at any time with 60 days' prior written notice. BitGo Trust may terminate the applicable Custody

Agreement upon 60 days' prior written notice. Either party may terminate the applicable Custody Agreement for the other party's uncured material breach following written notice and a 30-day cure period. Following termination, we are generally required to withdraw the remaining assets from the applicable custody account within a specified wind-down period subject to applicable law, and to pay fees accrued through the date of withdrawal. The Custody Agreements generally provide for automatic termination upon the later of (i) cancellation of the applicable custody account and (ii) the withdrawal of all assets from such account.

BitGo Trust may suspend or restrict access to the custodial services, or deactivate, terminate or cancel a custody account, in specified circumstances, including to comply with applicable law or legal process or where it reasonably determines that doing so is necessary based on compliance, risk management or security considerations (including suspected prohibited activity or materially inaccurate or misleading information). Subject to applicable law and the terms of the Custody Agreements, BitGo Trust is generally required to provide notice of such actions, and, except in limited circumstances we generally retain the right to withdraw all assets from the custody account, and BitGo Trust will process withdrawal instructions during any notice period or wind-down period in accordance with the applicable Custody Agreement.

In addition, each of the Custody Agreements includes provisions intended to limit BitGo Trust's ability to suspend, terminate or materially restrict access during the period beginning upon our public announcement of entry into a business combination and ending 90 days following the closing of such transaction, except in specified circumstances (including compliance with law or legal process, reasonably suspected illicit activity or security incidents, materially inaccurate or misleading information, or failure to remediate compliance deficiencies), and provides that BitGo Trust will implement the least restrictive measures reasonably necessary to address the identified risk and will promptly reinstate services once the basis for restriction is resolved.

Indemnification

Under each of the Custody Agreements, we and Pubco have agreed to defend, indemnify and hold harmless BitGo Trust and certain related parties from losses resulting from third-party claims arising out of or related to our use of the services, our material breach of the applicable Custody Agreement, or our violation of applicable law in connection with its use of the services, subject to the indemnification process and related limitations set forth in the applicable Custody Agreement.

Dispute Resolution and Governing Law

Each of the Custody Agreements provides that disputes arising out of or relating to the applicable Custody Agreement or the services are subject to binding arbitration under the Commercial Dispute Resolution Procedures of the American Arbitration Association, with the arbitration seated in Sioux Falls, South Dakota, before a single arbitrator meeting specified qualifications, and that proceedings are confidential subject to customary exceptions. Each of the Custody Agreements also permits either party to seek interim or provisional relief from a court of competent jurisdiction in appropriate circumstances. Each of the Custody Agreements is governed by South Dakota law (without regard to conflict of laws principles), except to the extent governed by federal law of the United States.

Overview of XRP and the XRP Ledger

Overview

XRP is a digital asset that is created and transmitted through the operations of the "XRP Ledger," a decentralized ledger upon which XRP transactions are processed and settled.

XRP can be used to pay for goods and services or it can be exchanged for fiat currencies, such as the U.S. dollar. The XRP Ledger is based on a shared public ledger similar to the Bitcoin network and other distributed ledgers. However, the XRP Ledger differentiates itself from other digital asset networks in that its stated primary function is transactional utility, not as a store of value. The XRP Ledger is designed to be a global real-time payment and settlement system. As a result, the XRP Ledger and XRP aim to improve the speed at which parties on the network may transfer value while also reducing the fees and delays associated with the traditional methods of interbank payments.

Unlike a centralized system, no single entity controls the XRP Ledger. Instead, a network of independent nodes validates transactions pursuant to a consensus-based algorithm. It is this mechanism, as opposed to the proof-of-work mechanism utilized by the Bitcoin blockchain, that allows the XRP Ledger to be fast, energy-efficient and scalable, and therefore suitable for its most prominent use case, the facilitation of cross-border financial transactions. Unlike proof-of-work systems, which require massive computational power to secure the network, the consensus-based algorithm utilized by the XRP Ledger is extremely lightweight in terms of energy usage, as it relies on trusted validators rather than mining. The XRP Ledger can handle up to 1,500 transactions per second, far more than the Bitcoin or Ethereum blockchain. This makes the XRP Ledger suitable for high-volume use cases, such as cross-border payments. Lastly, because validators do not need to spend resources on mining, transaction fees are extremely low (typically a fraction of a cent per transaction).

Although launched in 2012, the concept for XRP and the XRP Ledger traces back to 2004 when a web developer started work on a decentralized payment system that would enable users to create and trade their own cryptocurrencies in a peer-to-peer manner. More of an alternative payment system than a cryptocurrency itself, it laid the conceptual foundation of what would become XRP and the XRP Ledger. The goal was to create a decentralized ledger that used a network of validators that would agree on transactions in a fast and secure manner, without relying upon mining. This led to the development of a consensus-based algorithm. It is this mechanism, as opposed to the proof-of-work mechanism utilized by the Bitcoin blockchain or the "proof-of-stake" mechanism utilized by the Ethereum network, that allows the XRP Ledger to be fast, energy-efficient and scalable, and therefore suitable for its most prominent use case, the facilitation of cross-border financial transactions. Proponents of the consensus-based algorithm often cite several key advantages it offers. The first is near-instantaneous settlement of transactions, which normally occurs within three to five seconds. The second is energy efficiency. Unlike proof-of-work systems, which require massive computational power to secure the network, the consensus-based algorithm is relatively light in terms of energy usage, as it relies on trusted validators rather than mining. A third advantage is scalability. The XRP Ledger can handle up to 1,500 transactions per second, far more than the Bitcoin or Ethereum blockchain. This makes the XRP Ledger an attractive option for high-volume use cases, such as cross-border payments. Lastly, because validators do not need to spend resources on mining, transaction fees are extremely low (typically a fraction of a cent per transaction).

Transactions are validated on the XRP Ledger by a network of independent validator nodes. These nodes do not mine new blocks but participate in a consensus process to ensure that transactions are valid and correctly ordered on the XRP Ledger. Any node can be a validator, but for practical purposes, the XRP Ledger depends on a list of trusted validators known as the Unique Node List or "UNL." Validators are entities (which can be individuals, institutions, or other organizations) that run nodes to participate in the consensus process. These validators ensure the integrity and accuracy of the ledger. Each node in the network maintains a Unique Node List – a list of other validators that the node trusts to reliably validate transactions. The XRP Ledger's decentralized architecture means that different nodes may maintain different UNLs, but there needs to be some overlap in the UNLs for the consensus mechanism to work effectively. Similar to the Bitcoin network, anyone can join and start using the XRP Ledger; however, unlike the Bitcoin network, which operates on a fully permissionless blockchain, the XRP Ledger is maintained by a network of trusted nodes that accept or reject transactions on the XRP Ledger.

A transaction on the XRP Ledger begins when a user submits a transaction to the XRP Ledger network. The submitted transaction is broadcast to all validator nodes. Validators do not immediately confirm transactions as final; instead, they go through a process of reaching consensus on which transactions should be included in the next ledger version. Each validator collects incoming transactions into a proposed ledger, called a candidate ledger, and then exchanges their proposed candidate ledgers (also known as proposals) with other validators. The actual consensus process happens over several rounds. In each round, validators attempt to come to an agreement on which transactions should be included in the next ledger version. In each round, validators examine the transactions in the proposed ledger from the previous round and compare it to the proposals from other validators in their UNL. If the validator sees that a supermajority (typically 80% of validators) of trusted validators have proposed the same set of transactions, the validator updates its proposal to align with the majority. After a few rounds of exchanging proposals, when a supermajority (typically 80%) of validators have agreed on the same set of transactions, that version of the ledger is considered valid. All participating validators then update their copy of the ledger with the new, agreed-upon transactions. The final ledger version is broadcast to all nodes, and it becomes the new "official" state of the ledger.

Prior to engaging in XRP transactions directly on the XRP Ledger, a user generally must first install on its computer or mobile device an XRP Ledger software program that will allow the user to generate a private and public key pair associated with a XRP address. The XRP Ledger software program and the XRP address also enable the user to connect to the XRP Ledger and transfer XRP to, and receive XRP from, other users.

Each XRP Ledger address, or wallet, is associated with a unique "public key" and "private key" pair. To receive XRP, the XRP recipient must provide its public key to the party initiating the transfer. This activity is analogous to a recipient for a transaction in U.S. dollars providing a routing address in wire instructions to the payor so that cash may be wired to the recipient's account. The payor approves the transfer to the address provided by the recipient by "signing" a transaction that consists of the recipient's public key with the private key of the address from where the payor is transferring the XRP. The recipient, however, does not make public or provide to the sender its related private key.

XRP can be held in different types of wallets, including hardware wallets, software wallets and custodial wallets provided by digital asset trading platforms. The wallet essentially holds the private keys that control the account on the XRP Ledger. The private key is crucial for signing transactions on the ledger. Whoever possesses the private key associated with an XRP Ledger account effectively controls the XRP held by that account. While XRP is the native asset, the XRP Ledger also supports the holding and transferring of other digital assets (such as stablecoins) through a system of trust lines. However, these other assets are not XRP itself; they are IOUs issued by institutions or individuals on the ledger.

Neither the recipient nor the sender reveal their private keys in a transaction, because the private key authorizes transfer of the funds in that address to other users. Therefore, if a user loses his or her private key, the user may permanently lose access to the XRP contained in the associated address. Likewise, XRP is irretrievably lost if the private key associated with them is deleted and no backup has been made. When sending XRP, a user's XRP Ledger software program must validate the transaction with the associated private key. In addition, since every computation on the XRP Ledger requires processing power, there is a transaction fee involved with the transfer that is paid by the payor. The resulting digitally validated transaction is sent by the user's XRP Ledger software program to the XRP Ledger validators to allow transaction confirmation.

Some XRP transactions are conducted "off-blockchain" (i.e., through centralized book-entries) and are therefore not recorded on the XRP Ledger. These "off-blockchain transactions" involve the transfer of control over, or ownership of, a specific digital wallet holding XRP or the reallocation of ownership of certain XRP in a pooled-ownership digital wallet, such as a digital wallet owned by a digital asset trading platforms. In contrast to on-blockchain transactions, which are publicly recorded on the XRP Ledger, information and data regarding off-blockchain transactions are generally not publicly available. Therefore, off-blockchain transactions are not truly XRP Ledger transactions in that they do not involve the transfer of transaction data on the XRP Ledger and do not reflect a movement of XRP between addresses recorded in the XRP Ledger. For these reasons, off-blockchain transactions are subject to risks as any such transfer of XRP ownership is not protected by the protocol behind the XRP Ledger or recorded in, and validated through, the ledger mechanism.

XRP can also be held in escrow on the XRP Ledger, meaning the XRP is locked up and released only when certain conditions are met (e.g., at a specific time or when a particular event occurs). This is a native feature of the ledger, providing flexibility for complex financial contracts. XRP can also be held in payment channels, which allow for off-ledger transactions to occur between two parties, with the final balance being settled on the ledger later. Each XRP Ledger account must also hold a minimum reserve of XRP (currently 10 XRP) which cannot be spent. This ensures that only legitimate accounts are created and maintained. The XRP Ledger supports multi-signature accounts, where multiple keys can be required to authorize transactions. This adds an extra layer of security for holding and transferring XRP.

Summary of an XRP Transaction

The following is a summary of a payment transaction of XRP on the XRP Ledger.

A transaction is initiated by a user who holds an XRP Ledger account. The user uses their wallet (software, hardware, or digital asset trading platform-based) to create a transaction. This transaction includes details such as the destination address, the amount of XRP to be transferred, and any additional flags or conditions (e.g., destination tag, which is used for transactions to exchanges or multi-user platforms).

To authenticate the transaction, the user's wallet signs the transaction using the private key associated with their XRP Ledger account. The private key is critical, as it proves ownership of the account and authorizes the movement of funds. The signing process involves creating a cryptographic signature unique to the transaction details and the private key. This signature ensures that the transaction cannot be altered after it is signed.

Once signed, the transaction is submitted to the XRP Ledger network. This involves broadcasting the transaction to a network of decentralized validator nodes. The transaction is propagated across the network, where it is received by multiple validators. Validators are independent nodes that maintain a copy of the XRP Ledger and participate in the consensus process.

The XRP Ledger uses a unique consensus algorithm rather than proof-of-work or proof-of-stake. Validators participate in a consensus round, where they agree on the set of transactions to be included in the next ledger version. During this process, validators check the validity of each transaction (e.g., ensuring the sender has sufficient funds, the transaction is correctly signed, etc.). If 80% or more of the validators agree that the transaction is valid, it is included in the next block added to the XRP Ledger.

The XRP Ledger operates in "ledger versions," where each version is a new snapshot of the ledger's state, including all confirmed transactions since the last version. When a transaction is confirmed through consensus, it is included in the next ledger version. Once the ledger version is closed and published (which happens approximately every 3-5 seconds), the transaction is considered final and irreversible. The recipient's balance is updated, and the sender's balance is deducted accordingly. In addition, a small transaction fee of typically 10 drops (1 XRP = 1,000,000 drops) is deducted from the sender's account, which is then irrevocably destroyed. Each block and each transaction included in a block is assigned a unique transaction hash, which can be used to track and verify the block and individual transactions on the XRP Ledger. Once recorded in the ledger, the transaction is immutable, providing a permanent record of the transfer.

XRP Markets and Exchanges

XRP can be transferred in direct peer-to-peer transactions through the direct sending of XRP over the XRP Ledger from one XRP address to another. While XRP was originally intended to be used primarily as a means to conduct cross-border payments, XRP can also be used to pay other users of the XRP Ledger for goods and services under what resembles a barter system. Consumers can also pay merchants and other commercial businesses for goods or services through direct peer-to-peer transactions on the XRP Ledger or through third-party service providers.

In addition to using XRP to engage in cross-border transactions or payment for goods and services, investors may purchase and sell XRP to speculate as to the price of XRP in the XRP market, or as a long-term investment to diversify their portfolio. The price of XRP within the market is determined, in part, by the supply of and demand for XRP in the global XRP market, market expectations for the adoption of XRP as a store of value or as a viable cross-border payments facilitator, the number of merchants that accept XRP as a form of payment, and the volume of peer-to-peer transactions, among other factors.

XRP spot markets typically permit investors to open accounts with the market and then purchase and sell XRP via digital asset trading platforms or through mobile applications. Prices for trades on XRP spot markets are typically reported publicly. An investor opening a trading account on a digital asset trading platform must deposit an accepted government-issued currency into its account with the trading platform, or a previously acquired digital asset, before they can purchase or sell assets on the trading platform, although certain platforms may permit limited trading activity on a post-funding or credit basis. The process of establishing an account with a digital asset trading platform and trading XRP is different from, and should not be confused with, the process of users sending XRP from one XRP address to another XRP address on the XRP Ledger. This latter process is an activity that occurs on the XRP Ledger, while the former is an activity that occurs entirely within the order book operated by the digital asset trading platform. The digital asset trading platform typically records the investor's ownership of XRP in its internal books and records, rather than on the XRP Ledger. The digital asset trading platform ordinarily does not transfer XRP to the investor on the XRP Ledger unless the investor makes a request to the exchange to withdraw the XRP in its platform trading account to an off-platform XRP wallet.

Outside of the spot markets, XRP can be traded OTC. The OTC market is largely institutional in nature, and OTC market participants generally consist of institutional entities, such as firms that offer two-sided liquidity for XRP, investment managers, proprietary trading firms, high-net-worth individuals that trade XRP on a proprietary basis, entities with sizeable XRP holdings, and family offices. The OTC market provides a relatively flexible market in terms of quotes, price, quantity, and other factors, although it tends to involve large blocks of XRP. The OTC market has no formal structure and no open-outcry meeting place. Parties engaging in OTC transactions will agree upon a price—often via phone, text message or email—and then one of the two parties will then initiate the transaction. For example, a seller of XRP could initiate the transaction by sending the XRP to the buyer's XRP address. The buyer would then wire U.S. dollars to the seller's bank account. OTC trades are sometimes hedged and eventually settled with concomitant trades on digital asset trading platforms.

XRP Spot and Futures Markets

The CFTC has regulatory jurisdiction over the XRP futures markets because the CFTC believes that XRP is a non-security "commodity" under the CEA and the rules thereunder, and so takes the position that it has jurisdiction to prosecute fraud and manipulation in the cash, or spot, market for XRP. Beyond instances of fraud or manipulation, the CFTC generally does not oversee cash or spot market exchanges, spot Digital Asset Trading Platforms or retail transactions involving spot XRP that do not utilize collateral, leverage, or financing. Similar to SEC Chairman Atkins, CFTC then-Acting Chairman Caroline D. Pham announced on August 1, 2025 a "crypto sprint" to begin implementing the recommendations of the working group report and on December 4, 2025, announced that that listed spot crypto asset products will begin trading on a CFTC-registered designated contract market (DCM). The National Futures Association ("NFA") is the self-regulatory agency for the U.S. futures industry, and as such has jurisdiction over XRP futures. However, the NFA does not have regulatory oversight authority for the cash or spot market for XRP trading or transactions.

Several registered DCMs, including the CME, have listed XRP futures products. DCMs are boards of trades (commonly referred to as exchanges) that operate under the regulatory oversight of the CFTC, pursuant to Section 5 of the CEA. To obtain and maintain designation as a DCM, an exchange must comply on an initial and ongoing basis with twenty-three Core Principles established under Section 5(d) of the CEA. Among other things, DCMs are required to establish self-regulatory programs designed to enforce the DCM's rules, prevent market manipulation and customer and market abuses, and ensure the recording and safe storage of trade information.

Among others, the CME XRP futures contracts are cash-settled, based on the CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate, calculated daily at 3:00 p.m. UTC. XRP futures contracts reportedly surpassed $25 billion in notional trading volume in 2025.

Limits on XRP Supply

Unlike other digital assets such as bitcoin or ether, XRP was not mined gradually over time. Instead, all 100 billion XRP tokens were created at the time of the XRP Ledger's launch in 2012. This means that every XRP token that exists today was generated from the outset, without the need for a mining process. Of the 100 billion XRP generated by the XRP Ledger's code, the founders of Ripple Labs retained 20 billion XRP and the rest, nearly 80 billion XRP, was provided to Ripple Labs or will be released to Ripple Labs at established intervals.

In 2017, to address concerns about the large portion of XRP held by Ripple Labs, the company introduced an on-chain escrow mechanism to lock up a significant portion of its XRP holdings. Under this mechanism, Ripple Labs placed 55 billion XRP (55% of the total supply) into a series of time-locked escrow accounts. The escrow releases 1 billion XRP per month. This process adds a level of predictability and transparency about how much XRP can enter the market each month. If Ripple Labs does not use all of the 1 billion XRP released in a given month, the remaining amount is placed back into escrow for future release. The purpose of this escrow system is to reassure the market that Ripple Labs will not release too much XRP at once, which could potentially disrupt XRP's price or market dynamics.

Modifications to the XRP Ledger Protocol

Modifications to the XRP Ledger protocol involves a structured process. The first step is identifying a need or improvement that could benefit the XRP Ledger. This might be related to performance, security, new features or other enhancements. The proposer drafts a formal proposal outlining the suggested change. This proposal typically includes technical details, rationale, potential benefits and any drawbacks or risks.

The proposal is shared with the XRP Ledger community, typically through forums such as the XRP Ledger GitHub repository or community discussion platforms. This allows for initial feedback, questions, and suggestions from developers, validators and other stakeholders. During this phase, the proposer may refine the proposal based on community input. Open dialogue is crucial to ensure the proposal addresses the community's needs and concerns.

If the proposal is generally well-received, the next step involves writing the necessary code to implement the change. This is often done by the proposer or a group of developers with expertise in the XRP Ledger's codebase. The new code is rigorously tested in various environments. This might include test networks (such as the XRP Ledger Testnet) to ensure that the change does not introduce bugs or vulnerabilities and works as intended under different scenarios. The code is then reviewed by other developers, especially those with a deep understanding of the XRP Ledger. This peer review process is critical to maintain the integrity and security of the ledger.

Once the code is developed and tested, it is proposed as an "amendment" to the XRP Ledger. The amendment process is a governance mechanism that allows validators to vote on whether to adopt the proposed changes. Validators on the network signal their approval or disapproval of the amendment by updating their validator configuration. For the amendment to be activated, it must receive approval from at least 80% of the validators on the network for two weeks continuously. If the amendment meets the required threshold, it is automatically activated on the XRP Ledger, and the new functionality or modification becomes part of the ledger's protocol.

Once activated, the changes are deployed across the XRP Ledger. All nodes running the XRP Ledger software must update to the latest version to remain compatible with the network. Even after deployment, the change is monitored to ensure it behaves as expected in the live environment. If any issues arise, the community may need to address them through additional updates or modifications.

After the change is implemented, the relevant documentation (such as the XRP Ledger technical documentation, API references, etc.) is updated to reflect the new features or modifications. The community is informed of the successful implementation through official channels, including developer blogs, forums, and updates to the GitHub repository.

Forms of Attack Against the XRP Ledger

All networked systems are vulnerable to various kinds of attacks. As with any computer network, the XRP Ledger contains certain vulnerabilities. The XRP Ledger relies on a decentralized network of validator nodes that agree on the order and validity of transactions. These nodes form the backbone of the consensus process. Each validator node maintains a Unique Node List, which is a list of other validators it trusts. For a malicious actor to take over, they would need to control a significant portion of the validators on the majority of these UNLs. To successfully alter the ledger, the malicious actor would likely need to control more than 80% of the validator nodes or the voting power on the most widely used UNLs.

If the malicious actor cannot control the validator nodes directly, they might attempt to compromise the validators that are already trusted by the network (i.e., those on the commonly used UNLs). This could involve hacking, bribery, deception or coercion.

A malicious actor could also conduct an "eclipse attack." In an eclipse attack, a malicious actor could isolate parts of the network so that the malicious actor's nodes can influence the consensus in isolated sections of the network, eventually leading to a split or takeover.

This is not intended as an exhaustive list of all forms of attack against the XRP Ledger. For additional information, see the "Risk Factors" section of this Prospectus.

Forks and Airdrops

A "fork" occurs when the XRP Ledger splits into two competing versions of the network—often because validators adopt incompatible software—while a "clone" is a copy of the protocol's code that launches an entirely new blockchain with a new genesis block. An "airdrop" is when promoters of a new token distribute (or allow claims of) that token to holders of another digital asset (or to specified wallet addresses), typically for free and subject to whatever claim steps the promoters require. See "Risk Factors—Risks Related to XRP and the XRP Ledger—A temporary or permanent 'fork' of the XRP Ledger could adversely affect the value of the Pubco Class A Common Stock" and "—Shareholders may not receive the benefits of any 'forks' or 'airdrops.'"

The XRP Ledger operates through a consensus process in which each server is configured with a Unique Node List (UNL)—a set of validators trusted not to collude. The XRP Ledger Foundation publishes a default UNL (dUNL) consisting of vetted, independent node operators distributed across diverse geographic locations and data centers. The Company intends to follow the XRP Ledger Foundation's recommended dUNL for the foreseeable future and does not plan to participate in any forks of the XRP Ledger. In the event of a fork, the Company would evaluate the circumstances and determine the appropriate course of action in the best interests of shareholders, which may include following the chain supported by the dUNL or taking other actions as warranted.

Moreover, Pubco does not intend to conduct airdrops of XRP to third-party wallet holders.

Market Participants

Validators

Validators are crucial to the operation and security of the XRP Ledger. Validators participate in the consensus process by validating and agreeing on the order and validity of transactions. They ensure that transactions are consistent across the network, which helps prevent issues like double-spending. Validators also maintain a copy of the entire XRP Ledger and work together to decide which transactions are included in each new ledger version. They confirm transactions approximately every 3-5 seconds, making the ledger both fast and reliable. Validators vote on proposed changes to the XRP Ledger protocol through the amendment process. If 80% or more of the validators agree on a proposed amendment for two weeks continuously, the change is adopted and becomes part of the network's code. Validators contribute to the overall health and stability of the network. By participating in the consensus process, they help secure the ledger against attacks and ensure that it remains decentralized and trustworthy.

Ripple Labs currently operates only one of the 35 validators in the default Trusted Nodes List. Some universities and research institutions operate validators as part of their research into blockchain technology and to support the decentralization of the network. Independent companies, developers, and other entities that support the XRP Ledger's ecosystem also run validators. These could include blockchain-focused companies or other technology firms. Enthusiastic community members and developers who are committed to the success and decentralization of the XRP Ledger may also operate validators.

Unlike some other blockchain networks, validators on the XRP Ledger are not directly compensated for their participation in the consensus process. The XRP Ledger does not have a block reward system like that of the Bitcoin network's mining rewards or Ethereum's staking rewards. Since the XRP Ledger is pre-mined and the total supply of XRP was created at the outset, there is no ongoing issuance of XRP to distribute as rewards. While validators play a crucial role in the network, they do not receive the transaction fees that are charged as part of each confirmed transaction. Instead, these fees are destroyed to reduce the overall supply of XRP, which indirectly benefits all XRP holders by increasing the scarcity of the asset. Running a validator on the XRP Ledger is generally considered a voluntary contribution to the health and decentralization of the network. Participants run validators for reasons other than direct financial gain, such as supporting the network's decentralization, ensuring its security, or for reputational benefits within the XRP community. Institutions like banks, financial entities, or tech companies might run validators because they use the XRP Ledger in their business operations. By running a validator, they can have more influence over the reliability and stability of the network they rely on.

Investment and Speculative Sector

This sector includes the investment and trading activities of both private and professional investors and speculators. Historically, larger financial services institutions are publicly reported to have limited involvement in investment and trading in digital assets, although the participation landscape is beginning to change. Currently, a significant portion of demand for digital assets is generated by speculators and investors seeking to profit from the short- or long-term holding of digital assets.

Retail Sector

The retail sector includes users transacting in direct peer-to-peer XRP activity through the direct sending of XRP over the XRP Ledger. The retail sector also includes transactions in which consumers pay for goods or services from commercial or service businesses through direct transactions or third-party service providers, although the use of XRP as a means of payment is still developing and has not been accepted in the same manner as bitcoin because XRP has a generally different purpose than bitcoin.

Service Sector

This sector includes companies that provide a variety of services including the buying, selling, payment processing and storing of XRP. For example, Coinbase, Kraken, Bitstamp, Gemini, and LMAX Digital are some of the largest digital asset trading platforms by volume traded. BitGo Trust, our XRP custodian, is a digital asset custodian that provides custodial accounts that store XRP for users. As the XRP Ledger continues to grow in acceptance, it is anticipated that service providers will expand the currently available range of services and that additional parties will enter the service sector for the XRP Ledger.

Our Competitive Strengths

We believe that we have competitive strengths in several key areas:

- We are the only scaled XRP focused digital asset treasury, and the only XRP digital treasury counting support from key ecosystem participant Ripple. We believe this creates a competitive "moat" that will be challenging for others to match, which could have the effect of limiting direct competition in the XRP digital asset treasury space.
- The Company was built "from the ground up" to execute on our strategy, with no risks, distractions or performance impact from ancillary/legacy operating businesses, allowing for our capital and focus to be 100% allocated to our XRP treasury operations.
- Our purpose-built management team was specifically constructed to execute on our outlined strategy, and includes extensive experience in the XRP ecosystem, the digital asset industry broadly, and the traditional capital markets industry. We believe that the combination of all of these skillsets uniquely positions us to effectively manage our XRP assets and related operations
- We believe that the XRP and XRP Ledger ecosystem are uniquely positioned for extensive growth due to its inherent advantages of being faster, cheaper, and more reliable for executing transactions and payments than many other public blockchains. Recent additions and developments related to the ecosystem, including the development of RLUSD, porting of other stablecoins such as USDC, and cross-chain functionality effectively bringing smart contracts to the XRP Ledger add additional avenues for growth.
- Relative to passively managed, XRP-focused ETFs, our structure allows for active management, yield generating strategies, accretive capital raising and other strategies to enhance performance.

Our Competition

The Company operates within a rapidly evolving digital asset ecosystem anchored on the XRP Ledger. Evernorth believes that it competes with a diverse range of market participants, including institutional investors, digital asset managers, exchanges, custodians and traditional financial institutions that are expanding into blockchain-based asset management. Spot XRP ETPs also create a new form of competition for the Company's XRP-focused business model. The Company expects competition to intensify as institutional adoption of digital assets, including XRP, continues to grow and as the regulatory framework surrounding such assets becomes more clearly defined.

The Company faces competition from institutional participants that accumulate or manage XRP directly, including trading firms, corporate treasuries, and investment funds that seek to gain exposure to XRP's liquidity, settlement functionality, or ecosystem. These participants may have greater financial resources, longer operating histories, or established relationships with liquidity providers. Evernorth believes that it competes effectively in this segment through its publicly listed structure, transparency standards, and ability to provide investors with institutional-grade access to XRP exposure through a regulated vehicle.

The Company also faces competition from managers of other digital assets and networks that offer functionality comparable to XRP, such as cross-border payment tokens, stablecoins, and layer-1 blockchains providing rapid settlement or interoperability. Examples include issuers of stablecoins such as USDC, payment-oriented networks such as Stellar, and emerging blockchain protocols offering cost-efficient transaction processing. Evernorth believes that its focus on building one of the largest institutional XRP treasuries, coupled with its intent to provide investors with liquid exposure to XRP via a listed vehicle, differentiates it from other digital asset investment alternatives. The Company further seeks to differentiate through disciplined treasury management, open-market purchasing strategies, and adherence to high standards of regulatory and governance oversight.

In addition, the Company faces competition from traditional financial institutions—including banks, broker-dealers, exchanges, and custodians—that are expanding their digital asset offerings. These organizations may possess significant brand recognition, balance-sheet capacity, and existing client relationships that could provide competitive advantages in attracting institutional capital. Evernorth believes that its competitive position depends on its ability to (i) maintain efficient access to XRP liquidity and trading venues, (ii) operate with robust security and compliance infrastructure, (iii) manage its cost of capital effectively, (iv) deploy XRP treasury for risk-mitigated yield generation and maximize yield creation, and (v) continue expanding partnerships within the broader XRP ecosystem. The Company believes that its transparent, regulated, and publicly traded structure provides a compelling alternative to private digital asset vehicles and may serve as a bridge between traditional finance and blockchain-based capital markets.

The XRP-based spot ETPs also create a new form of competition for the Company's XRP-focused business model. They enable investors to gain price exposure to XRP through a regulated and easily tradable investment vehicle directly from the investors' traditional brokerage accounts, without participating directly in the onchain ecosystem. This could divert institutional and retail demand away from transacting or holding XRP on crypto native exchanges or DeFi, thereby reducing ecosystem liquidity and utilization of XRP for payments and settlement use cases. The potential approval of the XRP spot ETFs in the U.S. may further increase the investor exposure and popularity in this product. However, unlike the passive ETPs structures, the Evernorth vehicle provides investors with both risk-mitigated yield generation and operational connectivity to the XRP ecosystem that ETPs cannot replicate. Evernorth also provides enhanced transparency and governance with no legacy liabilities.

As a result, we believe Evernorth delivers precise XRP exposure with investment return, institutional-grade governance and custody, liquidity and tax advantages, positioning it as a superior alternative to other market participants and products.

Government Regulation

As digital assets have grown in both popularity and market size, the U.S. Congress and a number of U.S. federal and state agencies (including FinCEN, OFAC, SEC, CFTC, IRS, FDIC, FINRA, CFPB, DOJ, DHS, FBI, OCC, the Federal Reserve and state financial institution and securities regulators) have been examining the operations of digital asset networks, users and markets, with particular focus on the extent to which digital assets can be used to launder the proceeds of illegal activities, evade sanctions, or fund criminal or terrorist enterprises and the safety and soundness of trading platforms and other service providers that hold or custody digital assets. Many of these state and federal agencies have issued consumer advisories regarding the risks posed by digital assets to investors. In addition, federal and state agencies, and other countries and international bodies have issued rules or guidance about the treatment of digital asset transactions or requirements for businesses engaged in digital asset activity. Moreover, the failure of FTX in November 2022 and the resulting market turmoil substantially increased regulatory scrutiny in the United States and globally and led to criminal investigations, SEC enforcement actions and other regulatory activity across the digital asset industry.

There have been several bills introduced in, and in the case of the GENIUS Act passed by, Congress that propose to establish additional regulation and oversight of the digital asset markets. It is difficult to predict whether, or when, any of these developments will lead to Congress granting additional authorities to the SEC or other regulators, what the nature of such additional authorities might be, how additional legislation and/or regulatory oversight might impact the ability of digital asset markets to function or how any new regulations or changes to existing regulations might impact the value of digital assets generally and XRP specifically. In addition, on January 23, 2025, President Trump issued an executive order titled "Strengthening American Leadership in Digital Financial Technology," aimed at supporting "the responsible growth and use of digital assets, blockchain technology, and related technologies across all sectors of the economy." The executive order established an interagency working group tasked with "proposing a Federal regulatory framework governing the issuance and operation of digital assets" in the United States. Pursuant to this executive order, the working group released a report in July 2025 outlining the administration's recommendations to Congress and various agencies reflecting the administration's "pro-innovation mindset toward digital assets and blockchain technologies."

Various foreign jurisdictions have adopted and may continue in the near future to adopt laws, regulations or directives that affect a digital asset network, the digital asset markets, and their users, particularly digital asset trading platforms and service providers that fall within such jurisdictions' regulatory scope. For example:

- China has made transacting in digital assets illegal for Chinese citizens in mainland China, and additional restrictions may follow. China has banned initial coin offerings and there have been reports that Chinese regulators have taken action to shut down a number of China-based digital asset trading platforms.
- South Korea determined to amend its Financial Information Act in March 2020 to require virtual asset service providers to register and comply with its AML and counter-terrorism funding framework. These measures also provide the government with the authority to close digital asset trading platforms that do not comply with specified processes. South Korea has also banned initial coin offerings.
- The Reserve Bank of India in April 2018 banned the entities it regulates from providing services to any individuals or business entities dealing with or selling digital assets. In March 2020, this ban was overturned in the Indian Supreme Court, although the Reserve Bank of India is currently challenging this ruling.
- The United Kingdom's Financial Conduct Authority published final rules in October 2020 banning the sale of derivatives and exchange-traded notes that reference certain types of digital assets, contending that they are "ill-suited" to retail investors citing extreme volatility, valuation challenges and association with financial crime. A new bill, the Financial Services and Markets Bill (the "FSMB"), has made its way through the House of Commons and is expected to work through the House of Lords and become law in 2023. The FSMB would bring digital asset activities within the scope of existing laws governing financial institutions, markets and assets.
- The European Council of the European Union approved the text of the Markets in Crypto-Assets Regulation ("MiCA") in October 2022, establishing a regulatory framework for digital asset services across the European Union. MiCA is intended to serve as a comprehensive regulation of digital asset markets and imposes various obligations on digital asset issuers and service providers. The main aims of MiCA are industry regulation, consumer protection, prevention of market abuse and upholding the integrity of digital asset markets. MiCA was ratified by the European Parliament on April 20, 2023, and came into effect in June 2024.
- There remains significant uncertainty regarding foreign governments' future actions with respect to the regulation of digital assets and digital asset trading platforms. Such laws, regulations or directives may conflict with those of the United States and may negatively impact the acceptance of XRP by users, merchants and service providers outside the United States and may therefore impede the growth or sustainability of the XRP ecosystem in the United States and globally, or otherwise negatively affect the price of XRP held by us.

The effect of any future regulatory change on us or the XRP held by us is impossible to predict, but such change could be substantial and adverse to us and the value of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

In December 2020, the SEC filed a complaint against Ripple Labs (the "Ripple Complaint") and two of its executives (the Ripple Defendants), in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York (the S.D.N.Y.) alleging that the Ripple Defendants had conducted unregistered securities offerings by selling XRP in contravention of Section 5 of the Securities Act. Under Section 5 of the Securities Act, it is unlawful for any person, directly or indirectly to offer to sell, offer to buy or purchase or sell a "security" unless a registration statement is in effect or has been filed with the SEC as to the offer and sale of such security to the public. The Ripple Defendants did not dispute that they had offered to sell and sold XRP through interstate commerce and that they had not filed a registration statement with the SEC for any offer or sale of XRP. Accordingly, the question before the S.D.N.Y. was whether the Ripple Defendants offered to sell or sold XRP as a security.

On July 13, 2023, the S.D.N.Y. issued several key rulings in the case. Most notably, the court found that XRP was not inherently a security. The court distinguished between the XRP token itself and the manner in which it was sold. This finding was contrary to the SEC's argument, which was that XRP, by its nature, was a security under the definition provided by the Securities Act. The court then analyzed each distribution of XRP as a distinct analysis under the federal securities laws and found that the direct sale of XRP by Ripple Labs to certain sophisticated individuals and entities pursuant to written contracts did constitute the unregistered offer and sale of securities in violation of Section 5 of the Securities Act. However, the court found that the programmatic sale of XRP by the Ripple Defendants over digital asset trading platforms in the secondary market did not constitute an unregistered sale of securities. Similarly, the court found that other distributions of XRP by Ripple, including XRP, granted to Ripple Labs employees as compensation or to third-party companies to incentivize the development of new applications for XRP and the XRP Ledger also did not constitute an unregistered sale of securities.

The S.D.N.Y. entered a final judgment in the case on August 7, 2024. On October 2, 2024, the SEC initially filed a notice of appeal to the Second Circuit seeking review of the district court's rulings. However, on August 7, 2025, the SEC and Ripple jointly filed a stipulation of dismissal, formally terminating all outstanding appellate proceedings and leaving the district court's judgment in force.

Moreover, also in July 2023, another judge in the S.D.N.Y., in litigation between the SEC and the issuer of the TerraUSD and LUNA digital assets, suggested that he disagreed with the approach underlying the XRP decision. The Binance Complaint, the Coinbase Complaint, and the SEC's actions against XRP's issuer and the issuer of the TerraUSD and LUNA digital assets, as well as seemingly inconsistent views of different district court judges, underscore the continuing uncertainty around which digital assets are securities, and demonstrate that such factors as how long a digital asset has been in existence, how widely held it is, how large its market capitalization is and that it has actual use in commercial transactions, ultimately may have no bearing on whether a court will find it to be a security. Because no federal appellate court has considered the question on the merits, both with respect to XRP and digital assets generally, as well as the fact that because each digital asset presents its own unique set of relevant facts, it is not always possible to directly analogize the analysis of one digital asset to another.

If XRP is found by a court or other regulatory body to be a security, Pubco could be considered an unregistered "investment company" under the Investment Company Act of 1940. Any such determination would subject us to significant additional regulatory controls that could have a material adverse effect on our business and operations and may also require us to substantially change the manner in which we conduct our business. Furthermore, Pubco could be considered to be engaged in a distribution (i.e., a public offering) of unregistered securities in violation of Section 5 of the Securities Act, which could impose significant civil and criminal liability on Trust. There is no guarantee that a court of regulatory body will agree with Pubco's assessment of XRP as a non-security. In addition, even though a judge in the S.D.N.Y. found that XRP was not itself a security and that secondary market transactions over digital asset trading platforms are not securities transactions, as a district court opinion, other courts are not bound by that ruling.

To the extent that XRP is deemed to fall within the definition of a security under U.S. federal securities laws, Pubco may be subject to additional requirements under the Investment Company Act and the Advisers Act. The Sponsor or Pubco may be required to register as an investment adviser under the Advisers Act. Such additional registration may result in extraordinary, recurring and/or non-recurring expenses of Pubco, thereby materially and adversely impacting Pubco Class A Common Stock. If the Sponsor and/or Pubco determines not to comply with such additional regulatory and registration requirements, the Sponsor may terminate Pubco. Any such termination could result in the liquidation of Pubco's XRP at a time that is disadvantageous to Shareholders.

Our Intellectual Property

The Company maintains and uses trade names, registered and unregistered trademarks, domain names, and logos, which it considers material to its brand identity. The Company may pursue registration of certain marks or content in additional jurisdictions as appropriate.

Our Human Capital

As of the Closing, we will have a total of seven employees, all of whom will be based in the United States. None of our employees will be covered by a collective bargaining agreement. We may engage third-party contractors and consultants on an as-needed basis.

We are a remote-first company. We believe that allowing our employees to work in the location that best suits them provides us access to a larger talent pool and a sustained advantage in hiring and retaining employees and consultants in the United States and worldwide.

Human capital management is critical to our ongoing business success, which requires investing in our people. Our aim is to create a highly engaged and motivated workforce where employees are inspired by leadership, engaged in purpose-driven, meaningful work, and have opportunities for growth and development.

Facilities

We are a remote-first company and, as a result, we do not own any real property and do not rely on any single physical facility to conduct our operations. Our principal executive office address is located in San Francisco, California. However, given our remote-first model, we do not believe this arrangement is material to our business. If we require additional or alternative space in the future, we believe we will be able to obtain suitable space on commercially reasonable terms.

Legal Proceedings

From time to time, we may be party to or otherwise involved in legal proceedings arising in the ordinary course of business. Management does not believe that there is any pending or threatened proceeding against us, which, if determined adversely, would reasonably be expected to have a material adverse effect on our business and financial statements.

THE COMPANY'S MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

References in this section to "we," "us," or "our" are to the Company and Pubco, in each case prior to the completion of the Transactions. The following discussion and analysis provides information which the Company's and Pubco's management believes is relevant to an assessment and understanding of its results of operations and financial condition. This discussion and analysis should be read together with the sections of the proxy statement/prospectus entitled "Information Related to the Company," and the audited and unaudited financial statements of the Company and Evernorth and related notes thereto that are included elsewhere in the proxy statement/prospectus.

In addition to historical financial information, this discussion and analysis contains forward-looking statements based upon current expectations that involve risks, uncertainties and assumptions. See the section entitled "Cautionary Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements." Actual results and timing of selected events may differ materially from those anticipated in these forward-looking statements as a result of various factors, including those set forth under "Risk Factors" or elsewhere in the proxy statement/prospectus.

Overview

Evernorth is a purpose-built vehicle for investment into XRP through public equity markets and will provide pure play access to XRP for institutional investors through a scalable, liquid, and regulated vehicle. Evernorth will operate as an active manager of our XRP assets striving to maximize shareholder value through sophisticated asset management techniques, including efficient acquisition of XRP, active portfolio management, diversified yield generation strategies and strategic geographic expansion. Evernorth seeks to capitalize on the momentum of XRP and the XRP Ledger, which were purpose built to be an incredibly effective and efficient method to bring a broad swath of financial infrastructure onto a public blockchain, resulting in faster, cheaper and capital efficient transactions.

Evernorth will leverage its experienced management team to actively manage our XRP assets, raise additional capital, and generate yield on a portion of our XRP assets with the goal of effectively managing operational, reputational and market risks by partnering with top-tier providers, utilizing careful portfolio construction, and implementing risk management controls designed to be strong.

Key Performance Indicators

We regularly review a number of metrics, including the following KPIs, to evaluate our business, measure our performance, identify trends in our business, prepare financial projections and make strategic decisions. We believe these operational measures are useful in evaluating our performance, in addition to our financial results prepared in accordance with GAAP.

XRP Per Share

XRP per share is our primary KPI by which we measure the performance of our business. XRP per share as of a given date is calculated as the number of XRP attributable to Pubco, divided by the aggregate number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock outstanding. Management uses XRP per share (also referred to as "XRP reserves per share") to measure our ability to grow our XRP holdings relative to the number of outstanding shares and to provide shareholders visibility into per-share XRP accumulation over time. We use this metric to evaluate the impact of capital structure actions, financings, and other transactions on existing holders, including whether such actions are expected to be accretive or dilutive to XRP per share, and to inform capital allocation decisions (including determinations regarding additional equity or debt financing) and internal performance targets.

Yield Per Token

Yield per token is the primary measure of financial performance of our yield-generating business. Yield per token is calculated as the number of XRP generated by our yield-generating strategies, divided by the number of tokens deployed in such strategies. Management uses yield per token to evaluate the effectiveness of our yield-generating strategies and, together with related per-share measures (including "XRP generation per share"), to assess the yield and income generated from our XRP holdings on a per-share basis. These metrics inform decisions regarding how much XRP to deploy, strategy selection, risk limits, and allocation among strategies, and serve as benchmarks for evaluating management's execution of our treasury strategy over time, including whether to scale, modify, or discontinue particular strategies.

Principal Factors Affecting Our Results of Operations and Material Trends

The Company and Pubco's future results are expected to be impacted by the highly volatile nature of XRP's price on various trading platforms, as well as conditions and trends relating to demand for XRP or other digital assets, and other factors, including the degree of success we have in executing on our business strategies, including the XRP acquisition and management strategy, regulatory and technical developments surrounding XRP and other cryptocurrencies, and the effectiveness of our marketing and sales efforts to develop a robust and diverse investor base. The primary factors that are expected to impact our results and present significant opportunities, as well as pose risks and challenges, are described below. We believe that our performance and future success depend on the factors discussed below, and those mentioned in the section titled "Risk Factors" and elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus.

- Price of XRP: Our business is expected to be heavily dependent on the price of XRP, which has historically experienced significant volatility. At Closing, and assuming No Redemptions, we expect to hold 689,704,090 XRP (or 633,282,051 XRP, 576,860,012 XRP, 520,437,973 XRP and 464,015,934 XRP assuming 25% Redemptions, 50% Redemptions, 75% Redemptions and 100% Redemptions, respectively), assuming that the Closing XRP Price is $1.038 (which was the closing price for XRP reported by Coinbase as of June 30, 2026) and accounting for the cash in the Trust Account as of June 30, 2026, and expect in the future to acquire additional XRP through at-market purchases to build our strategic reserve of XRP.
- Awareness: The perception of XRP as a legitimate and secure asset class and technology by the general public plays a crucial role. The pace and effectiveness of continued education and awareness is expected to impact adoption rates. Due to the rapidly evolving nature of digital assets and the volatile price of XRP, which has experienced and continues to experience significant volatility, we expect that our operating results will fluctuate significantly from quarter to quarter in accordance with market sentiments and movements in the broader XRP economy.
- Regulation: The global regulatory landscape for XRP, including clarity around its legal status, accounting and tax treatment, and other compliance requirements, will significantly impact its growth. The legal and regulatory treatment of XRP, particularly in the United States where certain regulatory proceedings have occurred, remains subject to evolving interpretations. Favorable regulatory developments may encourage adoption, while restrictive measures or enforcement actions could hinder it.
- Institutional Adoption: Increased participation by institutional investors and financial institutions—including banks, payment processors, and corporations—can drive market confidence and liquidity, supporting continued growth of XRP use for cross-border settlement and treasury applications.
- Political Environment: Digital assets have entered the political conversation in the United States and abroad. We cannot be certain as to how future regulatory developments will impact the treatment of XRP under the law, and ongoing and future regulation and regulatory actions could significantly restrict or eliminate the market for or uses of XRP and materially and adversely impact our business.
- Monetary Policy: Central bank monetary policies, especially those related to interest rates and monetary supply, can influence XRP adoption. Low-interest rates and expansive monetary policies that lead to currency debasement may lead to a search for alternative investments like XRP.

- Technological Innovation: Advances in blockchain and distributed-ledger technology—such as improvements to the XRP Ledger's throughput, interoperability, and security—may enhance XRP adoption and integration into payment systems. At the same time, competition is expected to intensify from companies offering both traditional financial services and other digital-asset-based solutions.

Plan of Operations, Expected Revenue Sources

We anticipate revenue generation through the following business lines in the initial period following the Transactions:

- Our XRP accumulation and management strategy will involve (i) the acquisition of XRP (from the proceeds of any future debt and equity financings, and operating cash flows in excess of expenses) according to a discretionary, macro-driven investment thesis, (ii) the strategic management of its XRP holdings, subject to market conditions and other factors, and (iii) the undertaking of capital-raising transactions, from time to time and subject to market conditions, with the objective of generating proceeds to be used for general corporate purposes, including the purchase of XRP.
- We may, from time to time and subject to market conditions, (i) sell XRP for general corporate purposes or to pursue strategies it believes are accretive to shareholders, (ii) consider secured financing transactions in which its XRP holdings could serve as collateral, where permissible, and (iii) explore strategies to monetize or otherwise utilize its XRP holdings (for example, through the development and commercialization of XRP-Ledger-based financial products and services).
- We may, from time to time and subject to market conditions, participate in yield generating strategies with a portion of our XRP assets. The percentage of our treasury utilized for yield generation will be dynamic and actively managed depending upon market conditions, available yield earning opportunities, and ongoing capital raising efforts. Over time, decentralized finance strategies may be developed and employed, allowing for additional income generating opportunities.

Many factors may impact our future operations and our ability to execute on the activities listed above. Factors impacting both XRP directly, and the broader digital asset market, may have a direct or indirect impact upon our operations, either positively or negatively.

We expect that strong positive price movements in the general digital asset markets and/or XRP specifically will have a positive impact on our operations, allowing for more robust capital raising and yield earning opportunities, with the converse being true in times of strong negative price movements.

Results of Operations

From July 18, 2025 (inception) through December 31, 2025, the Company incurred $0.9 million of net loss, which consisted of general and administrative expenses. The Company expects to continue to incur additional losses in future periods due to additional costs related to the Mergers and the Transaction, strategic investments in XRP, portfolio management activities, and expansion of operational infrastructure. The Company has not yet generated any revenue.

From January 1, 2026 through June 30, 2026, the Company incurred $2.2 million of net loss, which consisted of general and administrative expenses. The Company expects to continue to incur additional losses in future periods due to additional costs related to the Mergers and the Transaction, strategic investments in XRP, portfolio management activities, and expansion of operational infrastructure. The Company has not yet generated any revenue.

From August 29, 2025 (inception) through December 31, 2025, Evernorth incurred $152.7 million of net loss, primarily driven by digital asset impairment, changes in fair value of refundable investor advances, and general and administrative expenses. Evernorth expects to continue to incur additional losses in future periods due to additional cost related to the Mergers and the Transaction, strategic investments in XRP, portfolio management activities, and expansion of operational infrastructure. Evernorth has not yet generated any revenue, and its ability to generate revenue sufficient to achieve profitability will depend on our ability to successfully raise capital to acquire additional XRP.

From January 1, 2026 through June 30, 2026, Evernorth incurred $188.1 million of net loss, primarily driven by digital asset impairment, changes in fair value of refundable investor advances, and general and administrative expenses. Evernorth expects to continue to incur additional losses in future periods due to additional cost related to the Mergers and the Transaction, strategic investments in XRP, portfolio management activities, and expansion of operational infrastructure. Evernorth has not yet generated any revenue, and its ability to generate revenue sufficient to achieve profitability will depend on our ability to successfully raise capital to acquire additional XRP.

Risks and Uncertainties Associated with Future Results of Operations

Our lack of operating history will also make it difficult to accurately forecast the future results of operations, which is subject to a number of uncertainties including Pubco's ability to grow its XRP reserves per share and XRP generation per share, and the market size and growth opportunities in each of our anticipated lines of business.

Our ability to generate cash flow initially will largely be dependent on our ability to raise capital to acquire additional XRP. Our business strategy may not be realized as quickly as hoped, or even at all. Further, even if we achieve growth, in future periods, that growth could slow or decline for a number of reasons, including, but not limited to, XRP volatility, increased competition, digital coins that compete with and may result in a decline in utilization of XRP or replace XRP, our inability to develop, improve or effectively scale XRP acquisition or to access and acquire XRP not held in exchanges, government regulation or our failure, for any reason, to continue to take advantage of growth opportunities.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

Overview

The Company reported loss from operations of $0.9 million for the period from July 18, 2025 to December 31, 2025. The Company reported loss from operations of $2.2 million for the period ended June 30, 2026. As of June 30, 2026, the Company had an unrestricted cash balance of $0.8 million, a net working capital deficit of $3.7 million and accumulated deficit of $3.1 million.

Evernorth's reported loss from operations of $234.8 million for the period from August 29, 2025 to December 31, 2025. Evernorth's reported loss from operations of $265.6 million for the period ended June 30, 2026. As of June 30, 2026, the Company had an unrestricted cash balance of $0.1 million, a net working capital deficit of $696.1 million and accumulated deficit of $340.9 million.

The Company's primary source of liquidity will be loans and XRP contributed from the Company Member. On October 19, 2025, the Company completed raising 126,791,458 in XRP relating to the private placement Contribution Agreement. On November 6, 2025, the Company entered into a master intercompany facility agreement with its member (as amended, the "Company Facility Agreement") establishing a $7.0 million revolving credit facility (the "Company Facility"), and on February 11, 2026, the Company entered into an amendment to the Company Facility Agreement. Interest on amounts drawn under the Company Facility accrues at a rate of 3.81% per annum from November 6, 2025. Amounts borrowed under the Company Facility will be repaid upon the earlier of (i) within five business days' notice of demand by the member, (ii) within five business days after the BCA Closing Date and (iii) within five business days after the BCA Termination Date. See "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—The Company's Relationships and Related Party Transactions." As of June 30, 2026, the Company had borrowed $6.6 million under the Company Facility.

Evernorth's primary source of liquidity are loans from its shareholder and XRP contributed to the Company which is also available to fund operating activities of Evernorth. On November 6, 2025, Evernorth entered into a master intercompany facility agreement with its shareholder (as amended, the "Evernorth Facility Agreement") establishing a $1.0 million revolving credit facility (the "Evernorth Facility"), and on February 11, 2026, Evernorth entered into an amendment to the Evernorth Facility Agreement. Interest on amounts drawn under the Evernorth Facility accrues at a rate of 3.81% per annum from November 6, 2025. Amounts borrowed under the Evernorth Facility will be repaid upon the earlier of (i) within five business days' notice of demand by the shareholder (ii) within five business days after the BCA Closing Date and (iii) within five business days after the BCA Termination Date. See "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Pubco's Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Evernorth Facility Agreement." As of June 30, 2026, Evernorth had not borrowed under the Evernorth Facility. In addition, certain operating costs of Evernorth have been paid on its behalf by the Company, resulting in amounts owed by Evernorth to the Company of $5.9 million as of June 30, 2026, which are reflected as a related party payable.

Since inception, Pubco has raised $214.1 million in cash and 261,919,096 in XRP relating to Private Placement Subscription Agreements ("Pubco XRP") dated on or about the Signing. Date. The Company, as required by certain of such Private Placement Subscription Agreements, subsequently used the $214.1 million of cash proceeds to purchase 84,365,876 XRP. As of June 30, 2026, Evernorth holds 346,284,972 tokens of XRP and the Company holds 126,791,458 tokens of XRP.

The Pubco XRP is subject to contractual restrictions associated with the pending Business Combination and may not be pledged, hypothecated, or otherwise used as collateral for any indebtedness or other obligation and must remain free and clear of all liens, charges, and other encumbrances. The Pubco XRP is held in a segregated custody account and may not be released until the earlier of (i) the closing of the Business Combination or (ii) the termination of the Business Combination in accordance with its terms.

We assess its liquidity in terms of its ability to generate adequate amounts of cash to meet current and future needs. Its expected primary uses of cash on a short and long-term basis are for working capital requirements and other liquidity needs. Our management expects that future operating losses and negative operating cash flows may increase from historical levels because of additional costs and expenses related to the business operations and the development of market and strategic relationships with other businesses. Our future capital requirements will depend on many factors, including the timing of the consummation of the Business Combination. We may seek to obtain additional financing to achieve its business plan through possible equity offerings or debt financing.

Contingent Transaction Fees

In connection with the proposed Transactions, the Company has entered into engagement letters with an investment bank that provide for certain fees payable only upon successful closing of the transaction. These include (i) an advisory fee of $4.0 million, (ii) a placement fee equal to 4% of eligible proceeds from PIPE or private placements and non-redemption arrangements entered into by the SPAC or the Company (together with the advisory fee, the "Contingent Fees") and (iii) reimbursable expenses up to $0.5 million. These fees are expected to be paid from the proceeds of the Business Combination and would reduce the Company's available liquidity upon closing. No liability has been recorded for the Contingent Fees as of June 30, 2026. We recorded an accrued liability of $0.5 million related to the reimbursable expenses as of June 30, 2026.

For Evernorth, for the period ended June 30, 2026, net cash used in operating activities was $1.3 million. Net loss of $188.1 million, as adjusted for non-cash items including a gain of $77.5 million related to changes in the fair value of refundable investor advances offset by a digital asset impairment charge of $264.1 million. Changes in operating assets and liabilities further impacted cash flows, including a $2.0 million increase in related party payables and a $1.8 million decrease in accounts payable and accrued liabilities.

For Evernorth, for the period from August 29, 2025 to December 31, 2025, net cash used in operating activities was $0.7. Net loss of approximately $152.7 million was offset by non-cash charges and changes in operating assets and liabilities. These reconciling items primarily consisted of a non-cash digital asset impairment charge of approximately $233.7 million, partially offset by a non-cash gain of approximately $82.1 million related to changes in the fair value of refundable investor advances, $0.2 million from changes in accounts payable and accrued liabilities and $0.2 million from changes in related party payable.

Cash Flows Used in Investing Activities

For the period from August 29, 2025 to December 31, 2025, Evernorth used approximately $214.0 million of cash in investing activities to acquire XRP using proceeds received from the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements.

Cash Flows Provided by Financing Activities

For the period ended June 30, 2026, Evernorth generated approximately $1.4 million of cash from financing activities, consisting primarily of $2.4 of proceeds from the Company to fund vendor obligations paid on behalf of Evernorth, partially offset by $1.0 million paid in deferred offering costs.

For the period from August 29, 2025 to December 31, 2025, Evernorth generated approximately $214.8 million of cash from financing activities, consisting primarily of $214.0 of cash received in connection with the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements. In addition, approximately $0.1 million of the proceeds received under these agreements is recorded as restricted cash as this amount is contractually required to be used to purchase XRP pursuant to the terms the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements. Evernorth also received $0.7 million in proceeds from the Company to fund vendor obligations paid on behalf of Evernorth.

Critical Accounting Estimates

The Company's and Evernorth's financial statements and the accompanying notes thereto included elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus are prepared in accordance with GAAP. The preparation of financial statements requires us to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets, liabilities, costs and expenses, and related disclosures. We base our estimates on assumptions that we believe to be reasonable under the circumstances. Actual results could differ significantly from our estimates. To the extent that there are differences between our estimates and actual results, our future financial statement presentation, financial condition, results of operations, and cash flows will be affected.

Digital Assets and Principal Markets

In August 2023, the Financial Accounting Standards Board issued Accounting Standards Update ("ASU") 2023-08, Intangibles—Goodwill and Other—Crypto Assets (Subtopic 350-60), which establishes new guidance for the subsequent measurement and disclosure of certain crypto assets. The guidance applies only to crypto assets that meet specified criteria.

Our holdings of XRP do not meet the scoping criteria for ASU 2023-08. Accordingly, we account for XRP as an indefinite-lived intangible asset under ASC 350-30 and measure such assets at cost, less impairment. In assessing impairment, the Company considers the lowest observable intraday price for one XRP on the principal market at any time since acquisition of the specific XRP held. An impairment loss is recognized when the carrying value of an XRP exceeds this lowest quoted price, in an amount equal to the difference.

In accordance with ASC 820, we determine the fair value of our XRP for purposes of evaluating contribution date fair value to determine cost and impairment based on quoted prices from its principal market, defined as the market with the greatest volume and level of activity for XRP that we have access to at the measurement date.

Our XRP is accounted for at cost less impairment, and therefore the principal market determination is applied when assessing whether the carrying value of XRP exceeds its fair value, rather than for recurring fair value measurement. Changes in the principal market, market liquidity, or price observability could materially affect our impairment conclusions.

As we do not actively trade XRP on digital asset markets, management evaluates observable market data across multiple eligible digital asset trading platforms to identify the principal market. In making this determination, management considers, among other factors, (i) market-based trading volume and level of activity, (ii) the consistency and stability of quoted prices across markets, and (iii) whether the markets are reasonably believed to operate in compliance with applicable regulatory, anti-money laundering, and know-your-customer requirements. Based on this assessment, we selected Coinbase as the trading platform market that represents the principal market for XRP for financial reporting purposes.

We reassess the principal market determination at least annually and monitor it to evaluate whether changes in market structure, trading activity, price dispersion, or accessibility would require a change in the identified principal market. Changes in the principal market could result in differences in the quoted prices used to measure the fair value of XRP and, accordingly, could materially affect reported digital asset balances and impairment charges. While we believe the assumptions used in determining the principal market are reasonable, actual results could differ if market conditions or available information change.

Refundable Investor Advances

Evernorth has elected the fair value option under ASC 825 Financial Instruments, to account for its refundable investor advances. Under the fair value option, refundable investor advances are remeasured at fair value on a recurring basis, with changes in fair value recognized in earnings. The fair value of the refundable investor advances is determined in accordance with ASC 820 Fair Value Measurement, using an exit price notion that reflects the amount that would be paid to transfer the obligation in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date. The valuation incorporates probability-weighted outcomes associated with the contractual settlement features of the advance, including the likelihood and fair value of XRP that would be returned to investors if the BCA does not close within the contractual time frame, and the issuance of Pubco shares upon consummation of the BCA at an assumed valuation of $10 per share. Increases (decreases) in the probability of consummation of the Proposed Business Combination and fair value of XRP would generally result in increase (decrease) in the fair value of the liability, respectively. As of June 30, 2026, the change in XRP price by $0.01 and change in probability of consummation of the BCA by 1% would lead to the change in fair value of the refundable investor advances by $1.0 million and $4.7 million, respectively. As of December 31, 2025, the change in XRP price by $0.01 and change in probability of consummation of the BCA by 1% would lead to the change in fair value of the refundable investor advances by $1.0 million and $1.9 million, respectively.

While Evernorth believes the valuation methodologies and assumptions used are reasonable and consistent with market participant assumptions, the estimation process is inherently subjective. Accordingly, actual results may differ from those estimates, and such differences could be material.

See Note 2 to the Company's and Evernorth's audited financial statements included elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus for a description of our significant accounting policies.

Off-Balance Sheet Arrangements

Other than as otherwise described in this proxy statement/prospectus, we do not have any off-balance sheet arrangements that have, or are reasonably likely to have, a material current or future effect on our financial condition, changes in financial condition, revenues, expenses, results of operations, liquidity, capital expenditures or capital resources.

Contractual Obligations

Evernorth has a contractual obligation to return cash and XRP contributed by investors through the Private Placement Subscription Agreements, which has been recorded as refundable investor advances. See above for discussion. The Company and Evernorth do not have any long-term debt, capital lease obligations, operating lease obligations or long-term non-cancellable liabilities.

Recent Accounting Pronouncements

See "Recent Accounting Pronouncements" described in Note 3 to the Company's and Evernorth's audited financial statements included elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus.

Emerging Growth Company Status

Pubco is expected to be an emerging growth company, as defined in the JOBS Act. Under the JOBS Act, emerging growth companies can delay adopting new or revised accounting standards issued subsequent to the enactment of the JOBS Act, until such time as to those standards apply to private companies. The Company and Evernorth have elected to use this extended transition period for complying with new or revised accounting standards that have different effective dates for public and private companies until the earlier of the date that it (i) is no longer an emerging growth company or (ii) affirmatively and irrevocably opts out of the extended transition period provided in the JOBS Act. As a result, these financial statements may not be comparable to companies that comply with the new or revised accounting pronouncements as of public company effective dates.

Quantitative and Qualitative Disclosures about Market Risk

The following discussion about our market risk exposures involves forward-looking statements. Actual results could differ materially from those projected in the forward-looking statements.

XRP Market Price Risk

Market risk refers to the risk that the market price of XRP held by Pubco will rise or fall, sometimes rapidly or unpredictably.

Custody Risk

Following the Transactions, Pubco's XRP will be held with third-party custodians, initially BitGo Trust, which we select based on various factors, including their financial strength and industry reputation. Custodian risk refers to the potential loss, theft, or misappropriation of our XRP assets due to operational failures, cybersecurity breaches, or financial difficulties experienced by these third parties. Although we monitor the financial health, insurance coverage, and security measures of our custodians, as well as obtaining service auditor reports, reliance on such third parties inherently exposes us to risks that we cannot fully mitigate. For more information, see "Information on the Company—Custody Arrangements."

Robert Kaiden	59	Director
Derar Islim	41	Director

Biographical information on our directors and executive officers is set forth below.

Asheesh Birla has served as the Chief Executive Officer, Secretary and Director of Pubco since September 2025. Mr. Birla previously served on Ripple's board of directors and has been part of Ripple's founding team since 2013. From 2013 to 2021, he served as General Manager of RippleNet, where he led the expansion of Ripple's network and led the development of payments product utilizing XRP, at a time when XRP emerged as one of the world's largest digital assets by market capitalization. Mr. Birla began his career in Silicon Valley as an entrepreneur, founding a content management company that was later acquired by Thomson Reuters, where he subsequently served as Vice President of Global Technology from 2005 to 2009. He has also been an active early-stage investor through Angel Track and has participated in or advised a number of fintech and blockchain ventures, including Nium, Azimo, MoneyGram, Thomson Reuters, Kno (acquired by Intel), and Bitso, a leading Latin American digital asset trading platform and Ripple partner. Mr. Birla holds a Master of Business Administration from the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania, where he also lectures on topics related to digital finance and venture innovation.

Stuart Alderoty is expected to serve as a Director of Pubco following the Closing. Mr. Alderoty has served as Chief Legal Officer of Ripple since 2019, where he oversees the company's global legal, compliance, and regulatory functions, and has served as the President of the National Cryptocurrency Association since 2025. He brings more than 40 years of legal and regulatory experience in the financial services industry. Prior to joining Ripple, Mr. Alderoty served as General Counsel and a member of the executive leadership teams at CIT Group Inc. and HSBC North America Holdings Inc. Earlier in his career, he was Managing Counsel at American Express Company, and was a partner at the international law firm LeBoeuf, Lamb, Greene & MacRae LLP, where he specialized in complex litigation. Mr. Alderoty holds a Juris Doctor from Rutgers Law School.

Ted Janus is expected to serve as a Director of Pubco following the Closing. Since 2009, Mr. Janus has served as Principal at J Capital, where he invests in private and public companies, focusing on financial and consumer technology companies, as well as private equity and venture capital funds. Previously, from 1997 to 2009, Mr. Janus served as Partner and Director of Research at Palo Alto Investors. Prior to that, he served as Vice President at Bank of America Investment Services, where he focused on finance and product management. Mr. Janus has more than 30 years of experience in investing and financial services and is a CFA charterholder. He holds a B.A. in Political Science from the University of California, Berkeley, and an M.B.A. from the University of California, Berkeley, Haas School of Business.

Robert Kaiden is expected to serve as a Director of Pubco following the Closing. Since 2026, Mr. Kaiden has served as Chief Financial Officer of OpenAI Foundation. Previously, Mr. Kaiden served as Chief Financial Officer of Inspirato and, prior to that, as Chief Accounting Officer of Twitter from 2015 to 2022. Earlier in his career, Mr. Kaiden was an Audit Partner at Deloitte & Touche LLP. He brings more than 35 years of leadership in finance and accounting. Mr. Kaiden currently serves on the Board of Directors of Away. He received his MBA from the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania.

Derar Islim is expected to serve as a Director of Pubco following the Closing. Dr. Islim is a financial executive with over 15 years of experience in global financial services and digital assets, whose career bridges traditional Wall Street finance and cutting-edge digital asset leadership. He most recently served as Chief Operating Officer at Antalpha (NASDAQ:ANTA), concurrently serving as Chief Executive Officer of its Americas and EMEA divisions. In these capacities, he spearheaded regional strategy and global operations for digital asset financing before transitioning to an advisory role in April 2026. Prior to Antalpha, Dr. Islim was a pivotal leader at Genesis Global Trading, a pioneering digital currency prime brokerage. As Chief Operating Officer and later as Interim Chief Executive Officer, he led the firm through industry turbulence, executing complex restructuring and strengthening corporate governance. His digital asset expertise is fortified by his traditional finance roots, including his tenure as Head of Risk at venture capital firm Hard Yaka and as a Senior Trader at Bank of America Merrill Lynch, specializing in funding and credit markets. Dr. Islim holds a Ph.D. in Financial Mathematics from Florida State University and is a Fulbright Scholar.

Matthew Frymier has served as the Chief Financial Officer of Pubco since September 2025. Mr. Frymier currently serves as a Director of Preformed Line Products Company, and as a Director of 1RT Acquisition Corp. Previously, he served as an Operating Executive at Financial Technology Partners, Chairman of the Chicago Stock Exchange, Chairman of FX Alliance, Inc., and was the Founder and Managing Partner of Corrum Capital Management LLC. Earlier in his career, Mr. Frymier led Bank of America Merrill Lynch's Global Strategic Capital Division, where he was responsible for strategic investments, partnerships and mergers and acquisitions designed to drive innovation and create shareholder value for the Bank of America enterprise. Mr. Frymier holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Colby College.

Sagar Shah is expected to serve as Chief Business Officer of Pubco following the Closing. Mr. Shah previously held several leadership positions at Ripple since 2020, including Chief of Staff for RippleNet, Head of Custody, and Senior Director of Stablecoins. Prior to joining Ripple, Mr. Shah held strategy and business operations roles at WeWork Inc., Salesforce, Inc., and Beepi, Inc. Mr. Shah began his career in financial services, including prior roles in investment banking, private equity and corporate development. Mr. Shah holds a Bachelor of Business Administration from the Stephen M. Ross School of Business at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, and a Master of Business Administration from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania.

Jessica Jonas is expected to serve as Chief Legal Officer of Pubco following the Closing. Ms. Jonas previously served as Chief Legal Officer of the Bitcoin Legal Defense Fund ("BLDF"). Prior to joining the BLDF, she held senior in-house legal roles at Gemini Trust Company, LLC and American Express Company. Before moving in-house, Ms. Jonas spent nearly a decade in private practice in New York and served as a law clerk in the Eastern District of New York. Ms. Jonas holds a Bachelor of Arts in English from Wesleyan University and a Juris Doctor from the University of North Carolina School of Law.

Megumi Nakamura is expected to serve as Chief Operating Officer of Pubco following the Closing. From 2014 to 2023, she was the Co-Founder and Chief Executive Officer of Apto Payments, and earlier co-founded 3taps (2009–2015). She has also held investment and advisory roles, including Investment Partner at Hard Yaka Ventures (2011–2020), Entrepreneur/Consultant/Advisor (2023–present), LP Advisor to Nyca Partners and Entrepreneur-in-Residence at Green Visor Capital (both 2019–present), and Board Member at Runway Group (2024–present). Ms. Nakamura began her career at Promontory Financial Group (2005–2014). She received her bachelor's degree from Princeton University.

Corporate Governance

Pubco will structure its corporate governance in a manner that SPAC and the Company believe will closely align its interests with those of its shareholders following the Transactions. Notable features of this corporate governance include:

- Pubco will have three standing committees, including an audit committee, a compensation committee and a nominating and governance committee;
- Pubco will have a classified board, with directors divided into three classes, designated Class I, Class II and Class III, and each class consisting, as nearly as may be possible, of one-third of the total number of directors constituting the entire board of directors;
- Pubco's audit committee will contain all "independent directors" under both the Nasdaq Rules and Rule 10A-3 under the Securities Act;
- At least one of Pubco's directors will qualify as an "audit committee financial expert" as defined by the SEC; and
- Pubco will implement a range of other corporate governance best practices, including implementing a robust director education program.

Composition of the Pubco Board After the Transactions

Pubco's business and affairs will be managed under the direction of the Pubco Board. The Pubco Board will initially consist of five persons designated prior to the Closing, with at least three of them qualifying as independent directors under Nasdaq Rules. For further information regarding the structure of the Pubco Board, see the sections entitled "Description of Pubco Securities."

Director Independence

In connection with the Transactions, the Pubco Board undertook a review of the independence of its anticipated directors and considered whether any such anticipated, director has a material relationship with it that could compromise that director's ability to exercise independent judgment in carrying out that director's responsibilities. Pubco expects that each of Ted Janus, Robert Kaiden and Derar Islim will be an "independent director," as defined under the rules of the Nasdaq.

Board Committees

The Pubco Board will direct the management of Pubco's business and affairs, as provided by the NRS, and will conduct its business through meetings of the Pubco Board and standing committees. Following the Closing, Pubco will have three standing committees, including an audit committee, a compensation committee and a nominating and governance committee.

In addition, from time to time, special committees may be established under the direction of the Pubco Board when necessary to address specific issues.

Audit Committee

Pubco's audit committee will be responsible for, among other things:

- appointing, compensating, retaining, evaluating, terminating and overseeing its independent registered public accounting firm;
- discussing with its independent registered public accounting firm their independence from management;
- reviewing, with its independent registered public accounting firm, the scope and results of their audit;

- approving all audit and permissible non-audit services to be performed by its independent registered public accounting firm;
- overseeing the financial reporting process and discussing with management and its independent registered public accounting firm the quarterly and annual financial statements that its files with the SEC;
- overseeing its financial and accounting controls and compliance with legal and regulatory requirements;
- reviewing its policies on risk assessment and risk management;
- reviewing related person transactions; and
- establishing procedures for the confidential anonymous submission of concerns regarding questionable accounting, internal controls or auditing matters.

The audit committee shall review and approve the declaration and issuance/payments of dividends or buybacks, capital expenditures exceeding an aggregate value of $10 million and perquisites.

The audit committee shall consist solely of three independent directors.

Upon the Closing, Pubco's audit committee will consist of Ted Janus, Robert Kaiden and Derar Islim with Robert Kaiden serving as chair. Rule 10A-3 of the Exchange Act and the Nasdaq Rules require that Pubco's audit committee must be composed entirely of independent members. The Pubco Board has affirmatively determined that each of Ted Janus, Robert Kaiden and Derar Islim meets the definition of "independent director" for purposes of serving on the audit committee under Rule 10A-3 of the Exchange Act and the Nasdaq Rules. Each member of Pubco's audit committee also meets the financial literacy requirements of the Nasdaq listing standards. In addition, the Pubco Board has determined that Ted Janus will qualify as an "audit committee financial expert," as such term is defined in Item 407(d)(5) of Regulation S-K. The Pubco Board will adopt a written charter for the audit committee, which will be available on Pubco's corporate website at https://www.evernorth.xyz/ upon the completion of the Transactions. The information on any of Pubco's websites is deemed not to be incorporated in this proxy statement/prospectus or to be part of this proxy statement/prospectus.

Compensation Committee

Pubco's compensation committee will be responsible for, among other things:

- reviewing and approving the corporate goals and objectives, evaluating the performance of and reviewing and approving the compensation of its Chief Executive Officer and other executive officers;
- administering any incentive compensation plans of Pubco approved by the Pubco Board;
- reviewing and approving all employment agreement and severance arrangements for Pubco's executive officers;
- making recommendations to the Pubco Board regarding the compensation of Pubco's directors; and
- retaining and overseeing any compensation consultants.

The compensation committee shall consist of three independent directors. Upon the completion of the Transactions, Pubco's compensation committee will consist of Ted Janus, Robert Kaiden and Derar Islim with Ted Janus serving as chair. The Pubco Board has affirmatively determined that each of Ted Janus, Robert Kaiden and Derar Islim meets the definition of "independent director" for purposes of serving on the compensation committee under the Nasdaq Rules, and are "non-employee directors" as defined in Rule 16b-3 of the Exchange Act. The Pubco Board will adopt a written charter for the compensation committee, which will be available on Pubco's corporate website at https://www.evernorth.xyz/ upon the completion of the Transactions. The information on any of Pubco's websites is deemed not to be incorporated in this proxy statement/prospectus or to be part of this proxy statement/prospectus.

Nominating and Governance Committee

Pubco's nominating and governance committee will be responsible for, among other things:

- developing the criteria and qualifications for membership on the Pubco Board;
- recruiting, reviewing, nominating and recommending candidates for election to the Pubco Board or to fill vacancies on the Pubco Board;
- reviewing candidates proposed by shareholders and conducting appropriate inquiries into the background and qualifications of any such candidates; and
- having such other powers and authority as the Board may provide by resolution.

The nominating and governance committee shall consist of three independent directors. Upon completion of the Transactions, Pubco's nominating and governance committee will consist of Ted Janus, Robert Kaiden and Derar Islim with Derar Islim serving as chair. The Pubco Board has affirmatively determined that each Ted Janus, Robert Kaiden and Derar Islim meets the definition of "independent director" under the Nasdaq Rules. The Pubco Board will adopt a written charter for the nominating and governance committee, which will be available on Pubco's corporate website at https://www.evernorth.xyz/ upon the completion of the Transactions. The information on any of Pubco's websites is deemed not to be incorporated in this proxy statement/prospectus or to be part of this proxy statement/prospectus.

Risk Oversight

Upon the Closing, one of the key functions of the Pubco Board will be informed oversight of Pubco's risk management process. The Pubco Board does not anticipate having a standing risk management committee, but rather anticipates administering this oversight function directly through the Pubco Board as a whole, as well as through various standing committees of the Pubco Board that address risks inherent in their respective areas of oversight. In particular, the Pubco Board will be responsible for monitoring and assessing strategic risk exposure, and Pubco's audit committee will have the responsibility to consider and discuss Pubco's major financial risk exposures and the steps its management will take to monitor and control such exposures, including guidelines and policies to govern the process by which risk assessment and management is undertaken. The audit committee will also monitor compliance with legal and regulatory requirements. Pubco's compensation committee will also assess and monitor whether Pubco's compensation plans, policies and programs comply with applicable legal and regulatory requirements.

Code of Business Conduct and Ethics

Pubco will adopt a written code of business conduct and ethics that applies to its directors, officers and employees, including its principal executive officer, principal financial officer, principal accounting officer or controller, or persons performing similar functions (the "Code of Conduct"). A copy of the Code of Conduct will be posted on Pubco's corporate website at https://www.evernorth.xyz/ upon the completion of the Transactions. The nominating and corporate governance committee of Pubco will be responsible for overseeing the Code of Conduct and must approve any waivers of the Code of Conduct for employees, executive officers and directors. In addition, Pubco intends to post on Pubco's website all disclosures that are required by law or the Nasdaq listing standards concerning any amendments to, or waivers from, any provision of the Code of Conduct. The information on any of Pubco's websites is deemed not to be incorporated in this proxy statement/prospectus or to be part of this proxy statement/prospectus.

BENEFICIAL OWNERSHIP OF SECURITIES

The following table and accompanying footnotes set forth information regarding (i) the beneficial ownership of SPAC Common Shares, as of August 20, 2026, (ii) expected beneficial ownership of shares of Pubco Stock immediately following completion of the Transactions and (iii) expected beneficial ownership of Company Units immediately following completion of the Transactions, assuming both that the Public Shareholders elect to have no Public Shares redeemed and alternatively that the Public Shareholders elect to have all of the Public Shares redeemed. Prior to the Closing, the sole member of the Company is Ripple.

This ownership information is provided in respect of:

- each person who is the beneficial owner of more than 5% of the issued and outstanding SPAC Common Shares;
- each of SPAC's current executive officers and directors;
- all of SPAC's current executive officers and directors as a group;
- each person expected to be the beneficial owner of more than 5% of the issued and outstanding shares of Pubco Stock and each person expected to be the beneficial owner of Company Units after the completion of the Transactions;
- each of Pubco's and the Company's current executive officers and directors;
- each person who is expected to become an executive officer or a director of Pubco or the Company upon completion of the Transactions; and
- all of Pubco's and the Company's expected executive officers and directors as a group.

Beneficial ownership is determined according to the rules of the SEC, which generally provide that a person has beneficial ownership of a security if he, she or it possesses sole or shared voting or investment power over that security, including options and warrants that are currently exercisable or exercisable within 60 days.

Pursuant to the SPAC Charter, each SPAC Common Share entitles the holder to one vote per share, except as otherwise described herein. Pursuant to the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter, each share of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class B Common Stock will entitle the holder to one vote per share. Pursuant to the Company A&R LLCA, Pubco, as the sole managing member of the Company, will control the management and affairs of the Company, and the other holders of Company Units do not have the power or authority to vote on, approve or consent to any matter or action taken by the Company, except as expressly provided in the Company A&R LLCA (notwithstanding any provision of the DLLCA), and will generally have no voting rights with respect to the Company's day-to-day operations.

Beneficial ownership of SPAC Common Shares prior to the completion of the Transactions is based on 31,590,000 SPAC Common Shares issued and outstanding as of August 20, 2026.

The expected beneficial ownership of shares of Pubco Stock and of Company Units immediately following completion of the Transactions assumes two scenarios:

(i) No Redemptions: This scenario assumes no Public Shareholders exercise their redemption rights.

(ii) 100% Redemptions: This scenario assumes that all Public Shareholders choose to exercise their redemption rights in respect of the 23,000,000 Public Shares.

Both scenarios assume, among other things, that (a) neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, (b) Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, (c) all Private Placement Investors fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, (d) the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, (e) no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the Incentive Plan, and (f) neither Ripple nor the Sponsor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market. In addition to the assumptions above, the table below assumes a Closing XRP Price as reported by Coinbase, our principal market, of $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026).

The beneficial ownership information below also assumes that the number of outstanding securities and securities convertible or exercisable within 60 days of August 20, 2026 of each of SPAC and Pubco are the same as the number of such securities outstanding and convertible or exercisable upon consummation of the Business Combination. Based on the foregoing assumptions, we estimate that there would be 64,002,173 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately following the consummation of the Business Combination in the No Redemptions scenario, and 31,238,640 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately following the consummation of the Business Combination in the "100% Redemptions" scenario. If the actual facts are different from the foregoing assumptions, ownership figures in Pubco and the columns under No Redemptions and 100% Redemptions in the table that follows will be different.

Unless otherwise noted in the footnotes to the following table, and subject to applicable community property laws, the persons and entities named in the table have sole voting and investment power with respect to their beneficially owned securities. Except as indicated in the footnotes to the table, each of the security holders listed below has sole voting and investment power with respect to SPAC Common Shares, shares of Pubco Stock or Company Units owned by such shareholders.

Pre-Transactions Beneficial Ownership Table of SPAC

The following table sets forth information regarding the beneficial ownership of SPAC Common Shares as of August 20, 2026, based on information obtained from the persons named below, with respect to the beneficial ownership of SPAC Common Shares, by:

- each person known by SPAC to be the beneficial owner of more than 5% of outstanding SPAC Common Shares;
- each of SPAC's executive officers and directors that beneficially owns SPAC Common Shares; and
- all of SPAC's executive officers and directors as a group.

In the table below, percentage ownership is based on 31,590,000 SPAC Common Shares, consisting of (i) 23,710,000 SPAC Class A Shares and (ii) 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares, issued and outstanding as of August 20, 2026. On all matters to be voted upon, except for the election of directors of the SPAC Board or continuing SPAC outside of the Cayman Islands, holders of the SPAC Class A Shares and SPAC Class B Shares vote together as a single class, unless otherwise required by applicable law. Currently, all of the SPAC Class B Shares are convertible into SPAC Class A Shares on a one-for-one basis.

Post-Transactions Beneficial Ownership Table of Pubco

The following tables sets forth information regarding the expected beneficial ownership of Pubco Stock following the Closing, assuming No Redemptions and 100% Redemptions of Public Shareholders exercising their redemption rights in connection with the Transactions, based on information obtained from the persons named below, with respect to the beneficial ownership of Pubco Stock, by:

- each person expected to be the beneficial owner of more than 5% of the issued and outstanding shares of Pubco Stock after the completion of the Transactions;
- each of Pubco's current executive officers and directors;
- each person who is expected to become an executive officer or a director of Pubco upon completion of the Transactions; and
- all of Pubco's expected executive officers and directors as a group.

Where applicable, the percentage of beneficial ownership for each individual or entity also reflects Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon the exercise of Pubco Warrants which will be exercisable within 60 days after the consummation of the Business Combination. Such shares underlying Pubco Warrants are deemed to be outstanding for the purpose of computing the percentage ownership of such individual or group, but are not deemed to be outstanding for the purpose of computing the percentage ownership of any other person shown in the table.

No Redemptions

In the table below, percentage ownership is respectively based on (i) 64,002,173 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock expected to be issued immediately following Closing, consisting of (a) 52,347,181 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock from existing shares and (b) 11,654,992 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock potentially issuable upon the exercise of Pubco Warrants and (ii) 11,878,017 shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock. All Pubco Warrants are exercisable within 60 days of the Transactions. Shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock will be entitled to economic rights, including the right to receive distributions in proportion to the number of shares held, but will have no voting rights except as required by the NRS and will not be listed for trading or transferable.

The following table is calculated on a fully diluted basis following completion of the Transactions, assuming no redemptions from Public Shareholders and other assumptions set forth elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus. Numbers may vary, including if the number of Public Shares redeemed is different.

(4) Arrington Capital Management, LLC, the general partner of Arrington XRP Capital Fund, LP. (the "GP") and J. Michael Arrington, as managing member of the GP, have voting and dispositive control over the shares held by Arrington XRP Capital Fund, L.P.

(5) Sponsor will share disposition and voting control of 11,384,825 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock with RippleWorks, a limited partner of the Sponsor. Pursuant to that certain letter agreement dated October 17, 2025 by and between RippleWorks and the Sponsor, RippleWorks has the right to consult with the Sponsor regarding the disposition of shares of Pubco Stock purchased with the RippleWorks Investment and to direct the voting of such shares. Rippleworks has a management team that makes decisions for the day-to-day operations of Rippleworks and a board of directors that oversees that management team. The board of directors is responsible for the establishment of policies and procedures with respect to the management of Rippleworks' investment assets. As a result, no individual member of Rippleworks' management or board of directors acting alone has the ability to exercise voting or dispositive power regarding Pubco's shares absent delegation of authority from the board of directors. The membership of Rippleworks' management and board of directors is subject to change from time to time. As a 501c3 Private Foundation, Rippleworks has no shareholders. Each of the members of Rippleworks' management and board of directors disclaims beneficial ownership of such shares.

(6) Ripple Labs Inc. has a management team that make decisions for the day-to-day operations of Ripple, and a board of directors that oversees that management team. Ultimately, as the controlling shareholder of Ripple, Chris Larsen has, in such capacity, voting and dispositive control over shares of Pubco held by Ripple.

(7) Consists of 4,544,212 and 1,792,003 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock held by Ripple and the Contributor Related Party Entity, respectively. Mr. Larsen may be deemed to beneficially own the shares directly or indirectly controlled by such entities, but each disclaims any beneficial ownership of the reported shares other than to the extent of any pecuniary interest they may have therein, directly or indirectly.

(8) Consists of shares of 8,580,909 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock held by the SBI Stockholders, collectively. Each such SBI Stockholder is either a subsidiary of or partnership directly or indirectly managed by SBI and, therefore, in such capacity, SBI may be deemed to have voting and investment power over the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock held by the SBI Stockholders. SBI is a Japanese corporation listed on the Tokyo Stock Exchange, Prime Market. Voting and dispositive decisions regarding such shares are made by SBI's board of directors upon a recommendation by management, acting by majority vote and, as a result, no individual member of SBI's board of directors acting alone has the ability to exercise voting or dispositive power regarding such shares. The membership of SBI's board of directors is subject to change from time to time. Each of the members of SBI's board of directors disclaims beneficial ownership of such shares. SBI's business address is 1-6-1 Roppongi Minato-ku, Tokyo, Japan 106-6019.

100% Redemptions

In the table below, percentage ownership is respectively based on (i) 31,238,640 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock expected to be issued immediately following Closing, consisting of (a) 19,583,649 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock from existing shares and (b) 11,654,992 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock potentially issuable upon the exercise of Pubco Warrants and (ii) 18,336,353 shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock. All Pubco Warrants are exercisable within 60 days of the Transactions. Shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock will be entitled to economic rights, including the right to receive distributions in proportion to the number of shares held, but will have no voting rights except as required by the NRS and will not be listed for trading or transferable.

The following table is calculated on a fully diluted basis following completion of the Private Placement Investments, assuming all Public Shares are redeemed and other assumptions set forth elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus. Numbers may vary if not all Public Shares are redeemed.

Post-Transactions Beneficial Ownership Table of the Company

The following tables set forth information regarding the expected ownership of Company Units (and the corresponding percentage equity interests) of the Company immediately following the Closing, assuming (i) No Redemptions and (ii) 100% Redemptions of Public Shareholders exercising their redemption rights in connection with the Transactions, based on information obtained from the persons named below, with respect to ownership of Company Units, by:

- each person expected to be the beneficial owner of Company Units after the completion of the Transactions;
- each of Pubco's current executive officers and directors to the extent such persons hold Company Units;
- each person who is expected to become an executive officer or a director of Pubco upon completion of the Transactions to the extent such persons hold Company Units; and
- all of Pubco's expected executive officers and directors as a group to the extent such persons hold Company Units.

No Redemptions

In the table below, percentage ownership is based on 76,073,308 Company Units expected to be outstanding immediately following the Closing, consisting of (a) 64,002,174 Company Units expected to be held by Pubco, including through its ownership of SPAC Surviving Subsidiary (which is intended to equal the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock expected to be outstanding immediately following the Closing, including shares potentially issuable upon the exercise of Pubco Warrants that are exercisable within 60 days of the Transactions) and (b) 12,071,134 Company Units expected to be held by the other members of the Company.

The following table is calculated on a fully diluted basis following completion of the Transactions, assuming no redemptions from Public Shareholders and other assumptions set forth elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus. Numbers may vary, including if the number of Public Shares redeemed is different.

Beneficial Owner(1)(2)	Number of Company Units Beneficially Owned	Approximate Percentage

(2) Assumes that the Closing XRP Price is $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026).

(3) Immediately following the Closing, Pubco will contribute substantially all of its assets (other than stock in SPAC Surviving Subsidiary and Company Units owned by it) and the SPAC Surviving Subsidiary will contribute substantially all of its respective assets to the Company in exchange for Company Units.

(4) Consists of 40,692,174 and 23,310,000 Company Units held by Pubco and the SPAC Surviving Subsidiary, respectively, the latter of which Pubco may be deemed to beneficially own by virtue of being the sole stockholder of SPAC Surviving Subsidiary following the Closing.

(5) Consists of 8,657,187 and 3,413,947 Company Units held by Ripple and the Contributor Related Party Entity, respectively. Mr. Larsen may be deemed to beneficially own the units directly or indirectly controlled by such entities, but each disclaims any beneficial ownership of the reported shares other than to the extent of any pecuniary interest they may have therein, directly or indirectly.

100% Redemptions

In the table below, percentage ownership is based on 46,553,365 Company Units expected to be outstanding immediately following the Closing, consisting of (a) 31,238,641 Company Units expected to be held by Pubco (which is intended to equal the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock expected to be outstanding immediately following the Closing, including shares potentially issuable upon the exercise of Pubco Warrants that are exercisable within 60 days of the Transactions) and (b) 15,314,724 Company Units expected to be held by the other members of the Company.

The following table is calculated on a fully diluted basis following completion of the Transactions, assuming 100% redemptions from Public Shareholders and other assumptions set forth elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus. Numbers may vary, including if the number of Public Shares redeemed is different.

EXECUTIVE AND DIRECTOR COMPENSATION

Pubco

Pubco is an "emerging growth company" within the meaning of the Securities Act and has elected to comply with the reduced compensation disclosure requirements available to such emerging growth companies.

No compensation was paid by Pubco to its named executive officers during the six months ended June 30, 2026 or in the fiscal years ended December 31, 2023, December 31, 2024 and December 31, 2025. There are no outstanding equity awards held by Pubco's named executive officers or directors as of June 30, 2026.

In connection with the Transactions, Pubco has entered into employment agreements with its executive officers, which such employment agreements provide for certain compensation and benefits (including the grant of equity awards), the material terms of which are described below. Accordingly, Pubco's executive officers may have interests in the Mergers that are different from, or in addition to, the stockholders of Pubco and SPAC.

Executive Officer Employment Agreements

In connection with the Transactions, Pubco has entered into employment agreements with each of its executive officers which set forth the terms and conditions of each executive officer's employment with Pubco from and after the Closing, and are contingent upon the occurrence of the Closing (collectively, the "Employment Agreements"). The Employment Agreements generally provide for an annual base salary of $50,000 for Mr. Birla, $500,000 for Mr. Frymier, $400,000 for Ms. Jonas, $300,000 for Mr. Shah, and $300,000 for Ms. Nakamura, and a target annual cash bonus opportunity of 50% of annual base salary for each of Messrs. Frymier and Shah and Ms. Jonas and Nakamura. The Employment Agreements provide for an initial grant of time-based restricted stock units ("RSUs") under the Incentive Plan with a targeted grant date value of $44,000,000 for Mr. Birla, $5,600,000 for Mr. Frymier, $4,500,000 for Ms. Jonas, $2,800,000 for Mr. Shah, and $2,800,000 for Ms. Nakamura (the "Initial Equity Awards"). The Initial Equity Awards are scheduled to vest 43.75% on September 3, 2026 or, for Ms. Nakamura, September 30, 2026 (or, if later, the first date following the Closing upon which the Rule 144 exemption under the Securities Act becomes available with respect to the resale of Pubco shares), and the remaining 56.25% will vest in eleven (11) equal quarterly installments on the 15th day of the middle month of the financial quarter during which a vesting date occurs, in each case, subject to continued employment through the applicable vesting date. In addition, the executives will be eligible to participate in Pubco's retirement and employee benefit plans, as in effect from time to time.

The Employment Agreements contain restrictive covenant obligations, including with respect to confidentiality, non-disparagement and a twelve (12) month post-employment non-solicitation commitment with respect to both Pubco personnel and customers (the "Restrictive Covenants").

Subject to the executive's release of claims and compliance with the Restrictive Covenants, in the event that the executive's employment is terminated by Pubco without "cause" (as defined therein), such executive officer will receive (i) nine (9) months of base salary continuation, (ii) payment of any earned, but unpaid, annual bonus, and (iii) twelve (12) months of subsidized continuation coverage under Pubco's group health and dental plans. In the event that the executive resigns for "good reason" (as defined therein), such executive will receive six (6) months of base salary continuation. Under the Employment Agreements, in the event a "change in control" (as defined in the Incentive Plan) occurs prior to the first vesting date of the Initial Equity Awards, then 50% of the Initial Equity Award will become vested as of the closing date of such change in control. In addition, in the event the executive's employment is terminated by the Company without cause or due to a resignation for good reason, in each case, on or within 12 months following a change in control at any time, then any then-unvested portion of the Initial Equity Award will accelerate and vest in full as of the termination date, subject to the execution and non-revocation of a release of claims.

Under the Employment Agreements, if any payments or benefits payable to the executive officers in connection with a "change in control" would constitute "parachute payments" under Section 280G of Code and trigger the excise tax under Section 4999 of the Code, those payments will be reduced only to the extent necessary to avoid the excise tax, but only if the reduced amount would result in a greater after-tax benefit to the executive officer than receiving the full amount and paying the excise tax.

Omnibus Incentive Plan and Equity Awards

As described in more detail in the section entitled "The Transactions—Other Transaction Agreements—Evernorth Holdings Inc. 2026 Omnibus Incentive Plan,", Pubco intends to approve and adopt prior to the consummation of the Mergers, the Incentive Plan, subject to approval by the Pubco stockholders as constituted prior to the Closing.

In addition to the Initial Equity Awards which will be granted each of our executive officers under the Incentive Plan (as described above), the Company intends to also grant one-time equity awards under the Incentive Plan to our executive officers following the closing of the Transactions (the "Founder Awards"). The Founder Awards will be granted in the form of time-based RSUs that have a target grant date value of $750,000 for each of our executive officers. The Founder Awards will vest as follows: (i) 25% will vest on the first anniversary of the closing of the Transactions (or, if later, the first date following the Closing upon which the Rule 144 exemption under the Securities Act becomes available with respect to the resale of Pubco shares); (ii) 25% will vest on the second anniversary of the Closing; and (iii) 50% will vest on the third anniversary of the Closing, in each case, subject to continued employment with the Company and its subsidiaries through the applicable vesting date. However, in the event of a "change in control" (as defined in the Incentive Plan), the then-unvested portion of the Founder Awards will accelerate and vest as of immediately prior to the change in control, subject to continued employment through the date of such change in control. In the event any additional Founder Awards are granted to any of our executive officers, such awards will be similarly granted pursuant to, and from the share pool reserve under, the Incentive Plan.

CERTAIN RELATIONSHIPS AND RELATED PARTY TRANSACTIONS

SPAC's Relationships and Related Party Transactions

Our Sponsor, officers and directors, or any of their respective affiliates, will be reimbursed for any out-of-pocket expenses incurred in connection with activities on our behalf such as identifying potential target businesses and performing due diligence on suitable business combinations. SPAC audit committee will review on a quarterly basis all payments that were made to Sponsor, officers, directors or our or any of their affiliates and will determine which expenses and the amount of expenses that will be reimbursed. There is no cap or ceiling on the reimbursement of out-of-pocket expenses incurred by such persons in connection with activities on our behalf.

Sponsor Securities Purchase Agreement

On August 12, 2025, SPAC entered into a Sponsor Securities Purchase Agreement (the "Purchase Agreement") with the Sponsor and Armada Sponsor II, LLC (the "Original Sponsor"), pursuant to which the Original Sponsor agreed to sell to the Sponsor, and the Sponsor agreed to purchase from the Original Sponsor, an aggregate of 7,880,000 SPAC Class B Shares, 400,000 SPAC Class A Shares, and 200,000 SPAC Private Warrants for an aggregate purchase price of $6,600,000 (such transaction, the "New Sponsor Purchase") and the Sponsor received a limited, revocable license to the Armada Acquisition Corp. II branding for a period of time that expires not later than November 22, 2026 (unless the termination date of the Company is extended to a later date). On August 28, 2025, the New Sponsor Purchase was completed pursuant to the terms of the Purchase Agreement, and the Sponsor owns all of the equity interests of SPAC held by the Original Sponsor. Following the closing of this transaction, the Sponsor owns all of the equity interests of SPAC held by the Original Sponsor, including 100% of the SPAC Class B Shares, and has the power to appoint all members of the SPAC Board.

The Sponsor is expected to transfer 10,000 SPAC Class B Shares to each of the independent members of the SPAC Board, Richard Danis, Lindy Key, and Ronald Palmeri, prior to the closing of the Business Combination.

Joinder Agreement

On August 28, 2025, the Sponsor entered that certain joinder to insider letter agreement and registration rights agreement (the "Joinder"). Pursuant to the Joinder, the Sponsor agreed, with effect from the date of the Joinder, to join as a party a letter agreement, dated May 20, 2025, among SPAC, the Original Sponsor and each of the directors and officers of the Company (the "Insider Letter"), and to that certain Registration Rights Agreement, dated May 20, 2025, among SPAC, the Original Sponsor, CCM, Northland and the other Holders (as defined therein) signatory thereto (the "Registration Rights Agreement"). Pursuant to the Insider Letter, the Sponsor and each of the directors and officers of SPAC have agreed, in each case as set forth therein, to vote in favor of SPAC's initial business combination; to facilitate the liquidation and winding up of SPAC if an initial business combination is not consummated within 18 months from the closing of the IPO or such later period approved by SPAC's shareholders; to certain transfer restrictions with respect to SPAC's securities; and, as to Sponsor, to certain indemnification obligations. The Registration Rights Agreement provides for customary demand and piggy-back registration rights for the Holders, as well as certain transfer restrictions applicable to the Holders with respect to the securities of SPAC that they hold.

Waiver to Insider Letter

On August 28, 2025, SPAC and certain other parties entered into a waiver agreement with respect to the Insider Letter, pursuant to which the parties thereto irrevocably waived certain provisions of the Insider Letter to the extent, but only to the extent, necessary or desirable to facilitate the purchase of the New Sponsor Purchase by the Sponsor from the Original Sponsor.

Sponsor Support Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, SPAC entered into the Sponsor Support Agreement, pursuant to which, among other things, the Sponsor agreed to (a) vote its SPAC Common Shares in favor of the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions and each of the proposals to be approved by SPAC shareholders at the Extraordinary General Meeting, (b) vote its SPAC Common Shares against (i) any Acquisition Proposal or Alternative Transaction, (ii) any merger, consolidation, combination, sale of substantial assets, reorganization, recapitalization, dissolution, liquidation or winding up of or by SPAC (other than the Transactions), (iii) any change in the business of SPAC, and (iv) any proposal, action or agreement involving SPAC that would or would reasonably be expected to impede, frustrate, prevent or nullify the Business Combination Agreement or any Ancillary Agreement, (c) during the Interim Period, comply with the restrictions imposed by the Insider Letter, including the restrictions on redeeming SPAC Common Shares in connection with the Transactions and complying with the transfer restrictions with respect to its SPAC Common Shares and SPAC Private Warrants, (d) subject to and conditioned upon the Closing, waive any anti-dilution rights in connection with the Transactions that would otherwise result in the SPAC Class B Shares converting into SPAC Class A Shares on a greater than one-for-one basis, (e) subject to and conditioned upon the Closing, effective as of the Closing, waive and forever discharge all Claims (as defined below) against the SPAC, Pubco, the Company and each of their respective and each of its and their past and present directors, officers, employees, agents, predecessors, successors, assigns, Affiliates and Subsidiaries, provided that nothing releases, waives or discharges any claim for fraud or the specific categories of claims expressly preserved in the Sponsor Support Agreement (including claims under the Sponsor Support Agreement or any other Ancillary Agreement, rights to receive Pubco securities thereunder, and indemnification rights) and (f) immediately prior to the Company Merger Effective Time, forfeit for no consideration 120,000 SPAC Class A Shares, 2,364,000 SPAC Class B Shares and 60,000 SPAC Private Warrants.

On August 12, 2026, SPAC, Pubco and Sponsor entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Sponsor Support Agreement for purposes of adjusting the number of SPAC Class A Shares, SPAC Class B Shares and Private Placement Warrants that will be forfeited by Sponsor at the Company Merger Effective Time. Specifically, Amendment No. 1 to the Sponsor Support Agreement provides that Sponsor will forfeit to SPAC for cancellation and for no consideration the Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares, the Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares and the Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants.

For the purposes of the preceding paragraph, "Claims" mean all past or present claims, demands, damages, debts, judgments, causes of action and liabilities of any nature whatsoever, whether or not known, suspected or claimed, arising directly or indirectly from any act, omission, event or transaction occurring (or any circumstances existing) at or prior to the Closing.

For additional information, see the section entitled "The Transactions—Other Transaction Agreements—The Sponsor Support Agreement."

Series C Subscription Agreement

In connection with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into a Series C Subscription Agreement with the Sponsor pursuant to which the Sponsor agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock for a contribution of 211,319,096.061435 XRP tokens, in a PIPE, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in such agreement. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and the Sponsor entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Series C Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Series C Subscribed Shares. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial share calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-share adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. The Sponsor will receive (i) a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would result in the Series C DQ

Persons (as defined below) owning, immediately after the Transaction Closing and the other related transactions, a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would cause the Series C DQ Persons to be the beneficial owners (as defined in Rule 13d-3 or 13d-5 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act"), or any successor statute or regulation) of capital stock of Pubco such that the Series C Attributed Ownership Percentage (as defined below) equals 19.9% and (ii) a number of shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock equal to the number of Series C Subscribed Shares minus the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issued to the Sponsor pursuant to clause (i). Under the Series C Subscription Agreement, as amended, the total Series C Subscribed Shares will equal the sum of (a) the Series C Initial Subscribed Shares and (b) the Series C Adjustment Shares, if any. For more information about the Series C Subscription Agreement, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Series C Subscription Agreement."

Advance Funding Subscription Agreements

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements with the Advance Funding Subscribers, pursuant to which the Advance Funding Subscribers agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, the Advance Funding Shares for $214.05 million in cash and a contribution of 600,000 XRP tokens, in a private placement, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and each Advance Funding Subscriber entered into Amendment No. 1 to the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Advance Funding Shares. Under the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, as amended, each Advance Funding Subscriber will receive a number of Advance Funding Shares at the closing of the Advance Funding equal to the sum of (a) the Advance Funding Initial Subscribed Shares and (b) the Advance Funding Adjustment Shares, if any. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial share calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-share adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price.

In addition to the changes reflected by Amendment No. 1 above, on August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and each of the SBI Stockholders further amended the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreements. The purpose of each SBI Entity Amendment is to apply a 39.9% ownership limitation to the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable in respect of SBI's Advance Funding Subscription. At the Transaction Closing, Pubco will issue in respect of SBI's subscription (i) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would cause the Subscriber Group Ownership Percentage (as defined in the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreement, as amended) to equal 39.9% and (ii) the balance of the Subscribed Shares as shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock. This allocation will not change the aggregate number of Subscribed Shares, the aggregate Subscription Price or the Per Share Price, which will be identical for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock. The shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock will be convertible into shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock in accordance with the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter.

Prior to the execution of the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, Pubco established the necessary custodial arrangements for both cash and XRP contributions, including entering into cash and digital asset custody agreements with third-party custodians and liquidity providers. Each Advance Funding Subscriber was required to fund its subscription amount either (i) in cash, by wire transfer of U.S. dollars to a segregated cash custody account maintained for the benefit of Pubco, or (ii) in XRP, by transfer to a designated digital wallet maintained with an independent XRP custodian. Following receipt of any cash Advance Funding Subscription proceeds, Pubco, on behalf of the Advance Funding Subscribers, instructed its cash custodian to transfer such proceeds (net of customary transaction and network fees) to its XRP custodian for use in purchasing XRP at then-prevailing market prices from one or more liquidity providers. In aggregate, the Company purchased 84,365,876.3625 XRP tokens with the cash proceeds from the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements. Such purchased XRP, together with any XRP originally contributed by the Private Placement Investors, are being held in escrow in an unencumbered digital custody wallet maintained in the name of Pubco but for the benefit of all such Private Placement Investors, pending completion of the Business Combination.

For more information about the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Advance Funding Subscription Agreements."

Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements with the Delayed Funding Subscribers, pursuant to which the Delayed Funding Subscribers agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, the Delayed Funding Shares for $10.5 million in cash and a contribution of 200,000 XRP tokens, in a private placement, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. Delayed Funding Subscribers will receive a number of Delayed Funding Shares at the closing of the Delayed Funding equal to the quotient of (i) the Delayed Funding Subscription Price and (ii) $10.00. The closing of each Delayed Funding Subscription is conditioned on, among other things, the satisfaction or waiver of all closing conditions to the consummation of the Business Combination and; the Delayed Funding Subscribers' consent to any amendments, modifications or waivers to the terms of the Business Combination Agreement that would reasonably be expected to materially and adversely affect the economic benefits to the Delayed Funding Subscribers.

For more information about the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements."

Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company and SPAC entered into the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement with the Contributor Related Party Entity, pursuant to which the Contributor Related Party Entity purchased and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests for 50 million XRP tokens in a private placement, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, the Company, SPAC and the Contributor Related Party Entity entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial equity-interest calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional equity- interest adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. The Contributor Related Party Entity will not receive a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would result in the Contributor Group Holders collectively owning, immediately after the Transaction Closing and the other related transactions, a number of shares that would cause the Contributor Group Ownership Percentage (as defined below) to exceed 9.9% and, to the extent the number of shares issued to the Contributor Group Holders is reduced as a result of the foregoing, the Contributor Related Party Entity will receive a number of Company Units equal to the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests minus the number of Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Shares. Under the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, as amended, the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscribed Equity Interests will equal the sum of (a) the Contributor Related Party Entity Initial Subscribed Equity Interests and (b) the Contributor Related Party Entity Adjustment Equity Interests, if any.

The Contributor Related Party Entity was required to transfer its subscription amount in XRP to a digital wallet designated by Pubco and maintained with an independent XRP custodian. Prior to executing the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, Pubco and the Company put in place the necessary custodial arrangements for the Contributor Related Party Entity's XRP contribution, including entering into a digital asset custody agreement with a third-party custodian.

For more information about the Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement."

Lock-Up Agreements

Concurrently with the Closing, the Sponsor, the SPAC Insiders and certain other parties will enter into Lock-Up Agreements with Pubco pursuant to which such parties will agree that the Restricted Securities will be locked-up and subject to transfer restrictions. For additional information, see the section entitled "The Transactions—Other Transaction Agreements—The Lock-Up Agreements"

Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement

Concurrently with the Closing of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, SPAC, the Sponsor and certain securityholders listed therein will enter into a registration rights agreement that will amend and restate the Registration Rights Agreement (the "A&R Registration Rights Agreement"), pursuant to which Pubco will assume the registration obligations of SPAC under such registration rights agreement, with such rights applying to the shares of Pubco Stock. For additional information, see the section entitled "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Pubco's Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement."

Indemnification Agreements

SPAC has entered into indemnification agreements with each of its directors and executive officers that may be broader than the specific indemnification provisions contained under the Cayman Islands law. These indemnification agreements require SPAC, among other things, to indemnify its directors and executive officers against liabilities that may arise by reason of their status or service to the fullest extent permitted by law. These indemnification agreements require SPAC to advance all expenses incurred by the directors and executive officers in investigating or defending any such action, suit, or proceeding to the fullest extent permitted by law.

Sponsor Ownership

Our Sponsor is a Delaware limited partnership. The general partner of the Sponsor is Arrington Capital Management, LLC, a Delaware limited liability company. J. Michael Arrington, a member of the SPAC Board, is the sole managing member of Arrington Capital Management, LLC, which is the general partner of the Sponsor. As of the date hereof, J. Michael Arrington is deemed to hold voting and dispositive control over the securities held directly by the Sponsor. J. Michael Arrington disclaims any beneficial ownership of the reported shares other than to the extent of any pecuniary interest he may have therein, directly or indirectly. Each of Mr. Arrington, Taryn Naidu, Chief Executive Officer of SPAC and member of the SPAC Board, Kyle Horton, Chief Financial Officer of SPAC, and Ronald Palmeri, a member of the SPAC Board, owns limited partner interests in the Sponsor and through them has an indirect interest in the Founder Shares, the SPAC Class A Shares, the SPAC Private Warrants and compensation the Sponsor receives in connection with the Transactions. In addition, the Sponsor is expected to transfer 10,000 SPAC Class B Shares to each of Richard Danis, Lindy Key, and Ronald Palmeri, each members of the SPAC Board, prior to the closing of the Business Combination.

Original Sponsor Transaction

On November 7, 2024, Original Sponsor purchased 7,880,000 Class B Shares from us for an aggregate purchase price of $25,000, or $0.00317 per share, of which up to 1,027,826 founder shares remained subject to forfeiture depending on the extent to which the Underwriters' over-allotment option is exercised during SPAC IPO. In connection with the Initial Public Offering, up to 1,027,826 founder shares were subject to forfeiture depending on the extent to which the Underwriters' over-allotment option was exercised during this offering. The number of founder shares, and the forfeiture mechanism underlying the founder shares, was determined in order to ensure that the founder shares represented 25% of the outstanding shares (including any shares underlying private placement units) upon completion of the Initial Public Offering and the exercise of the Underwriters' over-allotment option, if any.

In connection with SPAC IPO, the Original Sponsor purchased 400,000 private placement units at $10.00 per unit, and CCM and Northland, as representatives of the Underwriters in this offering, purchased an aggregate of 310,000 private placement units at a price of $10.00 per unit (the "Private Placement Units"). These purchases took place on a private placement basis simultaneously with the consummation of the Initial Public Offering and the over-allotment option, as applicable. A total of $231,150,000 out of the proceeds from the Initial Public Offering and the sales of the Private Placement Units was placed in a U. S.-based trust account maintained by Continental Stock Transfer & Trust Company, acting as trustee.

Cohen Agreement

In connection with SPAC IPO and the issuance and sale of Units, on May 20, 2025, we completed the private placement of Units at a price of $10.00 per Unit (the "Private Placement Units"), with the underwriter's over-allotment option being fully exercised, generating gross proceeds of $7,100,000, as follows: (A) 400,000 Private Placement Units ($4,000,000 in the aggregate) with the Original Sponsor, (B) 155,000 Private Placement Units ($1,550,000 in the aggregate) with Cohen & Company Capital Markets ("CCM") and (C) 155,000 Private Placement Units ($1,550,000 in the aggregate) with Northland Securities, Inc. ("Northland") (collectively, the "Private Placement"). The Private Placement Units, which were purchased by the Sponsor, CCM and Northland, are identical to the Units, except that, they (including the underlying securities) are (i) subject to certain limited exceptions, subject to transfer restrictions until 180 days following the consummation of the Company's initial business combination and (ii) entitled to registration rights.

In connection with the Business Combination, the Board took into account the financial analysis reviewed by CCM with the Board as well as the oral opinion of CCM rendered to the Board on October 19, 2025 as to the fairness, from a financial point of view, to our shareholders (other than New Sponsor and its affiliates) of equity value ascribed pursuant to the business combination. CCM subsequently confirmed its opinion by delivery of its fairness opinion. The Board also considered that the Board had received the fairness opinion from CCM.

Promissory Note

On July 27, 2026, the SPAC issued an unsecured promissory note to the Sponsor, pursuant to which the Sponsor may, in its discretion, provide working capital loans to the SPAC. For additional information, see Note 9 (Subsequent Events) to the SPAC's unaudited condensed financial statements included elsewhere in this proxy statement/prospectus.

Related Party Policy

SPAC's Code of Business Conduct will require us to avoid, wherever possible, all related party transactions that could result in actual or potential conflicts of interests, except under guidelines approved by the SPAC Board (or the audit committee). Related party transactions are defined as transactions in which (1) the aggregate amount involved will or may be expected to exceed $120,000 in any calendar year, (2) we or any of our subsidiaries is a participant, and (3) any (a) executive officer, director or nominee for election as a director, (b) greater than 5% beneficial owner of our shares, or (c) immediate family member, of the persons referred to in clauses (a) and (b), has or will have a direct or indirect material interest (other than solely as a result of being a director or a less than 10% beneficial owner of another entity). A conflict of interest situation can arise when a person takes actions or has interests that may make it difficult to perform his or her work objectively and effectively. Conflicts of interest may also arise if a person, or a member of his or her family, receives improper personal benefits as a result of his or her position.

SPAC audit committee, pursuant to its written charter, will be responsible for reviewing and approving related party transactions to the extent we enter into such transactions. The audit committee will consider all relevant factors when determining whether to approve a related party transaction, including whether the related party transaction is on terms no less favorable to us than terms generally available from an unaffiliated third party under the same or similar circumstances and the extent of the related party's interest in the transaction. No director may participate in the approval of any transaction in which he is a related party, and that director is required to provide the audit committee with all material information concerning the transaction. We also require each of our directors and executive officers to complete a directors' and officers' questionnaire that elicits information about related party transactions.

These procedures are intended to determine whether any such related party transaction impairs the independence of a director or presents a conflict of interest on the part of a director, employee or officer.

To further minimize conflicts of interest, we have agreed not to consummate an initial business combination with an entity that is affiliated with any of Sponsor, officers or directors, including (i) an entity that is either a portfolio company of, or has otherwise received a material financial investment from, any private equity fund or investment company (or an affiliate thereof) that is affiliated with any of the foregoing, (ii) an entity in which any of the foregoing or their affiliates are currently passive investors, (iii) an entity in which any of the foregoing or their affiliates are currently officers or directors, or (iv) an entity in which any of the foregoing or their affiliates are currently invested through an investment vehicle controlled by them, unless we have obtained an opinion from an independent investment banking firm, or another independent entity that commonly renders valuation opinions on the type of target business we are seeking to acquire, and the approval of a majority of SPAC disinterested independent directors that the business combination is fair to SPAC unaffiliated shareholders from a financial point of view.

The Company's Relationships and Related Party Transactions

Company Facility Agreement

On November 6, 2025, the Company entered into the Company Facility Agreement with Ripple, which was subsequently amended on February 11, 2026, establishing a $7.0 million revolving credit facility in order to fund certain working capital needs, transaction expenses and other general corporate purposes. Interest on amounts drawn under the Company Facility accrues at a rate of 3.81% p.a. from November 6, 2025. Amounts borrowed under the Company Facility will be repaid upon the earlier of (i) within five business days' notice of demand by Ripple, (ii) within five business days after the BCA Closing Date and (iii) within five business days after the BCA Termination Date (the "Company Facility Repayment Date"). The Company Facility Agreement contains customary representations and warranties, termination provisions and events of default. All principal and interest accrued is to be payable on the Company Facility Repayment Date. As of June 30, 2026, the Company had borrowed $6.6 million under the Company Facility, with all principal and interest accrued to be payable on the Company Facility Repayment Date. A copy of the Company Facility Agreement and the amendment thereto are filed as exhibits to the registration statement of which this prospectus forms a part.

Related Party Payables and Receivables

Certain operating costs of the Company have been paid on its behalf by Ripple, resulting in amounts owed by the Company to Ripple of $0.3 million as of June 30, 2026, which are reflected as a related party payable.

The Company has made draws on the Related Party Credit Facility to fund certain vendor payments on behalf of Evernorth. When the draws are made, a corresponding receivable is recorded. In addition, the Company makes certain vendor payments directly from its bank account on Evernorth's behalf. As of June 30, 2026, the Company recorded a related party receivable of $3.1 million, which includes $1.0 million of principal and $23,472 of accrued interest related to draws under the Related Party Credit Facility, and $2.1 million related to direct vendor payments made by the Company, all of which are due from Evernorth. As of December 31, 2025, the related party receivable totaled $716,710, consisting of $711,247 of principal and $5,463 of accrued interest. The receivable represents intercompany balances expected to be settled in the normal course of operations.

Other Relationships and Related Party Transactions

From the Company's inception through September 30, 2025, certain organizational and administrative activities were performed by Ripple exclusively in its capacity as sole member of the Company. These activities were undertaken without compensation or contractual arrangements and did not involve Ripple acting outside their ownership roles.

Pubco's Relationships and Related Party Transactions

Policies and Procedures for Related Party Transactions

Effective upon the Closing, the Pubco Board expects to adopt a written conflicts policy that will set forth the following policies and procedures for the review and approval or ratification of related party transactions to which the Company, as subsidiary of Pubco, will be subject. A "related party transaction" is a transaction, arrangement or relationship in which Pubco or any of its subsidiaries (including the Company) was, is or will be a participant, the amount of which involved exceeds $120,000 (or, for so long as Pubco remains a "smaller reporting company" the lesser of (i) $120,000 and (ii) 1% of Pubco's average total assets of the two completed fiscal years), and in which any related party had, has or will have a direct or indirect material interest. A "related party" means:

- any person who is, or at any time during the applicable period was, one of Pubco' executive officers or directors;
- any person who is known by Pubco to be the beneficial owner of more than five percent (5%) of Pubco voting stock;
- any immediate family member of any of the foregoing persons, which means any child, stepchild, parent, stepparent, spouse, sibling, mother-in-law, father-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, brother-in-law or sister-in-law of a director, executive officer or a beneficial owner of more than five percent (5%) of Pubco's voting stock, and any person (other than a tenant or employee) sharing the household of such director, executive officer or beneficial owner of more than five percent (5%) of Pubco's voting stock; and
- any firm, corporation or other entity in which any of the foregoing persons is a partner or principal, or in a similar position, or in which such person has a five percent (5%) or greater beneficial ownership interest in Pubco Stock.

Pubco will have policies and procedures designed to minimize potential conflicts of interest arising from any dealings it may have with its affiliates and to provide appropriate procedures for the disclosure of any real or potential conflicts of interest that may exist from time to time. Specifically, pursuant to its audit committee charter, the audit committee will have the responsibility to review related party transactions.

Sponsor Support Agreement

Pubco is a party to the Sponsor Support Agreement, described in the section entitled "SPAC's Relationships and Related Party Transactions."

Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement

Concurrently with the Closing, SPAC, Pubco, the Sponsor and certain securityholders listed therein will enter into the A&R Registration Rights Agreement that will amend and restate the registration rights agreement entered into between SPAC, the Original Sponsor and certain other securityholders thereto at the time of the SPAC IPO, and pursuant to which Pubco will (i) assume the registration obligations of SPAC under such registration rights agreement, with such rights applying to the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and (ii) provide registration rights with respect to the resale of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock held by the Sponsor and Ripple.

Pubco estimates that up to an aggregate of approximately 39,426,545 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, consisting of (i) 9,432,524 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding 15,120,318 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon conversion of Pubco Class C Common Stock, and 61,607 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon exercise of warrants, in each case held by Sponsor, (ii) 155,000 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable upon exercise of warrants held by certain SPAC shareholders, (iii) 3,365,416 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by Contributor, (iv) 1,327,146 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by the Contributor Related Party Entity, (v) 9,481,664 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by the Advance Funding Subscribers, and (vi) 482,870 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock outstanding held by the Delayed Funding Subscribers, will be subject to registration rights following the Transactions and the consummation of the Private Placement Investments, assuming, among other things, that neither SPAC, nor Pubco nor the Company enter into any additional financing arrangements after the date hereof and prior to Closing, that no Public Shareholders exercise redemption rights with respect to their Public Shares upon completion of the Transactions, that all Private Placement Investors fund their commitments as and when required under their Private Placement Subscription Agreements, that Ripple contributes the Contributed XRP as and when required under the Contribution Agreement, that the Closing SPAC Share Price is $10.00, that the Closing XRP Price is $1.04119 (which was the closing price for XRP as reported by the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" as of June 30, 2026), that no shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are issued pursuant to the Incentive Plan, and neither Ripple nor any Private Placement Investor purchases SPAC Class A Shares in the open market.

Lock-Up Agreements

Concurrently with the Closing, Ripple, the Sponsor, the Contributor Related Party Entity and the SPAC Insiders will enter into Lock-Up Agreements with Pubco pursuant to which such parties will agree that the Restricted Securities will be locked-up and subject to transfer restrictions, as described below, subject to certain exceptions. Excluding the impact of Pubco Warrants, 14,125,086 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (assuming no Redemptions by Public Shareholders), 11,684,203 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (assuming 25% Redemptions by Public Shareholders), 9,243,320 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (assuming 50% Redemptions by Public Shareholders), 6,802,437 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (assuming 75% Redemptions by Public Shareholders) or 1,665,676 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (assuming 100% Redemptions by Public Shareholders), in each case representing approximately 29.8% of the outstanding shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, will be subject to the lock-up and transfer restrictions described below, subject to certain exceptions.

Shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock held by such parties will be locked up until the earlier of (a) the Anniversary Release; and (b) the date on which Pubco consummates a liquidation, merger, capital stock exchange, reorganization or other similar transaction after the Closing which results in all of Pubco's stockholders having the right to exchange their shares of Pubco common stock for cash, securities or other property.

Company A&R LLCA

Overview

In connection with the Business Combination, Pubco, Ripple and the Contributor Related Party Entity will enter into the Company A&R LLCA. Following the Closing, and in accordance with the terms of the Company A&R LLCA, we will operate our business through the Company.

Management and Control

As the sole managing member of the Company, Pubco will control all of the Company's affairs and decision making, and, through its officers and directors, Pubco will be responsible for the Company's operational and administrative decisions and the day-to-day management of its business. Under the Company A&R LLCA, the other members and other holders of Company Units hold units that provide economic rights but, except as expressly provided in the Company A&R LLCA, do not have the power or authority to vote on, approve or consent to any matter or action taken by the Company (notwithstanding any provision of the DLLCA).

Distributions and Dividends

We will fund any dividends to our stockholders by causing the Company to make distributions to the holders of Company Units and us, subject to the limitations imposed by our debt agreements.

Tax Treatment of Company Units and Tax Distributions

The holders of Company Units will generally incur U.S. federal, state and local income taxes on their proportionate share of any net taxable income of the Company. Net profits and net losses of the Company will generally be allocated to its members pro rata in accordance with the percentages of their respective ownership of Company Units. The Company A&R LLCA will provide for pro rata cash distributions to the holders of Company Units for purposes of funding their tax obligations in respect of the taxable income of the Company that is allocated to them. Generally, these tax distributions will be computed based on the Company's estimate of the net taxable income of the Company allocable to each holder of Company Units multiplied by an assumed tax rate equal to the highest effective marginal combined U.S. federal, state and local income tax rate prescribed for an individual or corporate resident of New York, New York (taking into account the non-deductibility of certain expenses and the character of our income). As a result of (i) potential differences in the amount of net taxable income allocable to us and the other Company Unit holders, (ii) the lower tax rate applicable to corporations than individuals and (iii) the use of an assumed tax rate in calculating the Company's distribution obligations, we may receive tax distributions significantly in excess of our tax liabilities and obligations to make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement.

Relationship Between Pubco Class A Shares and Company Units

Except as otherwise determined by us, if at any time we issue a share of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the net proceeds received by us with respect to such share, if any, shall be concurrently invested in the Company and the Company shall issue to us one Company Unit, unless such share was issued by us solely to fund the purchase of a Company Unit from a holder of Company Units (upon an election by us to exchange such Company Unit in lieu of redemption following a redemption request by such holder of Company Units), in which case such net proceeds shall instead be transferred to the selling holder of Company Units as consideration for such purchase, and the Company will not issue an additional Company Unit to us. Similarly, except as otherwise determined by us, (i) the Company will not issue any additional Company Units to us unless we issue or sell an equal number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and (ii) should the Company issue any additional Company Units to any person, we will issue an equal number of shares of the Pubco Class B Common Stock to such person (unless otherwise waived by such person in accordance with the terms of the Company A&R LLCA). Conversely, if at any time any shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are redeemed, purchased or otherwise acquired by us, the Company will redeem, purchase or otherwise acquire an equal number of Company Units held by us, upon the same terms and for the same price per security, as the shares of Pubco Class A common stock are redeemed, purchased or otherwise acquired. In addition, the Company will not effect any subdivision (by any unit split, unit distribution, reclassification, reorganization, recapitalization or otherwise) or combination (by reverse unit split, reclassification, reorganization, recapitalization or otherwise) of the Company Units unless it is accompanied by a substantively identical subdivision or combination, as applicable, of each class of our common stock, and we will not effect any subdivision or combination of any class of our common stock unless it is accompanied by a substantively identical subdivision or combination, as applicable, of the Company Units.

Redemption and Exchange Rights of Company Unit Holders

Under the Company A&R LLCA, the holders of Company Units (other than us) will have the right, from and after the completion of this offering (subject to the terms of the Company A&R LLCA), to require the Company to redeem all or a portion of their Company Units for, at our election, newly-issued shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock on a one-for-one basis or a cash payment equal to the volume weighted average market price of one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each Company Unit redeemed (subject to customary adjustments, including for stock splits, stock dividends and reclassifications). If we decide to make a cash payment, the holder of a Company Unit has the option to rescind its redemption request within a specified time period. Upon the exercise of the redemption right, the redeeming member will surrender its Company Units to the Company for cancellation. The Company A&R LLCA requires that we contribute cash or shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock to the Company in exchange for an amount of newly issued Company Units in the Company equal to the number of Company Units redeemed from the holders of Company Units. The Company will then distribute the cash or shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock to such holder of a Company Unit to complete the redemption. In the event of a redemption request by a holder of a Company Unit, we may, at our option, effect a direct exchange of cash or Pubco Class A Common Stock for Company Units in lieu of such a redemption. Whether by redemption or exchange, we are obligated to ensure that at all times the number of Company Units that we own equals the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issued by us (subject to certain exceptions for treasury shares and shares underlying certain convertible or exchangeable securities). Shares of Pubco Class B Common Stock will be canceled on a one-for-one basis if we, following a redemption request of a holder of a Company Unit, redeem or exchange Company Units of such holder of a Company Unit pursuant to the terms of the Company A&R LLCA.

Participation Rights in Tender Offers and Similar Transactions

The Company A&R LLCA will provide that, in the event that a tender offer, share exchange offer, issuer bid, take-over bid, recapitalization or similar transaction with respect to Pubco Class A Common Stock is proposed by us or our stockholders and approved by our board of directors or is otherwise consented to or approved by our board of directors, the holders of Company Units will be permitted to participate in such offer by delivery of a notice of redemption or exchange that is effective immediately prior to the consummation of such offer. In the case of any such offer proposed by us, we are obligated to use our reasonable best efforts to enable and permit the holders of Company Units to participate in such offer to the same extent or on an economically equivalent basis as the holders of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock without discrimination. In addition, we are obligated to use our reasonable best efforts to ensure that the holders of Company Units may participate in each such offer without being required to redeem or exchange Company Units.

Transfer Restrictions

The Company A&R LLCA will provide that, except for transfers to us as provided above or to certain permitted transferees, the Company Units and shares of Pubco Class B Common Stock may not be sold, transferred or otherwise disposed of.

Indemnification

Subject to certain exceptions, the Company will indemnify all of its members and their officers and other related parties, against all losses or expenses arising from claims or other legal proceedings in which such person (in its capacity as such) may be involved or become subject to in connection with the Company's business or affairs or the Company A&R LLCA or any related document.

Dissolution and Liquidation

The Company may be dissolved upon (i) the determination by us to dissolve the Company or (ii) any other event which would cause the dissolution of the Company under the DLLCA, unless the Company is continued in accordance with the DLLCA. Upon dissolution, the Company will be liquidated and the proceeds from any liquidation will be applied and distributed in the following manner: (a) first, to creditors (including creditors who are members or affiliates of members) in satisfaction of all of the Company's liabilities (whether by payment or by making reasonable provision for payment of such liabilities, including the setting up of any reasonably necessary reserves) and (b) second, to the members in proportion to their vested Company Units.

Tax Receivable Agreement

Concurrently with the Closing, Pubco, the Company and the TRA Parties will enter into a tax receivable agreement (the "Tax Receivable Agreement"), which will provide for, among other things, payment by Pubco to the TRA Parties of 85% of the U.S. federal, state and local income tax savings realized or deemed to be realized by Pubco as a result of the increases in tax basis and certain other tax benefits and the exchange of units of the Company Surviving Subsidiary for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock (as more fully described in the Tax Receivable Agreement). For more information about the Tax Receivable Agreement, please see the section entitled "The Transactions—Other Transaction Agreements—Tax Receivable Agreement." A copy of the form of Tax Receivable Agreement is attached to this proxy statement/prospectus as Annex R.

Evernorth Facility Agreement

On November 6, 2025, Evernorth entered into the Evernorth Facility Agreement with Ripple, which was subsequently amended on February 11, 2026, establishing a $1.0 million a revolving credit facility in order to fund certain working capital needs, transaction expenses and other general corporate purposes. Interest on amounts drawn under the Evernorth Facility accrues at a rate of 3.81% p.a. from November 6, 2025. Amounts borrowed under the Evernorth Facility will be repaid upon the earlier of (i) within five business days' notice of demand by Ripple, (ii) within five business days after the BCA Closing Date and (iii) within five business days after the BCA Termination Date (the "Evernorth Facility Repayment Date"). The Evernorth Facility Agreement contains customary representations and warranties, termination provisions and events of default. As of June 30, 2026, Evernorth has not borrowed under the Evernorth Facility, with all principal and interest accrued to be payable on the Evernorth Facility Repayment Date. A copy of the Evernorth Facility Agreement and the amendment thereto are filed as exhibits to the registration statement of which this prospectus forms a part.

Related Party Payables with the Company

As of June 30, 2026, Pubco had vendor obligations that were funded through loan draws made by the Company or cash payment from the Company. When Pathfinder makes draws or pays vendors directly from its bank account on Pubco's behalf, a corresponding payable is recorded by Pubco. These transaction-related expenses primarily consist of professional service fees, including consulting, accounting, and legal fees, as well as other start-up costs. As of June 30, 2026, Evernorth recognized a related party payable of $3.1 million owed to the Company, which included $23,472 of interest. As of December 31, 2025, the related party payable totaled $0.7 million, inclusive of $5,463 of interest. This balance represents an intercompany obligation that Pubco expects to settle in the normal course of operations.

Related Party Payables with Ripple

Certain operating costs of Pubco have been paid on its behalf by Ripple, resulting in amounts owed by Evernorth to Ripple of $5.9 million as of June 30, 2026, which are reflected as a related party payable.

DESCRIPTION OF PUBCO SECURITIES

As a result of the SPAC Domestication and Mergers and pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement, (i) SPAC Delaware stockholders (including certain Private Placement Investors and the Sponsor) will receive shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock in the SPAC Merger and will become Pubco stockholders, (ii) Ripple will receive shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock in the Company Merger and (iii) the Sponsor will receive shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock. The following description summarizes the terms of Pubco's capital stock but does not purport to be complete, and it is qualified in its entirety by reference to the applicable provisions of NRS and the Proposed Organizational Documents. The Proposed Organizational Documents are filed as exhibits to the registration statement of which this joint proxy statement/prospectus forms a part. Unless otherwise indicated, this description applies to Pubco Securities following the Transactions.

Authorized Capital Stock

Pubco's currently authorized capital stock consists of 1,000 shares of common stock, par value $0.001 per share. If the proposals comprising the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals are approved, the authorized capital stock of Pubco will consist of 7,400,000,000 shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, 100,000,000 shares of Pubco Class B Common Stock and 2,400,000,000 shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock, and 100,000,000 shares of preferred stock, par value $0.001 per share. As of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus, there was one share of Pubco common stock issued and outstanding. All outstanding shares of Pubco capital stock are fully paid and non-assessable.

Pubco Stock

Voting Rights. Each holder of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class B Common Stock is entitled to one vote for each share held of record as of the record date on all matters voted on by stockholders, including the election of directors. Holders of Pubco Class C Common Stock will not be entitled to vote on any matters voted on by stockholders, except as required by the NRS, on any amendment to the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter that would change the powers, preferences or rights of the holders of shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock in a manner that is disproportionately adverse to the Pubco Class C Common Stock as compared to the Pubco Class A Common Stock or the Pubco Class B Common Stock, and any change to the maximum ownership restriction applicable to the Pubco Class C Common Stock in the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter. The Pubco Board is classified and each class shall serve for a term ending on the date of the third annual meeting next following the annual meeting at which such director was elected, and each director holds office for the term for which he or she is elected and until his or her successor is elected and qualified, except in the case of his or her death, resignation or removal, and pursuant to the terms and conditions set forth in the Proposed Organizational Documents.

Dividend Rights. Holders of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock are entitled to dividends and other distributions as may be declared by the Pubco Board out of funds legally available therefor, subject to any preferential or other rights of any outstanding Pubco preferred stock, if any. Holders of shares of Pubco Class B Common Stock are not entitled to dividends or other distributions.

Transferability. Shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock will be freely transferable, subject to any restrictions pursuant to the NRS and applicable federal securities laws. Transfers of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock held by Ripple and the Sponsor will be subject to the lock-up restrictions pursuant the Lock-Up Agreement and the Insider Letter, respectively. Shares of Pubco Class B Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock are subject to transfer restrictions. Shares of Pubco Class B Common Stock, if any, held by holders of Company Units may only be transferred together with an equal number of Company Units. If the Sponsor transfers any of their shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock to third parties other than their respective affiliates, then an equal number of shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock will be canceled and converted into an equal number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock.

Liquidation and Dissolution Rights. Subject to the preferential rights of any holders of shares of preferred stock then outstanding, if any, upon liquidation, dissolution or winding up of Pubco's affairs, holders of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock will be entitled to receive pro rata on a share-for-share basis, the assets available for distribution after payment of liabilities. Holders of shares of Pubco Class B Common Stock are not entitled to liquidating distributions.

Other. Pubco Stock has no preemptive, subscriptive or conversion rights and is not entitled to the benefits of any redemption or sinking fund provision.

Pubco Class B Common Stock

Pubco Class B Common Stock is not entitled to economic interests in Pubco. Holders of Pubco Class B Common Stock do not have any right to receive dividends or other distributions or to receive a distribution upon a liquidation or winding up of Pubco. However, if the Company makes distributions to Pubco, the other holders of Company Units will be entitled to receive distributions pro rata in accordance with the percentages of their respective Company Units.

If at any time the ratio at which Company Units are redeemable or exchangeable for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock changes from one for one as described under "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Pubco's Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Company A&R LLCA," the number of votes to which holders of Pubco Class B Common Stock are entitled will be adjusted accordingly.

At such time when no Company Units remain redeemable or exchangeable for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, the Pubco Class B Common Stock will be canceled and transferred to Pubco for no consideration and retired.

Pubco Preferred Stock

Upon authorization of the Pubco Board and without any action by the holders of Pubco Stock and in accordance with the terms and conditions set forth in the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter, Pubco may issue shares of one or more series of preferred stock from time to time. Upon establishing such a series of preferred stock, the Pubco Board will determine the number of shares of preferred stock of that series that may be issued and the rights and preferences of such series of preferred stock. The rights of any series of preferred stock may include, among others, relative, participation, optional or other special rights, if any, and such qualifications, limitations or restrictions on such shares including, without limitation, redemption rights, dividend rights, liquidation preferences, conversion or exchange rights, or any of the foregoing. As of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus, the Pubco Board has not designated or established any series of preferred stock.

Pubco Warrants

Each Pubco Warrant entitles the registered holder to purchase one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock at a price of $11.50 per share, subject to adjustment as discussed below, at any time commencing 12 months from the closing of the Business Combination. Pursuant to the Warrant Assignment, Assumption and Amendment, a warrant holder may exercise its warrants only for a whole number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock This means that only a whole warrant may be exercised at any given time by a warrant holder. The Pubco Warrants will expire at 5:00 p.m., New York City time, on the fifth anniversary of the closing of the Business Combination, or earlier upon redemption.

No Pubco Warrants will be exercisable for cash unless we have an effective and current registration statement covering the Pubco Warrant shares issuable upon exercise of the Pubco Warrants and a current prospectus relating to such Pubco Warrant shares. Notwithstanding the foregoing, if a registration statement covering the issuance of the Pubco Warrant shares issuable upon exercise of the Pubco Warrants is not effective within 90 days from the closing of the Business Combination, Pubco Warrant holders may, until such time as there is an effective registration statement and during any period when we shall have failed to maintain an effective registration statement, exercise Pubco Warrants on a cashless basis pursuant to an available exemption from registration under the Securities Act. If an exemption from registration is not available, holders will not be able to exercise their Pubco Warrants on a cashless basis. In the event of a cashless exercise, each holder would pay the exercise price by surrendering the Pubco Warrants for that number of Pubco Warrant shares equal to the quotient obtained by dividing (x) the product of the number of Pubco Warrant shares underlying the Pubco Warrants, multiplied by the difference between the exercise price of the Pubco Warrants and the "fair market value" by (y) the fair market value. The "fair market value" for this purpose will mean the average reported last sale price of the public shares for the five trading days ending on the trading day prior to the date of exercise.

Once the Pubco Warrants become exercisable, we may redeem the outstanding Pubco Warrants:

- at a price of $0.01 per Pubco Warrant;
- upon a minimum of 30 days' prior written notice of redemption, which we refer to as the 30-day redemption period; and if, and only if, the last reported sale price of the Pubco Class A Common Stock equals or exceeds $18.00 per share (as adjusted for share splits, dividends, reorganizations, recapitalizations and the like) for any 20 trading days within a 30-trading day period ending on the third trading day prior to the date on which we send the notice of redemption to the Pubco Warrant holders.

We will not redeem the Pubco Warrants unless a registration statement under the Securities Act covering the issuance of the Pubco Warrant shares underlying the Pubco Warrants to be so redeemed is then effective and a current prospectus relating to those Pubco Warrant shares is available throughout the 30-day redemption period, except if the Pubco Warrants may be exercised on a cashless basis and such cashless exercise is exempt from registration under the Securities Act. If and when the Pubco Warrants become redeemable by us, we may exercise our redemption right even if we are unable to register or qualify the underlying securities for sale under all applicable state securities laws.

If the foregoing conditions are satisfied and we issue a notice of redemption, each Pubco Warrant holder may exercise his, her or its Pubco Warrants prior to the scheduled redemption date. However, the price of the public shares may fall below the $18.00 trigger price (as adjusted) as well as the $11.50 exercise price (as adjusted) after the redemption notice is issued.

The redemption criteria for our Pubco Warrants have been conditioned on a share price which is intended to provide Pubco Warrant holders a reasonable premium to the initial exercise price and provide a sufficient differential between the then-prevailing share price and the exercise price so that if the share price declines as a result of our redemption call, the redemption will not cause the share price to drop below the exercise price of the Pubco Warrants.

If we call the Pubco Warrants for redemption as described above, our management will have the option to require all holders that wish to exercise Pubco Warrants to do so on a "cashless basis." In making such determination, our management will consider, among other factors, our cash position, the number of Pubco Warrants that are outstanding and the dilutive effect on our shareholders of issuing the maximum number of Pubco Warrant shares issuable upon exercise of outstanding Pubco Warrants. In such event, the holder would pay the exercise price by surrendering the Pubco Warrants for that number of Class A ordinary shares equal to the quotient obtained by dividing (x) the product of the number of Pubco Warrant shares underlying the Pubco Warrants to be so exercised, and the difference between the exercise price of the Pubco Warrants and the fair market value by (y) the fair market value. The "fair market value" shall mean the average reported last sale price of the public shares for the five trading days ending on the third trading day prior to the date on which the notice of redemption is sent to the holders of Pubco Warrants. No fractional shares will be issued upon redemption. If, upon redemption, a holder would be entitled to receive a fractional interest in a share, we will round down to the nearest whole number of the number of Pubco Class A Common Stock to be issued to the holder.

A holder of a Pubco Warrant may notify us in writing in the event it elects to be subject to a requirement that such holder will not have the right to exercise such Pubco Warrant, to the extent that after giving effect to such exercise, such person (together with such person's affiliates), to the Pubco Warrant agent's actual knowledge, would beneficially own in excess of 9.8% (or such other amount as a holder may specify) of the shares outstanding immediately after giving effect to such exercise.

The Pubco Warrants will be issued in registered form under the Warrant Assignment, Assumption and Amendment between Continental Stock Transfer & Trust Company, as warrant agent, and us. You should review a copy of the Warrant Assignment, Assumption and Amendment for a complete description of the terms and conditions applicable to the Pubco Warrants. The Warrant Assignment, Assumption and Amendment provides that the terms of the Pubco Warrants may be amended without the consent of any holder to cure any ambiguity or correct any defective provision, but requires the approval by the holders of at least 50% of the then outstanding Pubco Warrants to make any change that adversely affects the interests of the registered holders of Pubco Warrants.

The exercise price and number of Pubco Warrant shares issuable on exercise of the Pubco Warrants may be adjusted in certain circumstances including in the event of a dividend or our recapitalization, reorganization, merger or consolidation. However, except as described below, the Pubco Warrants will not be adjusted for issuances of Pubco Class A Common Stock at a price below their respective exercise prices.

If (x) we issue additional ordinary shares or equity-linked securities for capital raising purposes in connection with the closing of the Business Combination at an issue price or effective issue price of less than $9.20 per share (with such issue price or effective issue price to be determined in good faith by our board of directors, and in the case of any such issuance to our sponsor or its affiliates, without taking into account any founder shares held by them prior to such issuance), (y) the aggregate gross proceeds from such issuances represent more than 60% of the total equity proceeds, and interest thereon, available for the funding of the Business Combination on the date of the consummation of the Business Combination (net of redemptions), and (z) the Market Value is below $9.20 per share, the exercise price of the Pubco Warrants will be adjusted (to the nearest cent) to be equal to 115% of the greater of (i) the Market Value or (ii) the price at which we issue the additional shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock or equity-linked securities.

The Pubco Warrants may be exercised upon surrender of the warrant certificate on or prior to the expiration date at the offices of the warrant agent, with the exercise form on the reverse side of the warrant certificate completed and executed as indicated, accompanied by full payment of the exercise price (or on a cashless basis, if applicable), by certified or official bank check payable to us, for the number of Pubco Warrants being exercised. The Pubco Warrant holders do not have the rights or privileges of holders of Pubco Class A Common Stock and any voting rights until they exercise their Pubco Warrants and receive Pubco Class A Common Stock. After the issuance of Pubco Class A Common Stock upon exercise of the Pubco Warrants, each holder will be entitled to one vote for each share held of record on all matters to be voted on by stockholders.

Under the terms of the Warrant Assignment, Assumption and Amendment, we have agreed that as soon as practicable, but in no event later than 15 business days after the closing of the Business Combination, we will use our best efforts to file with the SEC a registration statement for the registration under the Securities Act of the Pubco Warrant shares and thereafter use its best efforts to cause the registration statement to become effective and to maintain the effectiveness of such registration statement until the expiration of the Pubco Warrants. However, we may not be able to do so and, if we do not maintain a current prospectus relating to the Pubco Warrant shares issuable upon exercise of the Pubco Warrants, holders will be unable to exercise their Pubco Warrants for cash and we will not be required to net cash settle or cash settle the Pubco Warrant exercise.

No fractional shares will be issued upon exercise of the Pubco Warrants. If, upon exercise of the Pubco Warrants, a holder would be entitled to receive a fractional interest in a share, we will, upon exercise, round down to the nearest whole number of shares to be issued to the Pubco Warrant holder. As a result, Pubco Warrant holders not purchasing an even number of Pubco Warrants must sell any odd number of Pubco Warrants in order to obtain full value from the fractional interest that will not be issued.

We have agreed that, subject to applicable law, any action, proceeding or claim against us arising out of or relating in any way to the Warrant Assignment, Assumption and Amendment will be brought and enforced in the courts of the State of New York or the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, and we irrevocably submit to such jurisdiction, which jurisdiction will be the exclusive forum for any such action, proceeding or claim. This provision applies to claims under the Securities Act but does not apply to claims under the Exchange Act or any claim for which the federal district courts of the United States of America are the sole and exclusive forum. However, there is uncertainty as to whether a court would enforce such provision, and investors cannot waive compliance with the federal securities laws and the rules and regulations thereunder.

Limitation of Liability and Indemnification of Officers and Directors

NRS Chapter 78 provides that directors and officers are not individually liable to corporations or their stockholders or creditors for damages for acts or the failure to act as directors or officers, unless the presumption of the business judgment rule has been rebutted and it is proven that the directors' or officers' act or failure to act constituted a breach of fiduciary duties and such breach involved intentional misconduct, fraud or a knowing violation of law. The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter includes an exculpation provision that eliminates or limits the liability of directors and officers of Pubco to the fullest extent permitted by the NRS.

The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter includes provisions that require Pubco to indemnify, to the fullest extent allowable under applicable law (including NRS 78.7502 and NRS 78.751), its directors and officers for certain liability and loss suffered and expenses incurred in connection with actions taken as Pubco's director or officer, or for serving at Pubco's request as a director or officer or another position at another corporation, entity or enterprise, as the case may be. Pubco must also advance reasonable expenses to Pubco directors, officers or employees, subject to Pubco's receipt of an undertaking from the indemnified party as required under the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter. The NRS and the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter permit Pubco to purchase and maintain directors' and officers' liability insurance to protect Pubco and Pubco's directors, officers, employees and agents for some liabilities.

The limitation of liability and indemnification provisions in the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter and the NRS may discourage stockholders from bringing a lawsuit against directors for breach of their fiduciary duty. These provisions may also have the effect of reducing the likelihood of derivative litigation against Pubco's directors and officers, even though such an action, if successful, might otherwise benefit Pubco and Pubco stockholders. The limitation of liability and indemnification provisions under the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter does not alter the liability of directors under the federal securities laws.

Governance of Pubco

Board Composition

The Pubco Board shall initially consist of five directors. Unless otherwise specified in the articles of incorporation, the directors shall be divided into three classes—Class I, Class II and Class III—with each class comprising approximately one-third of the total number of directors. Directors are elected at the annual meeting of stockholders on a staggered three-class basis, except in cases of vacancies. Each director elected serves until a successor is duly elected and qualified. Directors may be removed from office only for cause and only by the affirmative vote of the holders of at least the minimum percentage of the voting power of all outstanding shares of stock of Pubco entitled to vote generally in the election of directors, voting together as a single class, then permitted under the NRS for such vote but no less than a simple majority. The NRS currently requires two-thirds of the voting power for removal of directors from office.

The Pubco Board will select the chair of the Pubco Board from the independent directors on the Pubco Board, who will not have any special voting rights or casting vote in the event of a tie.

Board Meetings and Quorum

A majority of members of the Pubco Board will constitute a quorum for the transaction of any business. If a quorum shall not be present at any meeting of the Pubco Board or any committee thereof, the directors present thereat may adjourn the meeting from time to time, without notice other than announcement at the meeting of the time and place of the adjourned meeting, until a quorum shall be present. The Pubco Board will hold regular quarterly meetings which may be held either in person or by teleconference.

Board Decisions

Decisions of the Pubco Board may be adopted either by a simple majority of directors in attendance and voting at a duly convened meeting at which a quorum is present, or by unanimous (other than any director(s) abstaining in writing pursuant to and in accordance with NRS 78.315(2)) written consent without a meeting.

Ownership Restrictions

Contributor Group Maximum Ownership Restriction.

Pursuant to the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter, at any time that the Contributor Group Holders collectively own a number of shares of Pubco Stock that would cause such holders to be the beneficial owners (as defined in Rule 13d-3 or 13d-5 of the Exchange Act or any successor statute or regulation) of capital stock of Pubco such that the Contributor Group Ownership Percentage exceeds 9.9% (the "Ripple Group Maximum Ownership Restriction"), then Pubco may (i) redeem from one or more of the Contributor Group Holders a sufficient number of shares of Pubco Stock to eliminate such violation of the Ripple Group Maximum Ownership Restriction by paying in cash therefor a sum equal to the Redemption Price (as defined below), (ii) suspend those rights of stock ownership the exercise of which causes or could cause such violation of the Ripple Group Maximum Ownership Restriction and/or (iii) require the sale of as many shares of Pubco Stock held by such Contributor Group Holder(s) as is necessary to eliminate such violation of the Ripple Group Maximum Ownership Restriction, and if Pubco so requires, such Contributor Group Holders shall promptly sell, and take all actions to sell, such shares such that, following such sale, such violation of the Ripple Group Maximum Ownership Restriction has been eliminated. To the extent applicable, Pubco shall take action with respect to multiple holders of Pubco Stock so affected on a pro rata basis to such holders' respective holdings of shares of Pubco Stock. For purposes of the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter:

- the "Redemption Price" shall equal such price as is mutually determined by the applicable holder and Pubco or, if no mutually acceptable agreement can be reached, shall equal the Common Stock Fair Market Value (as defined below) or Preferred Stock Fair Market Value (as defined below) , if applicable;
- "Common Stock Fair Market Value" means:

  if the Common Stock is listed on a U.S. national or regional securities exchange (an "Exchange") on such date, the closing sale price per share (or if no closing sale price is reported, the average of the bid and ask prices or, if more than one in either case, the average of the average bid and the average ask prices) on such day as reported in composite transactions for the Exchange (the "Last Reported Common Stock Sale Price") (or, if such date is not a Trading Day, the Trading Day immediately preceding such date); or if the Common Stock is not publicly traded at the time of determination, then the fair value of the Common Stock as determined in good faith by a majority of the Disinterested Directors or a committee thereof;

- "Preferred Stock Fair Market Value" means:

  if the Preferred Stock is listed on an Exchange on such date, the closing sale price per share (or if no closing sale price is reported, the average of the bid and ask prices or, if more than one in either case, the average of the average bid and the average ask prices) on such day as reported in composite transactions for the Exchange (the "Last Reported Preferred Stock Sale Price" and together with the Last Reported Common Stock Sale Price, the "Last Reported Sale Price") (or, if such date is not a Trading Day, the Trading Day immediately preceding such date); or if the Preferred Stock is not publicly traded at the time of determination, then the fair value of the Preferred Stock as determined in good faith by a majority of the Disinterested Directors or a committee thereof;

- "Trading Day" means a day on which (A) trading in the Pubco Stock generally occurs on an Exchange, and (B) a Last Reported Sale Price for the Pubco Stock is available on such Exchange.

At least 15 but no more than 30 days (or such shorter period as determined by the Board of Directors) prior to any date on which Pubco Stock is to be redeemed to avoid a Ripple Group Maximum Ownership Restriction (a "Redemption Date"), written notice shall be sent by mail, first class postage prepaid, overnight mail, or electronic mail to each holder of record (at the close of business on the business day next preceding the day on which notice is given) of the shares of Pubco Stock to be redeemed, at the address last shown on the records of Pubco for such holder, notifying such holder of the redemption to be effected, specifying the number of shares to be redeemed from such holder, the Redemption Date, the Redemption Price, the place at which payment may be obtained and calling upon such holder to surrender to Pubco, in the manner and at the place designated, his, her or its certificate(s) (if any) representing the shares to be redeemed (the "Redemption Notice"). Except as provided in the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter, on or after the Redemption Date, each holder of shares of Pubco Stock to be redeemed shall surrender to Pubco the certificate(s) (if any) representing such shares, in the manner and at the place designated in the Redemption Notice, and thereupon the Redemption Price of such shares shall be payable to the order of the person whose name appears on such certificate(s) or in the stock ledger of Pubco as the owner thereof and all surrendered certificate(s) shall be canceled. In the event less than all the shares represented by any such certificate(s) are redeemed, a new certificate shall be issued representing the unredeemed shares.

From and after the Redemption Date, unless there shall have been a default in payment of the Redemption Price, all rights of the holders of shares of Pubco Stock designated for redemption in the Redemption Notice as holders of such shares of Pubco Stock (except the right to receive the Redemption Price without interest upon surrender of their certificate or certificates) shall cease with respect to such shares, and such shares shall not thereafter be transferred on the books of Pubco or be deemed to be outstanding for any purpose whatsoever.

RippleWorks and SBI Maximum Ownership Restrictions.

Notwithstanding anything in the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter to the contrary, at any time that an attempted Transfer or issuance by the Company of Pubco Stock, if applicable (collectively, an "Applicable Transfer"), would cause (A) the RippleWorks Attributed Ownership Percentage to exceed 19.9% (the "RippleWorks Maximum Ownership Restriction") or (B) the SBI Group Ownership Percentage to exceed 39.9% (the "SBI Maximum Ownership Restriction" and, together with the RippleWorks Maximum Ownership Restriction and the Ripple Group Maximum Ownership Restriction, the "Maximum Ownership Restrictions"), immediately prior to the Applicable Transfer being given effect, a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and/or Pubco Class B Common Stock equal to the Mandatory Conversion Number with respect to such Applicable Transfer shall, respectively, be converted into Pubco Class C Common Stock or the Applicable Transfer shall be void and of no force or effect such that, following such transactions and at the time the Applicable Transfer is given effect, the RippleWorks Attributed Ownership Percentage and the SBI Group Ownership Percentage shall not exceed the RippleWorks Maximum Ownership Restriction or the SBI Maximum Ownership Restriction, respectively (the "Applicable Transaction"); provided that (1) the conversion of shares as a result of an Applicable Transaction shall be applied on a pro rata basis with respect to the Pubco Class A Common Stock and/or Pubco Class B Common Stock taken into account in clause (x) of the definition of each of RippleWorks Attributed Ownership Percentage and SBI Group Ownership Percentage and (2) for the avoidance of doubt, an Applicable Transfer shall include any redemption of Pubco Class A Common Stock, Pubco Class B Common Stock or Voting Preferred Stock, if applicable, by Pubco that would cause the RippleWorks Attributed Ownership Percentage or the SBI Group Ownership Percentage to exceed the RippleWorks Maximum Ownership Restriction or the SBI Maximum Ownership Restriction, respectively. This is intended to ensure that (A) the RippleWorks Attributed Ownership Percentage does not exceed the RippleWorks Maximum Ownership Restriction and (B) the SBI Group Ownership Percentage does not exceed the SBI Maximum Ownership Restriction, and shall be interpreted in accordance therewith.

For these purposes, the "Mandatory Conversion Number" means, with respect to an Applicable Transfer, the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and/or Pubco Class B Common Stock that, if converted into Pubco Class C Common Stock or voided, as the case may be, would result in (i) the RippleWorks Attributed Ownership Percentage being equal to 19.9% or (ii) the SBI Group Ownership Percentage being equal to 39.9%, in each case after giving effect to the Applicable Transfer. The "SBI Group Ownership Percentage" is the quotient of (x) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class B Common Stock beneficially held by the SBI Group Holders and (y) the Outstanding Voting Shares, where "SBI Group Holders" means SBI, its affiliates and any other holders of Pubco Stock or Company Units who are collectively deemed to form a "group" as defined in Section 13(d) of the Exchange Act.

Each outstanding stock certificate that, immediately prior to an Applicable Transfer, represented one or more shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, Pubco Class B Common Stock or Voting Preferred Stock, as applicable, subject to an Applicable Transaction shall, upon such Applicable Transaction, be deemed to represent an equal number of shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock, without the need for surrender or exchange thereof, except to the extent that the Applicable Transfer of such shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, Pubco Class B Common Stock or Voting Preferred Stock, as applicable, is otherwise void. Pubco shall, upon the request of any holder whose shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock or Pubco Class B Common Stock, as applicable, have been converted into shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock as a result of an Applicable Transaction and upon surrender by such holder to Pubco of the outstanding certificate(s) formerly representing such holder's shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock or Pubco Class B Common Stock, as applicable (if any), issue and deliver to such holder certificate(s) representing the shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock into which such holder's shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock or Pubco Class B Common Stock, as applicable, were converted as a result of such Applicable Transfer (if such shares are certificated) or, if such shares are uncertificated, register such shares in book-entry form. Each share of Pubco Class A Common Stock or Pubco Class B Common Stock, as applicable, that is converted shall thereupon be canceled by Pubco and restored to the status of authorized but unissued shares.

In addition, automatic conversion of Pubco Class C Common Stock into Pubco Class A Common Stock upon a Transfer will not occur if such Transfer would cause (i) the RippleWorks Attributed Ownership Percentage to exceed 19.9% or (ii) the SBI Group Ownership Percentage to exceed 39.9%, and no shares of Pubco Class B Common Stock will be issued in connection with an issuance of Company Units to the extent such issuance would result in a violation of any Maximum Ownership Restriction.

The issuance of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock upon the conversion of any Pubco Class C Common Stock or the exchange of any Company Units pursuant to Article 10 of the Amended and Restated LLC Agreement of Pathfinder will be made without charge to the holders of such securities for any transfer taxes, stamp taxes or duties or other similar tax in respect of the issuance; provided that if any such shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock are to be issued in a name other than that of the then record holder of the securities being exchanged (or The Depository Trust Company or its nominee for the account of a participant of The Depository Trust Company that will hold the shares for the account of such holder), then such holder and/or the Person in whose name such shares are to be delivered shall pay to Pubco the amount of any tax that may be payable in respect of any transfer involved in the issuance or shall establish to the reasonable satisfaction of Pubco that the tax has been paid or is not payable.

Transferability, Redemption and Exchange

Under the Company A&R LLCA, the holders of Company Units will have the right, from and after the completion of this offering (subject to the terms of the Company A&R LLCA), to require the Company to redeem all or a portion of their Company Units for, at Pubco's election, newly issued shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock on a one-for-one basis or a cash payment equal to the volume weighted average market price of one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each Company Unit redeemed (subject to customary adjustments, including for stock splits, stock dividends and reclassifications) in accordance with the terms of the Company A&R LLCA. Additionally, in the event of a redemption request by a holder of Company Units, Pubco may, at Pubco's election, effect a direct exchange of cash or Class A common stock for Company Units in lieu of such a redemption. Shares of Pubco Class B Common Stock will be canceled on a one-for-one basis if Pubco, following a redemption request of a holder of Company Units, redeems or exchanges Company Units of such holder of Company Units pursuant to the terms of the Company A&R LLCA. See "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Pubco's Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Company A&R LLCA."

Except for transfers to us pursuant to the Company A&R LLCA or to certain permitted transferees, the Company Units and corresponding shares of Pubco Class B Common Stock may not be sold, transferred or otherwise disposed of.

Exclusive Forum

The Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws provide that, to the fullest extent permitted by Nevada law and unless Pubco consents in writing to the selection of an alternative forum, the Eighth Judicial District Court of Clark County, Nevada will be the sole and exclusive forum for: (i) any action brought in the name or right of Pubco or on its behalf, (ii) any action asserting a claim for breach of a fiduciary duty owed by any current or former director, officer, stockholder, employee, agent or fiduciary of Pubco to Pubco or its stockholders, (iii) any "internal action" (as defined in NRS 78.046), including any action asserting a claim against Pubco arising under NRS Chapters 78 or 92A, the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter or the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws, and any voting trust agreement or related agreement or as to which the NRS confers jurisdiction on the district court of the State of Nevada, (iv) any action to interpret, apply, enforce or determine the validity of the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter or the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws, or (v) any action asserting a claim governed by the internal affairs doctrine; provided that such exclusive forum provisions will not apply to suits brought to enforce any liability or duty created by the Exchange Act or any other claim for which the federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction. If the Eighth Judicial District Court of Clark County, Nevada lacks jurisdiction over any such action, the sole and exclusive forum will instead be another state district court located in Nevada, and if no state district court in Nevada has jurisdiction, then a federal court located within the State of Nevada will serve as the exclusive forum.

In addition, unless Pubco consents in writing to the selection of an alternative forum, the federal district courts of the United States of America will be the sole and exclusive forum for the resolution of any claim asserting a cause of action arising under the Securities Act. Section 22 of the Securities Act creates concurrent jurisdiction for federal and state courts over all suits brought to enforce a duty or liability created by the Securities Act or the rules and regulations thereunder. Accordingly, there is uncertainty as to whether a court would enforce such an exclusive federal forum provision as written in connection with claims arising under the Securities Act, and Pubco's stockholders will not be deemed to have waived (and cannot waive) Pubco's compliance with the federal securities laws and the rules and regulations thereunder.

To the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, any person or entity purchasing or otherwise acquiring any interest in any security of Pubco will be deemed to have notice of and consented to the exclusive forum provision in the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws.

Limited Waiver of Jury Trial

The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter provides that, to the fullest extent not inconsistent with any applicable U.S. federal laws, any and all "internal actions" (as defined in NRS 78.046) must be tried in a court of competent jurisdiction before the presiding judge as the trier of fact and not before a jury. Pursuant to NRS 78.046 (as amended effective May 30, 2025, pursuant to Assembly Bill No. 239), this requirement will conclusively operate as a waiver of the right to trial by jury by each party to any such internal action to the extent applicable and not otherwise prohibited by law, including the Securities Act and the Exchange Act and the rules and regulations thereunder. Under NRS 78.046, the limited waiver of trial by jury is only intended to apply to "internal actions" brought in state courts in the State of Nevada and does not limit or otherwise affect any right to a jury trial in any other action, suit or proceeding (including in state courts outside of Nevada and U.S. federal courts). Therefore, under current law, the limited waiver of trial by jury will not apply to claims brought under the Exchange Act, which are subject to exclusive federal jurisdiction, and will only apply to Securities Act claims if such claims are properly brought in state courts in the State of Nevada and constitute an "internal action" under NRS 78.046. To the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, any person or entity purchasing or otherwise acquiring any interest in shares of our capital stock will be deemed to have notice of and consented to the foregoing jury trial waiver provision; provided that our stockholders will not be deemed to have waived (and cannot waive) compliance with the federal securities laws (including the Securities Act and the Exchange Act) and the rules and regulations thereunder.

Transfer Agent and Registrar

The transfer agent and registrar for Pubco Stock will be Continental Stock Transfer & Trust Company.

Listing

Following the completion of the Mergers, the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock will be listed and traded on the Nasdaq under the symbol "XRPN."

COMPARISON OF SHAREHOLDERS' RIGHTS

If the SPAC Domestication and SPAC Merger are completed, SPAC Delaware stockholders will receive shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock in the SPAC Merger and they will become Pubco stockholders. SPAC is incorporated under the laws of the Cayman Islands and will be domesticated under the laws of the State of Delaware at least one Business Day prior to the Closing Date, and Pubco is organized under the laws of the State of Nevada. Below is a summary of the material differences between (1) the current rights of SPAC shareholders under Cayman Islands law and the SPAC Charter, (2) the rights of SPAC Delaware stockholders under the DGCL and its Proposed Certificate of Incorporation following the SPAC Domestication and prior to Closing and (3) the rights of holders of Pubco Stock, post-Closing, under Nevada law (including the NRS) and Pubco's Proposed Organizational Documents, as in effect immediately following the Transactions.

SPAC and Pubco believe that this summary describes the material differences between the rights of SPAC shareholders as of the date of this proxy statement/prospectus, the rights of SPAC Delaware stockholders following the SPAC Domestication and prior to Closing and the rights of holders of Pubco Stock after the Transactions; however, it does not purport to be a complete description of those differences. The summary is qualified in its entirety by reference to Pubco's, SPAC's and SPAC Delaware's governing documents, which we urge you to read carefully and in their entirety. Attached as Annex C to this proxy statement/prospectus is a copy of the form of the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter, and attached as Annex D to this proxy statement/prospectus is a copy of the form of Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws. Attached as Annex H to this proxy statement/prospectus is a copy of the Proposed Certificate of Incorporation, and attached as Annex U to this proxy statement/prospectus is a copy of the SPAC Charter. To find out where copies of these documents can be obtained, see the section entitled "Where You Can Find More Information" in this proxy statement/prospectus.

Comparison of Shareholder Rights Under Applicable Corporate Law

	Cayman Islands	Delaware	Nevada
Shareholder Votes for Routine Matters	Under Cayman Islands law and the SPAC Charter, routine corporate matters may be approved by an ordinary resolution (being a resolution passed by a simple majority of such shareholders as, being entitled to do so, vote in person or, where proxies are allowed, by proxy at a general meeting of the company (and, where a poll is taken, regard shall be had in computing a majority to the number of votes to which each shareholder is entitled) or by unanimous written resolution).	Unless otherwise provided in the certificate of incorporation or bylaws, approval of routine corporate matters other than director elections that are put to a stockholder vote requires the affirmative vote of the majority of shares present in person or represented by proxy at the meeting and entitled to vote on the subject matter. Unless otherwise provided in the certificate of incorporation or bylaws, director elections require a plurality vote.	Generally, under the NRS, unless the articles of incorporation or bylaws provide for different proportions, approval of routine corporate matters other than director elections that are put to a stockholder vote requires that the votes cast in favor exceed the votes cast against the matter at a stockholders' meeting at which a quorum is present. Directors are elected by a plurality of the votes cast at the election. The Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws are consistent with these NRS provisions.

	Cayman Islands	Delaware	Nevada
Appraisal Rights and Dissenters' Rights	Under certain circumstances, shareholders may dissent from a merger of a Cayman Islands company by following the procedure set out in the Cayman Companies Act. Shareholders that dissent from a merger are entitled to be paid the fair value of their shares, which, if necessary, may ultimately be determined by the courts of the Cayman Islands. These rights of are not available in certain circumstances, for example, to dissenters holding shares of any class in respect of which an open market exists on a recognized stock exchange or recognized interdealer quotation system at the relevant date or where the consideration for such shares to be contributed are shares of any company listed on a national securities exchange or shares of the surviving or consolidated company.	A stockholder of a publicly traded corporation generally has appraisal rights in connection with a merger unless the merger consideration is all stock in another publicly traded corporation or another exception applies.	Under the NRS, a stockholder is entitled to dissent from, and obtain payment for, the fair value of the stockholder's shares in the event of certain corporate transactions, including but not limited to the consummation of a plan of merger, if approval by the stockholders is required for the merger, the consummation of a plan of conversion or exchange, or any corporate action to which the stockholder would be obligated to accept money or scrip rather than receive a fraction of a share in exchange for the cancellation of all the stockholder's outstanding shares, except where the stockholder would not be entitled to receive such payment pursuant to NRS 78.205, 78.2055 or 78.207. Holders of covered securities (generally those that are listed on a national securities exchange) or shares traded in an organized market and held by at least 2,000 stockholders of record with a market value of at least $20,000,000 are generally not entitled to dissenter's rights. However, this exception is not available if (i) the articles of incorporation

			provide that such exception is not available, (ii) the resolution of the board of directors approving the plan of merger, conversion or exchange expressly provides otherwise or (iii) the holders of the class or series of stock are required to accept for the shares anything except cash, shares of stock or other securities as described in NRS 92A.390(3) or any combination thereof.
Inspection of Books and Records	Shareholders generally do not have any rights to inspect or obtain copies of the register of shareholders or other corporate records of a company. The directors may from time to time determine whether and to what extent and at what times and places and under what conditions or regulations the accounts and books of SPAC or any of them will be open to the inspection of shareholders not being directors, and no shareholder (not being a director) will have any right of inspecting any account or book or document of SPAC except as conferred by law or authorized by the directors or by ordinary resolution of SPAC.	Any stockholder, upon written demand stating the purpose thereof, may inspect the corporation's stock ledger and other books and records for a proper purpose during the usual hours for business.	Under the NRS, any person who has been a stockholder of record for at least the immediately preceding six months or any person holding, or authorized in writing by the holders of, at least 5% of the outstanding shares, upon at least five days' written demand, has the right to inspect the articles of incorporation, the bylaws and a stock ledger revised annually. Nevada corporations are not required to keep a list of beneficial owners. The corporation may require a stockholder to furnish an affidavit that an inspection is not for any purpose other than the business of the corporation. In addition, the NRS grants certain stockholders the right to inspect, make copies of and audit the books of account and financial statements of a corporation for any purpose related to the requesting stockholders' interest in the corporation as a stockholder. The right to inspect the books of account and financial statements of a corporation, to make copies of records and to conduct an audit of such records is granted only to a stockholder of record who owns at least 15% of the issued and outstanding shares, or who has been authorized in writing by the holders of at least 15% of such shares. However, this right does not apply with respect to any corporation that furnishes to its stockholders a detailed annual financial statement or that has filed during the preceding 12 months all reports required to be filed pursuant to Section 13 or Section 15(d) of the Exchange Act.

However, based on English authorities, which would in all likelihood be of persuasive authority and be applied by a court in the Cayman Islands, exceptions to the foregoing principle apply in circumstances in which: • a company is acting, or proposing to act, illegally or beyond the scope of its authority; • the act complained of, although not beyond the scope of the authority, could be effected if duly authorized by more than the number of votes which have actually been obtained; or • those who control the company are perpetrating a "fraud on the minority". The complaint must also set forth with particularity the efforts of the plaintiff to secure from the board of directors and, if necessary, from the stockholders such action as the plaintiff desires, and the reasons for the plaintiff's failure to obtain such action or the reasons for not making such effort. In any such action, at any time within 30 days after service of summons upon the corporation or any defendant who is an officer or director of the corporation or held such office at the time of the acts complained of, the corporation or such defendant may move the court for an order, upon notice and hearing, requiring the plaintiff to furnish security as hereinafter provided. Such motion must be based upon one or more of the following grounds: (a) that there is no reasonable possibility that the prosecution of the cause of action alleged in the complaint against the moving party will benefit the corporation or its security holders or (b) that the moving party, if other than the corporation, did not

Fiduciary Duties of Directors and Officers	Under Cayman Islands law, directors and officers owe the following fiduciary duties: • duty to act in good faith in what the director or officer believes to be in the best interests of the company as a whole; • duty to not improperly fetter the exercise of future discretion; • duty to exercise authority for the purpose for which it is conferred; • duty not to put themselves in a position in which there is a conflict between their duty to the company and their personal interests; and • duty to exercise independent judgment. In addition to fiduciary duties, directors owe a duty of care, diligence and skill. Such duties are owed to the company but may be owed to creditors	Directors owe fiduciary duties of care and loyalty to the company and its stockholders.	Fiduciary duties of directors and officers are codified in the NRS. The NRS requires that directors and officers of Nevada corporations exercise their powers in good faith, on an informed basis and with a view to the interests of the corporation. The NRS also provides as a matter of law that directors and officers are presumed to act in good faith, on an informed basis and with a view to the interests of the corporation in making business decisions. In performing such duties, directors and officers may exercise their business judgment through reliance on information, opinions, reports, financial statements and other financial data prepared or presented by corporate directors, officers or employees who are reasonably believed to be reliable and competent. Reliance may also be extended to legal counsel, public accountants, advisers, bankers or other persons reasonably believed to be competent, and to the work of a committee (on which the particular director or officer does

However, directors and officers may not rely on such information, opinions, reports, books of account or similar statements if they have knowledge concerning the matter in question that would make such reliance unwarranted.
Indemnification of Directors and Officers	A Cayman Islands company generally may indemnify its directors or officers, except to the extent any such indemnification may be held by the Cayman Islands courts to be contrary to public policy, such as to provide indemnification against willful default, willful neglect, actual fraud or the consequences of committing a crime. The SPAC Charter provides that SPAC's officers and directors will be indemnified by SPAC to the fullest extent permitted by law, as it now exists or may in the future be amended, including for any liability incurred in their capacities as such, except through their own actual	A corporation is generally permitted to indemnify its directors and officers acting in good faith and in a manner the person reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the corporation. Limited Liability of Directors	Liability of directors may be limited, except to the extent any such limitation may be held by the Cayman Islands courts to be contrary to public policy, such as with regard to their own willful default, willful neglect, or actual fraud. Under the SPAC Charter, every director and officer of SPAC, together with every former director and former officer (each a "D&O Indemnified Person") shall to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law be indemnified out of the assets of SPAC against any liability, action, proceeding, claim, demand, costs, damages or expenses, including	Permits limiting or eliminating the monetary liability of a director to a corporation or its stockholders, except with regard to breaches of duty of loyalty, intentional misconduct, unlawful repurchases or dividends or improper personal benefit.	Under the NRS, unless the articles of incorporation provide for greater individual liability, a director or officer is not individually liable to the corporation, its stockholders or its creditors for any damages as a result of any act or failure to act in his or her capacity as a director or officer unless the presumption of the business judgment rule (which is codified in NRS 78.138) is rebutted and it is proven that: (1) the director's or officer's act or failure to act constituted a breach of his or her fiduciary duties as a director or

The NRS does not distinguish as to, or exclude, breaches of the duty of loyalty or instances where the director has received an improper personal benefit.
Combinations With Interested Shareholders	Not applicable.	A corporation generally cannot engage in a business combination with an interested stockholder (i.e., a stockholder owning 15% or more of the corporation's voting stock) for three years after the stockholder becomes interested; except, (i) where the board approves the business combination before the stockholder becomes interested, (ii) when the interested stockholder owns at least	The Nevada combinations with interested stockholder statutes impose a two-year moratorium that extends to prohibit a business combination with an interested stockholder for up to four years, unless certain conditions are met. 	85% of the voting stock immediately after becoming interested and (iii) where board and at least two-thirds of the voting stock not owned by the interested stockholder approve the business combination.	(i) advance approval of the combination, or the transaction by which such person first becomes an interested stockholder, by the corporation's board of directors, (ii) approval of the combination by the board of directors and 60% of the corporation's voting power not beneficially owned by the interested stockholder, its affiliates and associates, or (iii) the combination meeting specified fair value requirements. After the two-year period, a combination remains prohibited unless (i) the combination or the transaction by which the person first became an interested stockholder is approved in advance by the board of directors as described above, (ii) the combination is approved by a majority of the outstanding voting power not beneficially owned by the interested stockholder and its affiliates and associates or (iii) the combination meets specified fair value requirements. Note that these statutes do not apply to any combination of a corporation and an interested stockholder after the expiration of four years after the person first became an interested stockholder.

	Cayman Islands	Delaware	Nevada
			The combinations statutes apply only to Nevada corporations with 200 or more stockholders of record. Companies are entitled to opt out of the combination statutes in the original articles of incorporation, or an amendment to the articles of incorporation approved by a majority of the outstanding voting power not then beneficially owned by interested stockholders or their affiliates and associates, but the amendment would not be effective until 18 months after the vote of the stockholders to approve the amendment, and would not apply to any combination with a person who first became an interested stockholder on or before the effective date of the amendment.
Acquisitions of Controlling Interests	Not applicable.	Not applicable.	Pursuant to Nevada's acquisition of controlling interest statutes, any person who acquires a controlling interest in a corporation may not exercise voting rights on any control shares unless such voting rights are conferred by a majority vote of the disinterested stockholders of the issuing corporation at a special meeting of stockholders. A "controlling interest"

		means the ownership of outstanding voting shares of an issuing corporation sufficient to enable the acquiring person, individually or in association with others, directly or indirectly, to exercise (i) one-fifth or more but less than one-third, (ii) one third or more but less than a majority or (iii) a majority or more of the voting power of the issuing corporation in the election of directors, and once an acquirer crosses one of these thresholds, shares which it acquired in the transaction taking it over the threshold and within the 90 days immediately preceding the date when the acquiring person acquired or offered to acquire a controlling interest become "control shares" to which the voting restrictions apply. In the event that the control shares are accorded full voting rights and the acquiring person acquires control shares with a majority or more of all the voting power, any stockholder, other than the acquiring person, who does not vote in favor of authorizing voting rights for the control shares is entitled to exercise dissenter's rights.

Cayman Islands	Delaware	Nevada
		The controlling interest statutes do not apply to any acquisition of a controlling interest if the articles of incorporation or bylaws of the corporation in effect on the 10th day following the acquisition of a controlling interest by the acquiring person provide that the provisions do not apply to the corporation or to an acquisition of a controlling interest specifically by types of existing or future stockholders, whether or not identified. In addition, the controlling interest statutes apply as of a particular date only to a corporation that has 200 or more stockholders of record, at least 100 of whom have addresses in Nevada appearing on the corporation's stock ledger at all times during the 90 days immediately preceding that date, and which does business directly or indirectly or through an affiliated corporation in Nevada. Nevada corporations are entitled to opt out of the above controlling interest provisions of the NRS. In the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws, the Company opt outs of these provisions.

With certain limited exceptions, the holders of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class B Common Stock will vote together as a single class on all matters submitted to a vote or for the consent of the stockholders of Pubco (or, if any holders of Preferred Stock are entitled to vote together with the holders of Pubco Common Stock, as a single class with such holders of Preferred Stock).
Issuances of Preferred Stock Without Stockholder Consent	The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter provides that the Pubco Board is empowered to authorize by resolution(s) from time to time the issuance of one or more series of Pubco Preferred Stock and, by filing a certificate of designation pursuant to NRS 78.1955, to establish from time to time the number of shares to be included in each such series, and to fix the designations, powers, preferences and relative, participating, optional or other rights, if any, and the qualifications, limitations or restrictions thereof, if any, with respect to each such series of Pubco Preferred Stock and the number of shares constituting each such series, and to increase or decrease the number of shares of any such series to the extent permitted by the NRS and the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter.	The SPAC Charter provides the issuance of 1,000,000 preference shares with such designations, rights and preferences as may be determined from time to time by the SPAC Board. Accordingly, the SPAC Board is empowered under the SPAC Charter, without shareholder approval, to issue preference shares with dividend, liquidation, redemption, voting or other rights which could adversely affect the voting power or other rights of the holders of SPAC Common Shares.
Shareholder/Stockholder Written Consent in Lieu of a Meeting	The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter provides that action required or permitted to be taken at any annual or special meeting of stockholders may only be taken upon a vote of stockholders at an annual or special meeting of stockholders duly noticed and called in accordance with the corporation's bylaws and the NRS and may not be taken by written consent of stockholders without a meeting.	The SPAC Charter provides that shareholder resolutions may be passed by a vote in person, or where proxies are allowed by proxy at a general meeting, or by unanimous written resolution.

Classified Board	The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter provides that except as otherwise provided in the terms of any series of Pubco Preferred Stock entitled to separately elect directors, the directors shall be divided into three classes, designated Class I, Class II and Class III with each director serving for a three-year term. The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter also provides that the Board, by resolution, shall determine the number of directors on the Board.	The SPAC Charter provides that SPAC's board of directors will be divided into three classes with only one class of directors being appointed in each year and each class (except for those directors appointed prior to SPAC's first annual general meeting) serving a three-year term. The SPAC Charter also provides that there shall be a board of directors consisting of not less than one person provided however that subject to the requirement to have at least one director, the directors may from time to time fix the maximum and minimum number of directors to be appointed by resolution of the board of directors.
Corporate Name	Pubco's corporate name is Evernorth Holdings Inc.	The name of the company is Armada Acquisition Corp. II.
Perpetual Existence	The NRS provides that any Nevada corporation, unless otherwise provided in its articles of incorporation, has perpetual existence. The Amended and Restated Pubco Charter does not provide otherwise.	The SPAC Charter provides that, unless such time frame is extended by a special resolution of shareholders or the SPAC Board determines to wind up the SPAC earlier (in each case in accordance with the SPAC Charter), if SPAC does not consummate a business combination within 18 months from the consummation of the IPO, SPAC shall cease all operations except for the purpose of winding up and shall redeem the shares issued in the IPO and liquidate the Trust Account.
Takeovers by Interested Stockholders	Pubco has elected in the Amended and Restated Pubco Charter not to be governed by Nevada's Combinations with Interested Stockholders statutes (NRS 78.411 through 78.444, inclusive). Pubco has also elected in the Amended and Restated Pubco Bylaws that Nevada's Acquisitions of Controlling Interest statutes (NRS 78.348 through 78.3793, inclusive)	The SPAC Charter does not provide for any anti-takeover provisions however the SPAC Charter does (i) provide for a the issuance of up to 1,000,000 preference shares with such designations, rights and preferences as may be determined from time to time by the SPAC Board and (ii) provide that, unless such time frame is extended by a

Dividends

SPAC, Pubco and the Company have not paid any cash dividends on their equity securities to date and do not intend to pay cash dividends prior to the completion of the Transactions. The payment of cash dividends by Pubco in the future will be dependent upon the revenues and earnings, if any, capital requirements and general financial condition subsequent to the completion of the Transactions. Following the completion of the Transactions, the Pubco Board will consider whether or not to institute a dividend policy. It is presently intended that Pubco will retain its earnings for use in business operations and, accordingly, it is not anticipated that the Pubco Board will declare dividends in the foreseeable future. Further, if Pubco incurs further indebtedness, its ability to declare dividends may be limited by restrictive covenants Pubco may agree to in connection therewith.

OTHER SHAREHOLDER COMMUNICATIONS

SPAC shareholders and interested parties may communicate with the SPAC Board, any committee chairperson or the non-management directors as a group by writing to the SPAC Board or committee chairperson in care of Armada Acquisition Corp. II at 382 NE 191st St., Suite 602, Miami, FL 33179-3899. Following the Transactions, such communications should be sent in care of Pubco at 600 Battery St. San Francisco, California 94111, and its telephone number is (415) 322-3046. Each communication will be forwarded, depending on the subject matter, to the SPAC Board, the appropriate committee chairperson or all non-management directors.

LEGAL MATTERS

The validity of the shares of Pubco Stock to be issued in connection with the Transactions will be passed upon, as to matters of Nevada law, by Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck, LLP. The U.S. federal income tax consequences of the Transactions will be passed upon by Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati, P.C. Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP have passed upon the validity of the Pubco Warrants under New York law.

HOUSEHOLDING INFORMATION

Unless SPAC has received contrary instructions, SPAC may send a single copy of this proxy statement/prospectus to any household at which two or more shareholders reside if SPAC believes the shareholders are members of the same family. This process, known as "householding," reduces the volume of duplicate information received at any one household and helps to reduce SPAC's expenses. However, if shareholders prefer to receive multiple sets of SPAC's disclosure documents at the same address this year or in future years, the shareholders should follow the instructions described below. Similarly, if an address is shared with another shareholder and together both of the shareholders would like to receive only a single set of SPAC's disclosure documents, the shareholders should follow these instructions:

- if the shares are registered in the name of the shareholder, the shareholder should contact SPAC at the following address:

  Armada Acquisition Corp. II
  382 NE 191st St., Suite 602
  Miami, FL 33179-3899
  Email: finance@arringtoncapital.com

- if a broker, bank or nominee holds the shares, the shareholder should contact the broker, bank or nominee directly.

SOLICITATION OF PROXIES

SPAC will bear the expenses incurred in connection with the printing and mailing of this proxy statement/prospectus. To assist in the solicitation of proxies, SPAC has retained Georgeson as its proxy solicitor, for a fee of $20,000 plus reimbursement of out-of-pocket expenses for their services. SPAC and its proxy solicitor may also request banks, brokers, trustees and other intermediaries holding SPAC Common Shares beneficially owned by others to send this proxy statement/prospectus to, and obtain proxies from, the beneficial owners and may reimburse such record holders for their reasonable out-of-pocket expenses in so doing. Solicitation of proxies by mail may be supplemented by telephone and other electronic means, advertisements and personal solicitation by the directors, officers or employees of SPAC. No additional compensation will be paid to SPAC's directors, officers or employees for solicitation.

SHAREHOLDER PROPOSALS

The SPAC Board is aware of no matters other than the Business Combination Proposal, the Merger Proposal, the Domestication Proposal, the Advisory SPAC Delaware Documents Proposal, the Advisory Organizational Documents Proposals, and the Adjournment Proposal that may be brought before the Extraordinary General Meeting. However, if any other matter should properly come before the Extraordinary General Meeting, the persons named in the enclosed proxies will vote such proxies in accordance with their judgment on any such matters. Under Cayman Islands law, only the business that is specified in the notice of meeting to shareholders for the Extraordinary General Meeting may be transacted at the Extraordinary General Meeting.

If the Transactions are consummated, you will be entitled to attend and participate in Pubco's annual meetings of stockholders. If Pubco holds an annual meeting of stockholders, it will provide notice of or otherwise publicly disclose the date on which the annual meeting will be held.

REPORT OF INDEPENDENT REGISTERED PUBLIC ACCOUNTING FIRM

To the Shareholders and Board of Directors of Armada Acquisition Corp. II

Opinion on the Financial Statements

We have audited the accompanying balance sheet of Armada Acquisition Corp. II (the "Company") as of September 30, 2025, the related statements of operations, changes in shareholders' deficit, and cash flows for the period from October 3, 2024 (inception) through September 30, 2025, and the related notes (collectively referred to as the "financial statements"). In our opinion, the financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Company as of September 30, 2025, and the results of its operations and its cash flows for the period from October 3, 2024 (inception) through September 30, 2025, in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

Explanatory Paragraph – Going Concern

The accompanying financial statements have been prepared assuming that the Company will continue as a going concern. As more fully described in Note 1 to the financial statements, the Company is a Special Purpose Acquisition Corporation that was formed for the purpose of completing a merger, capital stock exchange, asset acquisition, stock purchase, reorganization or other similar business combination with one or more businesses on or before November 22, 2026. The Company entered into a definitive merger/business combination agreement with a business combination target on October 19, 2025; however, the completion of this transaction is subject to the approval of the Company's shareholders among other conditions. There is no assurance that the Company will obtain the necessary approvals, satisfy the required closing conditions, raise the additional capital it needs to fund its operations, and complete the transaction prior to November 22, 2026, if at all. The Company also has no approved plan in place to extend the business combination deadline and fund operations for any period of time after November 22, 2026, in the event that it is unable to complete a business combination by that date. These conditions raise substantial doubt about the Company's ability to continue as a going concern. Management's plan in regard to these matters are also described in Note 1. The financial statements do not include any adjustments that might result from the outcome of this uncertainty.

Basis for Opinion

These financial statements are the responsibility of the Company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on the Company's financial statements based on our audit. We are a public accounting firm registered with the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (United States) ("PCAOB") and are required to be independent with respect to the Company in accordance with the U.S. federal securities laws and the applicable rules and regulations of the Securities and Exchange Commission and the PCAOB.

We conducted our audit in accordance with the standards of the PCAOB. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement, whether due to error or fraud. The Company is not required to have, nor were we engaged to perform, an audit of its internal control over financial reporting. As part of our audit we are required to obtain an understanding of internal control over financial reporting but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the Company's internal control over financial reporting. Accordingly, we express no such opinion.

Our audit included performing procedures to assess the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements, whether due to error or fraud, and performing procedures that respond to those risks. Such procedures included examining, on a test basis, evidence regarding the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. Our audit also included evaluating the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the financial statements. We believe that our audit provides a reasonable basis for our opinion.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
SEPTEMBER 30, 2025

NOTE 1. DESCRIPTION OF ORGANIZATION AND BUSINESS OPERATIONS

Organization and General

Armada Acquisition Corp. II (hereinafter, the "Company" or the "SPAC") was incorporated as a Cayman Islands exempted company on October 3, 2024. The Company is a newly organized blank check company or special purpose acquisition company, formed for the purpose of entering into a merger, share exchange, asset acquisition, share purchase, recapitalization, reorganization or similar business combination with one or more businesses (the "Business Combination"). The Company has not selected any specific business combination target. Its efforts to identify a prospective target business will not be limited to a particular industry or geographic region although it intends to focus on target businesses that provide technological services to the financial services industry ("FinTech"), Software-as-a-Service("SaaS"), or artificial intelligence ("AI"). The Company became an "emerging growth company," as defined in Section 2(a) of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the "Securities Act"), as modified by the Jumpstart Our Business Startups Act of 2012 (the "JOBS Act") upon the closing of the initial public offering ("Initial Public Offering") described below.

As of September 30, 2025, the Company had not commenced any operations. All activity for the period from October 3, 2024 (date of inception) through September 30, 2025, relates to the Company's formation and the Initial Public Offering. The Company will not generate any operating revenues until after completion of the Business Combination, at the earliest. The Company generates non-operating income in the form of interest income on investments held in the Trust Account described below. The Company has selected September 30 as its fiscal year end.

Sponsor, Founder and Proposed Financing

For the period from October 3, 2024 (date of inception) through August 28, 2025 the Company's sponsor was Armada Sponsor II LLC, a Delaware limited liability company (the "Original Sponsor"). Effective August 28, 2025, upon completion of the Purchase Agreement (as defined below) Arrington XRP Capital Fund, LP, a Delaware limited partnership is the Company's sponsor (the "New Sponsor").The registration statement for the Company's Initial Public Offering was declared effective on May 20, 2025. On May 22, 2025, the Company consummated the Initial Public Offering of 23,000,000 units at $10.00 per unit, which is discussed in Note 3, which includes the full exercise of the over-allotment option of 3,000,000 Units, by Cohen and Company Capital Markets a division of J.V.B. Financial Group, LLC ("CCM") and Northland Securities, Inc. ("Northland") (collectively, the "Underwriters")— which is discussed in Note 4, generating gross proceeds of $230,000,000. Simultaneously with the closing of the Initial Public Offering, the Company consummated the sale of an aggregate of 710,000 private placement units, 400,000 of which were purchased by the Original Sponsor and 310,000 purchased by the underwriter at a price of $10.00 per private placement unit, generating gross proceeds of $7,100,000. The net proceeds from the Initial Public Offering and a portion of the proceeds from the Private Placement are held in the Trust Account (discussed below).

Transaction costs amounted to $14,413,386, consisting of $4,600,000 of cash underwriting fee, $9,200,000 of deferred underwriting fee, and $613,386 of other offering costs.

Changes in Control of Registrant

On August 12, 2025, the Company entered into a Sponsor Securities Purchase Agreement (the "Purchase Agreement") with the Original Sponsor and the New Sponsor, pursuant to which the Original Sponsor agreed to sell to the New Sponsor, and the New Sponsor agreed to purchase from the Original Sponsor, an aggregate of 7,880,000 Class B ordinary shares, par value $0.0001 per share, 400,000 Class A ordinary shares, par value $0.0001 per share, and 200,000 private placement warrants of the Company for an aggregate purchase price of $6,600,000 (such transaction, the "New Sponsor Purchase") and the New Sponsor received a limited, revocable license to the Armada Acquisition Corp. II branding for a period of time that expires not later than November 22, 2026 (unless the termination date of the Company is extended to a later date). On August 28, 2025, the New Sponsor Purchase was completed pursuant to the terms of the Purchase Agreement (the "Closing"), the appointments and resignations of directors of the Company described below and in the Schedule 14F and Item 5.02 of the company's Current Report on Form 8-K as filed with the SEC on August 28, 2025 became effective, and the Original Sponsor ceased to control the Company. Following the Closing, the New Sponsor owns all of the equity interests of the Company held by the Original Sponsor, including 100% of the Company's Class B ordinary shares, has the power to appoint all members of the board of directors of the Company (the "Board"), and may therefore be deemed to control the Company.

On August 28, 2025, Stephen P. Herbert, Douglas M. Lurio, Mohammad A. Khan, Thomas Decker and Celso L. White resigned as directors of the Company, Stephen P. Herbert resigned as Chief Executive Officer and principal executive officer of the Company, and Douglas M. Lurio resigned as President and Chief Financial Officer and principal financial and accounting officer of the Company. There was no known disagreement with any of the outgoing directors or officers on any matter relating to the Company's operations, policies or practices.

On August 28, 2025, J. Michael Arrington, Taryn Naidu, Richard Danis, Lindy Key and Ronald Palmeri were appointed as directors of the Company, with Mr. Arrington being appointed as the Chairman of the Board. On August 28, 2025, Taryn Naidu was appointed as Chief Executive Officer and principal executive officer of the Company, and Kyle Horton was appointed as Chief Financial Officer and principal financial and accounting officer of the Company. Each such director and officer entered into an indemnification agreement with the Company in a form substantially consistent with the Company's standard form in connection with their appointment.

Mr. Herbert, former Chief Executive Officer of the Company, and Mr. Lurio, former President and Chief Financial Officer of the Company, have entered into advisor agreements with the Company to serve as advisors to Taryn Naidu in his capacity as Chief Executive Officer (the "Advisor Agreements"). Other than pursuant to the Purchase Agreement and the Advisor Agreements, there are no arrangements or understandings among members of the former and new control groups and their associates with respect to election of directors or other matters. In addition, none of the new directors or officers of the Company has a direct or indirect material interest in any transaction required to be disclosed pursuant to Item 404(a) of Regulation S-K.

Waiver to Insider Letter

On August 28, 2025, the "Original Sponsor", the Company, Stephen P. Herbert, Douglas M. Lurio, Thomas A. Decker, Mohammad A. Khan, Celso L. White and the other parties thereto entered into a waiver (the "Waiver") with respect to that certain insider letter agreement, dated May 20, 2025, by and among the Company, the Original Sponsor and the other persons party thereto (the "Insider Letter").

Joinder Agreement

On August 28, 2025, the New Sponsor entered that certain joinder to insider letter agreement and registration rights agreement (the "Joinder"). Pursuant to the Joinder, the New Sponsor agreed, with effect from the date of the Joinder, to join as a party to the Insider Letter and to that certain Registration Rights Agreement, dated May 20, 2025, by and among the Company, the Original Sponsor and the other persons party thereto. Entry into the Joinder was a condition to the consummation of the transactions contemplated by the Purchase Agreement (as defined above).

The Trust Account

Upon the closing of the Initial Public Offering on May 22, 2025, an amount of $231,150,000 ($10.05 per unit) from the net proceeds of the sale of the units, and a portion of the proceeds of the sale of the private placement units, are held in a Trust Account and will be invested or held only in either (i) U.S. government treasury obligations with a maturity of 185 days or less or in money market funds meeting certain conditions under Rule2a-7under the Investment Company Act of 1940 which invest only in direct U.S. government treasury obligations, (ii) as uninvested cash, or (iii) an interest bearing bank demand deposit account or other accounts at a bank. Funds will remain in the Trust Account until the earlier of (i) the completion of the Business Combination or (ii) the distribution of the Trust Account as described below.

The Company's amended and restated memorandum and articles of association provides that, except for (x) all interest income that may be released to the Company to pay taxes and (y) up to $100,000 to pay dissolution expenses, as discussed below, none of the funds held in the Trust Account will be released from the Trust Account until the earlier of: (1) the completion of the initial Business Combination within the required time period; (2) redemption of 100% of the outstanding public shares if the Company has not completed an initial Business Combination within 18 months from the closing of the Initial Public Offering; and (3) the redemption of any public shares properly tendered in connection with a shareholder vote to amend the amended and restated memorandum and articles of association (A) in a manner that would affect the substance or timing of the obligation to redeem 100% of public shares if the Company does not complete its initial Business Combination within the required time period or (B) with respect to any other provision relating to the pre-business combination activity and related shareholders' rights.

Business Combination

The Company's management has broad discretion with respect to the specific application of the net proceeds of the Initial Public Offering, although substantially all of the net proceeds of the Initial Public Offering are intended to be generally applied toward consummating a Business Combination with (or acquisition of) a Target Business. As used herein, "Target Business" must be with one or more target businesses that together have a fair market value equal to at least 80% of the balance in the Trust Account (less the deferred underwriting commissions and the taxes payable on interest earned) at the time the Company signs a definitive agreement in connection with the Business Combination. There is no assurance that the Company will be able to successfully effect a Business Combination.

The Company, after signing a definitive agreement for a Business Combination, will either (i) seek shareholder approval of the Business Combination at a meeting called for such purpose in connection with which shareholders may seek to redeem their shares, regardless of whether they vote for or against the Business Combination, for cash equal to their pro rata share of the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account including interest (which interest shall be net of taxes payable) or (ii) provide shareholders with the opportunity to have their shares redeemed by the Company by means of a tender offer (and thereby avoid the need for a shareholder vote) for an amount in cash equal to their pro rata share of the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account, net of taxes payable, if any. The decision as to whether the Company will seek shareholder approval of the Business Combination or will allow shareholders to redeem their shares in a tender offer will be made by the Company, solely in its discretion, and will be based on a variety of factors such as the timing of the transaction and whether the terms of the transaction would otherwise require the Company to seek shareholder approval unless a vote is required by the Nasdaq rules. If the Company seeks shareholder approval, it will complete its Business Combination only if a majority of the outstanding shares are voted in favor of the Business Combination.

If the Company holds a shareholder vote or there is a tender offer for shares in connection with the Business Combination, a public shareholder will have the right to redeem its shares for an amount in cash equal to its pro rata share of the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account as of two business days prior to the consummation of the initial Business Combination, including interest (which interest shall be net of taxes payable, if any). As a result, such shares are recorded at redemption amount and classified as temporary equity upon the completion of the Initial Public Offering. The amount in the Trust Account is $10.05 per public share ($231,150,000 held in the Trust Account divided by 23,000,000 public shares).

The Company has 18 months from the closing date of the Initial Public Offering to complete its initial Business Combination. If the Company does not complete a Business Combination within this period of time, it shall (i) cease all operations except for the purposes of winding up; (ii) as promptly as reasonably possible, but not more than ten business days thereafter, redeem the public shares for a per share pro rata portion of the Trust Account, including interest, but less taxes payable and up to $100,000 to pay dissolution expenses; and (iii) as promptly as possible following such redemption, dissolve and liquidate the balance of the Company's net assets to its creditors and remaining shareholders, as part of its plan of dissolution and liquidation. The initial shareholders each entered into agreements with us, pursuant to which they agreed: (1) to waive their redemption rights with respect to their founder shares, private placement units and any Class A ordinary shares issuable upon conversion thereof in connection with the consummation of our initial Business Combination or a tender offer conducted prior to a Business Combination or in connection with it; and (2) to waive their rights to liquidating distributions from the Trust Account with respect to their founder shares and private placement units if the Company fails to complete its initial Business Combination within 18 months from the closing of the Initial Public Offering, although they will be entitled to liquidating distributions from the Trust Account with respect to any public shares they hold if we fail to complete our initial Business Combination within the prescribed time frame.

Business Combination Agreement

On October 19, 2025 (the "Signing Date"), the Company (which will domesticate as a Delaware corporation prior to the Closing), entered into a Business Combination Agreement (the "Business Combination Agreement") with Evernorth Holdings Inc., a Nevada corporation ("Pubco"), Pathfinder Digital Assets LLC, a Delaware limited liability company ("Pathfinder"), Evernorth Corporate Merger Sub Inc., a Delaware corporation and wholly owned subsidiary of Pubco ("SPAC Merger Sub"), Evernorth Company Merger Sub LLC, a Delaware limited liability company and wholly owned subsidiary of Pubco ("Company Merger Sub"), and Ripple Labs Inc., a Delaware corporation ("Ripple").

Pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement, and subject to the terms and conditions set forth therein, upon the consummation of the transactions contemplated thereby (the "Closing" and the date and time at which the Closing is actually held, the "Closing Date"), (a) Company Merger Sub will merge with and into Pathfinder, with Pathfinder continuing as the surviving company (the "Pathfinder Merger"), with holders of Pathfinder units (each, a "Pathfinder Unit") receiving one share of Class A common stock, par value $0.001 per share, of Pubco ("Pubco Class A Common Stock") for each Pathfinder Unit, subject to certain reductions and other limitations imposed on the Ripple Parties as set forth in the Business Combination Agreement, and (b) simultaneously with the Pathfinder Merger, SPAC Merger Sub will merge with and into the Company, with the Company continuing as the surviving entity (the "SPAC Merger" and, together with the Company Merger, the "Mergers" and, together with the other transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement and the Ancillary Documents, the "Transactions"), with (x) shareholders of the Company receiving one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each Common Share held by such shareholders and (y) warrantholders of the Company receiving one warrant to purchase one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each warrant to purchase one SPAC Class A Share held by such warrant holders, in accordance with the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Business Combination Agreement.

Upon the consummation of the Mergers and the Transactions, Pubco will become a publicly traded company.

In connection with the Closing, Pubco will have authorized three classes of Pubco common stock with different voting and economic rights. The Pubco Class A Common Stock will be entitled to economic rights, including the right to receive distributions in proportion to the number of shares held, and will be listed for trading on Nasdaq or another national securities exchange. Each share of Pubco Class Common A Stock will be entitled to one vote per share. Shares of Class B common stock, par value $0.001 per share, of Pubco (the "Pubco Class B Common Stock") will be entitled to one vote per share but will not have any economic rights and will not be listed for trading or transferable unless a corresponding number of units of Pathfinder as the surviving Company after the Pathfinder Merger (the "Company Surviving Subsidiary") are transferred to the same person. However, no shares of Pubco Class B Common Stock are expected to be issued or outstanding immediately following the Closing. Shares of Class C common stock, par value $0.001 per share, of Pubco (the "Pubco Class C Common Stock" and, together with the Pubco Class A Common Stock and the Pubco Class B Common Stock, the "Pubco Stock") will be entitled to economic rights, including the right to receive distributions in proportion to the number of shares held, but will have no voting rights except as required by the Nevada Revised Statutes and will not be listed for trading or transferable, and will be convertible into Pubco Class A Common Stock at the election of the holder from time to time.

Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement

Concurrently with the Closing of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company, the New Sponsor and certain securityholders listed therein will enter into a registration rights agreement that will amend and restate the registration rights agreement entered into at the time of the Company's initial public offering between the Company, the New Sponsor and certain securityholders listed therein (as amended, the "Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement"), pursuant to which Pubco will assume the registration obligations of the Company under such registration rights agreement, with such rights applying to the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, Class B common stock (the "Pubco Class B Common Stock") and Pubco Class C Common Stock.

The Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement provides for customary demand registration rights, piggyback registration rights, and shelf registration rights for the benefit of the holders, subject to customary cutbacks and issuer suspension rights. It also includes customary provisions relating to underwriting participation, registration expenses, indemnification, and coordination of sales in underwritten offerings. The Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement will become effective upon the Closing and will supersede the Company's existing registration rights agreement in its entirety.

Sponsor Support Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, the Company entered into a Sponsor Support Agreement with the New Sponsor and Pubco (the "Sponsor Support Agreement"), pursuant to which, among other things, the New Sponsor agreed (i) to vote its Class A Shares and Class B Shares (the "New Sponsor Shares") in favor of the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions and each of the proposal to approve the Business Combination Agreement, the proposal to authorize and approve the Pathfinder Merger, and the proposal to approve a plan of domestication, (ii) to vote its New Sponsor Shares against any alternative transactions, (iii) to comply with the restrictions imposed by the Insider Letter (as defined above), by and among the Company, Original Sponsor, and the officers and directors of the Company at the time of its initial public offering, pursuant to which the New Sponsor was later joined as a party by way of the Joinder (as defined above) to the Insider Letter, by and between New Sponsor and the Company, including the restrictions on transfer and redemption of the Class A Shares and Class B Shares in connection with the Transactions, and (iv) subject to and conditioned upon the Closing, to waive any anti-dilution rights that would otherwise result in the Class B Shares converting into Class A Shares on a greater than one-for-one basis.

In addition, the New Sponsor agreed to effect certain security cancellations and issuances in connection with the Closing. Specifically, immediately prior to the time on the Closing Date when the certificate to be filed with the Delaware Secretary of State to certify the Pathfinder Merger (the "Pathfinder Certificate of Merger") has been duly accepted for filing by the Delaware Secretary of State in accordance with the Limited Liability Company Act of the State of Delaware (the "DLLCA") (or such other time as specified in the Pathfinder Certificate of Merger) (the "Company Merger Effective Time"), the New Sponsor will forfeit for no consideration (a) 120,000 Class A Shares, (b) 2,364,000 Class B Shares and (c) 60,000 warrants, each exercisable for one Class A Share at $11.50 per share (the "Private Placement Warrants").

Pursuant to the Sponsor Support Agreement, the New Sponsor also agreed, subject to and effective as of the Closing, to irrevocably and unconditionally release and waive any and all claims it may have against the Company, Pubco and Pathfinder or their respective affiliates arising on or prior to the Closing, subject to customary carve-outs.

Lock-Up Agreements

Concurrently with the Closing, each of the Company, the New Sponsor, Ripple and other Persons who will, immediately after the Closing, be holders of Pubco Stock or units of the Company Surviving Subsidiary and who, with Ripple, will collectively be deemed to form a "group" as defined in Section 13(d) of the Exchange Act ("Ripple Affiliate Investors") will enter into a Lock-Up Agreement with Pubco (the "Lock-Up Agreements"), pursuant to which such parties agree that any shares of Pubco Stock, one warrant to purchase one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock issued to warrant holders of SPAC Delaware by Pubco (the "Pubco Warrants"), any shares of Pubco Stock issuable upon the exercise or settlement, as applicable, of Warrants, Pathfinder Units, and any other securities convertible into or exercisable or exchangeable for Pubco Stock, in each case, held by such holder immediately after the Closing will be locked-up and subject to transfer restrictions, as described below, subject to certain exceptions.

Pursuant to the Lock-Up Agreements, the parties thereto agree, among other things, not to, without the prior written consent of Pubco, (i) sell, offer to sell, contract or agree to sell, hypothecate, pledge, grant any option to purchase or otherwise dispose of or agree to dispose of, directly or indirectly, or establish or increase a put equivalent position or liquidation with respect to or decrease a call equivalent position with respect to Restricted Securities (as defined in the Lock-Up Agreements), (ii) enter into any swap or other arrangement that transfers to another, in whole or in part, any of the economic consequences of ownership of any Restricted Securities, whether any such transaction is to be settled by delivery of such securities, in cash or otherwise, or (iii) publicly announce the intention to effect any transaction specified in clause (i) or (ii), until the earlier of six months following the date of the Closing and the date on which Pubco consummates a liquidation, merger, capital stock exchange, reorganization or other similar transaction that results in all Pubco shareholders having the right to exchange their shares of Pubco common stock for cash, securities or other property. The Lock-Up Agreements include customary exceptions to the transfer restrictions, including transfers to affiliates.

Subscription Agreements

Advance Funding Subscription Agreements

In connection with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, Pathfinder and the Company entered into advance funding subscription agreements (the "Advance Funding Subscription Agreements") with certain institutional investors and individual accredited investors ("Advance Subscribers") pursuant to which the Advance Subscribers agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock for an aggregate of $214.05 million in cash and a contribution of 600,000 XRP tokens, in a private placement (the "PIPE"), upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in such agreements. Advance Subscribers will receive a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock on the Closing Date equal to the quotient of (i) the Advance Subscriber Subscription Price and (ii) $10.00 (the "Initial Subscribed Shares"), plus the Adjustment Shares (as defined below). "Advance Subscriber Subscription Price" means (a) if the Advance Subscriber elected to subscribe for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock with cash, the amount of cash contributed as set forth on the signature page to its Advance Funding Subscription Agreement or (b) if the Advance Subscriber elected to subscribe for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock with XRP, such amount (in USD) equal to the product of (x) the amount of XRP contributed as set forth on the signature page to its Advance Funding Subscription Agreement and (y) the XRP Token VWAP on October 19, 2025.

Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements

In connection with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, Pathfinder and the Company entered into delayed funding subscription agreements (each, a "Delayed Funding Subscription Agreement" and collectively, the "Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements") with certain institutional investors and individual accredited investors ("Delayed Subscribers") pursuant to which the Delayed Subscribers agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock for an aggregate of $10.5 million in cash and a contribution of 200,000 XRP tokens, in a PIPE, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in such agreements. Delayed Subscribers will receive a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock on the Closing Date equal to the quotient of (i) the Delayed Subscriber Subscription Price and (ii) $10.00. "Delayed Subscriber Subscription Price" means (a) if the Delayed Subscriber elected to subscribe for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock with cash, the amount of cash contributed as set forth on the signature page to its Delayed Funding Subscription Agreement or (b) if the Delayed Subscriber elected to subscribe for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock with XRP, such amount (in USD) equal to the product of (x) the amount of XRP contributed as set forth on the signature page to its Delayed Funding Subscription Agreement and (y) the Closing Date XRP Token VWAP.

Series C Subscription Agreements

In connection with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, Pathfinder and the Company entered into a Series C Subscription Agreement with the New Sponsor (the "Series C Subscription Agreement") pursuant to which the Sponsor agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock for a contribution of 211,319,096.061435 XRP tokens, in a PIPE, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in such agreement.

The New Sponsor will receive an aggregate number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock on the Closing Date equal to the quotient of (i) the New Sponsor Subscription Price and (ii) Initial Subscribed Shares, plus Adjustment Shares. "New Sponsor Subscription Price" means (a) if the New Sponsor elected to subscribe for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock with cash, the amount of cash contributed as set forth on the signature page to the Series C Subscription Agreement or (b) if the New Sponsor elected to subscribe for such shares with XRP, such amount (in USD) equal to the product of (x) the amount of XRP contributed as set forth on the signature page to the Series C Subscription Agreement and (y) the Signing Date XRP Token VWAP.

The New Sponsor will receive a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock on the Closing Date that would result in the Series C DQ Persons collectively owning, immediately after the Closing Date and the other related transactions, a number of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would cause such Series C DQ Persons to be the beneficial owners of capital stock of Pubco such that the Series C Attributed Ownership Percentage equals 19.9%. The New Sponsor will receive a number of shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock equal to the number of Subscribed Shares minus the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issued to the Sponsor pursuant to the preceding sentence.

The closing of the Series C Subscription Agreement is conditioned on, among other things, the satisfaction, or waiver by the New Sponsor, of the additional condition that, on the date hereof, no Other Subscription Agreement (or other agreements or understandings (including side letters) entered into in connection therewith or in connection with the sale of the Other Equity Interests) shall have been amended, modified or waived in any manner that benefits any Other Subscriber with respect to the economic terms governing the purchase and sale of such Other Equity Interests unless the New Sponsor shall have been offered in writing the same economic benefits, subject to certain exceptions.

Ripple Group Subscription Agreements

In connection with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, Pathfinder and the Company entered into a subscription agreement with certain affiliates of Ripple (each, a "Ripple Group Subscription Agreement," and together, the "Ripple Group Subscription Agreements,") and together with the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreement and the Series C Subscription Agreement, the "Subscription Agreements") pursuant to which the affiliates of Ripple (the "Ripple Group Subscribers") agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pathfinder Units for an aggregate contribution of 50 million XRP tokens, in a PIPE, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in such agreement.

The Ripple Group Subscribers will receive an aggregate number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pathfinder Units on the Closing Date equal to the quotient of (i) the Ripple Group Subscription Price and (ii) Initial Subscribed Equity Units, plus Adjustment Equity Units. "Ripple Group Subscription Price" means (a) if such Ripple Group Subscriber elected to subscribe for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pathfinder Units with cash, the amount of cash contributed as set forth on the signature page to the applicable Ripple Group Subscription Agreement or (b) if such Ripple Group Subscriber elected to subscribe for such equity units with XRP, such amount (in USD) equal to the product of (x) the amount of XRP contributed as set forth on the signature page to the Ripple Group Subscription Agreement and (y) the Signing Date XRP Token VWAP.

The Ripple Group Subscribers will receive a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock on the Closing Date that would result in the Ripple Group Holders collectively owning, immediately after the Closing Date and the other related transactions, a number of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would cause such Ripple Group Holders to be the beneficial owners of capital stock of Pubco such that the Ripple Group Ownership Percentage equals 9.9%. The Ripple Group Subscriber will also receive a number of Pathinder Units equal to the number of Subscribed Equity Interests minus the number of Subscribed Shares.

The closing of each Ripple Group Subscription Agreement is conditioned on, among other things, the satisfaction or waiver by each Ripple Group Subscriber that no Other Ripple Group Subscription Agreement (or other agreements or understandings (including side letters) entered into in connection therewith or in connection with the sale of the Other Ripple Group Subscribed Equity Interests) shall have been amended, modified or waived in any manner that benefits any Other Ripple Group Subscriber unless the Ripple Group Subscriber shall have been offered in writing the same benefits.

No fractional shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, Pubco Class B Common Stock, or Pathfinder Unit will be issued in connection with the Subscription Agreements, and any fractional equity units otherwise issuable will be rounded down to the nearest whole equity unit.

Pursuant to the Subscription Agreements, Pubco has agreed to use commercially reasonable efforts to file a registration statement registering the resale of the shares purchase by the Subscribers pursuant to the Subscription Agreements (at Pubco's sole cost and expense) within 30 calendar days following the Closing Date and to use commercially reasonable efforts to have such registration statement declared effective as soon as practicable, and in any event no later than 75 calendar days after the Closing Date, subject to an extension in the event of SEC review.

The net cash proceeds from the closing of the Subscription Agreements, along with funds from the trust account of the SPAC, will be used for working capital, general corporate purposes and the purchase of XRP.

Each Subscription Agreement will terminate and be void and of no further force or effect upon the earliest to occur of (i) the termination of the Business Combination Agreement in accordance with its terms, (ii) the date that is twelve months from the date of the Subscription Agreement or (iii) the mutual written agreement of the parties thereto.

Pubco, Pathfinder and the Company may seek to raise additional funds through private placement transactions, including PIPE transactions, or other forms of capital raising. There can be no assurance as to whether, when or on what terms any such future financings may be conducted.

Liquidity and Going Concern

As of September 30, 2025, the Company had $361,105 in its operating bank accounts and working capital deficit of $929,898. The Company intends to use the funds held outside the Trust Account primarily to identify and evaluate target businesses, perform business due diligence on prospective target businesses, travel to and from the offices, plants or similar locations of prospective target businesses or their representatives or owners, review corporate documents and material agreements of prospective target businesses, structure, negotiate and complete a Business Combination.

In order to fund working capital deficiencies or finance transaction costs in connection with a Business Combination, the New Sponsor, or certain of the Company's officers and directors or their affiliates may, but are not obligated to, loan us funds as may be required (see also Note 4 - "Related Party Loans") either to complete our Business Combination or because the Company may become obligated to redeem a significant number of our public shares upon completion of our Business Combination, in which case the Company may issue additional securities or incur debt in connection with such Business Combination. If the Company is unable to raise additional capital, it may be required to take additional measures to conserve liquidity, which could include, but not necessarily be limited to, curtailing operations, suspending the pursuit of a potential transaction, and reducing overhead expenses. The Company cannot provide any assurance that new financing will be available to it on commercially acceptable terms, if at all

In connection with the Company's assessment of going concern considerations in accordance with Financial Accounting Standards Board's ("FASB") Accounting Standards Codification ("ASC") Topic ASC 205-40 ("ASC 205"), "Going Concern," as of September 30, 2025, the Company has until November 22, 2026 (the "Liquidation Date") to consummate an initial Business Combination. It is uncertain that we will be able to consummate an initial business combination by November 22, 2026. If an initial Business Combination is not consummated by the Liquidation Date, there will be mandatory liquidation and subsequent dissolution.

The Company's Management has determined that the liquidity condition and mandatory liquidation should an initial Business Combination not occur, and potential subsequent dissolution raises substantial doubt about the Company's ability to continue as a going concern. No adjustments have been made to the carrying amounts of assets or liabilities should the Company be required to liquidate after November 22, 2026.

NOTE 2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Basis of Presentation

The accompanying financial statements are presented in U.S. dollars and have been prepared in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America ("U.S. GAAP") and pursuant to the accounting and disclosure rules and regulations of the Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC").

Emerging Growth Company

The Company is an "emerging growth company," as defined in Section 2(a) of the Securities Act, as modified by the Jumpstart Our Business Startups Act of 2012 (the "JOBS Act"), and it may take advantage of certain exemptions from various reporting requirements that are applicable to other public companies that are not emerging growth companies including, but not limited to, not being required to comply with the auditor attestation requirements of Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, reduced disclosure obligations regarding executive compensation in its periodic reports and proxy statements, and exemptions from the requirements of holding a nonbinding advisory vote on executive compensation and shareholder approval of any golden parachute payments not previously approved.

Further, Section 102(b)(1) of the JOBS Act exempts emerging growth companies from being required to comply with new or revised financial accounting standards until private companies (that is, those that have not had a Securities Act registration statement declared effective or do not have a class of securities registered under the Exchange Act) are required to comply with the new or revised financial accounting standards. The JOBS Act provides that a company can elect to opt out of the extended transition period and comply with the requirements that apply to non-emerging growth companies but any such election to opt out is irrevocable. The Company has elected not to opt out of such extended transition period, which means that when a standard is issued or revised and it has different application dates for public or private companies, the Company, as an emerging growth company, can adopt the new or revised standard at the time private companies adopt the new or revised standard. This may make comparison of the Company's financial statements with another public company which is neither an emerging growth company nor an emerging growth company which has opted out of using the extended transition period, difficult or impossible because of the potential differences in accounting standards used.

Cash and Cash Equivalents

The Company considers all short-term investments with an original maturity of three months or less when purchased to be cash equivalents. The Company had cash of $361,105 and did not have any cash equivalents as of September 30, 2025.

Cash and Marketable Securities Held in Trust Account

As of September 30, 2025, the assets held in the Trust Account, amounting to $234,628,166, were held primarily in U.S. Treasury bills which mature on December 11, 2025.

Concentration of Credit Risk

Financial instruments that potentially subject the Company to concentrations of credit risk consist of a cash account in a financial institution, which at times may exceed federally insured limits. The Company has not experienced losses on these accounts and management believes the Company is not exposed to significant risks on such accounts.

Financial Instruments

The fair value of the Company's assets and liabilities, which qualify as financial instruments under ASC Topic 820 ("ASC 820"), "Fair Value Measurements and Disclosures," approximates the carrying amounts represented in the balance sheet, primarily due to its short-term nature, except for items as described in Note 8 – Fair Value Measurements below.

Use of Estimates

The preparation of the financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires the Company's management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Offering Costs Associated with the Initial Public Offering

The Company complies with the requirements of ASC Topic 340-10-S99 "Other Assets and Deferred Costs - SEC Materials" ("ASC 340") and SEC Staff Accounting Bulletin ("SAB") Topic 5A, "Expenses of Offering" ("SAB Topic 5A"). Offering costs consist principally of professional and registration fees that are related to the Initial Public Offering. FASB ASC470-20, "Debt with Conversion and Other Options," addresses the allocation of proceeds from the issuance of convertible debt into its equity and debt components. The Company applies this guidance to allocate Initial Public Offering proceeds from the Units between Class A ordinary shares and warrants, using the residual method by allocating Initial Public Offering proceeds first to assigned value of the warrants and then to the Class A ordinary shares. Offering costs allocated to the Class A ordinary shares subject to possible redemption were charged to temporary equity and offering costs allocated to the Private Placement Units and the Public and Private Placement Warrants within the Unit, were charged to shareholders' deficit as Public and Private Placement Warrants included in the Units, after management's evaluation are accounted for under equity treatment.

Income Taxes

The Company follows the asset and liability method of accounting for income taxes under ASC Topic 740, "Income Taxes" ("ASC 740"). Deferred tax assets and liabilities are recognized for the estimated future tax consequences attributable to differences between the financial statement carrying amounts of existing assets and liabilities and their respective tax bases. Deferred tax assets and liabilities are measured using enacted tax rates expected to apply to taxable income in the years in which those temporary differences are expected to be recovered or settled. The effect on deferred tax assets and liabilities of a change in tax rates is recognized in income in the period that included the enactment date. Valuation allowances are established, when necessary, to reduce deferred tax assets to the amount expected to be realized.

ASC 740 prescribes a recognition threshold and a measurement attribute for the financial statement recognition and measurement of tax positions taken or expected to be taken in a tax return. For those benefits to be recognized, a tax position must be more likely than not to be sustained upon examination by taxing authorities. The Company recognizes accrued interest and penalties related to unrecognized tax benefits as income tax expense. There were no unrecognized tax benefits and no amounts accrued for interest and penalties as of September 30, 2025. The Company is currently not aware of any issues under review that could result in significant payments, accruals or material deviation from its position.

The Company is considered to be an exempted Cayman Islands company with no connection to any other taxable jurisdiction and is presently not subject to income taxes or income tax filing requirements in the Cayman Islands, and the Company believes it is presently not subject to income taxes or income tax filing requirements in the United States. As such, the Company's tax provision was zero for the period presented.

Class A Ordinary Shares Subject to Possible Redemption

The Public Shares contain a redemption feature which allows for the redemption of such Public Shares in connection with the Company's liquidation, if there is a shareholder vote (A) to modify the substance or timing of the Company's obligation to allow redemption in connection with a Business Combination or to redeem 100% of the Public Shares if the Company does not complete an initial business combination within the completion window or (B) with respect to any other material provisions relating to shareholders' rights or pre-initial Business Combination activity, or if there is a shareholder vote or tender offer in connection with the Company's initial Business Combination. In accordance with FASB ASC Topic 480, "Distinguishing Liabilities from Equity (", the Company classifies Public Shares subject to redemption outside of permanent equity as the redemption provisions are not solely within the control of the Company. The Company recognizes changes in redemption value immediately as they occur and will adjust the carrying value of redeemable shares to equal the redemption value at the end of each reporting period. Immediately upon the closing of the Initial Public Offering, the Company recognized the accretion from initial book value to redemption value which is equivalent to the pro-rata amount held in the Trust per-share, less any permitted withdrawals. The change in the carrying value of redeemable shares will result in charges against additional paid-in capital (to the extent available) and accumulated deficit. Accordingly, as of September 30, 2025, Class A ordinary shares subject to possible redemption are presented at redemption value as temporary equity, outside of the shareholders' deficit section of the Company's balance sheet. As of September 30, 2025, the Class A ordinary shares subject to possible redemption reflected in the balance sheet are reconciled in the following table:

Gross proceeds	$230,000,000
Less:
Proceeds allocated to Public Warrants	(3,565,000)
Class A ordinary shares issuance cost	(14,171,895)
Accretion of carrying value to redemption value	22,365,061
Class A Ordinary Shares subject to possible redemption, September 30, 2025	$234,628,166

Warrant Instruments

The Company accounts for the Public and Private Placement Warrants issued in connection with the Initial Public Offering and the private placement in accordance with are based on an assessment of the warrant's specific terms and the guidance contained in FASB ASC Topic 480 and FASB ASC Topic 815, "Derivatives and Hedging". Accordingly, the Company evaluated and classified the warrant instruments under equity treatment at their assigned values.

Net Income per Ordinary Share

The Company complies with accounting and disclosure requirements of ASC Topic 260, "Earnings Per Share" ("ASC 260"). The Company has two classes of shares, which are referred to as Class A ordinary shares and Class B ordinary shares. Income and losses are shared pro rata between the two classes of shares. Net income (loss) per ordinary share is calculated by dividing the net income (loss) by the weighted average ordinary shares outstanding for the respective period. Diluted net income (loss) per share attributable to ordinary shareholders adjusts the basic net income (loss) per share attributable to ordinary shareholders and the weighted-average ordinary shares outstanding for the potentially dilutive impact of outstanding warrants. However, because the warrants are anti-dilutive, they have been excluded from the calculation of diluted income (loss) per ordinary share for the periods presented.

With respect to the accretion of Class A ordinary shares subject to possible redemption and consistent with ASC Topic 480-10-S99-3A, the Company treated accretion in the same manner as a dividend paid to the shareholders in the calculation of the net income (loss) per ordinary share.

The following table reflects the calculation of basic and diluted net income per ordinary share:

	For the period from October 3, 2024 (inception) through September 30, 2025
	Class A - Redeemable	Class A & B - Non-redeemable

Recent Accounting Pronouncements

In November 2023, the FASB issued ASU 2023-07, "Segment Reporting (Topic 280): Improvements to Reportable Segment Disclosures". The amendments in this ASU require disclosures, on an annual and interim basis, of significant segment expenses that are regularly provided to the chief operating decision maker ("CODM"), as well as the aggregate amount of other segment items included in the reported measure of segment profit or loss. The ASU requires that a public entity disclose the title and position of the CODM and an explanation of how the CODM uses the reported measure(s) of segment profit or loss in assessing segment performance and deciding how to allocate resources. Public entities will be required to provide all annual disclosures currently required by Topic 280 in interim periods, and entities with a single reportable segment are required to provide all the disclosures required by the amendments in this ASU and existing segment disclosures in Topic 280. This ASU is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2023, and interim periods within fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2024, with early adoption permitted. The Company adopted ASU 2023-07on October 3, 2024, date of incorporation.

The Company does not believe that any other recently issued, but not yet effective, accounting pronouncements, if currently adopted, would have a material effect on the Company's financial statements.

NOTE 3. INITIAL PUBLIC OFFERING

Pursuant to the Initial Public Offering on May 22, 2025, the Company sold 23,000,000 units at a price of $10.00 per Unit for a total of $230,000,000, which includes the full exercise of the underwriters' overallotment option in the amount of 3,000,000 Units. Each Unit consists of one share of the Company's Class A ordinary shares, $0.0001 par value and one-half of one redeemable warrant to purchase one Class A ordinary share (the "Warrants"). The Warrants will only be exercisable for whole shares at $11.50 per share.

On August 28, 2025, the New Sponsor Purchase was completed, whereby the Original Sponsor agreed to sell to the New Sponsor, and the New Sponsor agreed to purchase from the Original Sponsor, an aggregate of 7,880,000 Class B ordinary shares, par value $0.0001 per share, 400,000 Class A ordinary shares, par value $0.0001 per share, and 200,000 private placement warrants of the Company for an aggregate purchase price of $6,600,000 (see Note 1 – Changes in control of Registrant).

Warrants —As of September 30, 2025, there were 11,500,000 Public Warrants and 355,000 Private Placement Warrants outstanding. Each whole warrant entitles the registered holder to purchase one Class A ordinary share at a price of $11.50 per share, at any time commencing on the later of 12 months from the closing of the Initial Public Offering and after the completion of the initial Business Combination. Pursuant to the warrant agreement, a warrant holder may exercise its warrants only for a whole number of Class A ordinary shares. This means that only a whole warrant may be exercised at any given time by a warrant holder. No fractional warrants will be issued upon separation of the Units and only whole warrants will trade. The warrants will expire at 5:00 p.m., New York City time, on the fifth anniversary of the completion of an initial Business Combination, or earlier upon redemption.

In addition, if (x) the Company issues additional Class A ordinary shares or equity-linked securities for capital raising purposes in connection with the closing of our initial business combination at an issue price or effective issue price of less than $9.20 per Class A ordinary share (with such issue price or effective issue price to be determined in good faith by our Board of Directors, and in the case of any such issuance to the Sponsor or its affiliates, without taking into account any founder shares held by them prior to such issuance), (y) the aggregate gross proceeds from such issuances represent more than 60% of the total equity proceeds, and interest thereon, available for the funding of the initial Business Combination on the date of the consummation of the initial Business Combination (net of redemptions), and (z) the volume weighted average trading price of our Class A ordinary shares during the 20trading-dayperiod starting on the trading day prior to the day on which the Company consummates its initial Business Combination (such price, the "Market Value") is below $9.20 per share, the exercise price of the warrants will be adjusted (to the nearest cent) to be equal to 115% of the greater of (i) the Market Value or (ii) the price at which the Company issue the additional Class A ordinary shares or equity-linked securities. On the exercise of any warrant, the exercise price will be paid directly to the Company and not placed in the Trust Account.

The Company has agreed that as soon as practicable, but in no event later than 15 business days after the closing of the initial Business Combination, the Company will use its best efforts to file with the SEC a registration statement for the registration under the Securities Act of the warrant shares and thereafter use its best efforts to cause the registration statement to become effective and to maintain the effectiveness of such registration statement until the expiration of the warrants. No warrants will be exercisable for cash unless the Company has an effective and current registration statement covering the issuance of the warrant shares and a current prospectus relating thereto.

If a registration statement covering the issuance of the warrant shares is not effective within 90 days following the consummation of the initial Business Combination, warrant holders may nevertheless, until such time as there is such an effective registration statement and during any period when the Company shall have failed to maintain such an effective registration statement, exercise warrants on a cashless basis in accordance with Section 3(a)(9) of the Securities Act. In this circumstance, each holder would pay the exercise price by surrendering warrants exercisable for the number of Class A ordinary shares equal to the quotient obtained by dividing (x) the product of the number of Class A ordinary shares underlying such warrants and the difference between the exercise price of such warrants and the "fair market value" (defined below) by (y) the fair market value. The "fair market value" means the average reported last sale price of the Class A ordinary shares for the five trading days ending on the trading day prior to the date of exercise.

Redemption of Warrants: The Company may redeem the outstanding warrants:

- in whole and not in part;
- at a price of $0.01 per warrant;
- upon a minimum of 30 days' prior written notice of redemption (the "30-day redemption period"); and
- if, and only if, the last reported sale price of the Class A ordinary shares equals or exceeds $18.00 per share (as adjusted for share splits, dividends, reorganizations, recapitalizations and the like) for any 20 trading days within a30-tradingday period ending on the third trading day prior to the date on which the Company will send the notice of redemption to the warrant holders.

The Company will not redeem the warrants unless a registration statement under the Securities Act covering the issuance of the warrant shares underlying the warrants to be so redeemed is then effective and a current prospectus relating to those warrant shares is available throughout the30-dayredemption period, except if the warrants may be exercised on a cashless basis and such cashless exercise is exempt from registration under the Securities Act. If and when the warrants become redeemable by the Company, it may exercise its redemption right even if it is unable to register or qualify the underlying securities for sale under all applicable state securities laws.

If the foregoing conditions are satisfied and the Company issues a notice of redemption, each warrant holder may exercise his, her or its warrants prior to the scheduled redemption date. However, the price of the Class A ordinary shares may fall below the $18.00 trigger price (as adjusted) as well as the $11.50 exercise price (as adjusted) after the redemption notice is issued. The redemption criteria for the warrants have been established at a price which is intended to provide warrant holders a reasonable premium to the initial exercise price and provide a sufficient differential between the then-prevailing share price and the exercise price so that if the share price declines as a result of the redemption call, the redemption will not cause the share price to drop below the exercise price of the warrants. If the Company calls the warrants for redemption as described above, the management will have the option to require all holders that wish to exercise warrants to do so on a "cashless basis." In making such determination, management will consider, among other factors, our cash position, the number of warrants that are outstanding and the dilutive effect on our shareholders of issuing the maximum number of warrant shares issuable upon exercise of outstanding warrants. In such event, the holder would pay the exercise price by surrendering the warrants for that number of Class A ordinary shares equal to the quotient obtained by dividing (x) the product of the number of warrant shares underlying the warrants to be so exercised, and the difference between the exercise price of the warrants and the fair market value by (y) the fair market value.

No fractional Class A ordinary share will be issued upon redemption. If, upon redemption, a holder would be entitled to receive a fractional interest in a share, the Company will round down to the nearest whole number of the number of Class A ordinary shares to be issued to the holder.

NOTE 4. PRIVATE PLACEMENT

Founder Shares

On November 7, 2024, the Sponsor purchased 7,880,000 Class B ordinary shares from the Company for an aggregate purchase price of $25,000, or $0.00317 per share, of which up to 1,027,826 founder shares were subject to forfeiture depending on the extent to which the underwriters' over-allotment option is exercised during the Initial Public Offering. On May 22, 2025, the underwriters exercised their over-allotment option in full as part of the closing of the Initial Public Offering. As such, the 1,027,826 founder shares are no longer subject to forfeiture.

Private Placement Units

Simultaneously with the closing of the Initial Public Offering, the Sponsor has purchased an aggregate of 400,000 private placement units at $10.00 per private placement unit in a private placement for an aggregate purchase price of $4,000,000. The underwriters purchased an aggregate of 310,000 private placement units at a price of $10.00 per private placement unit in a private placement for an aggregate purchase price of $3,100,000.

A portion of the purchase price of the private placement units was added to the proceeds of Initial Public Offering held in the Trust Account. If the initial business combination was not completed within 18 months from the closing of the Initial Public Offering, the proceeds from the sale of the private placement units held in the trust account will be used to fund the redemption of the public shares (subject to the requirements of applicable law).

Certain institutional investors (none of which are affiliated with any member of management, the Sponsor or any other investor), referred to as the "non-managing investors", purchased, indirectly through the purchase of non-managing membership interests in the Sponsor, an aggregate of 300,000 Private Placement Units out of the 400,000 Private Placement Units purchased by the Sponsor. Subject to each non-managing sponsor investor purchasing the Private Placement Units allocated to it in connection with the closing of the Initial Public Offering, the Sponsor issued additional membership interests at a nominal purchase price to the non-managing investors reflecting interests in an aggregate of 2.4 million founder shares.

The agreement with the non-managing investors was entered into directly with the Sponsor entity and it makes reference to the Private Placement Units and founder shares of the Company. The interests and units associated in the agreement are supported on one for one basis with the Company's underlying private placement units and founder shares. The fact that the Sponsor is providing the non-managing members with founder shares for their participation in the transaction is considered an inducement and falls under SAB Topic 5A. As such, the Company has obtained a valuation of the Founder Shares, as of the Initial Public Offering date to account for the charge of such transfer of interests to the non-managing members. The valuation has identified the fair value of the Founder Shares to be $1.93 per share as of the close of the Initial Public Offering, on May 22, 2025. Since the cost of these interest allocations to the non-managing members is considered an offering cost, the Company will record the fair value of this transaction into equity at the initial public offering date calculated as 2,400,000 interests in founder shares allocated to non-managing members at a fair value of $4,621,895 or approximately $1.93 per founder share.

The third-party valuation firm used a Monte Carlo simulation to value the Founder Shares. The likelihood of completing the Initial Public offering was assumed to be 100%; the common stock price was $9.845 based on implied stock price; likelihood of a business combination was determined to be 19.9%; and a discount for lack of marketability based on a Finnerty put model yielded 1.7%.

Promissory Note — Related Party

The Sponsor had agreed to loan the Company an aggregate of up to $300,000 to be used for a portion of the expenses of the Initial Public Offering. The loan was non-interest bearing, unsecured and on March 31, 2025, the loan was amended to extend maturity date at the earlier of June 30, 2025, or the closing of the Initial Public Offering. Proceeds received under the note were utilized as follows: $127,755 for working capital, $9,840 for payment of deferred offering costs, $4,614 for payment of formation costs and $870 for the payment of operating expenses. As of May 22, 2025, the Company repaid the outstanding balance of the note amounting to $143,079. Borrowings under the note are no longer available.

Administration Fee

Commencing on May 20, 2025, the Company has agreed to pay the Sponsor $12,000 per month for office space, administrative and support services. These monthly fees will cease upon the completion of the initial Business Combination or the liquidation of the Company. The Original Sponsor had agreed to defer payment of the administration fee until such time as new financing occurs to allow liquidity to pay the fee. The administrative services agreement with the Original Sponsor was terminated on August 28, 2025; all outstanding fees were paid through this date. For the period from October 3, 2024 (inception) through September 30, 2025, the Company has incurred and paid $39,000 in fees for these services. No agreement for administrative service fees has been entered into with the New Sponsor.

Related Party Loans

In order to finance transaction costs in connection with a Business Combination, the Sponsor or an affiliate of the Sponsor or certain of the Company's officers and directors may, but are not obligated to, loan the Company funds as may be required (the "Working Capital Loans"). If the Company completes a Business Combination, the Company would repay the Working Capital Loans. In the event that a Business Combination does not close, the Company may use a portion of the working capital held outside the Trust Account to repay the Working Capital Loans but no proceeds from the Trust Account would be used to repay the Working Capital Loans. A portion of such Working Capital Loans may be convertible into private placement units of the post Business Combination entity at the option of the lender. The units would be identical to the private placement units. As of September 30, 2025, no such Working Capital Loans were outstanding.

NOTE 5. COMMITMENTS AND CONTINGENCIES

Registration Rights

The Company's initial shareholders, the non-managing investors and their permitted transferees can demand that the Company register the Founder Shares, the Private Placement Shares, the Private Placement Warrants and underlying securities and any securities issued upon conversion of Working Capital Loans, pursuant to an agreement signed prior the date of the Initial Public Offering. The holders of a majority of these securities are entitled to make up to three demands that the Company register such securities. The holders of a majority of these securities or units issued in payment of working capital loans made to the Company (or underlying securities) can elect to exercise these registration rights at any time after the Company consummates a Business Combination. In addition, the holders have certain piggy-back registration rights on registration statements filed after the Company's consummation of a Business Combination.

Underwriting Agreement

The Company granted the Underwriters a45-day option to purchase up to 3,000,000 additional Units to cover any over-allotments, at the Initial Public Offering price less the underwriting discounts. On May 22, 2025, simultaneously with the closing of the Initial Public Offering, the underwriters elected to fully exercise the over-allotment option to purchase the additional 3,000,000 Units at a price of $10.00 per Unit.

The Company paid an underwriting discount of $0.20 per Unit sold in the Initial Public Offering, or $4,600,000 in the aggregate, upon the closing of the Initial Public Offering. Additionally the underwriters are entitled to $0.40 per Unit sold in the offering, $9,200,000 in the aggregate, and is payable to the underwriters based on the percentage of funds remaining in the Trust Account after redemptions of public shares, for deferred underwriting commissions to be placed in a Trust Account located in the United States and released to the underwriters only upon the completion of an initial Business Combination.

On September 9, 2025, the Company entered into a letter agreement with its Underwriters that the Underwriters shall, severally and not jointly, on the terms and conditions set forth in the letter agreement, and contingent upon the occurrence of a specified event, which is the consummation of a business combination with Pubco, , will reimburse a portion of the Company's bona fide documented fees and expenses incurred in connection with the Initial Public Offering in an amount of $2,300,000 (the "Reimbursement Amount"), with such amount decreased by $0.10 for every Ordinary Share for which a Public Shareholder exercises its redemption rights in connection with or prior to the specified event. As of September 30, 2025, no reimbursements have been recorded under this agreement.

Service Provider Agreements

The Company has agreed to pay Northland Securities, Inc. ("Northland") a cash transaction fee (the "Finder Fee") equal to 1.0% of the consideration (as defined in the agreement) in the event Northland introduces the Company to the target with which the Company completes an initial Business Combination or has substantive discussions with the target on behalf of and at the specific request of the Company with which the Company completes a Business Combination, payable only upon and subject to the closing of the initial Business Combination. At the closing of the initial Business Combination, the Company shall reimburse Northland up to $20,000 for all reasonable out-of-pocket accountable fees and disbursements incurred by Northland in connection with the performance of its services. As of September 30, 2025, no such expenses have been incurred under the agreement. If we have not consummated an initial Business Combination before December 31, 2026, we may terminate the agreement by providing written notice of such termination to Northland. No amounts were incurred under this agreement from the period from October 3, 2024 (inception) through September 30, 2025.

The Company has engaged Bishop IR ("Bishop") as an investor relations advisor in connection with the initial Business Combination for the period from May 19, 2025 through May 18, 2026 with a monthly fee of $8,500, payable only upon and subject to the closing of the initial Business Combination. Either party can terminate the contract at any time upon thirty days prior notice to the other party. Upon completion of initial Business Combination, Bishop would be entitled to a success fee of $100,000 payable only upon and subject to the closing of the initial Business Combination. Bishop shall also be reimbursed for all reasonable expenses and disbursements incurred by Bishop on our behalf, provided that such expenses shall not exceed $300 without our prior consent. The agreement with Bishop was terminated effective September 3, 2025 by the New Sponsor. Upon termination of the agreement the Company recognized $37,564 of expenses which are included in deferred professional fees in the Company's balance sheet as of September 30, 2025.

On October 19, 2025, CCM was retained by the Company to provide an opinion to the Company's Board as to the fairness of the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness opinion) in connection with the proposed Initial Business Combination Agreement. Pursuant to the terms of its engagement, CCM became entitled to a fee of $450,000 in consideration for the fairness opinion (the "Fairness Opinion Fee"). The Fairness Opinion Fee is due and payable to CCM as follows: (i) up to $100,000 became due to CCM upon informing the SPAC Board that it was prepared render and deliver the fairness opinion; and (ii) the balance of the Fairness Opinion Fee is due upon the earlier of the closing of the proposed Initial Business Combination or the termination of the merger agreement entered into by the Company with respect to the proposed Initial Business Combination. The Company has also agreed to reimburse CCM's reasonable expenses up to an aggregate amount of $125,000 and to indemnify CCM against liabilities arising out of or in connection with the services rendered and to be rendered by CCM under its engagement with the Company.

NOTE 6. SHAREHOLDERS' DEFICIT

Preferred Shares

The Company is authorized to issue 1,000,000 shares of preferred shares with such designations, voting and other rights and preferences as may be determined from time to time by the Board of Directors. As of September 30, 2025, there were no preferred shares issued and outstanding.

Class A Ordinary Shares

The Company is authorized to issue 200,000,000 Class A ordinary shares with a par value of $0.0001 per share. As of September 30, 2025, there were 710,000 ordinary shares issued or outstanding, excluding 23,000,000 Class A ordinary shares subject to possible redemption, as described above in Note 2 – Class A Ordinary Shares Subject to Possible Redemption. All Class A shares are entitled to one vote per share.

Class B Ordinary Shares

The Company is authorized to issue 20,000,000 Class B ordinary shares with a par value of $0.0001 per share. At September 30, 2025, there were 7,880,000 Class B ordinary shares issued and outstanding. All Class B shares are entitled to one vote per share.

NOTE 7. SEGMENT INFORMATION

ASC Topic 280, "Segment Reporting," establishes standards for companies to report in their financial statement information about operating segments, products, services, geographic areas, and major customers. Operating segments are defined as components of an enterprise that engage in business activities from which it may recognize revenues and incur expenses, and for which separate financial information is available that is regularly evaluated by the Company's CODM, the Chief Financial Officer, in deciding how to allocate resources and assess performance.

The CODM assesses performance for the single segment and decides how to allocate resources. The measure of segment assets is reported on the balance sheet as total assets. When evaluating the Company's performance and making key decisions regarding resource allocation the CODM reviews several key metrics, which include the following:

	September 30, 2025
Cash	$ 361,105
Cash and marketable securities held in Trust Account	$234,628,166

	For period from October 3, 2024 (Inception) through September 30, 2025
General administrative costs	$1,706,183
Interest earned on cash and marketable securities held in Trust Account	$3,478,166

NOTE 8. FAIR VALUE MEASUREMENTS

Fair value is defined as the price that would be received for sale of an asset or paid for transfer of a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date. GAAP establishes a three-tier fair value hierarchy, which prioritizes the inputs used in measuring fair value. The hierarchy gives the highest priority to unadjusted quoted prices in active markets for identical assets or liabilities (Level 1 measurements) and the lowest priority to unobservable inputs (Level 3 measurements). These tiers include:

- Level 1, defined as observable inputs such as quoted prices (unadjusted) for identical instruments in active markets;
- Level 2, defined as inputs other than quoted prices in active markets that are either directly or indirectly observable such as quoted prices for similar instruments in active markets or quoted prices for identical or similar instruments in markets that are not active; and
- Level 3, defined as unobservable inputs in which little or no market data exists, therefore requiring an entity to develop its own assumptions, such as valuations derived from valuation techniques in which one or more significant inputs or significant value drivers are unobservable. In some circumstances, the inputs used to measure fair value might be categorized within different levels of the fair value hierarchy. In those instances, the fair value measurement is categorized in its entirety in the fair value hierarchy based on the lowest level input that is significant to the fair value measurement.

The following table presents information about the Company's assets that are measured at fair value as of September 30, 2025, and indicates the fair value hierarchy of the valuation inputs the Company utilized to determine such fair value:

	Level	September 30, 2025
Assets:
Cash and marketable securities held in Trust Account . . .	1	$234,628,166

The fair value of the Public Warrants is $3,565,000 or $0.31 per public warrant. The fair value of Public Warrants was determined using Monte Carlo Simulation Model. The Public Warrants have been classified within shareholders' deficit and will not require remeasurement after issuance. The following table presents the quantitative information regarding market assumptions used in the valuation of the public warrants:

	May 22, 2025
Volatility	6.4%
Risk free rate	3.99%
Stock price	$9.845
Weighted term (Yrs)	2.99

The fair value of the 2,400,000 of interests in founders shares allocated to the non-managing members was $4,621,895 or approximately $1.93 per Founder Share and was determined using Monte Carlo Simulation Model. These interest allocations have been classified within shareholders' deficit and will not require remeasurement after issuance.

The following table presents the quantitative information regarding market assumptions used in the valuation of the interest allocations to the non-managing members:

	May 22, 2025
Volatility	6.40%
Risk free rate	4.09%
Stock price	$9.845
Weighted term (Yrs)	1.34

NOTE 9. SUBSEQUENT EVENTS

The Company evaluated subsequent events and transactions that occurred after the balance sheet date up to the date that the financial statements were issued. Based upon this review, other than as described below or within these financial statements, the Company did not identify any subsequent events that would have required adjustment or disclosure in the financial statements.

Entry into Business Combination Agreement

On October 19, 2025, the Company entered into a Business Combination Agreement with Pubco, Pathfinder, SPAC Merger Sub, Pubco, and Ripple (see Note 1 – Business Combination Agreement).

Change in Ticker Symbols

On October 29, 2025, the Company, issued a press release announcing that the ticker symbols for its Class A ordinary shares, units and public warrants will change from "AACI," "AACIU" and "AACIW," to

"XRPN," "XRPNU" and "XRPNW," respectively. The changes are in connection with the previously announced Business Combination Agreement, entered into on October 19, 2025.

Determination of Signing XRP Price

As previously disclosed in Note 1 – Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, Pathfinder and the Company entered Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, (ii) a Series C Subscription Agreement with the Sponsor and such agreement, the "Series C Subscription Agreement"), pursuant to which the Sponsor agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock for a contribution of 211,319,096.061435 XRP tokens, and (iii) a subscription agreement with an affiliate of Ripple (the "Ripple Group Subscription Agreement"), pursuant to which such investor agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pathfinder Units for an aggregate contribution of 50 million XRP tokens, in each case in a private placement upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the applicable agreements. Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Ripple, Pathfinder and Pubco also entered into the Contribution Agreement and, together with the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, the Series C Subscription Agreement and the Ripple Group Subscription Agreement, the "Signing XRP Agreements"), pursuant to which Ripple will contribute 126,791,458 XRP tokens to the Company in exchange for Company Units, which will be automatically cancelled and exchanged for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock on a one-for-one basis at the Closing, subject to certain limitations described therein.

Pubco and the Company announced on November 4, 2025 that the Signing XRP Price under each of the Signing XRP Agreements, which was calculated as the volume-weighted average price of XRP denominated in USD as quoted on the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" benchmark (with the reference ticker XRPUSD_NY) at 4:00 p.m. New York City time on the day immediately preceding the date on which the Business Combination Agreement was signed, has been determined to be $2.36609.

Purchase of XRP by Pubco

On November 4, 2025, the Company and Pubco issued a joint press release announcing the purchase by Pubco of 84,365,876.3625 XRP using the aggregate cash proceeds from the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements at an average price of $2.53657058 per XRP.

Armada Acquisition Corp. II
NOTES TO UNAUDITED CONDENSED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
JUNE 30, 2026
(Unaudited)

NOTE 1. DESCRIPTION OF ORGANIZATION AND BUSINESS OPERATIONS

Organization and General

Armada Acquisition Corp. II (hereinafter, the "Company" or the "SPAC") was incorporated as a Cayman Islands exempted company on October 3, 2024. The Company is a newly organized blank check company or special purpose acquisition company, formed for the purpose of entering into a merger, share exchange, asset acquisition, share purchase, recapitalization, reorganization or similar business combination with one or more businesses (the "Business Combination"). The Company has not selected any specific business combination target. Its efforts to identify a prospective target business will not be limited to a particular industry or geographic region although it intends to focus on target businesses that provide technological services to the financial services industry ("FinTech"),Software-as-a-Service("SaaS"), or artificial intelligence ("AI"). The Company became an "emerging growth company," as defined in Section 2(a) of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the "Securities Act"), as modified by the Jumpstart Our Business Startups Act of 2012 (the "JOBS Act") upon the closing of the initial public offering ("Initial Public Offering") described below.

As of June 30, 2026, the Company had not commenced any operations. All activity for the period from October 3, 2024 (date of inception) through June 30, 2026, relates to the Company's formation activities in pursuit of completing a business combination and the Initial Public Offering. The Company will not generate any operating revenues until after completion of the Business Combination, at the earliest. The Company generates non-operating income in the form of interest income on investments held in the Trust Account described below. The Company has selected September 30 as its fiscal year end.

Sponsor, Founder and Proposed Financing

For the period from October 3, 2024 (date of inception) through August 28, 2025 the Company's sponsor was Armada Sponsor II LLC, a Delaware limited liability company (the "Original Sponsor"). Effective August 28, 2025, upon completion of the Purchase Agreement (as defined below) Arrington XRP Capital Fund, LP, a Delaware limited partnership is the Company's sponsor (the "New Sponsor"). The registration statement for the Company's Initial Public Offering was declared effective on May 20, 2025. On May 22, 2025, the Company consummated the Initial Public Offering of 23,000,000 units at $10.00 per unit, which is discussed in Note 3, which includes the full exercise of the over-allotment option of 3,000,000 Units, by Cohen and Company Capital Markets a division of J.V.B. Financial Group, LLC ("CCM") and Northland Securities, Inc. ("Northland") (collectively, the "Underwriters")— which is discussed in Note 5, generating gross proceeds of $230,000,000. Simultaneously with the closing of the Initial Public Offering, the Company consummated the sale of an aggregate of 710,000 private placement units, 400,000 of which were purchased by the Original Sponsor and 310,000 purchased by the underwriter at a price of $10.00 per private placement unit, generating gross proceeds of $7,100,000. The net proceeds from the Initial Public Offering and a portion of the proceeds from the Private Placement are held in the Trust Account (discussed below).

Transaction costs amounted to $14,413,386, consisting of $4,600,000 of cash underwriting fee, $9,200,000 of deferred underwriting fee, and $613,386 of other offering costs.

Changes in Control of Registrant

On August 12, 2025, the Company entered into a Sponsor Securities Purchase Agreement (the "Purchase Agreement") with the Original Sponsor and the New Sponsor, pursuant to which the Original Sponsor agreed to sell to the New Sponsor, and the New Sponsor agreed to purchase from the Original Sponsor, an aggregate of 7,880,000 Class B ordinary shares, par value $0.0001 per share, 400,000 Class A ordinary shares, par value $0.0001 per share, and 200,000 private placement warrants of the Company for an aggregate purchase price of $6,600,000 (such transaction, the "New Sponsor Purchase") and the New Sponsor received a limited, revocable license to the Armada Acquisition Corp. II branding for a period of time that expires not later than November 22, 2026 (unless the termination date of the Company is extended to a later date). On August 28, 2025, the New Sponsor Purchase was completed pursuant to the terms of the Purchase Agreement (the "Closing"), the appointments and resignations of directors of the Company described below and in the Schedule 14F and Item 5.02 of the company's Current Report on Form 8-K as filed with the SEC on August 28, 2025 became effective, and the Original Sponsor ceased to control the Company. Following the Closing, the New Sponsor owns all of the equity interests of the Company held by the Original Sponsor, including 100% of the Company's Class B ordinary shares, has the power to appoint all members of the board of directors of the Company (the "Board"), and may therefore be deemed to control the Company.

On August 28, 2025, Stephen P. Herbert, Douglas M. Lurio, Mohammad A. Khan, Thomas Decker and Celso L. White resigned as directors of the Company, Stephen P. Herbert resigned as Chief Executive Officer and principal executive officer of the Company, and Douglas M. Lurio resigned as President and Chief Financial Officer and principal financial and accounting officer of the Company. There was no known disagreement with any of the outgoing directors or officers on any matter relating to the Company's operations, policies or practices.

On August 28, 2025, J. Michael Arrington, Taryn Naidu, Richard Danis, Lindy Key and Ronald Palmeri were appointed as directors of the Company, with Mr. Arrington being appointed as the Chairman of the Board. On August 28, 2025, Taryn Naidu was appointed as Chief Executive Officer and principal executive officer of the Company, and Kyle Horton was appointed as Chief Financial Officer and principal financial and accounting officer of the Company. Each such director and officer entered into an indemnification agreement with the Company in a form substantially consistent with the Company's standard form in connection with their appointment.

Mr. Herbert, former Chief Executive Officer of the Company, and Mr. Lurio, former President and Chief Financial Officer of the Company, have entered into advisor agreements with the Company to serve as advisors to Taryn Naidu in his capacity as Chief Executive Officer (the "Advisor Agreements"). Other than pursuant to the Purchase Agreement and the Advisor Agreements, there are no arrangements or understandings among members of the former and new control groups and their associates with respect to election of directors or other matters. In addition, none of the new directors or officers of the Company has a direct or indirect material interest in any transaction required to be disclosed pursuant to Item 404(a) of Regulation S-K.

Waiver to Insider Letter

On August 28, 2025, the "Original Sponsor", the Company, Stephen P. Herbert, Douglas M. Lurio, Thomas A. Decker, Mohammad A. Khan, Celso L. White and the other parties thereto entered into a waiver (the "Waiver") with respect to that certain insider letter agreement, dated May 20, 2025, by and among the Company, the Original Sponsor and the other persons party thereto (the "Insider Letter").

Joinder Agreement

On August 28, 2025, the New Sponsor entered that certain joinder to insider letter agreement and registration rights agreement (the "Joinder"). Pursuant to the Joinder, the New Sponsor agreed, with effect from the date of the Joinder, to join as a party to the Insider Letter and to that certain Registration Rights Agreement, dated May 20, 2025, by and among the Company, the Original Sponsor and the other persons party thereto. Entry into the Joinder was a condition to the consummation of the transactions contemplated by the Purchase Agreement (as defined above).

The Trust Account

Upon the closing of the Initial Public Offering on May 22, 2025, an amount of $231,150,000 ($10.05 per unit) from the net proceeds of the sale of the units, and a portion of the proceeds of the sale of the private placement units, are held in a Trust Account and will be invested or held only in either (i) U.S. government treasury obligations with a maturity of 185 days or less or in money market funds meeting certain conditions under Rule 2a-7 under the Investment Company Act of 1940 which invest only in direct U.S. government treasury obligations, (ii) as uninvested cash, or (iii) an interest bearing bank demand deposit account or other accounts at a bank. Funds will remain in the Trust Account until the earlier of (i) the completion of the Business Combination or (ii) the distribution of the Trust Account as described below.

The Company's amended and restated memorandum and articles of association provides that, except for (x) all interest income that may be released to the Company to pay taxes and (y) up to $100,000 to pay dissolution expenses, as discussed below, none of the funds held in the Trust Account will be released from the Trust Account until the earlier of: (1) the completion of the initial Business Combination within the required time period; (2) redemption of 100% of the outstanding public shares if the Company has not completed an initial Business Combination within 18 months from the closing of the Initial Public Offering; and (3) the redemption of any public shares properly tendered in connection with a shareholder vote to amend the amended and restated memorandum and articles of association (A) in a manner that would affect the substance or timing of the obligation to redeem 100% of public shares if the Company does not complete its initial Business Combination within the required time period or (B) with respect to any other provision relating to the pre-business combination activity and related shareholders' rights.

Business Combination

The Company's management has broad discretion with respect to the specific application of the net proceeds of the Initial Public Offering, although substantially all of the net proceeds of the Initial Public Offering are intended to be generally applied toward consummating a Business Combination with (or acquisition of) a Target Business. As used herein, "Target Business" must be with one or more target businesses that together have a fair market value equal to at least 80% of the balance in the Trust Account (less the deferred underwriting commissions and the taxes payable on interest earned) at the time the Company signs a definitive agreement in connection with the Business Combination. There is no assurance that the Company will be able to successfully effect a Business Combination.

The Company, after signing a definitive agreement for a Business Combination, will either (i) seek shareholder approval of the Business Combination at a meeting called for such purpose in connection with which shareholders may seek to redeem their shares, regardless of whether they vote for or against the Business Combination, for cash equal to their pro rata share of the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account including interest (which interest shall be net of taxes payable) or (ii) provide shareholders with the opportunity to have their shares redeemed by the Company by means of a tender offer (and thereby avoid the need for a shareholder vote) for an amount in cash equal to their pro rata share of the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account, net of taxes payable, if any. The decision as to whether the Company will seek shareholder approval of the Business Combination or will allow shareholders to redeem their shares in a tender offer will be made by the Company, solely in its discretion, and will be based on a variety of factors such as the timing of the transaction and whether the terms of the transaction would otherwise require the Company to seek shareholder approval unless a vote is required by the Nasdaq rules. If the Company seeks shareholder approval, it will complete its Business Combination only if a majority of the outstanding shares are voted in favor of the Business Combination.

If the Company holds a shareholder vote or there is a tender offer for shares in connection with the Business Combination, a public shareholder will have the right to redeem its shares for an amount in cash equal to its pro rata share of the aggregate amount then on deposit in the Trust Account as of two business days prior to the consummation of the initial Business Combination, including interest (which interest shall be net of taxes payable, if any). As a result, such shares are recorded at redemption amount and classified as temporary equity upon the completion of the Initial Public Offering. The amount in the Trust Account is $10.05 per public share ($231,150,000 held in the Trust Account divided by 23,000,000 public shares). The Company has 18 months from the closing date of the Initial Public Offering to complete its initial Business Combination. If the Company does not complete a Business Combination within this period of time, it shall (i) cease all operations except for the purposes of winding up; (ii) as promptly as reasonably possible, but not more than ten business days thereafter, redeem the public shares for a per share pro rata portion of the Trust Account, including interest, but less taxes payable and up to $100,000 to pay dissolution expenses; and (iii) as promptly as possible following such redemption, dissolve and liquidate the balance of the Company's net assets to its creditors and remaining shareholders, as part of its plan of dissolution and liquidation. The initial shareholders each entered into agreements with us, pursuant to which they agreed: (1) to waive their redemption rights with respect to their founder shares, private placement units and any Class A ordinary shares issuable upon conversion thereof in connection with the consummation of our initial Business Combination or a tender offer conducted prior to a Business Combination or in connection with it; and (2) to waive their rights to liquidating distributions from the Trust Account with respect to their founder shares and private placement units if the Company fails to complete its initial Business Combination within 18 months from the closing of the Initial Public Offering, although they will be entitled to liquidating distributions from the Trust Account with respect to any public shares they hold if we fail to complete our initial Business Combination within the prescribed time frame.

Business Combination Agreement

On October 19, 2025 (the "Signing Date"), the Company (which will domesticate as a Delaware corporation prior to the Closing), entered into a Business Combination Agreement (the "Business Combination Agreement") with Evernorth Holdings Inc., a Nevada corporation ("Pubco"), Pathfinder Digital Assets LLC, a Delaware limited liability company ("Pathfinder"), Evernorth Corporate Merger Sub Inc., a Delaware corporation and wholly owned subsidiary of Pubco ("SPAC Merger Sub"), Evernorth Company Merger Sub LLC, a Delaware limited liability company and wholly owned subsidiary of Pubco ("Company Merger Sub"), and Ripple Labs Inc., a Delaware corporation ("Ripple").

On August 12, 2026, the Company, Pubco, Pathfinder, SPAC Merger Sub, Company Merger Sub and Ripple amended the Business Combination Agreement ("Amendment No. 1 to the Business Combination Agreement") for purposes of proposing certain changes to Pubco's amended and restated articles of incorporation, with such changes to be adopted by Pubco and to take effect upon the consummation of the transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement (the "Closing" and the date and time at which the Closing is actually held, the "Closing Date").

Pursuant to the Business Combination Agreement, and subject to the terms and conditions set forth therein, upon the Closing, (a) Company Merger Sub will merge with and into Pathfinder, with Pathfinder continuing as the surviving company (the "Pathfinder Merger"), with holders of Pathfinder units (each, a "Pathfinder Unit") receiving one share of Class A common stock, par value $0.001 per share, of Pubco ("Pubco Class A Common Stock") for each Pathfinder Unit, subject to certain reductions and other limitations imposed on the Ripple Parties as set forth in the Business Combination Agreement, and (b) simultaneously with the Pathfinder Merger, SPAC Merger Sub will merge with and into the Company, with the Company continuing as the surviving entity (the "SPAC Merger" and, together with the Company Merger, the "Mergers" and, together with the other transactions contemplated by the Business Combination Agreement and the Ancillary Documents, the "Transactions"), with (x) shareholders of the Company receiving one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each Common Share held by such shareholders and (y) warrant holders of the Company receiving one warrant to purchase one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock for each warrant to purchase one SPAC Class A Share held by such warrant holders, in accordance with the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Business Combination Agreement.

Upon the consummation of the Mergers and the Transactions, Pubco will become a publicly traded company.

In connection with the Closing, Pubco will have authorized three classes of Pubco common stock with different voting and economic rights. The Pubco Class A Common Stock will be entitled to economic rights, including the right to receive distributions in proportion to the number of shares held, and will be listed for trading on Nasdaq or another national securities exchange. Each share of Pubco Class Common A Stock will be entitled to one vote per share. Shares of Class B common stock, par value $0.001 per share, of Pubco (the "Pubco Class B Common Stock") will be entitled to one vote per share but will not have any economic rights and will not be listed for trading or transferable unless a corresponding number of units of Pathfinder as the surviving Company after the Pathfinder Merger (the "Company Surviving Subsidiary") are transferred to the same person. However, no shares of Pubco Class B Common Stock are expected to be issued or outstanding immediately following the Closing. Shares of Class C common stock, par value $0.001 per share, of Pubco (the "Pubco Class C Common Stock" and, together with the Pubco Class A Common Stock and the Pubco Class B Common Stock, the "Pubco Stock") will be entitled to economic rights, including the right to receive distributions in proportion to the number of shares held, but will have no voting rights except as required by the Nevada Revised Statutes and will not be listed for trading or transferable, and will be convertible into Pubco Class A Common Stock at the election of the holder from time to time.

Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement

Concurrently with the Closing of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, the Company, the New Sponsor and certain securityholders listed therein will enter into a registration rights agreement that will amend and restate the registration rights agreement entered into at the time of the Company's initial public offering between the Company, the New Sponsor and certain securityholders listed therein (as amended, the "Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement"), pursuant to which Pubco will assume the registration obligations of the Company under such registration rights agreement, with such rights applying to the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, Class B common stock (the "Pubco Class B Common Stock") and Pubco Class C Common Stock.

The Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement provides for customary demand registration rights, piggyback registration rights, and shelf registration rights for the benefit of the holders, subject to customary cutbacks and issuer suspension rights. It also includes customary provisions relating to underwriting participation, registration expenses, indemnification, and coordination of sales in underwritten offerings. The Amended and Restated Registration Rights Agreement will become effective upon the Closing and will supersede the Company's existing registration rights agreement in its entirety.

Sponsor Support Agreement

Concurrently with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, the Company entered into a Sponsor Support Agreement with the New Sponsor and Pubco (as may be amended, supplemented or otherwise modified from time to time, the "Sponsor Support Agreement"), pursuant to which, among other things, the New Sponsor agreed to (i) deliver and forfeit to the Company for cancellation and for no consideration (x) 120,000 Class A ordinary shares, (y) 2,364,000 Class B ordinary shares and (z) 60,000 private placement warrants (such forfeited amounts equaling approximately 30% of the Company's Common Shares held by the New Sponsor) and (ii) vote its Class A Shares and Class B Shares (the "New Sponsor Shares") in favor of the Business Combination Agreement and the Transactions and each of the proposal to approve the Business Combination Agreement, the proposal to authorize and approve the Pathfinder Merger, and the proposal to approve a plan of domestication, (ii) to vote its New Sponsor Shares against any alternative transactions, (iii) to comply with the restrictions imposed by the Insider Letter (as defined above), by and among the Company, Original Sponsor, and the officers and directors of the Company at the time of its initial public offering, pursuant to which the New Sponsor was later joined as a party by way of the Joinder (as defined above) to the Insider Letter, by and between New Sponsor and the Company, including the restrictions on transfer and redemption of the Class A Shares and Class B Shares in connection with the Transactions, and (iv) subject to and conditioned upon the Closing, to waive any anti-dilution rights that would otherwise result in the Class B Shares converting into Class A Shares on a greater than one-for-one basis.

In addition, the New Sponsor agreed to effect certain security cancellations and issuances in connection with the Closing. Specifically, immediately prior to the time on the Closing Date when the certificate to be filed with the Delaware Secretary of State to certify the Pathfinder Merger (the "Pathfinder Certificate of Merger") has been duly accepted for filing by the Delaware Secretary of State in accordance with the Limited Liability Company Act of the State of Delaware (the "DLLCA") (or such other time as specified in the Pathfinder Certificate of Merger) (the "Company Merger Effective Time"), the New Sponsor will forfeit for no consideration (a) 120,000 Class A Shares, (b) 2,364,000 Class B Shares and (c) 60,000 warrants, each exercisable for one Class A Share at $ 11.50 per share (the "Private Placement Warrants").

Pursuant to the Sponsor Support Agreement, the New Sponsor also agreed, subject to and effective as of the Closing, to irrevocably and unconditionally release and waive any and all claims it may have against the Company, Pubco and Pathfinder or their respective affiliates arising on or prior to the Closing, subject to customary carve-outs.

On August 12, 2026, the Company, Pubco and New Sponsor amended the Sponsor Support Agreement ("Amendment No. 1 to the Sponsor Support Agreement") for purposes of adjusting the number of Class A Shares, Class B Shares and Private Placement Warrants that will be forfeited by New Sponsor at the Company Merger Effective Time. Specifically, Amendment No. 1 to the Sponsor Support Agreement provides that New Sponsor will forfeit to the Company for cancellation and for no consideration a number of shares equal to (a) all Class A Shares, Class B Shares and Private Placement Warrants that New Sponsor holds multiplied by (b) a closing date adjustment factor equal to the lesser of (x) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (y) 0.7. (the "Adjustment Factor"). The number of SPAC Class A Shares forfeited pursuant to the immediately preceding sentence shall hereinafter be referred to as "Forfeited SPAC Class A Shares"; the number of SPAC Class B Shares forfeited pursuant to the immediately preceding sentence shall hereinafter be referred to as "Forfeited SPAC Class B Shares"; and the number of Private Placement Warrants forfeited pursuant to the immediately preceding sentence shall hereinafter be referred to as the "Forfeited SPAC Private Warrants".

Lock-Up Agreements

Concurrently with the Closing, each of the Company, the New Sponsor, Ripple and other Persons who will, immediately after the Closing, be holders of Pubco Stock or units of the Company Surviving Subsidiary and who, with Ripple, will collectively be deemed to form a "group" as defined in Section 13(d) of the Exchange Act ("Ripple Affiliate Investors") will enter into a Lock-Up Agreement with Pubco (the "Lock-Up Agreements"), pursuant to which such parties agree that any shares of Pubco Stock, one warrant to purchase one share of Pubco Class A Common Stock issued to warrant holders of SPAC Delaware by Pubco (the "Pubco Warrants"), any shares of Pubco Stock issuable upon the exercise or settlement, as applicable, of Warrants, Pathfinder Units, and any other securities convertible into or exercisable or exchangeable for Pubco Stock, in each case, held by such holder immediately after the Closing will be locked-up and subject to transfer restrictions, as described below, subject to certain exceptions.

Pursuant to the Lock-Up Agreements, the parties thereto agree, among other things, not to, without the prior written consent of Pubco, (i) sell, offer to sell, contract or agree to sell, hypothecate, pledge, grant any option to purchase or otherwise dispose of or agree to dispose of, directly or indirectly, or establish or increase a put equivalent position or liquidation with respect to or decrease a call equivalent position with respect to Restricted Securities (as defined in the Lock-Up Agreements), (ii) enter into any swap or other arrangement that transfers to another, in whole or in part, any of the economic consequences of ownership of any Restricted Securities, whether any such transaction is to be settled by delivery of such securities, in cash or otherwise, or (iii) publicly announce the intention to effect any transaction specified in clause (i) or (ii), until the earlier of six months following the date of the Closing and the date on which Pubco consummates a liquidation, merger, capital stock exchange, reorganization or other similar transaction that results in all Pubco shareholders having the right to exchange their shares of Pubco common stock for cash, securities or other property. The Lock-Up Agreements include customary exceptions to the transfer restrictions, including transfers to affiliates.

Subscription Agreements

Advance Funding Subscription Agreements

In connection with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, Pathfinder and the Company entered into advance funding subscription agreements (as amended, the "Advance Funding Subscription Agreements") with certain institutional investors and individual accredited investors ("Advance Subscribers") pursuant to which the Advance Subscribers agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock for an aggregate of $214.05 million in cash and a contribution of 600,000 XRP tokens, in a private placement (the "PIPE"), upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in such agreements.

On August 12, 2026, Pubco, Pathfinder and the Company and each Advance Funding Subscriber entered into Amendment No. 1 to the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Advance Funding Shares. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial share calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-share adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price. Under the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, as amended, Advance Subscribers will receive a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock on the Closing Date equal to the sum of (a) the Advance Funding Initial Subscribed Shares (as defined below) and (b) the Adjustment Shares (as defined below), if any. "Advance Subscriber Subscription Price" means (a) if the Advance Subscriber elected to subscribe for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock with cash, the amount of cash contributed as set forth on the signature page to its Advance Funding Subscription Agreement or (b) if the Advance Subscriber elected to subscribe for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock with XRP, such amount (in USD) equal to the product of (x) the amount of XRP contributed as set forth on the signature page to its Advance Funding Subscription Agreement and (y) the XRP Token VWAP on October 19, 2025. "Signing XRP Price" means the VWAP of XRP denominated in USD as quoted on the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" benchmark (with the reference ticker XRPUSD_NY) at 4:00 p.m. New York City time on the day immediately preceding the date on which the Business Combination Agreement is signed. Advance Funding Initial Subscribed Shares" means the quotient of (i) the Advance Subscriber Subscription Price and (ii) $10.00, multiplied by the "Closing Date Adjustment Factor," which means the lesser of (a) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (b) one. "Adjustment Shares" means, in respect of any Advance Funding Subscriber, whether such subscriber elected to subscribe with XRP or with cash that was subsequently used by Pubco and/or Pathfinder to purchase XRP, if the Closing XRP Price is greater than the Signing XRP Price, such number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock equal to the product of (i) the number of Advance Funding Initial Subscribed Shares issuable to such Advance Funding Subscriber and (ii) the difference between (a) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (b) one. If the Closing XRP Price is less than or equal to the Signing XRP Price, no Advance Funding Adjustment Shares will be issued.

In addition to the changes reflected by Amendment No. 1 above, on August 12, 2026, Pubco, Pathfinder, the Company and each of SBI Venture Fund 2023A Investment LPS, SBI Venture Fund 2023B Investment LPS, SBI PE Holdings Co., Ltd. and SBI Holdings USA, Inc. (collectively, the "SBI Stockholders"), each of which are entities controlled by SBI Holdings, Inc. ("SBI"), further amended the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreements (the "SBI Entity Amendments"). The purpose of each SBI Entity Amendment is to apply a 39.9% ownership limitation to the shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issuable in respect of SBI's Advance Funding Subscription. At Closing, Pubco will issue in respect of SBI's subscription (i) the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would cause the Subscriber Group Ownership Percentage (as defined in the applicable Advance Funding Subscription Agreement, as amended) to equal 39.9% and (ii) the balance of the Subscribed Shares as shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock. This allocation will not change the aggregate number of Subscribed Shares, the aggregate Subscription Price or the Per Share Price, which will be identical for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock. The shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock will be convertible into shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock in accordance with the amended and restated Pubco charter.

Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements

In connection with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, Pathfinder and the Company entered into delayed funding subscription agreements (each, a "Delayed Funding Subscription Agreement" and collectively, the "Delayed Funding Subscription Agreements") with certain institutional investors and individual accredited investors ("Delayed Subscribers") pursuant to which the Delayed Subscribers agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock for an aggregate of $10.5 million in cash and a contribution of 200,000 XRP tokens, in a PIPE, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in such agreements. Delayed Subscribers will receive a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock on the Closing Date equal to the quotient of (i) the Delayed Subscriber Subscription Price and (ii) $10.00. "Delayed Subscriber Subscription Price" means (a) if the Delayed Subscriber elected to subscribe for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock with cash, the amount of cash contributed as set forth on the signature page to its Delayed Funding Subscription Agreement or (b) if the Delayed Subscriber elected to subscribe for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock with XRP, such amount (in USD) equal to the product of (x) the amount of XRP contributed as set forth on the signature page to its Delayed Funding Subscription Agreement and (y) the Closing Date XRP Token VWAP.

Series C Subscription Agreements

In connection with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, Pathfinder and the Company entered into a Series C Subscription Agreement with the New Sponsor (the "Series C Subscription Agreement") pursuant to which the Sponsor agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock (together, the "Series C Subscribed Shares") for a contribution of 211,319,096.061435 XRP tokens, in a PIPE, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in such agreement. On August 12, 2026, Pubco, Pathfinder, the Company and the New Sponsor entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Series C Subscription Agreement in order to revise the pricing mechanics used to determine the number of Series C Subscribed Shares. Amendment No. 1 subjects the initial share calculation to a closing-date adjustment if the value of XRP denominated in USD as calculated using the "CME CF XRP-Dollar Reference Rate - New York Variant" benchmark (with the reference ticker XRPUSD_NY) by taking the arithmetic average of the quotes at 4:00 p.m. New York City time for each of the three days immediately preceding the Closing Date (the "Closing XRP Price") is below the Signing XRP Price, while retaining the additional-share adjustment if the Closing XRP Price is above the Signing XRP Price.

The New Sponsor will receive an aggregate number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock on the Closing Date equal to the quotient of (i) the New Sponsor Subscription Price and (ii) Initial Subscribed Shares, plus Series C Adjustment Shares. "New Sponsor Subscription Price" means (a) if the New Sponsor elected to subscribe for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pubco Class C Common Stock with cash, the amount of cash contributed as set forth on the signature page to the Series C Subscription Agreement or (b) if the New Sponsor elected to subscribe for such shares with XRP, such amount (in USD) equal to the product of (x) the amount of XRP contributed as set forth on the signature page to the Series C Subscription Agreement and (y) the Signing Date XRP Token VWAP. "Series C Adjustment Shares" means, if the Closing XRP Price is greater than the Signing XRP Price, such number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock or Pubco Class C Common Stock equal to the product of (i) the number of Series C Initial Subscribed Shares issuable to the Series C DQ Persons and (ii) the difference between (a) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (b) one. If the Closing XRP Price is less than or equal to the Signing XRP Price, no Series C Adjustment Shares will be issued.

The New Sponsor will receive a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock on the Closing Date that would result in the Series C DQ Persons collectively owning, immediately after the Closing Date and the other related transactions, a number of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would cause such Series C DQ Persons to be the beneficial owners of capital stock of Pubco such that the Series C Attributed Ownership Percentage equals 19.9%. The New Sponsor will receive a number of shares of Pubco Class C Common Stock equal to the number of Subscribed Shares minus the number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock issued to the Sponsor pursuant to the preceding sentence.

The closing of the Series C Subscription Agreement is conditioned on, among other things, the satisfaction, or waiver by the New Sponsor, of the additional condition that, on the date hereof, no Other Subscription Agreement (or other agreements or understandings (including side letters) entered into in connection therewith or in connection with the sale of the Other Equity Interests) shall have been amended, modified or waived in any manner that benefits any Other Subscriber with respect to the economic terms governing the purchase and sale of such Other Equity Interests unless the New Sponsor shall have been offered in writing the same economic benefits, subject to certain exceptions.

Ripple Group Subscription Agreements

In connection with the execution of the Business Combination Agreement, Pubco, Pathfinder and the Company entered into a subscription agreement with certain affiliates of Ripple (each, a "Ripple Group Subscription Agreement," and together, the "Ripple Group Subscription Agreements,") and together with the Advance Funding Subscription Agreements, the Delayed Funding Subscription Agreement and the Series C Subscription Agreement, the "Subscription Agreements") pursuant to which the affiliates of Ripple (the "Ripple Group Subscribers") agreed to purchase, and Pubco agreed to issue and sell, on the Closing Date, shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pathfinder Units for an aggregate contribution of 50 million XRP tokens, in a PIPE, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in such agreement.

The Ripple Group Subscribers will receive an aggregate number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pathfinder Units on the Closing Date equal to the quotient of (i) the Ripple Group Subscription Price and (ii) Initial Subscribed Equity Units, plus Adjustment Equity Units. "Ripple Group Subscription Price" means (a) if such Ripple Group Subscriber elected to subscribe for shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Pathfinder Units with cash, the amount of cash contributed as set forth on the signature page to the applicable Ripple Group Subscription Agreement or (b) if such Ripple Group Subscriber elected to subscribe for such equity units with XRP, such amount (in USD) equal to the product of (x) the amount of XRP contributed as set forth on the signature page to the Ripple Group Subscription Agreement and (y) the Signing Date XRP Token VWAP.

The Ripple Group Subscribers will receive a number of shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock on the Closing Date that would result in the Ripple Group Holders collectively owning, immediately after the Closing Date and the other related transactions, a number of Pubco Class A Common Stock that would cause such Ripple Group Holders to be the beneficial owners of capital stock of Pubco such that the Ripple Group Ownership Percentage equals 9.9%. The Ripple Group Subscriber will also receive a number of Pathfinder Units equal to the number of Subscribed Equity Interests minus the number of Subscribed Shares.

The closing of each Ripple Group Subscription Agreement is conditioned on, among other things, the satisfaction or waiver by each Ripple Group Subscriber that no Other Ripple Group Subscription Agreement (or other agreements or understandings (including side letters) entered into in connection therewith or in connection with the sale of the Other Ripple Group Subscribed Equity Interests) shall have been amended, modified or waived in any manner that benefits any Other Ripple Group Subscriber unless the Ripple Group Subscriber shall have been offered in writing the same benefits.

No fractional shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock, Pubco Class B Common Stock, or Pathfinder Unit will be issued in connection with the Subscription Agreements, and any fractional equity units otherwise issuable will be rounded down to the nearest whole equity unit.

Pursuant to the Subscription Agreements, Pubco has agreed to use commercially reasonable efforts to file a registration statement registering the resale of the shares purchased by the Subscribers pursuant to the Subscription Agreements (at Pubco's sole cost and expense) within 30 calendar days following the Closing Date and to use commercially reasonable efforts to have such registration statement declared effective as soon as practicable, and in any event no later than 75 calendar days after the Closing Date, subject to an extension in the event of SEC review.

The net cash proceeds from the closing of the Subscription Agreements, along with funds from the trust account of the SPAC, will be used for working capital, general corporate purposes and the purchase of XRP.

Each Subscription Agreement will terminate and be void and of no further force or effect upon the earliest to occur of (i) the termination of the Business Combination Agreement in accordance with its terms, (ii) the date that is twelve months from the date of the Subscription Agreement or (iii) the mutual written agreement of the parties thereto.

Pubco, Pathfinder and the Company may seek to raise additional funds through private placement transactions, including PIPE transactions, or other forms of capital raising. There can be no assurance as to whether, when or on what terms any such future financings may be conducted.

Liquidity and Going Concern

As of June 30, 2026, the Company had $54,503 in its operating bank account and working capital deficit of $5,289,441.

In order to fund working capital deficiencies or finance transaction costs in connection with a Business Combination, the New Sponsor, or certain of the Company's officers and directors or their affiliates may, but are not obligated to, loan us funds as may be required (see also Note 4—"Related Party Loans") either to complete our Business Combination or because the Company may become obligated to redeem a significant number of our public shares upon completion of our Business Combination, in which case the Company may issue additional securities or incur debt in connection with such Business Combination. If the Company is unable to raise additional capital, it may be required to take additional measures to conserve liquidity, which could include, but not necessarily be limited to, curtailing operations, suspending the pursuit of a potential transaction, and reducing overhead expenses. The Company cannot provide any assurance that new financing will be available to it on commercially acceptable terms, if at all. In connection with the Company's assessment of going concern considerations in accordance with Financial Accounting Standards Board's ("FASB") Accounting Standards Codification ("ASC") Topic ASC 205-40 ("ASC 205"), "Going Concern," as of June 30, 2026, the Company has until November 22, 2026 (the "Liquidation Date") to consummate an initial Business Combination. It is uncertain that we will be able to consummate an initial business combination by November 22, 2026. If an initial Business Combination is not consummated by the Liquidation Date, there will be mandatory liquidation and subsequent dissolution.

The Company's Management has determined that the liquidity condition and mandatory liquidation should an initial Business Combination not occur, and potential subsequent dissolution raises substantial doubt about the Company's ability to continue as a going concern. No adjustments have been made to the carrying amounts of assets or liabilities should the Company be required to liquidate after November 22, 2026.

On July 27, 2026, the Company entered into an unsecured promissory note with Arrington XRP Capital Fund, LP (see Note 9). As of the date these financial statements were issued aggregate borrowings of $135,000 were outstanding under the note, excluding accrued interest.

NOTE 2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Basis of Presentation

The accompanying unaudited condensed financial statements have been prepared in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America ("GAAP") for interim financial information and in accordance with the instructions to Form 10-Q and Article 8 of Regulation S-X of the SEC. Certain information or footnote disclosures normally included in financial statements prepared in accordance with GAAP have been condensed or omitted, pursuant to the rules and regulations of the SEC for interim financial reporting. Accordingly, they do not include all the information and footnotes necessary for a complete presentation of financial position, results of operations, or cash flows. In the opinion of management, the accompanying unaudited condensed financial statements include all adjustments, consisting of a normal recurring nature, which are necessary for a fair presentation of the financial position, operating results and cash flows for the periods presented.

The accompanying unaudited condensed financial statements should be read in conjunction with the Company's Annual Report on Form 10-K for the period ended September 30, 2025, as filed with the SEC on December 4, 2025. The interim results for the three and nine months ended June 30, 2026 are not necessarily indicative of the results to be expected for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2026, or for any future periods.

Emerging Growth Company

The Company is an "emerging growth company," as defined in Section 2(a) of the Securities Act, as modified by the Jumpstart Our Business Startups Act of 2012 (the "JOBS Act"), and it may take advantage of certain exemptions from various reporting requirements that are applicable to other public companies that are not emerging growth companies including, but not limited to, not being required to comply with the auditor attestation requirements of Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, reduced disclosure obligations regarding executive compensation in its periodic reports and proxy statements, and exemptions from the requirements of holding a nonbinding advisory vote on executive compensation and shareholder approval of any golden parachute payments not previously approved.

Further, Section 102(b)(1) of the JOBS Act exempts emerging growth companies from being required to comply with new or revised financial accounting standards until private companies (that is, those that have not had a Securities Act registration statement declared effective or do not have a class of securities registered under the Exchange Act) are required to comply with the new or revised financial accounting standards. The JOBS Act provides that a company can elect to opt out of the extended transition period and comply with the requirements that apply to non-emerging growth companies but any such election to opt out is irrevocable. The Company has elected not to opt out of such extended transition period, which means that when a standard is issued or revised and it has different application dates for public or private companies, the Company, as an emerging growth company, can adopt the new or revised standard at the time private companies adopt the new or revised standard. This may make comparison of the Company's unaudited condensed financial statements with another public company which is neither an emerging growth company nor an emerging growth company which has opted out of using the extended transition period, difficult or impossible because of the potential differences in accounting standards used.

Cash and Cash Equivalents

The Company considers all short-term investments with an original maturity of three months or less when purchased to be cash equivalents. The Company had cash of $54,503 and $361,105 and did not have any cash equivalents as of June 30, 2026 and September 30, 2025, respectively.

Cash and Marketable Securities Held in Trust Account

As of June 30, 2026, the assets held in the Trust Account, amounting to $241,164,305, were held primarily in money market funds which invests in U.S. Treasury securities. As of September 30, 2025, the assets held in the Trust Account, amounting to $234,628,166, were held primarily in U.S. Treasury bills.

Concentration of Credit Risk

Financial instruments that potentially subject the Company to concentrations of credit risk consist of a cash account in a financial institution, which at times may exceed federally insured limits. The Company has not experienced losses on these accounts and management believes the Company is not exposed to significant risks on such accounts.

Financial Instruments

The fair value of the Company's assets and liabilities, which qualify as financial instruments under ASC Topic 820 ("ASC 820"), "Fair Value Measurements and Disclosures," approximates the carrying amounts represented in the balance sheet, primarily due to its short-term nature, except for Cash and Marketable securities held in Trust Account as described in Note 8 – Fair Value Measurements below.

Use of Estimates

The preparation of the unaudited condensed financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires the Company's management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the unaudited condensed financial statements. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Offering Costs Associated with the Initial Public Offering

The Company complies with the requirements of ASC Topic 340-10-S99 "Other Assets and Deferred Costs—SEC Materials" ("ASC 340") and SEC Staff Accounting Bulletin ("SAB") Topic 5A, "Expenses of Offering" ("SAB Topic 5A"). Offering costs consist principally of professional and registration fees that are related to the Initial Public Offering. FASB ASC 470-20, "Debt with Conversion and Other Options," addresses the allocation of proceeds from the issuance of convertible debt into its equity and debt components. The Company applies this guidance to allocate Initial Public Offering proceeds from the Units between Class A ordinary shares and warrants, using the residual method by allocating Initial Public Offering proceeds first to assigned value of the warrants and then to the Class A ordinary shares. Offering costs allocated to the Class A ordinary shares subject to possible redemption were charged to temporary equity and offering costs allocated to the Private Placement Units and the Public and Private Placement Warrants within the Unit, were charged to shareholders' deficit as Public and Private Placement Warrants included in the Units, after management's evaluation are accounted for under equity treatment.

Income Taxes

The Company follows the asset and liability method of accounting for income taxes under ASC Topic 740, "Income Taxes" ("ASC 740"). Deferred tax assets and liabilities are recognized for the estimated future tax consequences attributable to differences between the financial statement carrying amounts of existing assets and liabilities and their respective tax bases. Deferred tax assets and liabilities are measured using enacted tax rates expected to apply to taxable income in the years in which those temporary differences are expected to be recovered or settled. The effect on deferred tax assets and liabilities of a change in tax rates is recognized in income in the period that included the enactment date. Valuation allowances are established, when necessary, to reduce deferred tax assets to the amount expected to be realized.

ASC 740 prescribes a recognition threshold and a measurement attribute for the financial statement recognition and measurement of tax positions taken or expected to be taken in a tax return. For those benefits to be recognized, a tax position must be more likely than not to be sustained upon examination by taxing authorities. The Company recognizes accrued interest and penalties related to unrecognized tax benefits as income tax expense. There were no unrecognized tax benefits and no amounts accrued for interest and penalties as of June 30, 2026 and September 30, 2025. The Company is currently not aware of any issues under review that could result in significant payments, accruals or material deviation from its position.

The Company is considered to be an exempted Cayman Islands company with no connection to any other taxable jurisdiction and is presently not subject to income taxes or income tax filing requirements in the Cayman Islands, and the Company believes it is presently not subject to income taxes or income tax filing requirements in the United States. As such, the Company's tax provision was zero for the period presented.

Class A Ordinary Shares Subject to Possible Redemption

The Public Shares contain a redemption feature which allows for the redemption of such Public Shares in connection with the Company's liquidation, if there is a shareholder vote (A) to modify the substance or timing of the Company's obligation to allow redemption in connection with a Business Combination or to redeem 100% of the Public Shares if the Company does not complete an initial business combination within the completion window or (B) with respect to any other material provisions relating to shareholders' rights or pre-initial Business Combination activity, or if there is a shareholder vote or tender offer in connection with the Company's initial Business Combination. In accordance with FASB ASC Topic 480, "Distinguishing Liabilities from Equity", the Company classifies Public Shares subject to redemption outside of permanent equity as the redemption provisions are not solely within the control of the Company. The Company recognizes changes in redemption value immediately as they occur and will adjust the carrying value of redeemable shares to equal the redemption value at the end of each reporting period. Immediately upon the closing of the Initial Public Offering, the Company recognized the accretion from initial book value to redemption value which is equivalent to the pro-rata amount held in the Trust per-share less any permitted withdrawals. The change in the carrying value of redeemable shares will result in charges against additional paid-in capital (to the extent available) and accumulated deficit. Accordingly, as of June 30, 2026 and September 30, 2025, Class A ordinary shares subject to possible redemption are presented at redemption value as temporary equity, outside of the shareholders' deficit section of the Company's unaudited condensed balance sheets. As of June 30, 2026, the Class A ordinary shares subject to possible redemption reflected in the unaudited condensed balance sheets are reconciled in the following table:

Gross proceeds	$230,000,000
Less:
Proceeds allocated to Public Warrants	(3,565,000)
Class A ordinary shares issuance cost	(14,171,895)
Accretion of carrying value to redemption value	22,365,061

Plus:
Accretion of carrying value to redemption value	6,536,139
Class A Ordinary Shares subject to possible redemption, June 30, 2026	$241,164,305

Warrant Instruments

The Company accounted for the Public Warrants and Private Placement Warrants issued in connection with the Initial Public Offering and the private placement in accordance with the guidance contained in FASB ASC Topic 815, "Derivatives and Hedging". Accordingly, the Company evaluated and classified the warrant instruments under equity treatment at their assigned values. Such guidance provides that the warrants described above will not be precluded from equity classification. Equity-classified contracts are initially measured at fair value (or allocated value). Subsequent changes in fair value are not recognized as long as the contracts continue to be classified in equity in accordance with FASB ASC 480 and FASB ASC 815. As of June 30, 2026, there were 11,500,000 Public Warrants and 355,000 Private Placement Warrants outstanding.

Net Income per Ordinary Share

The Company complies with accounting and disclosure requirements of ASC Topic 260, "Earnings Per Share" ("ASC 260"). The Company has two classes of shares, which are referred to as Class A ordinary shares and Class B ordinary shares. Income and losses are shared pro rata between the two classes of shares. Net income per ordinary share is calculated by dividing the net income by the weighted average ordinary shares outstanding for the respective period. Diluted net income per share attributable to ordinary shareholders adjusts the basic net income per share attributable to ordinary shareholders and the weighted-average ordinary shares outstanding for the potentially dilutive impact of outstanding warrants. However, because the warrants are anti-dilutive, they have been excluded from the calculation of diluted loss per ordinary share for the periods presented.

With respect to the accretion of Class A ordinary shares subject to possible redemption and consistent with ASC Topic 480-10-S99-3 A, the Company treated accretion in the same manner as a dividend paid to the shareholders in the calculation of the net income per ordinary share.

The following table reflects the calculation of basic and diluted net income per ordinary share:

	For the Three Months Ended June 30, 2026		For the Three Months Ended June 30, 2025		For the Nine Months Ended June 30, 2026		For the Period from October 3, 2024 (Inception) through June 30, 2025

Recent Accounting Pronouncements

The Company does not believe that any other recently issued, but not yet effective, accounting pronouncements, if currently adopted, would have a material effect on the Company's unaudited condensed financial statements.

NOTE 3. INITIAL PUBLIC OFFERING

Pursuant to the Initial Public Offering on May 22, 2025, the Company sold 23,000,000 units at a price of $10.00 per Unit for a total of $230,000,000, which includes the full exercise of the underwriters' overallotment option in the amount of 3,000,000 Units. Each Unit consists of one share of the Company's Class A ordinary shares, $0.0001 par value and one-half of one redeemable warrant to purchase one Class A ordinary share (the "Warrants"). The Warrants will only be exercisable for whole shares at $11.50 per share.

On August 28, 2025, the New Sponsor Purchase was completed, whereby the Original Sponsor agreed to sell to the New Sponsor, and the New Sponsor agreed to purchase from the Original Sponsor, an aggregate of 7,880,000 Class B ordinary shares, par value $0.0001 per share, 400,000 Class A ordinary shares, par value $0.0001 per share, and 200,000 private placement warrants of the Company for an aggregate purchase price of $6,600,000 (see Note 1 – Changes in control of Registrant).

Warrants —As of June 30, 2026 and September 30, 2025, there were 11,500,000 Public Warrants and 355,000 Private Placement Warrants outstanding, respectively. Each whole warrant entitles the registered holder to purchase one Class A ordinary share at a price of $11.50 per share, at any time commencing on the later of 12 months from the closing of the Initial Public Offering and after the completion of the initial Business Combination. Pursuant to the warrant agreement, a warrant holder may exercise its warrants only for a whole number of Class A ordinary shares. This means that only a whole warrant may be exercised at any given time by a warrant holder. No fractional warrants will be issued upon separation of the Units and only whole warrants will trade. The warrants will expire at 5:00 p.m., New York City time, on the fifth anniversary of the completion of an initial Business Combination, or earlier upon redemption.

In addition, if (x) the Company issues additional Class A ordinary shares or equity-linked securities for capital raising purposes in connection with the closing of our initial business combination at an issue price or effective issue price of less than $9.20 per Class A ordinary share (with such issue price or effective issue price to be determined in good faith by our Board of Directors, and in the case of any such issuance to the Sponsor or its affiliates, without taking into account any founder shares held by them prior to such issuance), (y) the aggregate gross proceeds from such issuances represent more than 60% of the total equity proceeds, and interest thereon, available for the funding of the initial Business Combination on the date of the consummation of the initial Business Combination (net of redemptions), and (z) the volume weighted average trading price of our Class A ordinary shares during the 20 trading-day period starting on the trading day prior to the day on which the Company consummates its initial Business Combination (such price, the "Market Value") is below $9.20 per share, the exercise price of the warrants will be adjusted (to the nearest cent) to be equal to 115% of the greater of (i) the Market Value or (ii) the price at which the Company issue the additional Class A ordinary shares or equity-linked securities. On the exercise of any warrant, the exercise price will be paid directly to the Company and not placed in the Trust Account.

The Company has agreed that as soon as practicable, but in no event later than 15 business days after the closing of the initial Business Combination, the Company will use its best efforts to file with the SEC a registration statement for the registration under the Securities Act of the warrant shares and thereafter use its best efforts to cause the registration statement to become effective and to maintain the effectiveness of such registration statement until the expiration of the warrants. No warrants will be exercisable for cash unless the Company has an effective and current registration statement covering the issuance of the warrant shares and a current prospectus relating thereto.

If a registration statement covering the issuance of the warrant shares is not effective within 90 days following the consummation of the initial Business Combination, warrant holders may nevertheless, until such time as there is such an effective registration statement and during any period when the Company shall have failed to maintain such an effective registration statement, exercise warrants on a cashless basis in accordance with Section 3(a)(9) of the Securities Act. In this circumstance, each holder would pay the exercise price by surrendering warrants exercisable for the number of Class A ordinary shares equal to the quotient obtained by dividing (x) the product of the number of Class A ordinary shares underlying such warrants and the difference between the exercise price of such warrants and the "fair market value" (defined below) by (y) the fair market value. The "fair market value" means the average reported last sale price of the Class A ordinary shares for the five trading days ending on the trading day prior to the date of exercise.

Redemption of Warrants: The Company may redeem the outstanding warrants:

- in whole and not in part;
- at a price of $0.01 per warrant;

- upon a minimum of 30 days' prior written notice of redemption (the "30-day redemption period"); and
- if, and only if, the last reported sale price of the Class A ordinary shares equals or exceeds $18.00 per share (as adjusted for share splits, dividends, reorganizations, recapitalizations and the like) for any 20 trading days within a 30-trading day period ending on the third trading day prior to the date on which the Company will send the notice of redemption to the warrant holders.

The Company will not redeem the warrants unless a registration statement under the Securities Act covering the issuance of the warrant shares underlying the warrants to be so redeemed is then effective and a current prospectus relating to those warrant shares is available throughout the 30-day redemption period, except if the warrants may be exercised on a cashless basis and such cashless exercise is exempt from registration under the Securities Act. If and when the warrants become redeemable by the Company, it may exercise its redemption right even if it is unable to register or qualify the underlying securities for sale under all applicable state securities laws.

If the foregoing conditions are satisfied and the Company issues a notice of redemption, each warrant holder may exercise his, her or its warrants prior to the scheduled redemption date. However, the price of the Class A ordinary shares may fall below the $18.00 trigger price (as adjusted) as well as the $11.50 exercise price (as adjusted) after the redemption notice is issued. The redemption criteria for the warrants have been established at a price which is intended to provide warrant holders a reasonable premium to the initial exercise price and provide a sufficient differential between the then-prevailing share price and the exercise price so that if the share price declines as a result of the redemption call, the redemption will not cause the share price to drop below the exercise price of the warrants. If the Company calls the warrants for redemption as described above, the management will have the option to require all holders that wish to exercise warrants to do so on a "cashless basis." In making such determination, management will consider, among other factors, our cash position, the number of warrants that are outstanding and the dilutive effect on our shareholders of issuing the maximum number of warrant shares issuable upon exercise of outstanding warrants. In such event, the holder would pay the exercise price by surrendering the warrants for that number of Class A ordinary shares equal to the quotient obtained by dividing (x) the product of the number of warrant shares underlying the warrants to be so exercised, and the difference between the exercise price of the warrants and the fair market value by (y) the fair market value.

No fractional Class A ordinary share will be issued upon redemption. If, upon redemption, a holder would be entitled to receive a fractional interest in a share, the Company will round down to the nearest whole number of the number of Class A ordinary shares to be issued to the holder.

NOTE 4. RELATED PARTY TRANSACTIONS

Founder Shares

On November 7, 2024, the Sponsor purchased 7,880,000 Class B ordinary shares from the Company for an aggregate purchase price of $25,000, or $0.00317 per share, of which up to 1,027,826 founder shares were subject to forfeiture depending on the extent to which the underwriters' over-allotment option is exercised during the Initial Public Offering. On May 22, 2025, the underwriters exercised their over-allotment option in full as part of the closing of the Initial Public Offering. As such, the 1,027,826 founder shares are no longer subject to forfeiture.

Private Placement Units

Simultaneously with the closing of the Initial Public Offering, the Sponsor has purchased an aggregate of 400,000 private placement units at $10.00 per private placement unit in a private placement for an aggregate purchase price of $4,000,000. The underwriters purchased an aggregate of 310,000 private placement units at a price of $10.00 per private placement unit in a private placement for an aggregate purchase price of $3,100,000.

A portion of the purchase price of the private placement units was added to the proceeds of Initial Public Offering held in the Trust Account. If the initial business combination was not completed within 18 months from the closing of the Initial Public Offering, the proceeds from the sale of the private placement units held in the trust account will be used to fund the redemption of the public shares (subject to the requirements of applicable law).

Certain institutional investors (none of which are affiliated with any member of management, the Sponsor or any other investor), referred to as the "non-managing investors", purchased, indirectly through the purchase of non-managing membership interests in the Sponsor, an aggregate of 300,000 Private Placement Units out of the 400,000 Private Placement Units purchased by the Sponsor. Subject to each non-managing sponsor investor purchasing the Private Placement Units allocated to it in connection with the closing of the Initial Public Offering, the Sponsor issued additional membership interests at a nominal purchase price to the non-managing investors reflecting interests in an aggregate of 2.4 million founder shares.

The agreement with the non-managing investors was entered into directly with the Sponsor entity and it makes reference to the Private Placement Units and founder shares of the Company. The interests and units associated in the agreement are supported on one for one basis with the Company's underlying private placement units and founder shares. The fact that the Sponsor is providing the non-managing members with founder shares for their participation in the transaction is considered an inducement and falls under SAB Topic 5A. As such, the Company has obtained a valuation of the Founder Shares, as of the Initial Public Offering date to account for the charge of such transfer of interests to the non-managing members. The valuation has identified the fair value of the Founder Shares to be $1.93 per share as of the close of the Initial Public Offering, on May 22, 2025. Since the cost of these interest allocations to the non-managing members is considered an offering cost, the Company will record the fair value of this transaction into equity at the initial public offering date calculated as 2,400,000 interests in founder shares allocated to non-managing members at a fair value of $4,621,895 or approximately $1.93 per founder share.

The third-party valuation firm used a Monte Carlo simulation to value the Founder Shares. The likelihood of completing the Initial Public offering was assumed to be 100%; the common stock price was $9.845 based on implied stock price; likelihood of a business combination was determined to be 19.9%; and a discount for lack of marketability based on a Finnerty put model yielded 1.7%.

Promissory Note — Related Party

The Sponsor had agreed to loan the Company an aggregate of up to $300,000 to be used for a portion of the expenses of the Initial Public Offering. The loan was non-interest bearing, unsecured and on March 31, 2025, the loan was amended to extend maturity date at the earlier of June 30, 2025, or the closing of the Initial Public Offering. Proceeds received under the note were utilized as follows: $127,755 for working capital, $9,840 for payment of deferred offering costs, $4,614 for payment of formation costs and $870 for the payment of operating expenses. As of May 22, 2025, the Company repaid the outstanding balance of the note amounting to $143,079. Borrowings under the note are no longer available.

Administration Fee

Commencing on May 20, 2025, the Company has agreed to pay the Sponsor $12,000 per month for office space, administrative and support services. These monthly fees will cease upon the completion of the initial Business Combination or the liquidation of the Company. The Original Sponsor had agreed to defer payment of the administration fee until such time as new financing occurs to allow liquidity to pay the fee. The administrative services agreement with the Original Sponsor was terminated on August 28, 2025; all outstanding fees were paid through this date. For the three and nine months ended June 30, 2026 the Company did not incur any fees for these services. For the three months ended June 30, 2025 and for the period from October 3, 2024 (inception) through June 30, 2025, the Company incurred $16,000 and paid fees of $24,000, respectively, for these services. No agreement for administrative service fees has been entered into with the New Sponsor.

Related Party Loans

In order to finance transaction costs in connection with a Business Combination, the Sponsor or an affiliate of the Sponsor or certain of the Company's officers and directors may, but are not obligated to, loan the Company funds as may be required (the "Working Capital Loans"). If the Company completes a Business Combination, the Company would repay the Working Capital Loans. In the event that a Business Combination does not close, the Company may use a portion of the working capital held outside the Trust Account to repay the Working Capital Loans but no proceeds from the Trust Account would be used to repay the Working Capital Loans. A portion of such Working Capital Loans may be convertible into private placement units of the post Business Combination entity at the option of the lender. The units would be identical to the private placement units. As of June 30, 2026 and September 30, 2025, no such Working Capital Loans were outstanding.

NOTE 5. COMMITMENTS AND CONTINGENCIES

Registration Rights

The Company's initial shareholders, the non-managing investors and their permitted transferees can demand that the Company register the Founder Shares, the Private Placement Shares, the Private Placement Warrants and underlying securities and any securities issued upon conversion of Working Capital Loans, pursuant to an agreement signed prior the date of the Initial Public Offering. The holders of a majority of these securities are entitled to make up to three demands that the Company register such securities. The holders of a majority of these securities or units issued in payment of working capital loans made to the Company (or underlying securities) can elect to exercise these registration rights at any time after the Company consummates a Business Combination. In addition, the holders have certain piggy-back registration rights on registration statements filed after the Company's consummation of a Business Combination.

Underwriting Agreement

The Company granted the Underwriters a 45-day option to purchase up to 3,000,000 additional Units to cover any over-allotments, at the Initial Public Offering price less the underwriting discounts. On May 22, 2025, simultaneously with the closing of the Initial Public Offering, the underwriters elected to fully exercise the over-allotment option to purchase the additional 3,000,000 Units at a price of $10.00 per Unit.

The Company paid an underwriting discount of $0.20 per Unit sold in the Initial Public Offering, or $4,600,000 in the aggregate, upon the closing of the Initial Public Offering. Additionally the underwriters are entitled to $0.40 per Unit sold in the offering, $9,200,000 in the aggregate, and is payable to the underwriters based on the percentage of funds remaining in the Trust Account after redemptions of public shares, for deferred underwriting commissions to be placed in a Trust Account located in the United States and released to the underwriters only upon the completion of an initial Business Combination.

On September 9, 2025, the Company entered into a letter agreement with its Underwriters that the Underwriters shall, severally and not jointly, on the terms and conditions set forth in the letter agreement, and contingent upon the occurrence of a specified event, which is the consummation of a business combination with Pubco, will reimburse a portion of the Company's bona fide documented fees and expenses incurred in connection with the Initial Public Offering in an amount of $2,300,000 (the "Reimbursement Amount"), with such amount decreased by $0.10 for every Ordinary Share for which a Public Shareholder exercises its redemption rights in connection with or prior to the specified event. As of June 30, 2026 and September 30, 2025, no reimbursements have been recorded under this agreement.

Service Provider Agreements

The Company has agreed to pay Northland Securities, Inc. ("Northland") a cash transaction fee (the "Finder Fee") equal to 1.0% of the consideration (as defined in the agreement) in the event Northland introduces the Company to the target with which the Company completes an initial Business Combination or has substantive discussions with the target on behalf of and at the specific request of the Company with which the Company completes a Business Combination, payable only upon and subject to the closing of the initial Business Combination. At the closing of the initial Business Combination, the Company shall reimburse Northland up to $20,000 for all reasonable out-of-pocket accountable fees and disbursements incurred by Northland in connection with the performance of its services. As of June 30, 2026, no such expenses have been incurred under the agreement. If we have not consummated an initial Business Combination before November 22, 2026, we may terminate the agreement by providing written notice of such termination to Northland. No amounts were incurred under this agreement for the three and nine months ended June 30, 2026.

The Company has engaged Bishop IR ("Bishop") as an investor relations advisor in connection with the initial Business Combination for the period from May 19, 2025 through May 18, 2026 with a monthly fee of $8,500, payable only upon and subject to the closing of the initial Business Combination. Bishop shall also be reimbursed for all reasonable expenses and disbursements incurred by Bishop on our behalf, provided that such expenses shall not exceed $300 without our prior consent. The agreement with Bishop was terminated effective September 3, 2025 by the New Sponsor. Upon termination of the agreement the Company recognized $38,387 and $37,564 of expenses which are included in deferred professional fees in the Company's balance sheets as of June 30, 2026 and September 30, 2025, respectively.

On October 19, 2025, CCM was retained by the Company to provide an opinion to the Company's Board as to the fairness of the Exchange Ratio (as defined in the Fairness opinion) in connection with the proposed Initial Business Combination Agreement. Pursuant to the terms of its engagement, CCM became entitled to a fee of $450,000 in consideration for the fairness opinion (the "Fairness Opinion Fee"). The Fairness Opinion Fee is due and payable to CCM as follows: (i) up to $100,000 became due to CCM upon informing the SPAC Board that it was prepared render and deliver the fairness opinion; and (ii) the balance of the Fairness Opinion Fee is due upon the earlier of the closing of the proposed Initial Business Combination or the termination of the merger agreement entered into by the Company with respect to the proposed Initial Business Combination. The Company has also agreed to reimburse CCM's reasonable expenses up to an aggregate amount of $125,000 and to indemnify CCM against liabilities arising out of or in connection with the services rendered and to be rendered by CCM under its engagement with the Company.

NOTE 6. SHAREHOLDERS' DEFICIT

Preferred Shares

The Company is authorized to issue 1,000,000 shares of preferred shares with a par value of $0.0001 per share with such designations, voting and other rights and preferences as may be determined from time to time by the Board of Directors. As of June 30, 2026 and September 30, 2025, there were no preferred shares issued and outstanding.

Class A Ordinary Shares

The Company is authorized to issue 200,000,000 Class A ordinary shares with a par value of $0.0001 per share. As of June 30, 2026 and September 30, 2025, there were 710,000 ordinary shares issued or outstanding, excluding 23,000,000 Class A ordinary shares subject to possible redemption, as described above in Note 2 – Class A Ordinary Shares Subject to Possible Redemption. All Class A shares are entitled to one vote per share.

Class B Ordinary Shares

The Company is authorized to issue 20,000,000 Class B ordinary shares with a par value of $0.0001 per share. At June 30, 2026 and September 30, 2025, there were 7,880,000 Class B ordinary shares issued and outstanding. All Class B shares are entitled to one vote per share.

NOTE 7. SEGMENT INFORMATION

ASC Topic 280, "Segment Reporting," establishes standards for companies to report in their financial statement information about operating segments, products, services, geographic areas, and major customers. Operating segments are defined as components of an enterprise that engage in business activities from which it may recognize revenues and incur expenses, and for which separate financial information is available that is regularly evaluated by the Company's CODM, the Chief Financial Officer, in deciding how to allocate resources and assess performance.

The CODM assesses performance for the single segment and decides how to allocate resources. The measure of segment assets is reported on the unaudited condensed balance sheets as total assets. When evaluating the Company's performance and making key decisions regarding resource allocation the CODM reviews several key metrics, which include the following:

	June 30, 2026	September 30, 2025
Cash	$ 54,503	$ 361,105
Cash and marketable securities held in Trust Account	$241,164,305	$234,628,166

	For the Three Months Ended June 30, 2026	For the Three Months Ended June 30, 2025	For the Nine Months Ended June 30, 2026	For period from October 3, 2024 (Inception) through June 30, 2025
General administrative costs	$ 503,862	$ 95,799	$4,383,259	$142,289
Interest earned on cash and marketable securities held in Trust Account	$2,129,189	$982,945	$6,536,139	$982,945

NOTE 8. FAIR VALUE MEASUREMENTS

Fair value is defined as the price that would be received for sale of an asset or paid for transfer of a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date. GAAP establishes a three-tier fair value hierarchy, which prioritizes the inputs used in measuring fair value. The hierarchy gives the highest priority to unadjusted quoted prices in active markets for identical assets or liabilities (Level 1 measurements) and the lowest priority to unobservable inputs (Level 3 measurements). These tiers include:

- Level 1, defined as observable inputs such as quoted prices (unadjusted) for identical instruments in active markets;
- Level 2, defined as inputs other than quoted prices in active markets that are either directly or indirectly observable such as quoted prices for similar instruments in active markets or quoted prices for identical or similar instruments in markets that are not active; and
- Level 3, defined as unobservable inputs in which little or no market data exists, therefore requiring an entity to develop its own assumptions, such as valuations derived from valuation techniques in which one or more significant inputs or significant value drivers are unobservable. In some circumstances, the inputs used to measure fair value might be categorized within different levels of the fair value hierarchy. In those instances, the fair value measurement is categorized in its entirety in the fair value hierarchy based on the lowest level input that is significant to the fair value measurement.

The following table presents information about the Company's assets that are measured at fair value as of June 30, 2026 and September 30, 2025, and indicates the fair value hierarchy of the valuation inputs the Company utilized to determine such fair value:

	Level	June 30, 2026
Assets:
Marketable securities held in Trust Account	1	$241,164,305

	Level	September 30, 2025
Assets:
Cash and marketable securities held in Trust Account	1	$234,628,166

The fair value of the Public Warrants is $3,565,000 or $0.31 per public warrant. The fair value of Public Warrants was determined using Monte Carlo Simulation Model. The Public Warrants have been classified within shareholders' deficit and will not require remeasurement after issuance. The following table presents the quantitative information regarding market assumptions used in the valuation of the public warrants:

	May 22, 2025
Volatility	6.4%
Risk free rate	3.99%
Stock price	$9.845
Weighted term (Yrs)	2.99

The fair value of the 2,400,000 of interests in founders shares allocated to the non-managing members was $4,621,895 or approximately $1.93 per Founder Share and was determined using Monte Carlo Simulation Model. These interest allocations have been classified within shareholders' deficit and will not require remeasurement after issuance.

The following table presents the quantitative information regarding market assumptions used in the valuation of the interest allocations to the non-managing members:

	May 22, 2025
Volatility	6.40%
Risk free rate	4.09%
Stock price	$9.845
Weighted term (Yrs)	1.34

NOTE 9. SUBSEQUENT EVENTS

The Company evaluated subsequent events and transactions that occurred after the unaudited condensed balance sheets date up to the date that the unaudited condensed financial statements were issued. Based upon this review, other than disclosed below, or within these financial statements, the Company did not identify any subsequent events that would have required adjustment or disclosure in the unaudited condensed financial statements.

Promissory Note – Related Party

On July 27, 2026, the Company entered into an unsecured promissory note with Arrington XRP Capital Fund, LP, pursuant to which the lender may, at its discretion, provide working capital loans to the Company. Any amounts borrowed under the note will bear interest at the applicable federal short-term rate in effect at issuance and may be used for the Company's ordinary course administrative expenses. The note matures upon the earlier of (i) the termination of the Business Combination Agreement or (ii) the closing of the business combination. The Company may prepay the note at any time without penalty. Any outstanding principal and accrued interest will become due and payable upon maturity.

As of the date these financial statements were issued aggregate borrowings of $135,000 were outstanding under the note, excluding accrued interest.

Amendments to the Business Combination Agreement and Related Agreements

As discussed in Note 1 – Business Combination Agreement, effective August 12, 2026, the Company entered into amendments to certain agreements related to the proposed business combination. The significant terms of these amendments are summarized below and should be read in conjunction with the related disclosures within Note 1 associated with each respective agreement.

Business Combination Agreement

On August 12, 2026, the Company, Pubco, Pathfinder, SPAC Merger Sub, Company executed Amendment No. 1 to the Business Combination Agreement for purposes of proposing certain changes to Pubco's amended and restated articles of incorporation, with such changes to be adopted by Pubco and to take effect upon the consummation of the Closing on the Closing Date.

Sponsor Support Agreement

On August 12, 2026, the Company, Pubco and the New Sponsor entered into Amendment No. 1 to the Sponsor Support Agreement. The amendment revised the sponsor forfeiture provisions by replacing fixed forfeiture amounts with a variable adjustment mechanism based on specified XRP reference prices measured at signing and closing. As amended, the number of sponsor shares and private placement warrants retained immediately prior to closing will vary based on the applicable XRP valuation metrics, subject to defined maximum retention limits.

Series C Subscription Agreement

On August 12, 2026, the Company entered into Amendment No. 1 to its Series C Subscription Agreement with the New Sponsor. The amendment revised the methodology used to calculate the number of shares issuable upon closing of the subscription by incorporating a closing-date XRP price adjustment factor based on the relationship between specified XRP reference prices at signing and closing. The amendment also modified the calculation of adjustment shares issuable in connection with changes in XRP value prior to closing. No changes were made to the stated subscription price or the $10.00 per-share purchase price. The Company is evaluating the accounting and disclosure implications of the amendment.

Advance Funding Subscription Agreements

On August 12, 2026, the Company entered into Amendment No. 1 to certain Advance Funding Subscription Agreements. The amendment revised the methodology used to calculate the number of shares issuable at closing by incorporating a closing-date XRP price adjustment factor based on specified XRP reference prices measured at signing and closing. The amendment also modified the calculation of adjustment shares issuable in connection with changes in XRP value prior to closing. No changes were made to the stated subscription amount or the $10.00 per-share purchase price.

REPORT OF INDEPENDENT REGISTERED PUBLIC ACCOUNTING FIRM

To the shareholder of Evernorth Holdings Inc.

Opinion on the Financial Statements

We have audited the accompanying consolidated balance sheets of Evernorth Holdings Inc. and subsidiaries (the "Company") as of December 31, 2025 and September 30, 2025, the related consolidated statements of operations, changes in stockholder's deficit, and cash flows, for the period from August 29, 2025 (inception) to December 31, 2025, and the related notes (collectively referred to as the "financial statements"). In our opinion, the financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Company as of December 31, 2025 and September 30, 2025, and the results of its operations and its cash flows for the period from August 29, 2025 (inception) to December 31, 2025, in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

Basis for Opinion

These financial statements are the responsibility of the Company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on the Company's financial statements based on our audits. We are a public accounting firm registered with the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (United States) (PCAOB) and are required to be independent with respect to the Company in accordance with the U.S. federal securities laws and the applicable rules and regulations of the Securities and Exchange Commission and the PCAOB.

We conducted our audits in accordance with the standards of the PCAOB. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audits to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement, whether due to error or fraud. The Company is not required to have, nor were we engaged to perform, an audit of its internal control over financial reporting. As part of our audits, we are required to obtain an understanding of internal control over financial reporting but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the Company's internal control over financial reporting. Accordingly, we express no such opinion.

Our audits included performing procedures to assess the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements, whether due to error or fraud, and performing procedures that respond to those risks. Such procedures included examining, on a test basis, evidence regarding the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. Our audits also included evaluating the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the financial statements. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

1. Organization

a) Nature of Operations

Evernorth Holdings Inc. ("Evernorth", or the "Company"), incorporated in Nevada on August 29, 2025 ("inception") is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Ripple Labs, Inc. ("Ripple" or the "Parent") and was formed as a purpose-built vehicle for investment in XRP through public equity markets. XRP is the digital asset native to the distributed XRP Ledger. Evernorth is structured to provide institutional investors with exposure to XRP via a regulated investment vehicle.

On October 19, 2025, the Company, Pathfinder Digital Assets LLC ("Pathfinder"), Ripple, Armada Acquisition Corp. II ("Armada"), Evernorth Company Merger Sub LLC a wholly-owned subsidiary of Evernorth ("Company Merger Sub") and Evernorth Corporate Merger Sub Inc. a wholly-owned subsidiary of Evernorth ("SPAC Merger Sub"), entered into a definitive Business Combination Agreement ("BCA"). The BCA provides for a series of transactions whereby, among other things, Armada will domesticate from a Cayman Islands exempted company into a Delaware corporation prior to closing, and on closing, Company Merger Sub and SPAC Merger Sub will merge with and into Pathfinder and Armada, respectively, resulting in the Pathfinder and Armada each becoming wholly owned by the Company (collectively, the "Mergers" or "Proposed Business Combination.") Upon consummation of the Mergers, Evernorth will be the publicly traded parent company of the combined entities ("Pubco").

Contribution Agreement

On October 19, 2025, the Company and Pathfinder entered into a contribution agreement with Ripple where Ripple contributed 126,791,458 XRP ("Contributed XRP") to Pathfinder in exchange for additional units of Pathfinder. The number of units ("Initial Subscribed Units") is calculated as the quotient of a) the product of the Contributed XRP and the volume-weighted average price ("VWAP") of XRP denominated in USD on the day immediately preceding the date on which the BCA is signed ("Signing Date") ("Signing XRP Price") and b) $10.00.

These units will be exchanged for Pubco Class A Common Shares at closing of the BCA ("Closing Date"), provided that conversions will only be made up to a 9.9% ownership threshold (including any ownerships held by affiliates of Ripple) in Pubco; any excess will remain as units in Pathfinder.

If the average value of XRP for the three days immediately preceding the Closing Date ("Closing XRP Price") is greater than the Signing XRP Price, Ripple will be entitled to additional units in Pathfinder (the "Adjustment Units") equal to the product of (i) the number of Initial Subscribed Units and (ii) the difference between (1) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (2) one. For clarity, if the Closing XRP Price is less than or equal the Signing XRP Price, the number of Adjustment Shares will be zero.

This agreement currently has no impact on the Company's financial statements.

Advance and Delayed Subscription Agreements

Concurrently, the Company, Pathfinder, and Armada entered into subscription agreements with various institutional and accredited investors on October 19, 2025 to secure additional funding for the Mergers ("Advance and Delayed Subscription Agreements"). The Advance and Delayed Subscription Agreements include the following capital commitments at closing:

Advance Funding: Certain investors contributed a total of $214,049,995 in cash by October 23, 2025 and 600,000 XRP by October 24, 2025 to the Company ("Advance Funding Subscription Agreement"). The cash received was used by Evernorth to purchase 84,365,876 XRP which was received partially on October 31, 2025 with the remainder by November 6, 2025. These investors agreed to purchase newly issued shares of Pubco Class A Common Stock at the Closing Date at $10.00 per share equity valuation ("Initial Subscribed Shares.") The XRP was placed into an escrow in an unencumbered digital custody wallet in the name of Pubco, but for the benefit of the investors, pending completion of the Proposed Business Combination.

If Closing XRP Price is greater than Signing XRP Price, the investors will be entitled to additional Pubco Class A Common Stock (the "Adjustment Shares") equal to the product of (i) the number of Initial Subscribed Shares and (ii) the difference between (1) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (2) one. For clarity, if the Closing XRP Price is less than or equal the Signing XRP Price, the number of Adjustment Shares will be zero.

Delayed Funding: Additional investors committed $10,500,000 in cash and 200,000 XRP, which will be delivered at the Closing Date. These investors also agreed to purchase Pubco Class A Common Stock at a $10.00 per share equity valuation. This agreement currently has no impact on the Company's financial statements.

Series C Subscription Agreement

On October 19, 2025, the Company, Pathfinder, and Armada entered into a Series C subscription agreement with Arrington XRP Capital Fund, LP ("Sponsor") ("Series C Subscription Agreement".) RippleWorks, Inc. ("RippleWorks"), a nonprofit foundation, contributed 211,319,096 XRP to the Sponsor which is subject to the Sponsor's obligation to invest all of the XRP received from RippleWorks for shares of Pubco pursuant to the Series C Subscription Agreement. Rippleworks is a limited partner of the Sponsor.

Under the Series C Subscription Agreement, the Sponsor contributed the subscription price of 211,319,096 XRP on October 23, 2025 into an escrow in an unencumbered digital custody wallet in the name of Pubco but for the benefit of the Sponsor, pending completion of the Proposed Business Combination. In return, the Sponsor will receive a combination of Pubco Class A Common Stock and Class C Common Stock (collectively, the "Series C Initial Subscribed Shares") on Closing Date at $10.00 per share equity valuation. The Sponsor will receive a number of Class A shares such that, immediately after the closing of the Proposed Business Combination and related transactions, the Sponsor will beneficially own 19.9% of the outstanding voting shares, with the remaining shares issued as Class C Common Stock in Pubco which are nonvoting shares.

If Closing XRP Price is greater than Signing XRP Price, the Sponsor will be entitled to receive additional Class C Common Stock (the "Series C Adjustment Shares") equal to the product of (i) Series C Initial Subscribed Shares and (ii) the difference between (1) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (2) one. For clarity, if the Closing XRP Price is less than or equal the Signing XRP Price, the number of Series C Adjustment Shares will be zero.

Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription

Concurrently, on October 19, 2025, the Company, Pathfinder, and Armada entered into a subscription agreement with an investor affiliated with Ripple (the "Contributor Related Party Entity"), to facilitate a private placement of equity interests in Pubco ("Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement".) Under the agreement, Contributor Related Party Entity committed to purchase Class A Common Stock in Pubco on Closing Date at $10.00 per share equity valuation, in exchange for 50,000,000 XRP ("Contributor Related Party Entity Initial Subscribed Units".) The 50,000,000 XRP was transferred to the Company on October 20, 2025 and was placed into an escrow in an unencumbered digital custody wallet in the name of Pubco, but for the benefit of the Contributor Related Party Entity, pending completion of the Proposed Business Combination. On Closing Date, the Contributor Related Party Entity will receive a combination of Pubco Class A Common Stock and units in Pathfinder ("Pathfinder Units"), structured to ensure that Ripple and the Contributor Related Party Entity combined do not exceed 9.9% ownership of Pubco immediately following the closing of the Proposed Business Combination. Any excess equity interests beyond this ownership threshold will be issued in the form of Pathfinder Units rather than Pubco Class A Common Stock.

If Closing XRP Price is greater than Signing XRP Price, the Contributor Related Party Entity will be entitled to receive Pathfinder Units (the "Contributor Related Party Entity Adjustment Units") equal to the product of (i) Contributor Related Party Entity Initial Subscribed Units and (ii) the difference between (1) the quotient of the Closing XRP Price and the Signing XRP Price and (2) one. For clarity, if the Closing XRP Price is less than or equal the Signing XRP Price, the number Contributor Related Party Entity Adjustment Units will be zero.

The Advance and Delayed Subscription Agreements, Series C Subscription Agreement, and Contributor Related Party Entity Subscription Agreement will be collectively referred to as "Subscription Agreements."

b) Liquidity and Capital Resources

The Company has an accumulated deficit of $152,717,402 as of December 31, 2025, which represent losses and expenses incurred by the Company since inception. As of December 31, 2025 and September 30, 2025, the Company has no unrestricted cash. Since inception, the Company has incurred operating losses. The Company's operating activities have been primarily funded through payments by Ripple, as well as the revolving Related Party Credit Facility provided by Ripple (as defined in Note 8.) On October 19, 2025, the Company and Pathfinder entered into a contribution agreement with Ripple where Ripple contributed 126,791,458 XRP to Pathfinder, which can be liquidated to fund operational costs for both the Company and Pathfinder.

Management expects to continue to incur additional losses in future periods due to strategic investments in XRP, portfolio management activities, and expansion of operational infrastructure.

2. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

(a) Basis of Presentation

The consolidated financial statements of the Company are presented in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America ("US GAAP") and pursuant to the rules and regulations of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC"). The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Company and its subsidiaries. All intercompany accounts and transactions have been eliminated.

The consolidated statement of operations for the period from inception to December 31, 2025 reflects all expenses and activities directly attributable to the Company.

(b) Use of Estimates

The preparation of the consolidated financial statements, in conformity with GAAP, requires management to make estimates and judgments that affect the amounts reported in the consolidated financial statements and accompanying notes. On an on-going basis, the Company evaluates its estimates, including, but not limited to, those related to liability measured at fair value using the fair value option, and determination of the fair value of its digital assets pursuant to its principal market.

The Company bases its estimates on historical experience and on various other assumptions that are believed to be reasonable under the circumstances, the results of which form the basis for making judgments about the carrying value of assets, liabilities, and equity that are not readily apparent from other sources. Actual results and outcomes could differ from these estimates and assumptions.

(c) Segment Reporting

The Company has determined that it operates in a single operating and reportable segment. The Chief Executive Officer serves as the Chief Operating Decision Maker ("CODM"), responsible for evaluating performance and allocating resources. For the period presented, the Company's activities were limited to initial formation and preparatory steps related to the Proposed Business Combination.

Net loss incurred during the period totaled $152,717,402, primarily consisted of professional service fees, digital asset impairment, change in fair value of refundable investor advances, and other start-up costs. The CODM assesses segment performance based on net loss, which is the measure of segment profit or loss reported in the consolidated statement of operations. Segment expense information provided to the CODM is based on the expense categories presented in the consolidated financial statements. The measure of segment assets are the total assets as reported on the consolidated balance sheets.

(d) Emerging Growth Company Status

The Company is an emerging growth company ("EGC") as defined in the Jumpstart Our Business Startups Act of 2012 ("JOBS Act") and may take advantage of reduced reporting requirements that are otherwise applicable to public companies. Section 107 of the JOBS Act exempts emerging growth companies from being required to comply with new or revised financial accounting standards until private companies are required to comply with those standards. This means that when a standard is issued or revised and it has different application dates for public and nonpublic companies, the Company has the option to adopt the new or revised standard at the time nonpublic companies adopt the new or revised standard and can do so until such time that the Company either (i) irrevocably elects to "opt out" of such extended transition period or (ii) no longer qualifies as an emerging growth company. The Company has elected to use the extended transition period for complying with new or revised accounting standards unless the Company otherwise early adopts select standards.

(e) Deferred Offering Costs

The Company defers certain legal, professional, accounting and other third-party fees that are directly associated with proposed offerings of securities, including the Proposed Business Combination, as deferred offering costs until such financings are consummated. After consummation of the financing, these costs are recorded as a reduction of the proceeds received from the equity financing. If a planned equity financing is abandoned, the deferred offering costs are expensed immediately as a charge to operating expenses in the consolidated statement of operations.

As of December 31, 2025 and September 30, 2025, the Company had $3,802,903 and $1,761,419 of deferred offering costs, respectively.

(f) Digital Assets

The Company accounts for its digital assets, which consist solely of XRP, as indefinite lived intangible assets in accordance with ASC 350, Intangibles—Goodwill and Other. Digital assets are initially recorded at cost and are subsequently measured at cost, net of accumulated impairment losses.

The Company determines the fair value of its XRP on a nonrecurring basis in accordance with ASC 820, Fair Value Measurement, using quoted prices from Coinbase, its principal market for XRP (Level 1 inputs). Each quarter, the Company evaluates whether events or changes in circumstances, primarily declines in quoted prices on the active market, indicate that it is more likely than not that the digital assets are impaired. In assessing impairment, the Company considers the lowest observable intraday price for one XRP on the principal market at any time since acquisition of the specific XRP held. An impairment loss is recognized when the carrying value of an XRP exceeds this lowest observable intraday price, in an amount equal to the difference.

Impairment losses are recognized in the period incurred and recorded within "Digital asset impairment" in the Company's statements of operations. Following impairment, the digital assets are written down to fair value, which becomes the new cost basis and is not subsequently adjusted for increases in fair value. Gains on disposition, if any, are calculated as the excess of the sale price over the carrying value of the XRP sold (which reflects any previously recognized impairment losses) and are recognized in the statement of operations at the time of sale.

The Company determines the cost basis of XRP dispositions using specific identification, consistent with the ordering provisions of its operating agreement. Under these provisions, dispositions are made first from non-contributed XRP and thereafter from contributed XRP on a pro rata basis among contributed lots. Gains and losses are determined based on the carrying value of the XRP lots (which reflects any previously recognized impairment losses) disposed. The Company's disposition strategy may also consider U.S. federal income tax implications; however, the accounting recognition of gains and losses is based on the carrying value of the XRP lots disposed.

The Company determined that its current digital asset holdings are out of scope of ASU 2023-08. The Company will reassess the scope of ASU 2023-08 upon changes in facts and circumstances, including consummation of the Proposed Business Combination.

(g) Income Tax

The Company is a U.S. C-Corporation and as such, is a regarded entity for U.S Federal and State taxation and subject to income taxes.

For purposes of these separately issued financial statements, the Company applies the separate return method, under which the Company's current and deferred income taxes are determined as if the Company filed its income tax returns on a stand-alone basis in each applicable jurisdiction.

The Company accounts for income taxes under the asset and liability method, which requires the recognition of deferred tax assets ("DTA") and deferred tax liabilities ("DTL"), for the expected future tax consequences of events that have been included in the consolidated financial statements. Under this method, we determine DTAs and DTLs on the basis of the differences between the consolidated financial statement and tax bases of assets and liabilities by using enacted tax rates in effect for the year in which the differences are expected to reverse. The effect of a change in tax rates on DTAs and DTLs is recognized in income in the period that includes the enactment date. We recognize DTAs to the extent that we believe that these assets are more likely than not to be realized. In making such a determination, we consider all available positive and negative evidence, including future reversals of existing taxable temporary differences, projected future taxable income, tax-planning strategies, carryback potential if permitted under the tax law, and results of recent operations. If we determine that we would be able to realize our DTAs in the future in excess of their net recorded amount, we would make an adjustment to the DTA valuation allowance, which would reduce the provision for income taxes. As of the date of the accompanying consolidated financial statements, the Company recorded a valuation allowance equal to 100% of the Company's DTAs, as the Company concluded that the amounts are not realizable in the foreseeable future.

The Company records its income taxes receivable and payable based upon its estimated income tax position. Because the Company expects to be in a loss for the current year it has not recorded a current tax receivable or payable. We record uncertain tax positions in accordance with ASC 740 on the basis of a two-step process in which (1) we determine whether it is more likely than not that the tax positions will be sustained on the basis of the technical merits of the position and (2) for those tax positions that meet the more-likely-than-not recognition threshold, we recognize the largest amount of tax benefit that is more than 50 percent likely to be realized upon ultimate settlement with the related tax authority

(h) General and Administrative Expenses

General and administrative expenses primarily consist of professional service fees, including consulting, accounting, and legal fees, as well as other start-up costs.

(i) Fair Value Measurements

The Company accounts for certain assets and liabilities at fair value in accordance with ASC 820 Fair Value Measurement. ASC 820 establishes a fair value hierarchy that prioritizes the inputs used in valuation techniques based on the extent to which those inputs are observable in the marketplace. Fair value measurements are classified within the hierarchy based on the lowest level input that is significant to the measurement in its entirety. The three levels of the fair value hierarchy are as follows:

Level 1 – Inputs are based on quoted (unadjusted) prices for identical assets or liabilities in active markets that the Company has the ability to access at the measurement date.

Level 2 – Inputs are based on quoted prices for similar assets or liabilities in active markets, quoted prices for identical or similar assets or liabilities in markets that are not active, or other inputs that are observable, either directly or indirectly, for substantially the full term of the asset or liability.

Level 3 – Inputs are generally unobservable and reflect management's estimates of assumptions that market participants would use in pricing the asset or liability. These valuations are determined using model-based techniques, such as discounted cash flow models or option pricing models, and require the use of significant judgment. Unobservable inputs are significant to the fair value measurements in their entirety.

Below summarizes the financial liabilities measure at fair value as of December 31, 2025:

Financial liabilities measured at fair value	Level 1	Level 2	Level 3	Total
Refundable investor advances	—	—	764,570,995	764,570,995
Total financial liabilities	—	—	764,570,995	764,570,995

There were no financial instruments measured at fair value as of September 30, 2025.

(j) Refundable Investor Advances

Refundable investor advances are accounted for at fair value pursuant to the fair value option and are remeasured at fair value at each reporting date, with changes in fair value recognized on the statement of operations as other (income) expense.

3. Recent Accounting Pronouncements

Recently adopted accounting pronouncements

In November 2023, the Financial Accounting Standards Board ("FASB") issued Accounting Standards Update (ASU) 2023-07, Segment Reporting (Topic 280): Improvements to Reportable Segment Disclosures, ("ASU 2023-07") which expands disclosures about a public business entity's reportable segments and provides for more detailed information about a reportable segment's expenses.

ASU 2023-07 is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2023, and interim periods within fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2024, and requires retrospective application to all prior periods presented in the consolidated financial statements. Early adoption is permitted. The Company adopted this standard at inception.

In December 2023, the FASB issued ASU 2023-08, Accounting for and Disclosure of Crypto Assets (Topic 350), which provides new guidance for the accounting and disclosure of certain crypto assets. ASU 2023-08 requires entities to measure in-scope digital assets at fair value, with changes in fair value recognized in net income each reporting period. The standard also requires enhanced disclosures, including information about significant holdings, contractual sale restrictions, and changes in such holdings during the reporting period.

ASU 2023-08 is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2024, including interim periods within those fiscal years. The Company adopted this standard at inception and noted no impact on its consolidated financial statements upon adoption.

Recently issued accounting pronouncements not yet adopted

In December 2023, the FASB issued ASU 2023-09, Income Taxes (Topic 740): Improvements to Income Tax Disclosures. This ASU requires entities to disclose, among others: (i) specific categories in the rate reconciliation table (ii) additional information for reconciling items that meet a quantitative threshold and (iii) the amount of income taxes paid on a disaggregated level. This ASU is required to be adopted on a prospective basis.

For public business entities, the amendments are effective for annual periods beginning after December 15, 2024 and after December 15, 2025, for all other entities, including interim periods. The Company is currently evaluating the impact of adopting ASU 2023-09 on its consolidated financial statement disclosures.

In November 2024, the FASB issued ASU 2024-03, Income Statement—Reporting Comprehensive Income—Expense Disaggregation Disclosures (Subtopic 220-40): Disaggregation of Income Statement Expenses. ASU 2024-03 requires public business entities to provide enhanced disclosures in the notes to the consolidated financial statements that disaggregate certain expense captions presented on the face of the income statement into specified natural expense categories, including purchases of inventory, employee compensation, depreciation, intangible asset amortization, and, for certain industries, depletion expenses. The new standard also requires a narrative disclosure of total selling expenses and a description of what is included in selling expenses.

ASU 2024-03 is effective for annual reporting periods beginning after December 15, 2026, and interim periods beginning after December 15, 2027. Early adoption is permitted. The Company is currently evaluating the impact of adopting ASU 2024-03 on its consolidated financial statement disclosures.

In December 2025, the FASB issued ASU 2025-11, Interim Reporting (Topic 270): Narrow-Scope Improvements, which clarifies and improves the navigability of interim reporting guidance in ASC 270. The ASU specifies the form and content of interim financial statements and notes, incorporates a comprehensive list of interim disclosure requirements previously located throughout the Codification, and introduces a disclosure principle requiring entities to disclose events and changes since the end of the most recent annual reporting period that have a material effect on the entity. The amendments do not change the fundamental nature of interim reporting or materially expand or reduce existing interim disclosure requirements. The ASU is effective for interim reporting periods in fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2027, for public business entities and after December 15, 2028, for all other entities. Early adoption is permitted. The Company is currently evaluating the impact of this ASU on its interim consolidated financial statement disclosures.

4. Digital Assets

In connection with the Subscription Agreements executed in contemplation of the BCA (Note 1), investors party to the Subscription Agreements (collective, the "Subscribers") contributed either XRP directly or contributed cash that the Company is contractually required to use to purchase XRP (collectively, "Custody XRP.") Custody XRP is deposited into a custodial wallet maintained and controlled by Evernorth and is subjected to contractual restriction where it may not be sold, transferred, pledged, or otherwise encumbered until the completion of Proposed Business Combination. The following table presents the changes in the carrying value of the Company's digital assets:

Balance at August 29, 2025 and September 30, 2025	$ —
Additions	846,575,043
Impairment	(233,650,642)
Ending balance at December 31, 2025	$ 612,924,401

The following table presents the cost basis of XRP based on the lot of XRP received:

XRP Contribution (Units)	Cost Basis
50,000,001	$124,800,002
199,999	484,598
211,619,196	507,039,594
99,900	250,849
84,365,876	214,000,000
346,284,972	$846,575,043

As of September 30, 2025, the Company did not hold any digital assets

5. Refundable Investor Advances

In connection with the Subscription Agreements executed in contemplation of the BCA (Note 1), if the earliest of the following was to occur: (i) the BCA is terminated; (ii) the Proposed Business Combination does not close on or prior to one year from the signing of the BCA; or (iii) a mutual written agreement of the parties to the Subscription Agreements to terminate the BCA, then the Company is contractually required to return to each Subscriber its pro rata portion of the Custody XRP or cash, taking into the account taking into account the subscription price paid by the Subscribers. Accordingly, upon receipt of XRP or cash, the Company records a refundable investor advance on its consolidated balance sheets.

The Company has elected the fair value option under ASC 825 to measure the refundable investor advance. The fair value of the liability is determined using a valuation model that incorporates probability-weighted outcomes, including (i) the likelihood and fair value of Custody XRP that would be returned to Subscribers if the BCA does not close within the contractual time frame and (ii) the issuance of Pubco shares upon consummation of the BCA at an assumed valuation of $10 per share as discounted by a risk-free rate of 3.64%. The Company currently estimates 70% probability for the consummation of the Proposed Business Combination and 30% probability of the BCA not closing within the contractual time frame. The fair value of the Custody XRP is derived using the December 31, 2025 closing price per Coinbase of $1.839. Accordingly, the liability is classified within Level 3 of the fair value hierarchy.

Increases (decreases) in the probability of consummation of the Proposed Business Combination and fair value of Custody XRP would generally result in increase (decrease) in the fair value of the liability, respectively, and changes in these assumptions could have a material impact on the recorded fair value of the refundable investor advances. Changes in the fair value of the refundable investor advances are recognized on the statement of operations as other (income) expense.

The following table presents the changes in the fair value of the refundable investor advances from inception to December 31, 2025:

Balance at August 29, 2025 and September 30, 2025	$ —
Additions	846,625,038
Change in fair value	(82,054,043)
Ending balance at December 31, 2025	$764,570,995

6. Income Taxes

The Company accounts for income taxes under ASC 740, which provides for an asset and liability approach of accounting for income taxes.

The income tax provision for the period from August 29, 2025 (inception) to December 31, 2025 is as follows:

	2025
Deferred:
U.S. federal	$ 32,070,654
State	6,350,211
	38,420,865
Change in valuation allowance	(38,420,865)
Provision for income taxes	$ —

The provision for income taxes differs from the amount expected by applying the federal statutory rate to the loss before taxes for the period from August 29, 2025 (inception) to December 31, 2025 as follows:

	2025
Statutory rate	$(32,070,654)
State taxes, net of federal benefit	(6,350,211)
Permanent book/tax differences	—
Change in valuation allowance	38,420,865
Provision for income taxes	$ —

Significant components of the Company's deferred tax assets as of December 31, 2025 are summarized below.

	December 31, 2025
Deferred tax assets:
Net operating loss carryforwards	$ 1,374
Refundable investor advances	138,265,775
Start-up costs	280,599
Gross deferred tax assets	138,547,748
Valuation allowance	(38,420,865)
Total deferred tax assets	100,126,883
Deferred tax liabilities:
Digital assets	(100,126,883)
Total net deferred tax	$ —

The Company recognizes deferred tax assets to the extent that it believes that these assets are more likely than not to be realized. In making such a determination, the Company considers all available positive and negative evidence, including future reversals of existing taxable temporary differences, projected future taxable income, tax-planning strategies, and results of recent operations. The Company assessed the need for a valuation allowance against its net deferred tax assets and determined a full valuation allowance is required the Company has no history of generating taxable income. Therefore, a valuation allowance of $38,420,865 was recorded as of December 31, 2025.

The Company records uncertain tax positions in accordance with ASC 740 on the basis of a two-step process in which (1) we determine whether it is more likely than not that the tax positions will be sustained on the basis of the technical merits of the position and (2) for those tax positions that meet the more-likely-than-not recognition threshold, we recognize the largest amount of tax benefit that is more than 50 percent likely to be realized upon ultimate settlement with the related tax authority.

The Company recognizes accrued interest and penalties related to unrecognized tax benefits as income tax expense. There were no unrecognized tax benefits and no amounts accrued for interest and penalties as of December 31, 2025.

7. Commitments and Contingencies

Loss Contingencies

In the normal course of business, the Company may be involved in claims and legal proceedings. The Company records a liability for such matters when it is probable that a loss has been incurred and the
